SCOOP OF THE CENTURY

There's a Lot in a Name. For MACK SENNETT

A name means more in this business than in any other on earth.

The difference between a high and a low week in the business of a big theatre may amount to $25,000.

That large sum represents the difference in drawing power between a first class box-office name or title and those that are poor. One name or title will draw like an old fashioned fire place; another means nothing. The name with a draw is worth a lot more in rental when it will gross $25,000 more in receipts.

Among the very biggest and best known names in this business is that of Mack Sennett.

Charlie Chaplin, Gloria Swanson, Mabel Normand and a host of well known picture personalities got their start with him. His studios have been a nursery for stars. He made the words "bathing beauties" household words all over the globe. People say of any girl with face and figure far above the average that she is a "regular Sennett girl."

For fifteen years his name has meant comedies.

It is probable that the first comedy the present generation of picture goers ever saw was a Mack Sennett, and they've been laughing at them ever since.

Such a name and fame is absolutely coinable at the box-office. That isn't a guess but a certainty.

The exhibitor who fails to advertise a Mack Sennett is losing the profits that come to a great box-office name. He is neglecting the basic principle of this business.

You can't beat the combination of a great name with great product!

Now—the Carrier System is available for the Smaller Theatres

THE first-class small theatres and neighborhood houses having 900 or more seats, will now find the Carrier System within reach as a highly profitable investment.

We have instituted a special department devoted to the design and installation of complete Carrier Cooling and Air Conditioning systems in the smaller theatres.

The same outstanding features that have made Carrier Cooled Theatres famous from Los Angeles to Broadway are retained in the new design adapted to the small houses.

The system includes the safe, simple, automatic Carrier Centrifugal Refrigeration machine. The same automatic instruments are used to create and control ideal conditions of Temperature and Humidity every day in the year. The system is equipped to warm and humidify the air in Winter as well as to cool and dehumidify the air in Summer.

Finally, the system is backed by the guarantee of results which Carrier has attached to every contract during 25 years of experience in the specialized field of air conditioning.

Here are the first small houses to enter the group of Carrier Cooled Theatres:

Capitol, Shamokin, Pa.,	1,200 seats	W. H. Lee, Archt.
Eastern, Columbus, O.,	1,000 seats	C. Howard Crane, Archt.
Iris, Houston, Texas,	1,200 seats
Clinton, Columbus, O.,	1,000 seats	H. C. Holbrook, Archt.

Operators of Theatre Chains, Owners of Individual Theatres and Theatre Architects are invited to investigate this new adaptation of the Carrier Patented System. Write for the Book, "Theatre Cooling," and ask for a visit from one of our Engineers.

"The Theatre Owner's and Manager's Greatest Trade Journal"

HOSTETTLER AMUSEMENT COMPANY

Executive Offices
418 Brandies Theatre Building
Omaha, Nebraska

June 27, 1926.

Mr. William A. Johnston,
Motion Picture News, Inc.,
New York, N.Y.

Dear Mr. Johnston:

Your semi-annual Buyers' Guide is of more than passing interest to us, as Universal Chain Theatrical Enterprises now have under construction in this city a new 1,400-seat house, Mr. John Eberson being the architect.

This new theatre, named the Capitol, will be the finest house of this seating capacity in the Mid-West, embodying all of the unique features for which Mr. Eberson is noted.

The color section is of especial interest as the new Capitol is along Spanish lines, the auditorium having the old Spanish Garden background. Mr. Eberson has incorporated every known improvement in the theatre field in this new house. While we have been able to give our patrons an idea from the blue prints what to expect in the Capitol, your Buyers' Guide has furnished us with a vivid picture of what it is really going to be.

This volume should be worth a great deal to all theatre owners, bringing vividly to their attention what is going on in the theatre field, also that the theatre building itself and its appointments are an ever-growing factor in the world of amusement. The day of the store-room-shooting-gallery is past.

You are to be complimented on this out-of-the-ordinary addition to the theatre owner's and manager's greatest trade journal.

Very truly yours,

Majestic Theatre, Grand Island, Neb.

DELIGHTFUL STAR

The tremendous success of the "Duchess of Buffalo." At the Capitol Theatre. Brings to the front again. That delightful Constance Talmadge.

That she is a true artist cannot be doubted. She seems to know how to intrigue her audience. Today she has as great a following as any of any First National stars.

The "Duchess of Buffalo" is splendidly directed by Sidney Franklin. It has an important cast. And gives the inimitable Constance an opportunity. To extract real comedy.

Here's hoping that she stays on the screen for many years.

My dear Mr. Smith:-

The business done by Constance Talmadge in "The Duchess of Buffalo" on Sunday and Monday of this week was really tremendous. I will be pleased to advise you of results by the end of the week.

Kind regards,

Very truly yours,
SHIEA OPERATING CORPORATION.

General Manager.

Buffalo greets her with sensational business and Indianapolis hits the sky in praise

It is safe to say that Constance Talmadge is a past mistress of the art of projecting naughty but innocent comedy in front of the eye of the camera. She has those eyes, that twinkle, that dash and even that mouth which popular song writers rave about "The Duchess of Buffalo"—Circle.

Constance Talmadge's flair for romantic comedy surpasses itself in her latest release, "The Duchess of Buffalo," which made its appearance at the Circle Sunday.

There is an overabundance of amusing situations in the comedy; the direction is highly effective, and the subtitles are unusually good.

Miss Talmadge's many admirers will like her in this picture. She has ample opportunity to do all the things which won her the hosts of friends she has—she dances, she has many delightful comedy situations to cut up in, and she wears stunning costumes for, and!

Anything But the Truth

THERE was striking evidence, again, last week, that the direst enemy of the motion picture is the so-called newspaper which puts a sensational headline above all decency, to say nothing of truth.

One New York tabloid, in a fake headline, announced the death of Valentino. Later, when the suffering man seemed to be getting a shade the better of his grim and pathetic struggle, a story was cooked up that the entire thing was a publicity stunt.

The other local tabloid, not to be outdone, appeared with another "dope" story, obviously written in utter ignorance of all the facts concerned, to the effect that the American producer made a European negative in order to give the good people of the continent something salacious in their film fare.

This is unfortunate enough, and unfair enough even to people who prefer these sheets to newspapers. But, the worst of it is, the salaried reformer will grab the outrageous story about European negatives, grab it with much glee, and paste it away in his ever ready scrapbook to be duly presented as a leading exhibit in some legislative campaign for motion picture censorship.

It is a curious paradox that a reformer should consort—and so eagerly and without question—with publications of such character. But then, reformers, too, are curious, especially in their methods of work; ethics and truth don't count.

The plain and whole facts—everybody in the trade knows them—about double negatives are as follows:

First of all they are made for protection, to make safer a heavy investment in what is only inflammable celluloid.

A European negative is made, primarily, because it is cheaper to send the negative abroad and have the prints made there; freight and duty are saved.

Practically all the editing of the films for foreign consumption is done in the country in which it is to be shown. The export contract always contains a prominent clause to the effect that the foreign negative must be identical with the American negative.

The curious fact is that we don't in this country pay enough attention to changes in the foreign negatives. Making the great majority of pictures for the world public, as we do, we make them too much with our own market requirements in view. It would be wise if we had a keener knowledge of and sympathy with the national pride, traditions and ideals of other countries. And when I say "better," I mean better not merely for the motion picture industry here, but for the good will abroad of the United States and for our other industries which are so widely publicized by our films.

The published insinuation—lacking any facts, that is all it could be—is as despicable as silly. The entire trade to a man, here and abroad, knows of no negatives made for the purposes stated. They know they are not made, and that they couldn't be shown if they were made.

Speaking Editorially

NO MORE eloquent evidence of just what the motion picture industry means to the men and women of this world could be offered than that which Valentino's death brought forth. When you consider the amazing amount of space devoted to his illness and death by the newspapers, not only of New York, but the entire country, some inkling can be gotten. Newspapers strive to publish what people want to read; that spells circulation.

THE EVENING WORLD (N.Y.) sums it up in the following editorial:

MORE THAN A MONARCH PASSES

Thirteen years ago an Italian boy of eighteen, ignorant of the English language, and penniless, landed in New York, describing himself as an "agriculturist," and eager to find any work that would make him a living.

During the last week, this stranger of thirteen years ago, fought a courageous battle against death, with millions of Americans literally praying for his recovery. Inquiries poured into the hospital from all sorts and conditions of men and women, at the rate of twenty a minute, and crowds stood in the rain without while some forced their way into the corridors. The death bed of no monarch, no statesman, no military hero has so profoundly moved the great mass of the people. It was an amazing tribute to Rudolph Valentino and to his art.

Nothing has more impressively disclosed the marvelous hold the screen has on the popular imagination; nothing so conclusively demonstrated the part it plays in the lives of average men and women. The hero of the screen has the world for his kingdom, and he is the one monarch to whom his subjects pay tribute as a privilege. The touching story of the losing fight of Rudolph Valentino will be read with a sense of personal loss in the most humble homes of every civilized country on the globe. So much has the moving picture come to mean in the civilization of the age.

JOHAN GRIERSON, the Scotch critic and journalist who has spent some time in Hollywood studying the moving picture world, has written another illuminative and interesting article for The New York Sun. In this he takes up the importance of tempo in moving pictures. The story does not matter, he says, the treatment is everything; vide "The Last Laugh," "Variety," "Kiss Me Again," and "The Grand Duchess and The Waiter." These are dependent not on the story told but the treatment accorded them.

* * *

TEMPO plays an all-important part. Some of the best illustrations of the truth of this come from "The Big Parade," not only in the advance of the troops but the crescendo that characterizes the departure of the lorries and the separation of Melisande and Jim, and then the diminuendo leaving her alone in the road clinging to his shoe. "Ben-Hur" affords another striking instance of how successfully this idea can be carried out, especially in the chariot race; the discovery of the old man's fraud in "The Last Laugh," the smashing of the table in "Variety," the chase in "The Exquisite Sinner," etc. It is Grierson's contention that most American directors do not recognize the importance of this factor or, knowing it, are ignorant of how to utilize it. King Vidor is an exception and the most powerful exponent of tempo in American movies and he knows what he is doing, Mr. Grierson declares.

Rudolph Valentino

AN EDITOR ON BROADWAY

The Week in Review By William A. Johnston

I CONGRATULATE P. D. C. upon securing Arthur G. Whyte as manager of distribution. This is an important acquisition.

We have in this business some keen buyers of pictures and some able salesmen. But Arthur G. Whyte has had years of experience on each side of the fence and in a big and responsible way. Probably no other man has a keener and sounder sense of film values, nor a more intimate and practical knowledge of the machinery of the picture market.

WILLIAM VOGEL, back from Europe, says that the theatres there are prosperous and that production is looking up. The Continental countries want home-made pictures—a good measure of them, at least, and these are forthcoming. He closed with Societe Francaise des films Erka to distribute P. D. C. pictures in France.

"VARIETY" continues to pile up big grosses at the Rialto, New York. The total, at the beginning of the ninth week, had reached $238,749. And this figure was increased over the week-end by $14,508. The latter mark, representing two days' receipts, is amazing. It is more than a whole week's total for some legitimate shows.

The extraordinary success of this picture is a milestone in the history of the industry.

IN fact, "Variety" is a demonstration that there is no summer in the picture business when the product is superlatively good.

A NEW record has also been set by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer which has established three summer hits on Broadway, topped by "The Big Parade." The war epic, up to August 15, had played to a gross of $759,882, the biggest intake ever made at one theatre for any picture. As THE NEWS pointed out some time ago, "The Big Parade" will undoubtedly gross a million dollars at the Astor by the time it concludes its run.

In thirty-eight and a half weeks the total paid attendance was 613,220 persons.

"BEN-HUR," second of the M.-G.-M. trilogy, has taken in more than $300,000 during its first eight months at the George M. Cohan and the smaller Embassy. And "The Scarlet Letter" is drawing heavily at the Central.

Now, all three of these films together have amassed a box-office intake of close to a million and a quarter dollars, in itself an entirely new record for one concern over a given space of time.

"BLUE BOY," second of the Eugene H. Roth Romance Series in Technicolor for Educational, was shown to the trade the other day and brought forth expressions of praise in every quarter. "The Vision" was excellent. It marked a departure in screen novelty and artistry as important as any recorded in late years.

"Blue Boy" is even better. It has a dramatic story, well-told; simple, compelling, and well-acted. The grouping and composition of the scenes are admirable—giving the effect of paintings come to life. And the color work is A-1. It meets the stern test that color must always meet on the screen: is it technically beyond criticism and does it add to the value of the picture?

In both of these essentials "Blue Boy" scores beyond all question. If this picture is not an indispensable enrichment for the program of any theatre then we don't know what would be,

OF the many tributes to Valentino I like best the remark of a thoughtful film man. When the star seemed to improve last week he said: "His death would be too great a loss, too great to think of. Anyone who has brought so much into the humdrum lives of the countless people of the world, the lowly people, simply cannot be spared."

The newspapers, within but one edition, announced the deaths of Charles W. Eliot, the great educator, and Valentino, the noted film star. Dr. Eliot was a world personage and his bust will go into the Hall of Fame; a man of much learning, culture; his life one of many years of earnest and fruitful labor. Yet his fame seemed but a little thing alongside that of the young man whose name, as I write, is on the lips of millions upon millions of people.

From the hospital in New York where the police reserves were called to disperse the crowds that gathered as if a great bell had suddenly tolled, on through the cities of the world and into the hamlets of every country, men, woman and children were moved with genuine grief. They mourned for something, somebody, some radiant moving entity, that had gone out of their lives.

The radio, the cables and telegraph, the telephone, the stock ticker, flashed the word of Valentino's death from one corner of the world to the other and the newspaper presses started thundering with all other news from all the world pushed to a minor position in the newspaper editions.

And such is the motion picture! Valentino was a unique personality; somehow it was within him to say something to the world. But it was the motion picture Valentino who charmed the world. It is the motion picture that is the marvelous thing. It is greater than any of its people. It is the motion picture that stirs the world.

Let us not forget this solemn fact when we plan pictures and when we plot our trade moves and structure. There is no greater responsibility in the world today than that which rests upon the shoulders of the men who, by the chance of fate, are invested with the power of making and showing motion pictures.

"Beau Geste"

Which tells better than a lot of words of mine the box-office value of "Beau Geste," the well-heralded F. P. L. special, by Herbert Brenon from the best seller novel "Beau Geste," given its premier this week at the Criterion Theatre.

Hugo Riesenfeld, who cut, scored and presented the picture, proved again that music is the soul of the screen.

The beauty of the picture is at times most brilliant. Color sparkles throughout. The performance of Noah Beery as Officer Lejaune, will, it seems to me, go down in screen history. The cast is notable and the acting sincere and telling. Director Brenon has made a skilful translation of what is a most original and entrancing story. "Beau Geste" should rank high among this season's offerings.

PICTURES AND PEOPLE

A TO HONOR AUTHORESS
ADMIRERS of the late Mrs. Gene Stratton-Porter throughout the country will join in commemorating a National Gene Stratton-Porter week to commence September 26, 1926, feeling that the most fitting tribute that could be paid her memory would be the stimulation of an even greater interest in her works. Both the publishers of her novels and Film Booking Offices, which distributes her pictures, will co-operate. Women's organizations and societies in every state have made a notable feature of this week in arranging schedules of their activities.

Hal Roach, Pathe producer, arrives in New York with Mrs. Roach for a brief vacation, and is met by W. B. Frank, his Eastern manager

Col. W. F. Clark, of Cranfield & Clark, London and New York, arrived here this week for a three months' visit. (Photo by Keystone View Co.)

P AT DOWLING OFF
PAT DOWLING, publicity and sales director for Christie, was preparing to depart this week from New York City on his cross-country road trip in the pint-size Citroen car imported from France for the occasion. Between Pat's geniality and the oddity of the Citroen car (which is the sort you could park under the porch or in the bathtub), the trip should do a lot of good for Christie Anniversary week.

T OLD TIMERS MEET
TWO veteran actors who appeared together on the stage in 1893 are together again after more than thirty years, this time in a film. Louis Payne and Burr McIntosh are the actors, and "The Yankee Clipper" is the picture. The two were together in stock back in '93.

Marion Davies, as "Tina," the Dutch girl, in a humorous bit from "The Red Mill," her new Cosmopolitan vehicle filmed at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

M "U" EXPLOITRESS WED
MRS. ANN McMURDY, publicity director of the Alhambra Theatre, Universal's exploitation house in Milwaukee, was married last week, and in future will be known as Mrs. McDonough. She will remain as publicity director of the Alhambra.

Lloyd Hamilton, star and comedian in the Educational-Lloyd Hamilton comedies, poses for the photographer between scenes with his mother

Arthur Maude (centre) and two members of his technical staff during the filming of the latest Romance production, "The Blue Boy," based on the painting of that name and released by Educational

N. F. N. EMPLOYEES' ANNUAL OUTING

NOW part of history the annual outing tendered the employees of the New York office and of the New York and New Jersey exchanges of the First National Pictures, Inc., will long be remembered by the three hundred who took part. Held at Indian Point, New York, it proved to be the most successful from the viewpoint of numbers, enthusiasm and fun of any of the series. Owing to their absence in California to dedicate the new studio at Hollywood, President Lieber and General Manager R. A. Rowland were not present.

Even the boat trip on the Chauncey M. Depew was made short by dancing to a George Olsen Orchestra, a Charleston contest being introduced. Pictures were taken of the start and arrival. W. C. Boothby, financial comptroller, umpired the baseball game and gave it to the married men, justly or otherwise (that will ever be a moot point). Samuel Spring, secretary-treasurer, showed his versatility by playing Grade A baseball and then entering the tennis court lists with Sol Shernow, head of the print division.

Thirteen events made up a track and field program that preceded a big chicken dinner to wind up a merry day for every First Nationalite present.

"TWO P. D. C. PICTURES APPROVED

RISKY BUSINESS" and "West of Broadway," starring respectively Vera Reynolds and Priscilla Dean, have received the approval of the National Board of Review. Both are recommended for consumption for all members of the family, including the young who must be safeguarded, the flappers' conception of independence to the contrary. The former picture has the additional quality of emphasizing the greater merit in work and devotion to duty as opposed to a life of ease. Maybe so, but most of us will gamble on the life of ease if we are only assured of the wherewithal to live it.

Priscilla Dean's vehicle is approved because the Board finds it "An entertaining comic western." If this be true the writer of this particular paragraph is going to ask that he be assigned to the pre-view showing. The majority are far from "entertaining" or in the true sense, "comic." Miss Dean herself may prove an antidote for cowboys who seldom climb legitimately into a saddle but feel they must establish each time a new broad-jump record.

THE BUSY COSTELLOS

THE junior Costellos, Dolores and Helene, are on a vacation from the Warner Bros. studio for the first time in more than a year. Between working at Warners and at other companies who sought their services, they have been dashing from picture to picture without a rest, so when Dolores finished in the third John Barrymore picture and Helene completed one of the principal roles in "The Honeymoon Express," they hastily assembled a party of friends and slipped off to one of the California beaches to forget Kleiglits and Kameras for at least a few days. Meanwhile, Costello pere is busy at M-G-M, appearing in "Johnny Get Your Hair Cut," with Jackie Coogan.

NEBEL JOINS FOX

THE latest recruit to the Fox exploitation forces under the generalship of William K. Rudolph is Charlie Nebel, former MOTION PICTURE NEWS representative, who has been assigned to the St. Louis office, taking in the St. Louis and Memphis territories. Nebel was connected with the NEWS for some time, acting as correspondent and as circulation representative. Prior to that he was engaged in production in Hollywood, and has a wide knowledge of the various branches of the industry. If past work is any criterion, he should make a valuable addition to the Fox exploitation ranks.

ROAMIN' THROUGH ROME

LEE A. OCHS, prominent theatre realty man whose familiar presence is missed these days along the Rialto, postcards from Rome that he is enjoying his trip immensely and finds the Italian capital a delightful city. His trip is mainly a vacation, but he will look over a number of European theatres while there, in search of new ideas.

The Great Unknown (so far as photographers are concerned) or none other than Bob Kane, producer, caught by the camera in an informal pose for the first time with Ben Lyon and Lois Moran during the filming of "The Prince of Tempters" for First National

LOWELL DRIVING TO COAST

JOHN LOWELL, star and producer of outstanding independent productions, will leave for Hollywood by automobile about September 1. He will make personal appearances and visit several exchange centres en route.

His wife, L. Case Russell, a leading scenarist, had a disastrous fire recently at their home in the Adirondacks in the studio where she does her writing. Preparing to leave shortly for Los Angeles to join Mr. Lowell, she spent two days sorting over manuscripts, burning old papers and carbon copies of old and new stories. Leaving the studio for a few moments, a back-draft ignited the building. Prompt work saved the studio, but a large number of manuscripts were burned before the fire could be put out. Fortunately, copies of many of them are in the hands of her agents, but the loss is considerable.

"DICK" RECOVERING

J. S. DICKERSON, associate editor of Motion Picture News, who is in St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Elizabeth, N.J., with pneumonia, has improved greatly and it is now merely a matter of convalescence. He wishes to extend thanks for the many messages of sympathy and good wishes which have come in during his illness. He entered the hospital on Monday and quickly began to improve. This continued steadily through the week, with no set-backs to cause further concern. Fortunately, prompt treatment and care warded off what might have been a much more serious attack.

MARY LIKES OUR CITY

MARY PHILBIN, Universal star, who has been vacationing in New York (her first visit to our metropolis), likes Manhattan so well that she has obtained an additional two weeks' leave of absence, a week of which will be spent in Newport with relatives and the remainder in seeing the sights of our little island (which Archie, the Office Boy, defines as a small body of land entirely surrounded by a rum fleet).

W ROTHACKER EN ROUTE

WATTERSON R. ROTHACKER, the man who invented the European business vacation, writes from Venice that he was sailing shortly from Genoa and expected to land in New York about the 28th, so we assume that as this is being written the young globe-trotter is somewhere on the high seas in an Italian liner. He will presumably take up his new duties with Paramount shortly.

GUNSOLICITED PRAISE THAT COUNTS
GRANTLAND RICE'S tribute to Red Grange as a screen actor has a two-fold value. In the first place, he knows football when he sees it on or off the screen; secondly, because of his own contributions to the screen through his Pathe Sportlights he has more than a passing acquaintance with the moving-picture world. Because of this his tribute in his Herald-Tribune column carries double weight (and this is not published through any F. B. O. subsidy, such as possible spirituous hospitality on the part of Joseph Jefferson O'Neill).

Rice calls attention to athletic celebrities who have been filmed, including Babe Ruth, Jack Dempsey, Bill Tilden and Gene Tunney, but does not mention Gunboat Smith, who is now established, justly not because of his merits as a pugilist, but as an actor. Grantland had not seen the Tunney picture—but I have—and he justly claims that the main award to date goes to Grange as a screen actor.

He says in part: "He (Grange) takes a crack at the cinema in Byron Morgan's story, 'A Minute to Play,' and the once Galloping Ghost of Illinois gets by nicely. The Redhead may not be a Douglas Fairbanks, but he is far from being a flop. He does a good job for a first picture that is full of action. So far he takes over the cinema chaplet for athletes, with the Gene Tunney precinct to be heard from shortly."

Dave Fleischer, who is directing the "Carrie of the Chorus" series for Red Seal, shows Peggy Shaw, the lead, an interesting item in the industry's leading trade paper. (This photo will positively be shown in no other trade paper this season)

"HAIL, REX INGRAM RETURNS

HAIL, the conquering hero comes" might well be the tune greeting the director who staged "Mare Nostrum" for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, on his return from a two years' exile in Europe. His direction of the Ibanez picture, which recently concluded its long run at the Criterion Theatre, New York, was followed by "The Magician," soon to be released, an adaptation from Somerset Maugham's novel. In this, Alice Terry and Paul Wegener, a noted German actor, head a company of distinguished foreign actors.

Ingram's absence abroad has been due to poor health. He is said to have fully recovered after two years on the Riviera. He will linger only a short time in New York before he departs for the Pacific Coast. His plans for the coming season are unsettled. He may return to Europe to direct his next picture there.

THEORY AND PRACTICE

IN view of the news dispatches from curiously named Speculator, the town in the Adirondacks where Gene Tunney is training for his fight with Jack Dempsey, that the challenger is going around with a black eye received in boxing with his training staff opponents there is amusement in a press notice from Pathe anent this same Tunney. It was sent out, of course, altruistically, but curiously, at the same time that a pre-showing of Tunney's serial for Pathe, "The Fighting Marine," was thrown on the screen.

Actors at Hollywood, where the picture was taken, showed the ex-Marine how to make-up for his Kleig light debut. In return Tunney taught them a thing or two about making-up for the prize-fight ring.

Tunney called attention to the prominence of his eyebrows, to cushions of flesh beneath his eyes at the top of the cheek bone—no softness, no weak spots, muscle and cartilage. Tunney calls it callous.

"I have developed a hard face," he said. "Where the impact of a glove would tear the flesh of some men, a blow leaves my face unharmed and never marred. Over the eyes, by massage and work, I have developed this callous. The same over the cheek bones."

Evidently Tunney's sparring partner had not been told about this make-up idea of the challenger, for he left a lovely black-bluish mark beneath one of Gene's eyes which did not live up to the "callous" quality boasted of at the studio in Hollywood.

GERMAN HERE TO STUDY

LEO HORSTER, of Germany, has been sent by the home office of First National to the Milwaukee branch for an indefinite period to study American methods of distribution, with a view to applying this knowledge in Germany when he returns to open First National offices there.

J MASTBAUM'S ADDITIONAL RODINS

JULES E. MASTBAUM, head of the Stanley Company of America, delayed his departure from Paris until last week to spend every possible moment in Meudon in connection with the preparation in that city of the facade of the Rodin Museum, to be erected by the Mastbaum foundation in Philadelphia. Already there are 137 recasts of the sculptor's works in the city of Brotherly Love, the majority of these in the Art Building of the Sesqui-Centennial Exposition. The additional pieces secured by Mr. Mastbaum will be sent to Albert Rosenthal, curator of the museum to be built by Jacques Greber, French architect, in association with Paul Cret, Professor of Architecture at the University of Pennsylvania. A special representative of the French Minister of Fine Arts will attend the cornerstone laying of the museum in October. A duplicate in stone of the facade of the Meudon Museum and a replica of the grill in wrought iron are being shipped to this country.

The facade is about 80 feet in length and 35 feet in height. In the center is an ornamental grill. The museum itself will be some distance in the rear of this facade. "Gates of Hell," the widely discussed and most important feature, will be the real entrance to the museum itself. Seventy additional Rodiniana will be added to the 130 already in Philadelphia. This includes letters, mementoes, studies, paintings and drawings, as well as letters by the master.

Unusual honors were paid Mr. Mastbaum in France, including a luncheon attended by Ambassador Berenger. Accompanying the head of the Stanley Company have been his wife, daughter Betty, and sister-in-law Mrs. Milton Herold, the latter decorated for her Red Cross work in the Great War by the French Government. Other Philadelphians in the party were Mr. and Mrs. Meyer Speiser, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Metzel and Arthur Block.

A TENNESSEE SCREEN DEB

HELEN MUNDY, a 17-year-old girl of the Tennessee mountains, who until late last week had never seen a large village, an automobile, a railroad train or any of the other features of modern urban life, has come to New York to make a bid for screen fame. She was discovered by the Karl Brown unit, making "Stark Love" for Paramount, with native mountaineers as the actors. They were so enthusiastic over her natural ability that they persuaded her to come to New York under a one-year contract for the purpose of a real try-out and an unusual opportunity. The contract was formally signed this week.

PAUL WHITEMAN, the rotund jazz-band leader tearing his trousers climbing the Civic Virtue Statue at City Hall Park when attending the reception on his return from Europe.

WARNERS CELEBRATE

THE Warner family is holding a double—and very happy—celebration this week in Hollywood. Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Warner, parents of the Warner brothers, were married just 50 years ago on August 25, and are celebrating their golden wedding anniversary—and with it their joy at the successful launching of the Vitaphone.

The Warners have always been an exceptionally devoted family. The parents have watched the steady rise of their sons with the greatest interest and joy, and came East especially for the Vitaphone premiere. Its success brought them unbounded happiness. When they returned to the Coast, they urged all of their sons to join them for their golden wedding anniversary. Unfortunately, the press of affairs in connection with Vitaphone made this impossible, but Harry M. Warner and Jack Warner are with them, while Sam and Albert are celebrating with them at long distance.

MRS. MARY A. McGRATH DIES

THE death of Mrs. Mary A. McGrath, mother of William J. McGrath, publicity and advertising director of Columbia, at her home in Allentown, Pa., came this week after a long and severe illness. She was 68 years of age, and is survived by her son and one daughter, Nona K. Forbes.

Greater Movie Season Big Success

Circuit and Individual Theatre Owners Throughout Country

Express Complete Satisfaction; Claim Large Returns

THAT the Greater Movie Season just past was a great success in every way is the consensus of opinion of exhibitors all over the country. Judging from the letters received by the Hays office the box-office returns this "Season" were greater than those received during last year's "Go to the Movie" period. Many claimed better business in August, the hottest month of this summer, than in June, which was unseasonably cool.

"Everybody is tickled to death over the increase in business," says W. S. Waid, of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Texas, who directed the state campaign. "The increase came in spite of the fact that June was rather cool while August was one of the hottest months this year."

Greater Movie Season has been a great success in Louisville, Ky., says Charles W. Krebs, general manager of the local campaign. "In spite of hot and rainy weather attendance at theatres participating in Greater Movie Season increased considerably over last year, when the season was first celebrated here. There has been an increase so far of from forty to sixty per cent over August, 1924, with ten days to go. Greater Movie Season has turned a bad month into a good one and, of course, the exhibitors are well pleased."

"Everybody is happy over the outcome of Greater Movie Season," according to C. A. McElravy, director of the Memphis Greater Movie Season campaign. "The season is far in advance of anything ever done in past years," he says. "The public responded wonderfully and the increase in business was far beyond all expectation."

Cerium Oxide Said to Absorb Kleig Rays

EXPERIMENTAL work looking to the development of some means of so shading studio lights as to prevent "Kleig eye" has resulted in the discovery that a screen of glass containing a small percentage of cerium oxide, placed in front of the arc lights, would absorb the short ultra violet rays of less than 350 millimicrons, which cause most of the damage to human eyes and which are absorbed by the camera lens before they reach the film, it has been announced by the Department of Commerce.

It was stated at the bureau that although a sheet of window glass of one-fourth inch in thickness would exclude some of the harmful rays, the best results could be achieved from the use of the cerium oxide glass. A sample melt of that type of glass has been prepared by the glass-making plant at the bureau for experimental work.

It is believed by the scientists engaged in the work, however, that, in the adoption of the suggested method, it will probably be necessary to use "white flame" or "yellow flame" carbon electrodes in the arc lights and to sensitize the photographic film to the yellow and red region of the spectrum.

Stanley - Mark Strand Gets Conn. House

THE Stanley-Mark Strand circuit has acquired its first Connecticut house in the Poli on East Main Street, Waterbury, Conn., from S. Z. Poli. The house was built in 1896 and was originally intended for vaudeville. With the coming of the motion picture it was converted into a double policy theatre. It seats 1,800 and will be taken over by Stanley-Mark Strand on January 1st, 1927, after undergoing a complete alteration.

Though no other theatre properties in the Waterbury locality are to pass into the hands of the new organization at this time, it is rumored that the firm intends taking over other houses.

The cooperation of the local newspapers was wonderful."

The theatres of the State of Michigan have rolled up another big gross for August as a result of the Greater Movie Season Campaign, according to H. M. Richey, general manager of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Michigan, who conducted the second annual campaign of the Michigan theatre owners. "We have had hotter weather than last year, and better business," he said. "The contest in the Detroit 'Times' has created tremendous interest. More than 15,000 requests for back numbers of the papers containing the contest pictures have been received by the 'Times.' I know that Michigan has put on the best campaign in its history and I believe the best campaign in the United States."

Greater Movie Season has helped materially to increase business, according to the Greater Movie Season Committee in Pittsburgh. A fine exploitation campaign has included billboards, contests, cards on all street car fronts for three weeks, tie-ups with taxicab companies, radio and merchants, special newspaper advertising and an extremely successful beauty pageant and auto parade.

"We realized the importance of Greater Movie Season and were very strong for it," reports Carl A. Porter, of the Victory Theatre, manager of the campaign in Salt Lake City. "The Salt Lake 'Telegram's' Greater Movie Season Contest created great interest. The theatres used additional advertising space, twenty-four sheets, window tie-ups, etc. The Paramount-Empress showed a ten per cent increase in business over last August when Greater Movie Season was first celebrated. This, of course, is a great increase over August, 1924, when there was no celebration. The Victory showed an increase of twenty per cent over last year."

Atlantic City theatre owners are especially pleased with the tremendous success of the Greater Movie Season Contest this year, which stood out even bigger than last year, according to Edward J. O'Keefe, general manager of the campaign. "Every movie fan in Atlantic City was interested and the judges are having their hands full going over the thousands of entries submitted. Greater Movie Season was a success in every way."

New England Grants Six Incorporation Charters

New corporations organized during the week in New England include the following:

Massachusetts—New England Film Production, Inc., Boston, capital $10,000. Incorporators Camilio Chioini, Harry Gaylord and Louis G. Radi, all of Boston. 1694 Main Street Corp., Springfield, capital 1,000 shares without par. Incorporators Ignatius M. Hoar, Catherine E. McCarthy and Alice R. Curran, all of Springfield. Wirth & Hamid, Inc., Boston, capital 10 shares without par. Incorporators Leo E. Sherry, Mary E. Conner and Lillian V. Green, all of Boston.

Connecticut—A. C. A. Film Exchange, Inc., New Haven, capital $10,000. Incorporators Walter Breslaw and others, all of New Haven. East Coast Theatres, Inc., Stamford, capital $50,000. Incorporators D. F. Hogan, 526 Main Street, and others, all of Stamford. Maine—Star Theatre, Inc., Bar Harbor, capital $200,000. Incorporators Joel E. Emery, David O. Rodick and Serenus D. Rodick.

Stipulation Filed in West Coast Case

ALL EGOATIONS contained in the complaint issued by the Federal Trade Commission against West Coast Theatres, et al, have been substantiated by the facts agreed to by counsel for the respondents and the commission and appearing in the stipulation filed in lieu of testimony, it is contended by the special counsel for the commission in a brief asking that an appropriate order be issued in the case.

The commission charged violation of the Federal Trade Commission act by the actions of the respondents in combining and cooperating for the purpose of hindering and preventing producers or distributors of motion picture films in other States from leasing films to competitors of the respondents and by restraining competition among the respondents and between the respondents and other exhibitors in California in negotiating for and leasing motion picture films to be shipped from other States to said competitors.

It has been "conclusively shown," it is declared in the brief, "that the acts and practices of the respondents were detrimental to the interests of other exhibitors." The allegations of the commission and the facts agreed to in the stipulation are given in parallel columns in the brief to substantiate this assertion.

Rudolph Valentino, Idol of Millions, Passes Away

Death, After Brave Fight, Comes as Shock to Entire Industry; Thousands Mob Bier for Last Glimpse of Favorite

VALENTINO is dead. The glamorous career of the man whose sudden rise to film fame was more romantic than any of the screen dramas in which he appeared, came to an end on Monday at 12:10 P.M. at the Polyclinic Hospital in New York City, where he had undergone a double operation for acute appendicitis and gastric ulcers.

He was but 31 years of age, and his life was prolonged for several days by his youthful vitality and strength after medical skill could do no more. Peritonitis and septic poisoning brought about the end after a period of coma lasting for several hours. He remained confident of his recovery to the end, and his last rational words were those spoken to Joseph M. Schenck, at 6 A.M., on Monday, when he said, "Don't worry, Chief, I will be all right."

After that he became delirious, speaking mostly in Italian, and passed into a coma. When the end came, he was attended by three doctors and two nurses. His brother and sister in Europe had been sent for, but he had no kin in this country. His manager, S. George Ullman, unnerved by four days and nights of ceaseless watching, was unable to remain at the bedside during the last moments.

The street outside was thronged by curious thousands, and it was necessary to remove the body through a side entrance to take it to Campbell's Funeral Parlors.

On Tuesday the body lay in state at Campbell's Funeral Church, and the crowd which assembled for a brief glimpse of the dead screen star's face assumed the proportions and manners of a mob. Police reserves were called out frequently during the day, and windows were shattered and many persons hurt in the occasional rioting.

It was estimated that more than 60,000 persons had attempted to enter the Funeral Church on Tuesday, and a further repetition of this occurred Wednesday.

On Monday, at 11 A.M., a requiem high mass will be solemnized at St. Malachy's Church, better known as the Actors' church, 239 West 49th Street, New York City. The pastor of this church, Rev. Father Edward F. Leonard, administered the last rites to the dying actor. Admission will be by card only, as the church can accommodate only about five hundred persons.

No word has been received from Valentino's brother and sister, and it is not known whether they are en route to America or not. Burial plans will rest with their decision, and it is not yet known whether the actor's remains will lie in Hollywood or in Italy beside his father and mother.

His personal fortune at the time of his death is understood to be small, consisting mainly of his home in Beverly Hills.

Rudolph Valentino was born Rodolpho Alfonzo Raffaello Pierre Filibert Guglielmi di Valentina d'Antonguolla, on May 6, 1895, in the village of Castellaneta, Italy, his father being a captain of Italian cavalry and later a veterinary. After attending Dante Alighieri College and a military school, Valentino enrolled in the Royal Academy of Agriculture to learn scientific farming.

He arrived in New York on December 23, 1913, and became superintendent of a Long Island estate. Later he was an apprentice landscape gardener in Central Park. After this followed a period of unemployment and virtual poverty. He turned to dancing and became a partner of Bonnie Glass, and later Joan Sawyer, earning some little reputation.

His ambitions, however, still leaned toward scientific farming and he favored California. With this in view, he joined a musical comedy company headed for the West Coast. The troupe stranded in San Francisco, and at the suggestion of Norman Kerry, whom he had known in the East, Valentino went to Los Angeles to try picture work. This proved more difficult than he had expected, however, and for some time he was unable to get work of any sort around the studios. Finally, Emmett Flynn gave him work as an extra, but the picture was tied up in litigation and was not released until several years later.

He did a bit with Clara Kimball Young in "Eyes of Youth." June Mathis, then working with Rex Ingram on preparations for "The Four Horsemen," saw this and thought he might be the type they wanted for Julio Desnoyers. Because of his ability as a dancer and his type, Valentino was engaged for the role.

The success of "The Four Horsemen" was the success of Valentino. Almost instantly, he leaped into popularity and public favor. "The Conquering Power" and "Camille" followed, but it was not until the release of "The Sheik" that Valentino came to the very forefront. He caught the public fancy, added a new word to the English language, and his fame knew no bounds.

"The Young Rajah" and "Blood and Sand" were his next pictures for Famous Players. Certain differences arose and he

Co-Workers Wire Sympathy to J. M. Schenck

FOURTEEN of Valentino's co-workers in Hollywood wired the following expression of regret at the death of Valentino to Joseph M. Schenck on Monday, shortly after receiving word of the event:

"We wish you to know how keenly we feel the loss of our friend and United Artists associate, and to express our deepest sympathy to you personally. May we not at this time reassure you of our loyalty by pledging ourselves to cherish always Rudolph Valentino's memory and to strive further for the ideals of which our departed co-worker would be proud. We are, in all sincerity, John W. Considine Jr., Charles Chaplin, John Barrymore, Buster Keaton, Samuel Goldwyn, Roland West, Ronald Colman, Vilma Banky, Henry King, George Fitzmaurice, Sidney Franklin, Fred Niblo, Mme. Fred de Gressac, Abe Lehr."

Hugo Riesenfeld Honor Guest of A.M.P.A.

THE A. M. P. A. tendered a luncheon in honor of Hugo Riesenfeld, recently returned from a trip to Europe, at the Hofbrau Haus, Thursday, August 19th. Edward Montagne, West Coast scenario editor for Universal, brought greetings from the West Coast division of the industry to all the members of A. M. P. A.

Dr. Riesenfeld denied the rumor that he is permanently associated with a theatre-distributor project. He asserted that "the future looks beautiful and sweet to me as an individual engaged in independent enterprises. On the night that I finish conducting for the premiere of 'Beau Geste,' I shall be open to all comers."

breached his contract. Famous then restrained him from appearing in pictures for any other company and for a time this threatened to end his career. A compromise was reached, however, through which he made "Monsieur Beaucaire" and "The Sainted Devil."

Joseph M. Schenck then signed him to make pictures for release by United Artists. The first was "The Eagle," which demonstrated that the star had lost none of his remarkable personal popularity. This was followed, more recently, by "The Son of the Sheik," his last picture.

It is announced by United Artists Corporation that his pictures will be continued in circulation so long as there is any public desire to see them.

Valentino is survived by his brother, Alberto Guglielmi, in Paris; and his sister, Maria Guglielmi, in Rome. He was married twice, the first time to Jean Acker, screen actress, and later to Winifred Hudnut, professionally known as Natacha Rambova. He was divorced from both. According to her own statement, Pola Negri was engaged to marry him. She suffered a complete breakdown upon receiving word of his death, and is understood to be arranging to come to New York for the funeral.

Many important figures in the film world hastened to pay tribute to the man and the artist and to express their regret at the passing of a friend. Some of these expressions follow:

Joseph M. Schenck, chairman of the board of directors of United Artists corporation, and Hiram Abrams, president of United Artists, speaking for that organization, its board of directors, and themselves, issued a statement immediately after the death of Valentino:

"We are grieved and shocked at the great loss. Everyone hoped for the best, especially since the boy had waged so brave a fight against the huge odds.

"The loss is a great one to us personally because he was our friend, and surely a

Planning Philly's Second Golf Tournament

THE second annual golf tournament of the motion picture zone of Philadelphia will take place this year at the Green Valley Country Club on Wednesday, September 22nd. This event comes the day previous to the Dempsey-Tunney fight which, along with the Sesqui-Centennial, is expected to attract many movie men from all parts of the nation. The Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Pennsylvania, the Film Board of Trade and others interests have completed arrangements to receive the expected influx of visitors. Irving D. Rossheim, treasurer of the Stanley Company of America, is chairman of the following committee: Dr. W. G. Steumpfig, Germantown Theatre; Oscar Neufeld, president of the Film Board of Trade; P. A. Bloch, manager of Famous Players-Lasky; Jack Greenberg, secretary of the Film Board of Trade; Nick Power, Strand Theatre, Doylestown; Joe Schaeffer of the Warner Brothers' Exchange; Bill Doyle of the Universal Exchange and Paul Greenhalgh, sports editor of "The Exhibitor."

Inquiries regarding tickets and other information are referred to the chairman of the committee.

N. Y. Hippodrome to Present First Runs

THE new policy of the New York Hippodrome will present in its program, in addition to the Keith-Albee high-class vaudeville, pre-releases of pictures released by Producers Distributing Corporation and other worthy productions of independent producers. The first picture selected to inaugurate the new policy is "Young April," the screen version of the novel by Egerton Castle, featuring Joseph Schildkraut, Bessie Love and Rudolph Schildkraut.

The change of policy at the Hippodrome gives the producers who release through Producers Distributing Corporation an important first-run house on a par with any in the country. The vaudeville program will consist of six acts and two orchestras will be used together with the Hippodrome Grand Organ. The corps de ballet will be retained as will "Toytown," which will be enlarged.

real blow to the motion picture industry in which he stood so high."

S. George Ullman, who for years has been personal representative and business manager for Valentino, had not slept for four nights and four days, being in constant attendance at the bedside. When Mr. Valentino died the physicians ordered him into absolute seclusion. He gave out the following statement:

"Mr. Valentino was greatly cheered during his last days by the thousands of messages sent him by his friends and motion picture admirers, and while he was too weak to read all of them it was a great comfort to him to know that so many friends were interested and sympathetic. I know he would want me to express the gratitude he felt. Personally, I want to thank the physicians and nurses and the hospital attaches who worked so hard and conscientiously to save his life. Everything humanly possible was done for him."

John W. Considine, Jr., producer of Valentino's pictures, wired:

"Terribly shocked with sudden news of Rudy's death and sympathize with you for what you have gone through. Everyone has commented on your fine show of friendship and sympathy which will always be remembered. Rudy told me before he left that no matter what happened to him he was happy with realization he had attained his life's ambition with completion of 'The Son of the Sheik,' as everyone could see him at his best in this picture even if he never made another."

The Stanley Company of America, through Jules E. Mastbaum, its president: "Deepest sympathy. The death of Valentino removes from the screen a splendid personality. He was not only the greatest lover but also a perfect gentleman. He will be greatly missed by hundreds of thousands who admired his work as an artist and by the friends who loved him as a man."

John H. Kinsky and George W. Trendle, Detroit: "Valentino's death great shock to us and all Detroit movie theatre patrons. Deepest sympathy."

Walter Hays, Mark Strand interests, Buffalo, N. Y.: "The motion picture industry has lost one of its most upstanding characters. A most brilliant star has been dimmed but its rays will eternally penetrate the far reaches of the world. Our

New York Strand has been the scene of his greatest triumph and we will miss his graciousness and fine airs and we regard his death as a great personal loss. To you who have been closest to him for the past few years I extend my deepest sympathy. Perhaps time may furnish a worthy successor to Rudolph Valentino but at present no such person appears upon the horizon."

Carlyle Blackwell cabled from London: "Please convey to relatives and friends of Valentino my deepest and heartfelt sympathy."

Noah Beery wired from San Antonio, Texas: "My sympathy. Rudy was a man among men and his loss will be a great loss to our profession."

Frank Lloyd: "Accept my heartfelt sympathy for you and the industry's great loss."

Max Fleischer telegraphed: "Accept our condolences in your hour of sorrow. We have all lost one of the greatest actors in the motion picture industry. We realize that you have lost even more a real friend."

Hiram Abrams, president of United Artists Corporation, received telegrams from editors throughout the country who have known Valentino well. John W. Alicoate, Maurice Kann and Donald Mersereau of Film Daily, wired: "The Film Daily understands how deeply you must feel over the loss of Rudolph Valentino. We join with you in sympathy."

Hazel Flynn, famous "Rob Reel" of the Chicago Evening American: "Am shocked beyond words and know that I speak for multitudes of Valentino's screen admirers here when I extend deepest sympathy both to his relatives and friends and to United Artists. His death seems an irreparable loss."

Positive Film Exports Decline in June

A DECLINE of nearly 3,000,000 feet in our exports of positive film and slight reductions in our shipments of other classes brought our June exports of that commodity to a total of but $618,993, lower than has been reported for several months, according to figures compiled by the Department of Commerce. The drop in value, as compared with May, was slightly more than $107,000.

Shipments in June included 15,713,391 feet of positive film, with a value of $464,319; 2,568,041 feet of raw stock, valued at $76,049, and 312,150 feet of negatives, worth $53,446, together with 1,789,990 feet, valued at $25,179, shipped to non-contiguous territories, the last named being positive film. In May, exports included 18,705,977 feet of positive film, valued at $562,874; 3,009,217 feet of raw stock, worth $81,294, and 347,211 feet of negatives, with a value of $67,439; shipments to non-contiguous territories totaled 1,152,322 feet, valued at $14,672.

The outstanding feature of the month was the amount of positive film purchased by Australia—2,994,030 feet, valued at $79,602, an increase of $31,000 over May. Similar purchases by the United Kingdom, however, amounted to only 452,401 feet, valued at $21,272, against 729,225 feet, valued at $39,087, in May, and exports of positives to Canada dropped from 1,600,575 feet, valued at $55,925, in May, to 1,488,201 feet, valued at $41,547, in June.

The Olympic theatre, Chicago: "The news of Valentino's death shocked us deeply. Our sincere sympathy to filmdom and his relatives."

Resolutions of sympathy from executives of United Artists Corporation to S. George Ullman, Valentino's manager for several years, were extended "to the friend who remains behind."

Adolph Zukor, president: "Rudolph Valentino was a great artist. His death comes as a profound shock to all of us who have watched his amazing career on the screen. In his death the motion picture loses a vivid personality who has brought romance and entertainment into the lives of millions throughout the world."

Sidney R. Kent, General Manager: "Those of us who knew Rudolph Valentino and watched his amazing rise to fame, are profoundly shocked by his untimely death. Valentino was a great artist who had a God-given personality that brought happiness and romance into the lives of millions throughout the world. The loss is a great one."

Lois Wilson: "I am deeply shocked to hear of Mr. Valentino's death. He was one of the finest men I have met during my motion picture career. I worked with him in 'Monsieur Beaucaire' and that engagement stands out as one of the happiest I have known. I knew Rudolph Valentino for seven years and there was absolutely no change in his character when he became a public idol. I feel that I have lost a personal friend."

Richard Dix: "The public knew and loves Valentino as an artist—we knew and loved 'Rudy' as a man."

Herbert Brenon, director: "In the death of Rudolph Valentino the screen has lost its most picturesque and outstanding personality—a charming gentleman and brilliant actor who had but scratched the surface of his great talent, as his last performance of the father in his last picture so clearly proves."

Thomas Meighan: "Rudolph Valentino's death was a great shock to me. He was a remarkable actor and the picture industry loses one of its most colorful personalities in his passing. More than that,

Lillian Valentine New Columbia Casting Head

AN important position at the Columbia Studio has been given Mrs. Lillian Valentine—that of head of the casting department. Mrs. Valentine served in the capacity of Universal casting director for eleven years. She was also business manager of the Lois Weber Studio, and when Universal was producing in the East was assistant studio manager.

it loses a gentleman of dignity and reserve, respected and loved by his business associates. Personally, I have lost a dear friend."

Mal St. Clair, director: "Nothing has ever affected me so deeply. 'Rudy' had a tremendous personality which made him loved by everyone who was able to get within his natural reserve. He was a dear friend of mine."

Richard Rosson, director: "I am more sad than I can tell you about Rudy's death. I have known him ever since 1918, when we were both struggling actors and lived in a hall bedroom in Hollywood. The greatest tribute I can pay to Rudy is that his tremendous success and popularity never changed him. He was the same unaffected 'Rudy' when I saw him most recently."

William Le Baron, associate producer, Long Island Studio: "Our studio is shocked beyond expression at the news of Valentino's death. When I worked with him here every member of the staff grew to respect his ideals and his untiring efforts always to give something better to each picture."

Forrest Halsey, scenarist of "Monsieur Beaucaire": "To have known Valentino and to have worked with him is to have known a great and sincere artist. He was a craftsman of the highest integrity. The screen has lost a fine and ever developing artist. We who knew him have lost a friend of rare charm and enduring loyalty to his work. Loyalty to his work and to his ideals was the keynote of Valentino's career."

Vilma Banky: "Playing opposite Rudolph Valentino has taught me the meaning of courtesy and consideration in a fellow actor."

John Barrymore: "Valentino was a most colorful personality and a fine artist. His loss, artistically, must be considered as very great, stricken as he was, at the height of his career."

Lionel Barrymore: "Rudolph Valentino has not died; he has simply changed from a present personality to a character in history—for in the screen's history he will always live as one of the greatest artists."

Clarence Brown: "Valentino's death is the biggest loss the screen has ever had."

Lon Chaney: "I don't know when a piece of news has so affected me as Valentino's death."

Charlie Chaplin: "The death of Rudolph Valentino is one of the greatest tragedies that have occurred in the history of the motion picture industry."

Marion Davies: "Valentino was a wonderful artist, a staunch friend, a fine, manly young man and a good loyal American."

John Gilbert: "The death of Valentino is a terrific loss to the screen."

Samuel Goldwyn: "The death of Rudolph Valentino is a great tragedy. The loss is not only felt here in Los Angeles, the scene of Mr. Valentino's triumphs, but will be felt throughout the world wherever he was known."

Buster Keaton: "Death surely chose a shining mark when it robbed the world of Valentino."

Jesse L. Lasky: "His death is an irreparable loss to screenedom."

Lonis B. Mayer: "Rudolph Valentino's service to humanity was as great as that of any rabbi, priest or clergyman. He gave happiness to thousands of suffering souls and brought cheer to sad hearts that had little else in the world."

Colleen Moore: "I do not know how to say how deeply I am affected by the sad news."

Mae Murray: "Valentino's greatest quality was a deep sincerity underlying an enormous strength of character."

Marshal Neilan: "Probably no man in film history was more beloved than Valentino. His passing is like the extinguishing of a beacon light."

Alma Rubens: "Valentino was a great idol, and his death will be greatly felt throughout the world."

B. P. Schulberg: "No greater tragedy has clouded the film colony than the passing of Valentino."

Norma Shearer: "Rudolph Valentino's passing means more than the passing of a great artist."

Milton Sills: "Words are inadequate to express my sorrow at the death of Rudolph Valentino."

Blanche Sweet: "The memory of Valentino, the fine, lovable and loyal, will live always."

Estelle Taylor: "Poor boy, he made a good fight, and we hoped that he would recover."

Alice Terry: "As one who played with Valentino in his first two successes, 'The Four Horsemen' and 'The Conquering Power,' his loss to me is a very keen one personally."

Warners Sell Balance of Lubitsch Contract

THE Warner Brothers concluded a deal last week whereby the balance of the contract they hold on the services of Ernst Lubitsch is turned over to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and Famous Players-Lasky, according to an announcement from Jack L. Warner, director general on the Coast in charge of production.

The conditions of the disposals of the contract have not been revealed. The contract had a year longer to run. Since joining Warners, in 1924, Lubitsch has produced five pictures, "The Marriage Circle," "Three Women," "Kiss Me Again," "Lady Windemere's Fan" and "So This Is Paris."

The consummation of the Lubitsch deal is largely due to the success of the Vitaphone, the Warner announcement says. It is planned to concentrate on specials with Vitaphone accompaniment, aside, of course, from the twenty-six Warner Winners of the 1926-27 season. Vitaphone accompaniments for these specials are being arranged, the directors having been decided upon. The first two are "Noah's Ark" and "Black Ivory."

Pola Negri Will Play "Camille"

THE role of Camille, the creation of the younger Dumas, will be played by Pola Negri in a lavish Paramount production.

Pola Negri

Paramount executives believe that Miss Negri in "Camille" will have an excellent opportunity to surpass her interpretation of the character of Du Barry in "Passion." This decision is in accord with the recent declaration of Paramount officials that only pictures worthy of Miss Negri's talents would be given her.

The actress is now completing a portrayal in "Hotel Imperial." An original story by Gladys Unger adapted for screen purposes by Lajos Biro and Jules Furthman will be her next. "Camille" will follow.

Irving G. Thalberg: "With the passing of Valentino has gone a great artist and one of nature's finest noblemen."

Erie Von Stroheim: "I mourn his passing, not only as a true and talented genius but as a staunch and loyal friend as well."

Cecil B. De Mille: "Mr. Valentino was a great artist. But we must look at death as a progress and not as the end."

William Fox: "I deeply regret the passing of so great a star. Valentino had not reached the zenith of his career and his shadows still were falling to the westward. However, as life is measured by accomplishments and not by length of service, he did well."

Marcus Loew: "I cannot express my grief over the loss of Valentino. He was a friend."

Richard A. Rowland: "Besides a brilliant actor, he was a most lovable man and a credit to the industry."

Nicholas M. Schenck: "The passing of Valentino finds the entire motion picture industry in mourning. He was stricken at the height of a remarkable and well-deserved success. His death is a loss."

Madge Bellamy: "Rudolph Valentino was a distinctive personality that cannot be replaced. His passing leaves a big gap in the motion picture world."

Major Edward Bowes: "The shock of Valentino's death is overwhelming. He was a great actor, a fine person and sincere friend."

Ricardo Cortez: "In the passing of Valentino the picture industry has lost one of its true geniuses."

Bebe Daniels: "The loss of a true friend and a great artist leaves one with a helpless feeling of inexpressible remorse."

Valentino Insurance Total Set at $540,000

ACCORDING to Arthur Stebbins, film insurance man, the total amount of life insurance carried on Rudolph Valentino was $540,000, of which $375,000 is payable to finance corporations interested in the Valentino pictures and $165,000 represents personal policies, payable to his estate. The Art Finance Corporation, interested in the Schenck productions, is the beneficiary of two policies, one for $200,000 with the Missouri State and one for $50,000 with Lincoln. The Motion Picture Capital Corporation, likewise financially interested in the Valentino films, carried a policy of $125,000 on the actor's life.

Screenland and its followers will never forget him."

Reginald Denny: "We have suffered an irreparable loss. We have lost a real artist and a real man."

Allan Dwan: "The world will miss Valentino as an actor. I miss him as a friend."

Sid Grauman: "The screen has lost one of its greatest figures. As a showman, I found him one of the greatest box-office attractions because of his distinctive characterization of the ideal lover."

Howard Higgin: "To be wiped out when he had reached the highest point in his career is the real tragedy."

Hope Hampton: "His death marks the passing of a great public idol, who can never be forgotten by the millions who admired him."

Jack Holt: "The news of the death of Valentino struck me like a thunderbolt."

Leatrice Joy: "Rudolph Valentino's death means, perhaps, the greatest loss the screen has ever had."

Norman Kerry: "The loss of my friend has shaken me and I am deeply grieved."

Laura La Plante: "It was a great shock. There is a gap in Hollywood that cannot be filled."

Rod La Rocque: "'Rudy' was a true friend, a real sportsman, an athlete and a gentleman, and one of the greatest individual figures our industry has developed."

Ben Lyon: "I am deeply shocked at his death. The motion picture industry has lost one of its most wonderful actors."

Dorothy Mackaill: "The screen has lost one of its most brilliant figures."

Lois Moran: "To me it was Valentino's youth which makes his death so sad."

Al Roekett: "Valentino's death means a loss to the millions who found their dreams of romance embodied in one of the most colorful figures that the photoplay has produced."

Ray Roekett: "He is a type that comes perhaps but once in history."

Alfred Santell: "The world has lost a real gentleman."

Gloria Swanson: "May the thoughts and prayers of the millions who loved 'Rudy' help him on his journey to the Unknown. As a personal friend and admirer, my humble prayer follows him."

Norma Talmadge: "He put up a gallant fight and died, as he lived, a very brave man."

Florence Vidor: "I, with the millions of other admirers, am bowed with sorrow."

Labor Troubles Threaten for Sept. 1

New York City, Detroit and Washington Among Points Affected; Increases Demanded by Theatre Employes at Issue

AS the time of year for wage agreements between theatre managers and labor unions draws near, differences over increases demanded by operators and others threaten strikes and shutdowns in several cities. One of the principal points is Detroit, where operators and stage hands are demanding increases which would add from $335,000 to $450,000 to the cost of operating Detroit's theatres, managers claim. H. M. Richey, general manager of the M. P. T. O. of Michigan, has been representing the theatre owners at conferences with labor leaders.

Rather than try to operate on a non-union basis, in case the union refuses to alter its stand, 125 theatres in Detroit will close on Sept. 1 when the present contract expires. If the theatres can operate with the present scale in force, they will remain open, managers say. At a meeting last week, 92 theatre owners signified their intention of closing if present demands persist, and others have joined the agreement since. Only the Kinsky-B. & K. houses have declined to join in this step, as yet.

Detroit theatre men have raised a defense fund of $100,000 to cover losses which may result during the threatened shutdown.

Matters have reached a deadlock in Washington, D.C., with both sides charging bad faith, and a strike on Sept. 1 is not unlikely, with the possibility that stage hands and musicians may join the operators in a sympathetic strike.

Both sides are preparing for a struggle. The managers are conducting an operators' school, where non-union projectionists are being trained, while the union is taking suitable steps to force a settlement or cause the theatres to close.

Managers contend that the operators broke off negotiations and must take the first steps toward resuming them, to which the operators reply that the attitude of the theatre owners was responsible for the failure of the conferences on the situation.

The deadlock between the operators and the Theatre Owners' Chamber of Commerce in New York City remained unbroken according to last report this week, with conferences scheduled in the hope of arriving at a solution. This is likewise a wage controversy.

In Newark, N.J., musicians are demanding wage increases which average $15 per week per man. Theatre owners are negotiating with the musicians, with no word as to the outcome as yet.

Syracuse, N.Y., musicians are also demanding wage increases, amounting in this instance to $4 per player. Theatre owners are fighting the demand.

In Minneapolis, an officer of the international has been called in to assist in breaking the deadlock which exists between theatre owners and stage hands of the Twin Cities. The managers are opposed to the merger of the Minneapolis and St. Paul unions, now proposed, and are also averse to granting the wage increases demanded.

Robert Scott, who has the Metropolitan theatres in St. Paul and Minneapolis, both legitimate houses, is the head of the theatre managers, but his illness has prevented his taking part in negotiations for a new contract.

Sohmer Manager of Tiffany Cincinnati Branch

On Monday, August 23rd, David Sohmer took up his duties as manager of the Cincinnati branch of Tiffany Productions, Inc., having been appointed to that position by M. H. Hoffman, of Tiffany. Sohmer was for many years connected with the old General Film company. Later he became affiliated with the Universal sales department, then as sales manager for the Commonwealth Film corporation. Last year he was actively engaged with the sales force of the Warner Bros. Cincinnati exchange.

Arbitration and Film Boards O.k.'d by Government

Department of Justice Declares Plan Fair, Just and Economical— Certain Objectionable Practices Removed by Change in Rules

WASHINGTON, August 25.

AN endorsement of arbitration methods in the motion picture industry was made to-day by The Department of Justice at the conclusion of its eighteen months' investigation of the Film Boards of Trade.

A formal statement was issued by the Department declares that "this plan, as conceived and executed, provides a fair, just and economical method of dealing with disputes." Certain isolated practices by local film boards were found objectionable and these have been removed by the amplification of arbitration rules.

The statement by the Department of Justice follows:

Text of Decision

"Following complaints received from owners of moving picture theaters, the Department of Justice has during the past eighteen months conducted an extensive investigation of the operations of the Film Boards of Trade, with a view to determine whether or not there had been a violation of the Anti-trust Law.

"The Film Boards of Trade are organized by the industry for the purpose of enforcing awards made by Boards of Arbitration in disputes between motion picture distributors and exhibitors arising under contracts for the leasing of motion picture films.

"There are thirty-two Film Boards of Trade located in the principal cities of the United States, and there are thirty-two Boards of Arbitration. These Boards of Arbitration are made up of three representatives of the distributors and three representatives of motion picture theater owners, and act by reason of a clause in the motion picture film contracts requiring that any dispute under the contract shall be referred to a Board of Arbitration before either party resorts to a court of law.

"That this plan as conceived and executed, provides a fair, just and economical method of dealing with disputes is evidenced by the fact that during the past two years 10,325 awards have been made by these boards and of these only thirty-seven have required reference to a seventh arbitrator to reach a decision.

"Certain practices which had been adopted by local boards were objected to by the Department of Justice, and at its instance the Film Boards of Trade has amplified its rules and regulations relating to arbitration so as clearly to prohibit members of local Film Boards from pursuing such objectionable practices."

The "practices" dealt with the cash-credit system used by some of the Film Boards, which had the effect, in some instances, of shutting off service to exhibitors upon the latter's failure to abide by arbitration decisions.

The statement by the Government is seen as an endorsement of arbitration in general by the American Arbitration Association, which issued the following comment through Anson W. Burehard, chairman of the International General Electric Co. and a director of the Association. He said:

Endorsement of Arbitration

"Announcement by the Department of Justice of the result of its inquiry into the arbitration proceedings of thirty-two Film Boards of Trade during the past eighteen months is not only complimentary to the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America but may be taken as an endorsement of arbitration as a means of adjusting purely trade disputes.

"The Department's findings are particularly gratifying to the American Arbitration Association because the arbitral procedure used by the Film Boards is based upon sound principles, every contract between a distributor and an exhibitor of motion pictures containing a clause which provides that any dispute arising out of the contract shall be referred to arbitration before either party to the dispute resorts to a court of law. The investigation establishes that substantial justice and equity are done under this system and leave no questions as to the legality of this method of adjudication and the fact that more than eleven thousand controversies were satisfactorily disposed of last year in the motion picture industry bears testimony of its effectiveness."

Hays Tells Achievements

An article, entitled "Settling It Out of Court," by Will H. Hays, as told to John-son Heywood, appears in the current issue of System, and follows in part:

"When I became associated with the motion-picture industry I discovered that there was a tremendous amount of friction between the distributors of films, who correspond to the wholesalers in other industries, and the theater owners who are, in reality, the retailers. Much of this friction found its way to the courts. The amounts involved were often ridiculously small. Suits for breach of contract cluttered up the courts all over the country.

How the System Started

"Perhaps because the industry was young a much larger proportion of the routine transactions resulted in conflicts than is usual in the older and more settled branches of business, but the nature of the disputes was exactly the same at bottom, as those which arise between manufacturer, wholesaler, and retailer, in any industry. Thousands of contracts were entered into every year with literally millions of contractual executions—every one of which was a potential lawsuit. As a result hard feeling was prevalent between business men who should be on the best of terms.

"In any industry there is a small minority of men who are not above taking advantage of the law's delays for selfish purposes. Faced with the certainty of a quick decision, these men can cause no harm. But I believe that 90 per cent. of all disputes start in honest differences of opinion. These men want a quick decision. Results have proved that this was true in the motion-picture industry.

"I knew how well arbitration had worked for business men in other fields. The New York Chamber of Commerce, for instance, has been arbitrating disputes since 1768. Some trade associations had maintained arbitration machinery for many years. There was no reason why arbitration would not work for the motion-picture men.

"About three years ago we organized arbitration tribunals in the principal distributing centers. Today we have 32 in the United States. Each tribunal is composed of three theater owners and three distributors.

"In every contract for a film there is a clause binding each party to submit any disputes that may arise under it to the nearest tribunal.

Found to Be Practical

"Ordinarily these six men are able to agree on the verdict. Out of more than 23,000 cases that have been arbitrated in the past two years there were tie votes, necessitating the appointment of a seventh arbitrator, in only 37 cases. That shows how easy it is for six men, all of whom are thoroughly conversant with the ins and outs of a business, to decide on questions of fact and to render just awards. You might expect that the theatre owners would be prejudiced in favor of the theatre owner who was engaged in a dispute and for the distributor arbitrators to lean toward the disputant who is in their branch of the business.

"But it does not work out that way in practice. Often if there is not complete agreement we find a couple of exhibitor arbitrators upholding the distributor and vice versa. Partisanship is rare. The arbitrators, who are busy business men serving without pay, are as impartial and judicial in their findings as any judge can be. And they are far better acquainted with the facts and conditions underlying the cases than any judge can be.

"The tribunals have reported their activities for the two full years 1924 and 1925. The disputes disposed of in that time have involved slightly more than $4,650,000. Just about half of the disputes were settled between the parties themselves after the complaint was made, but before the actual arbitration started."

Whyte P. D. C. Distrib. Manager; No Change in Present Personnel

JOHAN C. FLINN, vice-president and general manager of Producers Distributing Corporation, this week announced the appointment of Arthur G. Whyte as manager of distribution for the company. The appointment of Whyte will not displace any of the present executive officers of the company. For the past five years Whyte has been general manager of the Peerless Booking Offices, which is the film booking exchange of the Keith-Albee, Proctor and Moss theatres in Greater New York. He has had 15 years' experience in the picture business, being among the earliest independent film exchange owners in the Greater New York district and subsequently was in charge of the film distribution of the Realart and Paramount companies in New York.

Projection Speed on F.N. Reels

First National Adopts McCormick Idea to Aid in Showing of Productions

A PLAN sponsored by John McCormick, general manager of West Coast product for First National, by which the reel bands of every print of a picture will carry the proper projection speed thereon has been adopted by First National and the idea will be utilized immediately, says Richard A. Rowland, general manager of the company.

Commenting on the new plan, Rowland states that he doesn't believe producers have gone to sufficient lengths in pointing out to exhibitors the necessity of carefully watching their projection speed. He says: "Exhibitors in even the smaller towns have, in many directions, developed presentation to a high degree of perfection. They have done wonders in exploitation, and their lobby displays and ballyhoos frequently reach a high degree of excellence. In the larger cities the musical settings and prologues are often magnificent. In a word, the show is put on in a million-dollar manner. But the heart of the whole thing, the kernel in the nut, the basis of the program, the real excuse for the theatre's existence—the picture—is too often marred because it is run either too fast or too slowly. In many cases the fault is inadvertent; but in any event it can and should be corrected."

"Pictures," states McCormick, "are cut in accordance with their character. In other words, producers are always 'pointing' for either drama or comedy and the tempo is in the speed which best fits the subject. A comedy full of fast action is usually cut to be shown at a speed of from ninety to ninety-five feet per minute, while a slow-moving drama is figured at eighty to eighty-five. Sometimes a picture is filmed in too slow a tempo and must be speeded up in the cutting. Different directors have different methods. One who works slowly will make a picture time around eighty, perhaps; while others are all for fast action and produce a ninety or ninety-five speed picture. Unless all directors are, so to speak, standardized and work mechanically at the same tempo, this difference will always exist.

"When a comedy is cut to run at 90 and is actually run at 80 it becomes 'draggy'. On the other hand, a drama projected faster than it should be, becomes 'jumpy' and the dramatic points fail to register. Titles are another indication. If an audience complains that titles are too long or too short, it is because the picture is not being run at the proper speed. The length of titles is determined by the speed at which the picture is cut."

Toronto M. P. T. O. Confers With Musicians Union

Representatives of the M. P. T. O. Canadian Division at Toronto have been conferring with officers of the Musicians Union regarding new demands made by the musicians for wage increases, changes in time schedules, number of men to be employed in various theatre orchestras and other details. Concessions have already been made by both sides, it is intimated.

Twenty-Five New Members Join Eastern, Pa., Unit

The Eastern Pennsylvania theatre unit by means of a special drive and regional meetings held throughout the locality by George P. Aarons, secretary, has so far added twenty-five new members to the unit.

In and Out of Town

J. ROBERT RUBIN, vice-president and general counsel of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, arrived on the Aquitania last Monday, August 16th, in company with his wife and son. He sailed on June 12th for a trip that mixed business with pleasure.

CRESSON E. SMITH, United Artists sales manager of the Middle West, left this week for a journey to the exchanges under his supervision in Indianapolis, Chicago, Minneapolis, Detroit and other cities, with regard to United Artists' product. He will return to the home office about the middle of September.

ACCOMPANIED by her husband, Captain Alastair Mackintosh, Constance Talmadge left England on August 18th and will arrive in this country on the 25th. They will be met on the pier by Norma Talmadge and Joseph M. Schenck and will stay in New York two or three weeks and then return to Los Angeles.

HARRY SCOTT and E. Oswald Brooks, general sales manager and Southern district sales manager respectively of Pathe Exchange, Inc., accompanied by their wives, are on a two weeks' vacation in Canada, through which they are touring by automobile. They expect to be back in New York the first of next week.

E. W. Hammons, president of Educational Film Exchanges, Inc., left New York a few days ago for Los Angeles on one of his periodic visits to the Coast. He will be in consultation with the Christie Bros. at their studio and with executives in charge of production at the Educational studio.

Bandits Compel Theatre Man to Open Safe for Them

William Asbaras, of the North Center Theatre, Andrew Karzas' north side house in Chicago, was forced to open the safe and hand over $5,000 to four bandits early Monday morning. Two of the robbers drove him around in their automobile while the other pair vainly attempted to open the safe. Later, Asbaras' captors brought him back to the theatre and forced him, at the point of revolvers, to work the combination.

Loew Has Twenty Theatres Under Construction; Four Houses Being Remodelled

AT the present time Marcus Loew has more than 20 theatres under course of construction and 4 being remodelled to be added to a chain of Loew Theatres presenting the De Luxe form of entertainment.

Those under construction at the present time will be located in Syracuse, Canton, Akron, Columbus, Pittsburgh, Kansas City, New Rochelle, Baltimore, Houston, San Antonio, Dallas, Richmond, London, England and the Canal Street, Woodside, Hillside, Fordham, Yonkers, Second Avenue and at Eighty-sixth Street, Brooklyn.

New acquisitions, the Premier in East New York, will be formally opened August 30th and the Hillside, in the Jamaica section, September 2nd. The Inwood in the Washington Heights section and the Bedford in Brooklyn, formerly Keeney's, were recently added to the New York chain. With the plans now under way completed, the Loew Circuit in Greater New York will exceed 60 large theatres before the New Year.

One Arrest Only for Sunday Violation

Ruling Made by Columbus, Ind., Mayor in Rembusch Case; Reade's Plainfield Theatres Closed; Free Shows in Denver

THE blue law controversy still continues in a number of states spread out through the country. Developments in the wrangle during the past week indicate a deadlock between the opposing factions. In some cities the business men are taking up the cudgels for the exhibitors as a closed theatre means a loss to other lines of commerce.

A ruling laid down in Columbus, Ind., rather favors the exhibitor. Mayor C. B. Cooper, of that town, has decreed that a person may be arrested only once on a given Sunday for violation of the Sabbath. The ruling was made in the action brought against Frank J. Rembusch, owner of the city's two houses, for operating the Crump on Sunday. In Indiana the custom is to accept decision of the Supreme Courts of other states, which custom was followed in this case. Because of this ruling the Crump continued operation last Sunday following arrests for conducting an afternoon performance.

The show was raided in spite of a sign which announced it was being given for charity and the men held until formal charges had been filed. Under the law, work of necessity or charity is permitted on Sunday.

Meanwhile, Rembusch is continuing his efforts to "open" Columbus on Sunday, and has appealed last week's decision in which he, with Frank Horn and William Norman were convicted of desecrating the Sabbath. The first Sunday show resulted in the arrest of six men. Following their conviction, the house was operated the following Sunday by Oscar Kuschner, Indianapolis exchangeman, and Howard Cornell, who announced they had leased the house. Although declaring that they were of Jewish faith and observed Saturday as their day of rest, they were convicted and fined, with Rembusch fined as an accessory to the violation.

Vaudeville Necessary for Successful Theatre

DECLARING that the popularity of a motion picture theatre depended on the high class vaudeville, Sam Katz, president of Publix Theatres, Inc., presiding at the district convention of Publix at the Hotel President, Kansas City, prophesied that the cities of the Middle West will soon be seeing European productions as regular events. Theatre managers from Kansas, Nebraska, Missouri, Iowa, Colorado, Oklahoma and Utah attended the meeting, which lasted two days and which consisted principally of discussions of theatre operation, cost and other details. No new plans or policies were advocated.

The following officials were among those attending the meeting: Sam Dembow, film buyer; Harry Marx, superintendent of theatrical management; L. E. Schneider, director of personnel; Fred Metzler, comptroller; Lem Stewart, director of exploitation; David Chatkin, buyer of film novelties.

F. P.-L. Supports Poli's Denial of Proposed Deal

A. M. BOTSFORD, speaking for Famous Players-Lasky, affirmed the denial issued by Sylvester Z. Poli that he was going to sell his theatres to Famous Players-Lasky. Botsford declared that as far as he knew no deal had been brought about, though there had been rumors to that effect for some time.

Pat Casey, president of the Vaudeville Managers' Association, also denied the consummation of the deal, saying that the reports of the deal had been imminent for three years.

Churches of the city are supporting the administration in trying to keep Columbus "blue," with city authorities preparing to show that the charitable nature of the shows was a subterfuge in a drive against the law.

Despite the ordinance preventing Sunday shows in Colorado Springs, the people of that town had four theatres to visit last Sunday when the houses ran free shows giving the public the option of making a contribution towards the expense involved in operation. The law prohibits amusements "for pay" but the method of operation utilized forestalled any attempt to close the houses. This plan was put into operation because the business of the town as a whole suffered owing to lack of open theatres on Sunday. Colorado Springs has enjoyed the patronage of tourists during the week days, but the town was deserted over the week-end due to the blue law. It is planned to continue the free shows for four Sundays or until the tourist season slackens.

A blow was dealt the reformers in York, Pa., this week, when Mayor Hugentogler refused to enforce the Sunday ordinance closing all amusements, on the ground that it would lead to endless litigation against the city. It is said the Mayor will wait until a court injunction is issued compelling him to enforce the provisions of the law before he imposes any fines or sends any violators to jail. It is said that his objection to enforcement is that if he fines or imprisons, any one of such persons would have a good case for damages against the city in the event the ordinance was eventually declared unconstitutional.

Pending litigation to determine the legality of the Sunday Law, the Walter Reade theatres in Plainfield, N. J., were kept closed last Sunday. Drastic action had been planned in the event the houses were opened with police prepared to arrest all patrons and the Mayor ready to revoke the licenses of the theatres.

There have been several instances of successful Sunday operation of Des Moines theatres by Seventh Day Adventists in municipalities where Sunday ordinances are effective. The courts have held that the "blue" law does not apply to Adventists, providing that members of this faith keep their theatres dark on Saturday, the Adventist Sabbath.

With their owners sitting on the sidelines, business men of Perry, Ia., have taken up the cudgels for Sunday shows there and are waging a battle over the question. The business interests are divided into two camps.

Sunday programs have been discontinued at the Hyannis Theatre at Hyannis, Mass. So much objection to Sunday programs was made by ministers and women's clubs of the town, as well as of nearby towns on Cape Cod, that the selectmen faced about and declined to issue further licenses.

Minneapolis Film Board of Trade Elects President

The Minneapolis Film Board of Trade at a meeting held August 16th at the Radisson Hotel elected Thomas Burke, manager of First National Distributing Corporation, as president of the Board to succeed Jack O'Toole, manager of the Producers Distributing Corporation of Minneapolis, who has been promoted by his concern to the district managership of St. Louis.

A motion was made that O'Toole in company with Harry Baley, who is also leaving the territory to take care of his interests in Texas, should be given a farewell luncheon, which was duly held on August 17th at the Nicollet Hotel.

Canada Warring Against Amusement Tax

THE Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, representing all unions affiliated with the International Federation of Labor, has taken up the fight against the Amusement Ticket Tax in various Provinces of Canada. The Congress, at its annual general convention to be held shortly, will ask that the Amusement Tax be abolished. Tom Moore of Ottawa, Ontario, delegate to the League of Nations at Geneva, is the president of the Canadian Congress.

At a meeting of the Allied Trades and Labor Association at Ottawa on August 20, a resolution calling for the abolishment of the Amusement Tax was unanimously adopted. The motion held that the Amusement Tax had become a nuisance to the general public of Canada and that the Congress use its powers to secure a discontinuance of the tax.

A similar resolution is to come up before the general meeting of Ontario exhibitors and film distributors to be held at the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, on September 2, this meeting, having been called by Col. John A. Cooper, president of the Motion Picture Distributors and Exhibitors of Canada.

Experts Review European Situation

German Film Journalist and British Producer-Distributor Give Views on Central European and English Conditions

ONE but a German can have exact knowledge of the present condition of the German film industry. Those who have more ideas than money can speak of what it means to further production—that is to say, good production. German scenario writers have thousands of ideas which, if materialized, would no doubt help the progress of the German film industry. However, this could only result if someone were to present the necessary cash requisite to carry out each idea. We must not forget that Germany, for this reason, is unable to constantly produce super-specials, but is forced to make program pictures, which cannot be produced on a lavish scale. One has to search for super-specials. And yet in spite of that, several noteworthy films will be presented during the coming season.

This fall a production which has been expectantly awaited for the last two years will have its premiere: "Metropolis," directed by Fritz Lang, director of "Siegfried" and "Kriemhild's Revenge" of the Nibelungen. And, as an example, this production cost five million marks, a huge sum for a German production. No doubt the ideas and sets, constructed in Neubabelsberg, will assure this production world-wide interest. I feel sure that when this production is shown in New York it will have three times the success achieved by "Variety." The leading role is played by a newcomer, Fritz Lang's recent discovery, Breta Helm.

Camilla Horn has just completed her role in "Faust" and this production will have its premiere about the end of this year. Ufa announces a new Emil Jannings film temporarily entitled "Emil, the Marine." Carl Hoffmann, cameraman for "Siegfried," has been engaged to do the camera work in this production. Work has been started on "His Great Case," produced under the auspices of the German Police. The story is based on an interesting theme and shows all the activities of the members of the Berlin criminal department, how they work and reach their goal. But the super-specials terminate with these three productions. Alas, the best intentions for production are defeated by lack of funds.

Following the specials are good program pictures: The National Film has almost completed production on "Kabinke," based on Herrmann's well known novel, with a new star, Werner Fütterer, a protégé of the director, Arthur Bergen. This director has reached the front ranks by his direction of "The Wisskottens." "Nero" is a production worthy of notice. "The Laughing Mask," starring Conrad Veidt, the greatest screen actor portraying fiendish roles and weird characters in Germany.

So much for new production. Now for the productions recently presented in Germany. Most noteworthy of these is "The Way to Strength and Beauty," a production showing Dr. Mensendieck's gymnastic teachings and those of other schools. This production, the second edition to be shown, met with great success at the Ufa Palast am Zoo, for the Germans have gradually begun to realize that physical culture is a great factor in life. The educational super "Hunting Big Game in Abyssinia" and the Henny Porten picture, "Take Heed When She Gets Started," also met with great success.

Of course the motion picture houses of Berlin cannot be compared to those of America. Here again one sees the lack of funds necessary for renovation and enlargement. As to the style of theatres over there, however, they can be most favorably compared with the theatres of this country. First of these is the Ufa Palast am Zoo, having a seating capacity of 3,000 and built according to American ideas. An orchestra of 75 men played at this theatre until July 1st, when the theatre was closed for renovation. The Gloria Palast, another Ufa house, displays luxury and good taste—a more intimate theatre. Eight hundred people can be comfortably seated on well-padded, heavily brocaded chairs in this house. The orchestra of 40 pieces under the direction of Franco Fedeli is most excellent.

Ufa controls about 30 theatres in Berlin. Phoebus also has a theatre seating about 800, the Capitol, whose 50-piece orchestra is directed by Schmidt-Gentner, well-known conductor of Berlin. Other theatres are situated in various parts of the city and all (in so far as Ufa theatres are concerned) are fitted with all comforts and modern technical equipment.

Renovation of the Ufa Palast am Zoo is now almost completed. One of the novelties is an organ just built in, which is said to be the largest in Europe. The pipes are over 37 feet long and the organ will have great volume. When the Ufa Palast am Zoo is re-opened three performances will be given daily in place of the two previously presented, the first with organ accompaniment and the second and third with orchestral accompaniment.

W. F. Clarke, of Cranfield & Clarke, Inc., who has just returned from a business trip abroad, reports that although the coal strike continues in Great Britain, business is very brisk.

He also announces that he has secured exclusive handling, for scenario purposes, of a number of books by leading British authors. These include such authors as Henry Arthur Jones, Oliver Sandys, Arthur Applin, Baroness Orczy, Maud Mallet, and many others. He also has the picture rights of H. G. Wells' "Ann Veronica."

Clarke also reports that he has arranged for offices in Paris and Berlin. Clarke states that featurettes have not yet become a big part of the average program of Britain and the Continent, but the time is rapidly approaching when they will be as popular as they are in America.

Discussing the foreign situation, and the American films, Clarke states that there is a good deal of propaganda abroad which emanates from people who do not know the ins and outs of the film situation, and in discussing the subject with various people interested in the furtherance of British films, it was found that there is a good deal of destructive criticism and very little of a constructive nature.

"Having viewed many foreign pictures in features and short subjects," he says, "it is found that they lack the essential zip, and speed and are inclined to drag a little, but this fault is being gradually eliminated.

"The general feeling in England of the man in the street with regard to pictures; is that the tight little Island must produce its own pictures, and here are one or two reasons given by a well-known stock exchange broker: 'Many of the lower grade pictures in foreign countries find their way into the heart of Africa, India, and many British dependencies, and are shown to the natives. All natives in British regime have been brought up to respect the white man and look up to him, no matter what his nationality is; in fact, my own personal experience is that in the heart of Africa, you can tell a native that a thing is so, and he will blindly trust you, hence the disastrous result of the Motion Picture, for it portrays lying, thieving, infidelities, to the natives, crimes that he would not dare to commit. Now judge for yourself the effect this has upon him, and you will realize why England is already in the middle of some tribal troubles.'

"Another question, and a very important one to Great Britain, is the effect the film has on the trade. Gone is the old slogan 'Trade follows the fleet,' for it now follows the film. The demand has been created for American goods through this means of silent advertising, and one very big boot manufacturer in the Midlands had to alter the whole of his plant to enable him to meet the change of custom in boots.

"In all probability, many moving picture people in this country wonder why no agreement has been reached in Great Britain with regard to the quota, and other schemes put forward for reciprocity. It is simple. The moving picture industry in England is divided into four kinds. First, large American concerns with their own American representatives; second, the firms in England solely representing American independent firms; third, individuals traveling back and forward with pictures where they can; and fourth, the wholly British firm. Needless to say, the last are in the minority.

"In spite of the above, American films are very well liked by the majority of people in Great Britain and on the continent, and the answer to all the riddles that confront the British producer is, that he must make bigger and better pictures. Then, there is no question but that he will get distribution in the United States."

"U" Gets Eleven Milwaukee Houses

Takes Over Grauman-Silliman Chain, Making Company Powerful Factor in That Territory; Other Theatre Deals Reported

THROUGH the terms of a deal just consummated, by which Universal takes over the Grauman-Silliman chain of eleven theatres in Milwaukee, the company has become a powerful factor in that territory. According to Universal officials the new acquisition is the forerunner of further expansion planned in Wisconsin. The Grauman-Silliman houses will be an important adjunct to the company's downtown house, the Alhambra, operated under lease from the Uihlein interests, which control the Garden. The theatres which become a part of the Universal chain Sept. 6, are the Riviera, State, and Juneau, all 1,200-seat houses; the New Lake, a 1,000-seat house; the Downer, a 900-seat house; the Jackson, a 900-seat house; the Koseiunsko, Fern and Astor, each of 800 seats; the Murray, 750 seats, and the Veniee and a new 1,600-seat house now under construction. Operation of the theatres will henceforth be under Universal supervision. Just what relationship the present three figures in the circuit will retain is not made known. Universal later will be represented in the general office of the S. & G. chain. No change in the operating policies or personnel is contemplated, it is announced.

There is considerable speculation at present in St. Louis as to whether William Fox plans to build a theatre in the downtown section of the city because of the recent purchase of lots running from Olive to Pine Street, between Twelfth Boulevard and Thirteenth Street by A. M. Frumberg and Benjamin G. Brinkman for approximately $350,000. Frumberg acted for Fox in the purchase of other property and it is from this fact that inferences are drawn as regards the new purchase, although Frumberg issued a statement from New York, saying that Fox Theatres is not involved in the acquisition of the new plot.

In addition to the recent announcement

Sax Opens New Gotham Washington Branch

A NEW Gotham exchange, another link in the Gotham distribution system which is assuming national aspects, was opened last week when Sam Sax, president of Gotham, opened his Washington, D.C., branch office. A. W. Carick is executive in charge of the branch. He has had much experience in managing exchanges, having managed in turn the Robertson-Cole offices in Washington, the Omaha branch for Select and Selznick, the F. B. O. office in St. Louis and the Philadelphia branch for Associated Exhibitors.

The new Gotham branch goes into immediate operation and will have twelve Gotham productions, eight William Fairbanks features and other added attractions for the exhibitors in the Capitol district, Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia.

Vladimir Dantchenko to Produce for U. A.

A FORMAL announcement that Vladimir Dantchenko, Russian director, co-founder with Constant in Stanislavsky of the Moscow Art Theatre and sole founder and director of the Moscow Art Theatre Musical Studio, has signed to produce motion pictures for United Artists Corporation, was made this week by Joseph M. Schenck; chairman of the board of directors of the company. This announcement confirmed cable reports from Europe that Dantchenko had been signed by Morris Gest, who represented Schenck, for a period of one year.

that the Comerford-Chamberlain joint interests will break ground in October for their new $600,000 theatre and office building on the old site of the Sterling Hotel, it is learned that an option for the purchase of the Keeney Theatre, West Third Street, has been obtained from Frank A. Keeney, of New York, the owner, by Norman R. Hill, president of the Williamsport Hippodrome Company, and Milton Forman, vice-president and general manager.

It is stated, a new company will be formed to take over the theatre in September and make some extensive improvements to the building. Moreover, the transfer of the property will include the lease of the Grand Theatre, West Fourth Street, owned by the Frank H. Keyte estate. This will give the company control of three theatres, it having taken over the Hippodrome on May 24th.

A Pennsylvania charter has been obtained for a corporation, capitalized at $50,000, and composed of Ferdinand Gremminger and other Lebanon, Pa., men, for the Mount Gretna Park Company, of Mount Gretna, Pa. The charter covers a number of amusement enterprises in the park.

Loew's Ohio Theatres, Inc., according to an unauthorized statement, has purchased an interest in the local chain of motion picture theatres known as the Washington Circuit. M. B. Horwitz, general manager of the circuit, could not be reached for confirmation, but it is nevertheless accepted as fact. It is said that Horwitz, in selling to Loew's an interest in his chain, will continue his connection as general manager. It could not be ascertained whether a change of control would bring about any change in policy.

This deal brings under Loew control seven Cleveland neighborhood houses and two houses in Cuyahoga Falls. This makes eighteen houses for Loew. A new one is now under construction at Detroit Ave. and West 117th Street. It will be a 1,500-seat house. Fred Desberg, general manager of Loew's Ohio Theatres, Inc., is in Europe and no definite statement can be secured until his return, early in September.

It is also said that Universal, which recently purchased a big interest in the Broadway chain, Cleveland, is now dickering for another neighborhood chain, the Seoville, Essiek and Reiff circuit. There's also a rumor in the air that Loew's Ohio Theatres, which is said to have acquired an interest in the Washington circuit, is negotiating for the Ohio Amusement Company's theatres as well.

Bandits Foiled by Manager's Prompt Action

The fast headwork of Samuel A. Jones, assistant manager of Loew's State Theatre, Boston, saved $900 from two bandits who entered the office and endeavored to run off with two cash boxes which had just been turned in by the girl cashiers. Jones grappled with the burglars, simultaneously pressing the burglar alarm button. When the two fled down the stairs empty handed they ran into the arms of a policeman responding to the alarm. Both were held in $900 bail.

Virginia Lee Corbin Added to "Not Herbert" Cast

Virginia Lee Corbin has been signed to play opposite Ben Lyon in the coming Ray Rockett production for First National, "Not Herbert." This is a stage play by Howard Irving Young, which played last season on Broadway and is now on tour.

Miss Corbin appeared recently in the Warner production, "The Honeymoon Express," and in "Ladies at Play," which Al Green has just completed for First National on the Coast. She leaves for New York next Monday.

Two New England Companies Incorporate

Colonial Theatre Co., Inc., Hartford, has been incorporated and has chosen the following officers: president, Joseph W. Walsh; treasurer, Abraham Schuman; secretary, Joseph Dolgin, all of Hartford.

Wirth & Hammond, Boston, has incorporated to conduct theatrical and amusement enterprises, with capital of ten shares of no par. Incorporators are Mary E. Connor, Lillian V. Green, both of Boston and Leo L. Sherry of Peabody.

Arch St. Theatre Company Formed in Harrisburg

The Arch Street Theatre Company of Philadelphia has obtained a charter of incorporation at Harrisburg, Pa., with authorized capitalization of $10,000, of which $1,000 has been paid in. Par value of the shares $100. Incorporators are Charles Lubar, treasurer, Joshua Grubar and Anshel Searr, all of Philadelphia.

Fox Agent in Spain Assembling "Carmen" Costumes

That the Fox Films production of "Carmen" will be an elaborate one is evidenced by the cablegram received by Winfield R. Sheehan, vice-president, from Edwin C. Hill, special representative for Fox Films, now in Madrid, Spain, saying that he had assembled costumes for the production.

He has collected, according to the cablegram, seven hundred and fifty costumes, uniforms of toreadors, matadors and Spanish dancers. One cape, it is said, used by a noted toreador, weighs seventy-five pounds and cost two thousand dollars, the high cost due to its gold and silver trimmings.

The title role of "Carmen" will be portrayed by Dolores Del Rio. Filming will begin as soon as the costumes arrive from Spain, or about September 1st. Luis Usabal, Spanish artist, has designed the sets for the production.

May Allison Assigned Role in "One Increasing Purpose"

Fox Films has signed May Allison for the part of Linda in the A. S. M. Hutchinson story, "One Increasing Purpose," which is being filmed in England by Director Harry Beaumont working in conjunction with the author. Edmund Lowe and Lila Lee will do their work in England, but Miss Allison will not go to England as the part she has to play calls for interior work. While waiting the return of the unit from England, Miss Allison will work at the West Coast studio in "The City," by Clyde Fitch, under the direction of R. William Neill.

Fourteen Productions in Work at Fox Films, West Coast Studio

WITH September on hand Fox Films has fourteen companies at work on the Fox West Coast studio. Production is so heavy on the East lot that an acute need is felt for the two new stages that are in construction there. Victor Schertzinger is prepared to release Stage 6 which had been given over entirely to his unit for the making of the screen version of "The Return of Peter Grimm." Sol. M. Wurtzel, studio superintendent, has two companies waiting for the space.

Albert Ray has "Whispering Wires" well on its way.

George Melford is also well along with "Going Crooked."

Tom Mix, under Ben Stoloff's direction, is shooting on "The Canyon of Light."

J. G. Blystone has just returned from location at Mount Rainier National Park with his company to finish the studio sequences of "On the Wings of the Storm."

Howard Hawks, creator of "Fig Leaves," recently started work on a screen version of the life of Gaby Deslys, which will be released as "Gaby."

Lou Tellegen has in production the first of his new series as a director, "My Wife's Honor."

R. William Neill is making "The City."

John Ford has Belle Bennett before his camera in the leading role of the story of "Mother Machree."

Five comedies are under way. They are "Napoleon, Jr.," "Golfing Widows," "Society Architect," "Light Wines and Bearded Ladies" and "The Marry Month of May."

Wilmer & Vincent Circuit Expanding; Rumors of Sale Unfounded, Says Vincent

AN expansion policy designed to make the already powerful circuit one of the most important in the East is being worked out by the Wilmer and Vincent chain which is located principally in Central Pennsylvania.

As a first step a stock issue has been floated through Richardson, Hill & Company, of Boston. One hundred and fifty thousand shares of preferred, no par, and two hundred thousand shares of common, no par, comprise the flotation. In confirming the report of the stock sale Walter Vincent emphasized that no deal with any company which might have for its object the sale of the Wilmer & Vincent circuit is under way or contemplated.

The plan of expansion decided upon will be felt principally in Eastern Pennsylvania, Virginia and Georgia. A number of deals for the acquisition of houses is under way, states Vincent.

Somlyo Joins Famous Players

To Supervise Preparation of Negatives From Which Foreign Prints Will Be Made

SPECIAL preparation of every film made for the particular section of the globe in which it is to be shown is the note struck in a statement issued by B. P. Schulberg coincident with the arrival in Hollywood of E. M. Somlyo who will supervise the cutting, titling and other work attendant upon the preparation of negatives from which prints will be made for foreign distribution of Paramount pictures.

That Paramount has recognized the special conditions and needs for the foreign film market is attested by the appointment of Somlyo and also in the acquisition of foreign stars, writers and directors, says Schulberg's statement. He pointed out the production "Hotel Imperial" which is being produced with and by an almost exclusively foreign staff.

Somlyo was associated with the administrative department of Famous about seven years ago. He went abroad about five years ago and has been engaged in motion picture activities in Central Europe ever since, through which he has gained a knowledge of foreign audiences and story needs as applied to the market abroad.

Bairnsfather to Prepare "Better 'Ole" Posters

Captain Bruce Bairnsfather, creator of Old Bill and author of "The Better 'Ole," signed contracts with Warner Brothers this week by which he will design all posters, billboards and cartoons that are used in the publicity campaign announcing the screen version of "The Better 'Ole," coming to the New York Colony early in October. The Warners have leased the house and a Vitaphone accompaniment representative of the artistry which embellishes that of "Don Juan" is planned. The character of Old Bill became popular with readers of English and American newspapers during the World War.

Cast for Tiffany's "College Days" Complete

The complete cast for the Tiffany production of "College Days," now in the course of production, is made up of Marceline Day, Charles Delaney, Jimmy Harrison, Edna Murphy, Kathleen Key, Brooks Benedict, Duane Thompson, Pat Harmon, William A. Carroll, Crauford Kent, Lawford Davidson, Bob Holmes, Gibson Gowland and Charles Wellsley. A. P. Younger, author of the screen version of "Brown of Harvard," wrote "College Days" and is personally supervising the production.

Walter Futter to Produce Educational Comedies

WALTER A. FUTTER, producer of the "Curiosities, the Movie Sideshow," series for Educational release, will produce a series of two-reelers based on the comic strip, "Finn and Haddy," by Billy De Beck, creator of Spark Plug and Barney Google. Futter purchased the screening rights to the strip, which was abandoned some time ago by De Beck because he wished to devote more of his time to his more famous and popular comic. Names of players who will appear in the series will be announced later.

Changes in Sales Personnel of Universal

Lou B. Metzger, Universal general sales manager, made public several important changes last week in the Universal sales personnel. Manny Gottlieb, manager of the Des Moines exchange for several years, has been promoted to the managership of the St. Louis office, replacing L. E. Goldhammer, who has just resigned. Goldhammer's predecessor, Lou Hess, who took a leave of absence last spring to visit relatives in Europe, has been appointed Complete Contract Service representative with headquarters at the home office. Ralph B. Williams, Universal's Southern sales director, is now at the St. Louis branch installing Gottlieb in his new position. The Des Moines office has been given George Naylor, Universal salesman in that territory.

Columbia's "Obey the Law" to Star Bert Lytell

"Obey the Law," the one-act sketch which Columbia Pictures Corporation purchased from Max Marcin, author of "Silence" and other stage successes, will be given an elaborate production with the stellar male role assigned to Bert Lytell. "Obey the Law" is the same type of story as "The Lone Wolf Returns," in which Lytell was also starred. Harry Cohn, vice-president of Columbia and director general of production, will supervise the Marcin story, which is being directed by Al Raybock with a cast made up of Eugenie Gilbert, Hedda Hopper, William Welch, Edna Murphy, Larry Kent, Sarah Padden and Paul Panzer. The screen adaptation was written by Dorothy Howell, assistant production manager of the Columbia studio.

Kathleen Key Supporting McDonald in First Western

The leading feminine role in Francis McDonald's second Western for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer will be portrayed by Kathleen Key, who furnished an important characterization in "Ben-Hur." The story, an original one, goes into production next week under the working title of "The Desert's Toil." The unit leaves for the permanent location camp of the McDonald company, the Big Horn Ranch near Moapa, Nev. McDonald's first, "The Valley of Hell," is now being edited and titled for early release by Krag Johnson.

Finish "Fire Brigade" Filming

M.-G.-M. Special, Made With Aid of Fire Dept., Intended to Help Prevention Work

CAMERA work on "The Fire Brigade," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, produced by Hunt Stromberg and directed by Will Nigh, has been completed and the picture is now being cut and assembled for a pre-release showing at New Orleans, at the International Convention of the Association of Fire Engineers of America, which organization lent its aid to the film company in the making of the special.

J. W. Stevens, fire marshal of the State of California, was present at the M.-G.-M. Studio during the filming. The story tells of an average American fire fighter, his problems, trials and every-day heroism. The climax of the picture shows a fire in an orphan asylum at night. Thirty-two pieces of fire apparatus were on hand for this scene.

"While this production carries a powerful message in behalf of fire prevention, it is in no way a preachment but a big entertainment," declares Louis B. Mayer.

Under an agreement entered into by the International Order and M.-G.-M., part of the proceeds of the picture will be turned over to the Order for its fire prevention work and a portion will be kept for the sick benefits and pension funds of the local departments.

Every city of size in the United States and Canada has staged fire department parades down its principal thoroughfares for the production, say the M.-G.-M. officials. The cities include New York, Washington, D. C., Chicago, New Orleans, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Five Fox September Releases

"Marriage License," "Flying Horseman," "Womanpower" and "The Lily" on List

FOUR specials and a Buck Jones Western compose the Fox Films September releases. On September 5th, "Marriage License" and "The Flying Horseman" will be released, to be followed on the 12th by "The Blue Eagle." "Womanpower" is due on the 19th and "The Lily" on the 20th.

In "Marriage License," based on the London and New York stage play "The Pelican," by F. Tennyson Jesse and H. M. Harwood, the main role is enacted by Alma Rubens, with Walter Pidgeon as the male lead. It was directed by Frank Borzage. Buck Jones, the Western star, makes his season's debut in "The Flying Horseman," based on a story by Max Brand.

Gladys McConnell has the feminine lead. It is an Orville Dull production. George O'Brien and Janet Gaynor have the leads in "The Blue Eagle," adapted from Gerald Beaumont's "The Lord's Referee." This is a John Ford production.

"Womanpower," fashioned from Harold MacGrath's Red Book Magazine story, "You Can't Always Tell," has Kathryn Perry and Ralph Graves as the leads. The picturization of "The Lily," the David Belasco legitimate stage drama of some years ago, has Belle Bennett in the emotional title role. Ian Keith plays opposite. Victor Schertzinger directed "The Lily."

Shooting Under Way on "The Blonde Saint"

Production is well under way on "The Blonde Saint," Sam Rork's next production for First National, with Svend Gade directing on location at Laguna Beach. Marion Fairfax prepared the continuity. Doris Kenyon and Lewis Stone head the cast which to date has Tully Marshall, Gilbert Roland, Ann Rork, Malcolm Denny, Albert Conti, Gino Gorrado, Andre Cheron, Rosita Marstini, Lillian Langdon, Gertrude Norman, Lolita Lee, Vadim Uraneff, Sidney Jarvis, Tote Duerow, Gilbert Clayton, Wilfred North, Sam Appel and Robert Hale.

Greta Garbo in Support of Lon Chaney in "Ordeal"

The Swedish actress, Greta Garbo, who in the course of a year has appeared in three pictures for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, will be the featured feminine player opposite Lon Chaney in the latter's "The Ordeal," which Marcel De Sano will direct. Ray Doyld, former newspaper man, is preparing the scenario from the story by Dale Collins.

Promotions and Changes in Fox Sales Force

JAMES R. GRAINGER, general sales manager of Fox Films, has made several changes in the sales force of his company. The territory covered by Cincinnati, Cleveland and Detroit has been placed in charge of W. C. Bachmeyer, who held a similar position in the same localities with other film companies. Ira Cohen becomes district manager of the territory included in Kansas City, Omaha and Des Moines, with headquarters in Kansas City. M. A. Levy, manager of the Kansas City branch, is transferred to the Omaha office. J. Nolan takes over the managership of the Kansas City office. B. B. Reingold goes from the Omaha branch to the Des Moines office as manager. Herndon Esmond is promoted to the managership of the Washington exchange.

"Wings" Parachute a Success

Invention to be Used in Filming Paramount
Special Tested Before Aviation Experts

HERALDED as one of the greatest steps taken toward eliminating danger in flying, the invention of Harry D. Donett, a young naval mechanic, consisting of a giant parachute designed to float an entire airplane to earth and called "Wings," was proved successful at Inglewood, Cal., this week, when R. Carl Oelze and his plane sailed to safety from an altitude of 2,500 feet.

The test flight, witnessed by nearly 50,000 spectators, among them Navy and Army fliers from all parts of the Pacific Coast, was conducted under the auspices of Famous Players-Lasky Corporation. Jesse L. Lasky, first vice-president of the motion picture organization, made possible the test flight through financial backing in return for the use of the safety device during the making of the Paramount production "Wings," a story of air service in the World War. At the completion of the picture all rights revert back to Donett.

Shortly after noon Oelze took off on what aviation authorities present called "one of the greatest experiments since the invention of the airplane itself." A long line of Army and Navy planes stood neglected at one end of the field as their pilots focussed attention upon Oelze, now only a mere speck in the sky. Suddenly the plane turned gently upward. From the cockpit came the fluttering of flags, the signal. And then a mighty roar from thousands of throats on the ground as the tiny spot in the sky trembled, dropped and was caught under the mammoth canvas of 50 feet which spread out to take its burden of pilot and plane to the ground. The plane landed right side up and unscarred.

Crowds rushed to the pilot to congratulate him. The first was William Wellman, whose prediction has come true. According to experts, the invention was a success from every standpoint.

Fox Expansion Plan Enlarged

Two Additional Stages Now in Course of Construction; Studio Picturesque

IN order to have some space in which thirty directors may work simultaneously Fox Films are at present enlarging the West Coast Studio to the extent of building two new stages and a wardrobe building and the electrical and technical departments are enlarging and installing new machinery. The new stages are duplicates of stage number three, recently completed.

The stages will be equipped with the new Hoffner overhead lighting system and traveling cranes. The wardrobe building is being constructed so as to be ready for additional stories. Four new little theatres will be erected and will be equipped with the latest devices and will be so arranged that they can be used for theatrical production when not needed by directors, cutters, etc. Two new film storage vaults are under construction and while designed primarily to be fireproof will also have a system to prevent deterioration.

When the buildings under construction at present are completed a new scenic studio will be started on the northeast corner of the east lot in Hollywood. This will be built with a skylight to take advantage of the northern light.

Rapid progress is being made on work already started at Fox Hills. The wall, which incloses 100 acres of Fox Hills, is nearing completion. It is of Spanish-Moorish design with a gate and keeper's lodge of similar architecture. An electrical sign, designed in Mission Bell effect, will surmount the gate. With the completion of the wall the gardeners will begin landscaping the grounds so that Fox Hills will be not a motion picture lot but a motion picture park, one of the showplaces of Southern California.

"U" Urges Double Cue Sheets

Two Music Scores Furnished Exhibs.;
Taxable and Non-Taxable Preference

UNIVERSAL'S new move to include both taxable as well as non-taxable lists of musical suggestions with the music cue sheets has been commended by exhibitors throughout the country, says the Universal office. The new arrangement satisfies both the big theatre, which desires to play the popular and tax music, and the small theatre, which cannot afford to use taxed music, and does not pay the tax to the American Society of Authors and Publishers.

The Universal cue sheets are prepared so that every scene or music cue indicates two possible musical selections which fit the tempo and nature of the scene. One of these suggestions is selected from non-taxable music and is listed under a column prominently headed "Tax-Free." The other is suggested composition which falls under the taxable class and is so headed.

Since Universal inaugurated the double music cue the idea has been taken up by various exhibitor bodies, the Theatre Owners Chamber of Commerce in New York, headed by Charles L. O'Reilly, passing resolutions urging the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, through the president of that organization, Will H. Hays, to provide such cue sheets on all pictures.

Warner Bros. Renew William Koenig Contract

William Koenig has been re-signed to a long term contract as studio manager of the West Coast plant of Warner Bros. where he has served in the same capacity for the past year. During that period of studio management he supervised the construction of sets during the making of the Warner specials, "Don Juan," "Manon Lescaut," and "The Better Ole."

Koenig forsook the theatrical field to enter that of the motion picture. His first venture in this field was as business manager of "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" unit under production with Universal. He held the position of general manager in charge of production at the studio for three years.

Barbara Kent Gets Part in "Flesh and the Devil"

Clarence Brown awarded the role of Hertha, in "The Flesh and the Devil," to Barbara Kent after he had witnessed her performance in a two-reel Western at the Hollywood Theatre. Miss Kent was working in a Hollywood department store about a year ago when she won a newspaper beauty contest and became "Miss Hollywood." She accepted a contract from Universal, from whom she was borrowed for Brown's picture, which stars John Gilbert with Greta Garbo and Lars Hanson in featured parts.

Edward Connelly Renews His M.-G.-M. Contract

Edward Connelly, the first player placed under contract when the old Metro Company was organized a dozen years ago, has just signed a new long-term contract with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. His latest role is in support of Ramon Novarro in the latter's starring film, "The Great Galeoto."

Robert Z. Leonard Signs New M.-G.-M. Contract

Director Robert Z. Leonard has signed a new exclusive contract with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer under which he will produce four features following "The Grey Hat" which he will direct in the near future.

"Marriage Clause" Shown at Forum, Los Angeles

ALARGE group of stars, directors and film executives attended the premiere performance of "The Marriage Clause," which was held at the Forum Theatre, Los Angeles, last week. This Universal production, directed by Lois Weber, with a cast headed by Billie Dove, Francis X. Bushman, Warner Oland and Grace Darmond, was acclaimed by all those present.

It is an adaptation of Dana Burnett's "Saturday Evening Post" story "Technic," which tells of the rise of an actress to starring roles and her subsequent trouble when she finds she can't marry her director, due to a clause in her contract.

Charles Rosher to Be Murnau's Cameraman

CHARLES ROSHER, cameraman for Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks, who embarked for Europe immediately after "Sparrows" was made, will be brought back to America to photograph "The Song of Two Humans," formerly called "A Trip to Tilsit," the first and only film to be made in America by F. W. Murnau.

Rosher sailed from London on August 23rd, and is expected in Hollywood on September 7th. Others on Murnau's staff will be Herman Ring, his assistant director, and Roger Gliese, technical expert and art director.

Charles Rogers Enroute for Hollywood for "Wings"

Charles Rogers, Paramount Pictures School graduate, left New York immediately upon completing his part in "So's Your Old Man," and is now on his way to Hollywood to play a leading role in "Wings." He will stop over in Indianapolis to appear at Zaring's Theatre in that city and will also visit his home in Olathe, Kans.

"Wings" will mark the fourth appearance in pictures of Rogers, his first two films being "Fascinating Youth" and "More Pay, Less Work."

Pathe Managers for Des Moines and Minneapolis

Harry Scott, general sales manager of Pathe Exchanges, Inc., announced this week the appointments of W. R. Liebman, formerly branch manager at Des Moines, to the position of manager of the Minneapolis office, and H. A. Kaufmann of the Pathe home office, to replace Liebman as manager of the Des Moines branch. Both assignments became effective on August 16th.

Hughes to Play Opposite Mae Murray in "Valencia"

Lloyd Hughes was the leading man finally chosen for the role of the young sailor who falls in love with the Spanish dancer (Mae Murray) in "Valencia," the screen story by Alice D. G. Miller, based on the song hit of the same name. This film will be the first to be directed by Dimitri Buchowetzki under his new contract with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Roy D'Arcy has the role of the heavy.

Jimmie Finlayson Promoted to Stardom by Hal Roach

For several years a supporting player in Mack Sennett and Hal Roach comedies, Jimmie Finlayson has been raised to the status of a star by the latter producer. His first starring vehicle, "Should Husbands Pay?" will be released by Pathe on September 5th. In it he is assisted by Vivien Oakland, Tyler Brooks, Anders Randolph, Martha Sleeper, Charlotte Mineau and Anita Garvin. Stan Laurel directed.

Scott Stresses Cooperation

Pathe Sales Manager Emphasizes Importance of Advertising Short Reels

HARRY SCOTT, general sales manager of Pathe Exchanges, Inc., stresses the importance of co-operation between exhibitor and distributor in the selling of short subject attractions to the public in a statement issued this week. Scott says the exhibitor must advertise and exploit the comedies, scenies, etc., in the same manner in which he sells the feature, in order to secure an adequate return on his rental price. "The longer he delays, the longer he is withholding from himself the greatly increased revenues that are his by right," declares Scott.

Despite the fact of vastly superior quality in the two-reel comedies and short subjects being released at present, the exhibitor attitude of playing up the feature alone in his advertising still continues, states the Pathe sales manager. "Theatre men as a whole still look upon two-reel comedies and short subjects as 'fillers,'" says the statement.

In the case of his company elaborate exploitation and advertising campaigns are laid out, art posters are prepared by high salaried artists, and a full line of advertising accessories are the accompaniment of each of the Mack Sennett and Hal Roach series of comedies. It is up to the exhibitor to use these means if he wishes to cash in on this type of product, says Scott.

Scott claims that, while the women are interested more in the feature length productions, the men would rather see a more diversified bill and how, he asks, is the man to know what makes up the bill if the exhibitor does not list the numbers surrounding the feature in his advertising and lobby displays.

"To inform all such that the bill contains, in addition to the feature, a comedy, a news reel and an interesting collection of short subjects of wide appeal is the duty of the exhibitor; it is his duty to himself, his duty to his patrons and prospective patrons and his duty to the industry for whose advancement we are all striving," states Scott.

"Stark Love" New Famous Film

Story of Life Among Southern Mountaineers is "Different," is Report

ALTHOUGH production has been under way for four months announcement has just been made by Paramount of the filming of a story enacted by the mountaineers of the South which at present bears the title of "Stark Love." Secrecy has been necessary, say the Famous officials, because of fear of interference on the part of the inhabitants of the mountains. The picture was filmed in the Southern Appalachian range in North Carolina principally.

Karl Brown, cameraman for James Cruze during the filming of "The Covered Wagon," conceived the idea for the story while working on the Cruze production, when he found references to the Colonists and their descendants, who are living in the mountains under the same conditions that obtained two centuries ago. These people live very primitively in hand-hewn cabins, weave their own cloth and use the simplest tools, which they make.

After entering the mountain wilderness, the first problem confronting Brown was to find persons willing to appear before the camera. A sixteen-year-old mountain girl, Helen Mundy, was finally chosen for the principal feminine role, and a young man, Forrest James, for the male lead.

In the story as unfolded in the picture there are no feuds, no revenue officers, no handsome stranger from the city. It is a story based on conflict between father and son for the love of a girl.

Most of the picture was made in the mountains of North Carolina at a point 130 miles from Asheville. Automobiles could go as far as Robbinsville, N.C., which was 12 miles from a railroad. Horses and mules were used to go another 14 miles in the mountains. In this work the mountaineers refused to lend assistance, and the laborers were guarded by two deputy sheriffs to protect them in case of a hostile demonstration.

Brown eventually won the friendship of the natives through medical aid necessitated by a drought which caused illness among those of the unit and among the mountaineers.

New Device in Warner House

Equipment Being Installed Enables Blind to "See" and Deaf to Hear

WARNER BROTHERS will introduce another innovation in the Warner Theatre, New York City, shortly, when the installation of apparatus on fifty seats in the house is completed. Twenty-five of the seats will have a mechanical device attached which will enable deaf persons to hear clearly—that is, if one has the slightest vestige of hearing left. The other twenty-five seats, reserved for the blind, will also have a mechanical contrivance on the back of the chair. The apparatus used in both cases is a Western Electric Company invention.

On the backs of the seats in front of those allotted to the deaf will be telephonic head pieces. There will also be a dial similar to the one used on radio instruments. The deaf person attending a presentation of Vitaphone and John Barrymore in "Don Juan" will, when seated, adjust the head pieces and using his individual dial "tune in" until he gets the music to the volume best suited to him.

The Western Electric Company engineers declare that the apparatus has been so perfected that if one had only a vestige of hearing left, or is not absolutely stone deaf he will be made to hear as clearly as though he had his complete faculty of hearing.

There are also to be telephonic head pieces for the occupants of the seats for the blind, the wires being connected with a microphone and a monitor back on the stage. A speaker will be employed and as the picture progresses in its plot this speaker will describe the actors, the scenes, the costumes and the action fully and clearly. All this will be done without disturbing anyone. As those who are blind and not deaf will get the full values of the music, the apparatus perfected for them will enable the mental visualization of the play in progress.

Sam Warner said he expected the equipment of phones and dials to be installed in the Warner Theatre by next week and the whole work completed for the deaf and blind within a fortnight.

Pittsburgh Scene of "U" Meet

Sales Executives Form Seven Film Centers
Plan Campaign on Universal Specials

SEVEN exchange managers, exploitation men and other sales officials of the Universal Pictures Corporation, met in Pittsburgh last week at the Universal exchange in that city for the first Universal sales conference of the season. Plans were laid for the launching of the company's product for the coming season. Included among the production set for early release are "Michael Strogoff," "Les Misérables" and the "Collegians," or the "Junior Jewels," and "Take It From Me."

The convention was held under the supervision of Lou B. Metzger, general sales manager, and Earl Kramer, sales director for the Eastern division. Both were from the Universal home office.

This convention is the first of a series to be held at various points in the United States and Canada. Included among the exchange managers assembled in Pittsburgh were: H. M. Herbel, of the Pittsburgh exchange; Dave Miller, Buffalo; M. Van Praag, Washington; L. Devany, Cleveland; R. E. Moon, Detroit; William Esch, Indianapolis, and Fred Strief, Cincinnati.

Interest in the convention centered around Universal's plans for the Universal Film de France production "Michael Strogoff." It was decided to place this picture on the market about September 25th. "The Collegians" will also be offered at the same time, it was made known after the Pittsburgh conference.

Frances Marion Preparing Script for "The Wind"

Frances Marion, who scenarized "The Scarlet Letter" for the screen, is working on Dorothy Scarborough's novel, "The Wind," in which Lillian Gish will star under Clarence Brown's direction.

Garyn Assistant Sales Manager Nat. Screen

THE two executives of National Screen Service, J. Pollack, president and Herman Robbins, vice-president and general manager, have decided to fill the post of assistant to Robbins with W. P. Garyn, better known among his friends as "Pat" Garyn.

Garyn has been in almost every phase of the amusement business, circus, legitimate drama, vaudeville and motion picture theatres and distribution. For the past year he has spent his time on the operation of several theatrical enterprises in New Jersey. At various times he has filled executive positions with the B. F. Keith organization, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and Fox Films. He started with the last named company as assistant manager of the St. Louis office; from there he was transferred to New York and placed in charge of sales promotion. Garyn eventually became head of the contracting department, assistant to Winfield R. Sheehan and personal aid to James R. Grainger.

Universal Buys Earl Derr Bigger's "Chinese Parrot"

"The Chinese Parrot," the latest Earl Derr Bigger's novel, which ran recently as a serial in the Saturday Evening Post, has been purchased by Universal as an all-star production for the 1926-27 season. "The Chinese Parrot" is being brought out in book form by the Bobbs Merrill Company. It will reach the public about September 1st.

Corinne Griffith Begins "The Lady in Ermine"

On August 23rd shooting began on "The Lady in Ermine," a screen adaptation of the musical hit in which Wilda Bennett was starred and which features Corinne Griffith, assisted by Einar Hanson, who played opposite her in "Into Her Kingdom," her latest First National release. Francis X. Bushman and Ward Crane have supporting roles in "The Lady in Ermine."

The east of Paramount's screen story of naval life, "We're in the Navy Now," besides featuring Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton, will have in supporting roles Chester Conklin, Max Asher, Betty Jewel, Tom Kennedy, Donald Keith and Joseph M. Girard. Edward Sutherland is directing from an original story by Monty Brice.

Additions to "God Gave Me Twenty Cents" Cast

The east of Herbert Brenon's next production for Paramount, "God Gave Me Twenty Cents," has been increased by the addition of Jack Mulhall and William Collier, Jr. Others in the list of players are Lya de Putti and Lois Moran. Production got under way on August 26th at the Long Island studio of Paramount.

First "Carrie of the Chorus" Film Ready

THE first of Max Fleischer's new "Carrie of the Chorus" series of comedies for Red Seal release, namely "Morning Judge," is now ready for release and on time with the schedule date, which calls for September 1st. At the present time nine of the series have been completed and the tenth and succeeding issues are expected to be put into work within two weeks' time. In "Morning Judge" Peggy Siaw has the lead, supported by Flora Finch, Joe Burke and others. Dave Fleischer directed the series, with Bradley Barker assisting.

Chadwick Inaugurates New Exhibitor Service

A new exploitation service that is co-operative for exhibitors has been instituted and developed by Charles Reed Jones, advertising and publicity director of Chadwick Pictures Corporation, with the idea of giving exhibitors extra service.

When a new exploitation stunt or any variation of those outlined in the Chadwick press books is successfully put over by an exhibitor who is playing a Chadwick picture, the company's exchange in that part of the country reports the full details of the campaign to the home office, where they are analyzed by an exploitation staff and developed so as to provide the greatest effectiveness for other theatres playing Chadwick films. The ideas are also passed on to Chadwick exchanges for use in their localities.

Edith Roberts - Harlan Tucker in "Shameful Behavior"

J. G. Bachmann, producer of Preferred product, has accumulated the players for the Preferred picture, "Shameful Behavior," from the story by Mrs. Belloc Lowndes. Camera work has started at the Fine Arts studio under Albert J. Kelly's direction. The cast is headed by Edith Roberts and Harlan Tucker. Others include Richard Tucker, Martha Mattox, Grace Carlyle, Hayes Robertson and Louise Carver. Miss Roberts has just finished work in "There You Are" for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Harlan Tucker appeared in the stage productions of "So This Is London" and "The Cat and the Canary."

First Associated Confession Nearing Completion

With the completion of a prologue which goes into production this week, "Confessions of a Bride," the first of the Associated Exhibitors series of confession stories, will have been completed. An all-star cast which will be seen in the production includes Mildred Harris, who takes the part of the bride, Victor Varconi, David Butler and Alee B. Francis. Harry Revier is directing. Filming will start at once on the second of the series, "Confessions of a Bachelor," as soon as work on the first has been concluded. Casting will begin in the next few days.

Comedies and Varieties Fox September Shorts

COMPRISING the Fox Films output of short subjects for the month of September, "The Complete Life," an O'Henry comedy, featuring Ethel Sykes and Frank Butler, is due on September 5, to be accompanied by "The Steeplechase," with Lige Conley and Gladys McConnell; "Non-Stop Bride," with Reata Hoyt and Gene Cameron will arrive on September 19th; "Easy Payments," a "Helen and Warren," comes on September 12th with Kathryn Perry and Allan Forrest featured and Forrest making his debut as "Warren." The varieties are "Riches of the Earth" and "Around the World in Ten Minutes," scheduled for the 1st and 5th of September, respectively.

Fox Signs Belle Bennett for "Mother Machree"

THE title role in the Fox Films version of "The Story of Mother Machree" will be enacted by Belle Bennett, recently signed by the company for that characterization.

Belle Bennett

The actress will visualize the character of Ellen McHugh, the mother in Ireland, of Rida Johnson Young's book. The production has been placed in the hands of John Ford, who is thought to be decidedly fitted for the production because of his Celtic ancestry.

"Captain Salvation" Soon to Go Into Production

Production will soon be launched on "Captain Salvation," at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio by George Hill, who has been assigned the job of directing the story, which is the work of Frederick William Wallace. As a great deal of the action takes place in the South Sea Islands, the director and several leading players will sail for the South Seas to film the scenes. "Captain Salvation" is a Cosmopolitan production which will be produced under the personal supervision of Hunt Stromberg.

Ken Maynard Starts Work on Third F. N. Western

Albert Rogell, directing Ken Maynard's third Western for First National release, "The Flame of the Border," started shooting on the picture immediately upon the star's arrival at Deadwood, S.D., where the C. R. Rogers-Maynard production will be made. The picture will show Deadwood and other towns of the Black Hills section when in their pioneering days.

"The Unknown Cavalier," Maynard's second Western for First National, is now in readiness for its New York preview, the prints having arrived from the Coast.

Younger to Do "The Night School" for M-G-M

An original story and script, "The Night School," will be written for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer by A. P. Younger, who adapted and wrote "Brown of Harvard." The scenarist will begin work on the story as soon as he finishes the adaptation and script of "The Taxi Dancer." Jack Conway will assume the directorship of "The Night School" upon the completion of his present assignment, "The Understanding Heart."

"Cruise of the Jasper B" Embarks on Production

Rod La Roque's next starring picture, "The Cruise of the Jasper B," was put into production during the last few days with James W. Horne acting in the capacity of megaphone impresario and Mildred Harris, fresh from her vaudeville tour, as leading woman. Bertram Millhauser holds the position of supervisor.

John Boles Becomes Gloria Swanson's Leading Man

Gloria Swanson, in selecting the leading man for her forthcoming United Artists production, "Eyes of Youth," decided upon John Boles, Broadway stage actor, as qualified for the role. Boles, who has the leading role in "Kitty's Kisses," a musical comedy, was given a screen test on August 13th after the actress and Albert Parker, her director, had witnessed several performances of the stage production. Miss Swanson declared that "bringing new talent to the screen will be one of my aims as an independent producer."

Boles, a graduate of the University of Texas, originally intended to make the study of medicine his life's pursuit, but the recent war changed his plans. He studied singing under the tutelage of Oscar Seagle and Jean de Reszke. He began his stage career three years ago in "Little Jesse James" and "Mercenary Mary," appearing last fall opposite Geraldine Farrar in "The Love Spell."

Patsy Ruth Miller Loaned to Inspiration

The Warner Bros. have loaned Patsy Ruth Miller to Inspiration Pictures for one picture in which she will appear opposite Richard Barthelmess. Miss Miller was originally scheduled to start work last week on "What Happened to Father," but she was stricken with a nervous breakdown about two weeks ago thus causing postponement of production on the picture until later in the season.

Ralph Lewis Signed by "U" for "Held by the Law"

Universal has signed Ralph Lewis for a featured role in Bayard Veiller's crook melodrama, "Held by the Law," which goes into production next week with Edward Laemmle directing. Fred Kelsey and E. J. Ratcliffe are also in the cast.

Mary Alden Featured Player in "New York"

One of the featured roles in "New York" will be played by Mary Alden. Ricardo Cortez is now on his way from Hollywood to enact the principal role in the picture. Director Luther Reed will soon start production at the Paramount Long Island studio.

"The Poor Nut" for First National

A CONTRACT has been signed by Richard A. Rowland and Jess Smith for the production of "The Poor Nut," stage success, for First National release. This play, by J. C. and Elliott Nugent, has been much sought after by producers. It ran ten months on Broadway.

Lloyd Hughes and Jack Mulhall are being considered for the chief role, but the choice has not yet been made. Complete production details will be announced later. The picture will be made by Jess Smith Productions, Inc.

Studio Briefs

In "My Wife's Honor," Lou Tellegen's first directorial effort for Fox Films, the principal roles will be in the hands of Dolores Del Rio and Ben Baird.

The important characterizations in "The City" will be portrayed by Janet Gaynor, Walter McGrail, May Allison and Robert Frazier. R. William Neill will direct this production for Fox Films.

Tom Mix has begun work on his next picture for Fox Films, "The Canyon of Light," a story by Kenneth Perkins, to be directed by Ben Stoloff. Dorothy Dwan plays opposite Mix and prominent in the cast are Ralph Sipperly, William Walling and Barry Norton.

The John Golden comedy mystery play, "Going Crooked," has gone into production at the Fox Films studio with George Melford directing. Oscar Shaw, leading man and comedian of Broadway plays, has the leading role opposite Bessie Love. Edwin Kennedy is another player in the cast.

"Shameful Behavior?," an adaptation by George Scarborough of the English story by Mrs. Belloe Lowndes, was put into production this week on the coast under the supervision of J. G. Bachmann. Albert J. Kelly, having completed the latest Preferred release, "Dancing Days," will direct.

The cast thus far selected for Bill Cody's second Associated Exhibitors release, as yet untitled, is rapidly nearing completion. Supporting players are Joan Meredith, Paul Panzer and Billy Franey. Director William J. Craft is now in the midst of production work.

Al Rickett's production of "The Charleston Kid," which Alfred Santell is directing in New York, is rapidly nearing the finishing stage and it is expected that the final scenes will be shot this week. The picture has Dorothy Mackaill and Jack Mulhall in the leads and Louise Brooks and William Collier, Jr., the supporting principals. Many of the scenes of the story, which was taken from the late Gerald Beaumont's tale "Even Stephen," is laid around New York's Coney Island.

Ray Rickett's next production for First National, "Not Herbert," is scheduled to start inside of two weeks at First National's New York studio. Rickett as yet has not decided upon the two feminine principals who will appear with Ben Lyon, the featured player. Howard Higgin will direct.

William Wellman and Lucien Hubbard, director and producer respectively of "Wings" for Paramount, have left Hollywood for San Antonio, Texas, where preparations are now under way for the battle sequence, St. Mihiel, wherein 8,000 soldiers and 300 airmen will participate. This battle sequence of "Wings," the John Monk Saunders story of the air force in the World War, forms one of the most important parts in the production which will be put into work shortly as a Paramount roadshow. Players who will appear in "Wings" are Clara Bow, Charles Rodgers and El Brendel.

James Cruze to Direct Ray Griffith's Next

WHEN Raymond Griffith starts work on his next feature comedy for Paramount he will have the benefit of direction from James Cruze, director of many feature comedies as well as the larger productions with which his name is generally associated. This combination of Griffith and Cruze, it is expected, will result in a sure-fire comedy hit. The two were brought together at their own request. Work on the picture is slated to begin within the next ten days. At the present time Walter Woods, who scenarized "Old Ironsides," is working on the screen play which is of the romantic comedy type. Cruze has directed in recent years "Merton of the Movies," "Ruggles of Red Gap," "The Fighting Coward" and "One Glorious Day." He was also responsible in a great measure for the rapid ascent of the late Wallace Reid in successful comedy dramas.

An old-timer of the screen, Paul Panzer, has a prominent part in Columbia's "Obey the Law," which Al Rayboeh is directing.

Mlle. Elise Collineau, formerly associated with the Maison Arthur, an exclusive modiste shop located on Dover Street, London, has been placed in charge of the costume department of Metropolitan Productions. For a number of years she was connected with Paquin of Paris and other well-known establishments. She is not unknown in Hollywood as she had occasion to fit many actresses while on their trips abroad.

In the near future the story by Ed Sedgwick of the great American game of baseball "Slide, Kelly, Slide," will be put into work with Ed Sedgwick directing under the supervision of Bernie Hyman. William Haines has the leading role.

Harry Myers has been added to the cast of "Exit Smiling," which includes besides the principals, Beatrice Lillie and Jack Pickford, Doris Lloyd, Louis Morrison, Franklyn Pangborn, D'Arcy Corrigan, William Gillespie, Dorothea Wolbert, Tenen Holtz and others.

Richard Rosson, an assistant director for Paramount, who recently finished his first directorial job, "Fine Manners," starring Gloria Swanson, has been signed to a long-term contract as director. He is now handling football scenes with the aid of Feilding H. Yost for Richard Dix's forthcoming starring vehicle, "The Quarterback."

A contract to write original stories and adaptations for Paramount was signed the other day by Gladys Unger, playwright whose "Help Wanted—Female" is to open in New York October 1st. Her first work under the contract will be an original for Pola Negri to be made following completion of "Hotel Imperial."

"The Little Journey" has gone into production under the direction of Robert Z. Leonard, who replaces Hobart Henley, originally scheduled to direct the picture. Leonard had expected to start "The Grey Hat," an adaptation of a French farce featuring Lew Cody and Joan Crawford, but will hold over the latter production until he has completed his present assignment.

During the first three days of work on Sandow's second Associated Exhibitors offering, "Call of the Wilderness," the comedy sequences for the film were handled by Hoe Rock, comedy producer and director. Rock will be connected with the filming of the entire series of six pictures Sandow is making for Associated.

Col. Tim McCoy last week completed arrangements with Indian agents to permit Indians to appear in his first Western for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, tentatively titled "Rider of the Plains." Chief Yolache, Indian tenor of the vaudeville and concert stage, will play an important part in the picture. Pauline Stark appears opposite McCoy and Karl Dane is in the cast.

Arlette Marchal, the French actress who came to America after appearing with Gloria Swanson in "Madame Sans Gene," has signed a new long-term contract with Paramount.

Another Gotham picture, "Money to Burn," has been put into production with Walter Lang directing and Dorothy Devore and Malcolm MacGregor portraying the leads. Other players in the cast include Eric Mayne, George Chesebro, Nina Romaine, Orfa Casanova, Jules Cowles, John Prince and the monkey Josephine. Renand Hoffman personally supervises production.

Dorothy Hughes has been added to the Paramount stock company. Her first work under the new contract will be a supporting role in "The Quarterback," Richard Dix's next film. Miss Hughes recently finished work in D. W. Griffith's, "The Sorrows of Satan."

Margaret Morris, Jack Holt's leading lady in Paramount's "Born to the West," again plays a role opposite Holt in the screen version of Zane Grey's story to be made by Paramount, "The Man of the Forest."

The direction of Edmund Goulding's story, "Frisco Sal," has been assigned to Christy Cabanne, who will start work on the new piece as soon as he completes "Altars of Desire." The cast of "Frisco Sal" will be announced shortly.

Under the direction of Clarence Brown, "Flesh and the Devil" was put into production last week at the Culver City studios. It is Brown's first picture under his new contract with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Bill Cody has begun production work on "The Arizona Wildcat" and Buddy Roosevelt follows suit in a few days on "The Ramblin' Galoot."

Albert J. Kelly, director of the Preferred picture, "Dancing Days," has been signed by J. G. Baelmann, producer of Preferred pictures, to direct two additional features, the first of which will be "Shameful Behavior."

A regular Western town, now in the course of production on the Associated lot in Los Angeles, will be the background of the Lester F. Scott, Jr., Western, featuring Buddy Roosevelt, Wally Wales and Buffalo Bill, Jr. The houses will be constructed complete and for permanent use. Changes will be made during the filming of the different Western to avoid a monotony of background.

A featured role, that of Happy Joe in "The Rough Riders," has been awarded George Baneroff, the villain of "The Pony Express" and more recently a featured player in "Old Ironsides." Victor Fleming is directing "The Rough Riders."

El Brendel, the Swedish vaudeville actor who made his screen debut in Florence Vidor's first starring vehicle for Paramount, "You Never Know Woman," has been chosen for a comedy characterization in "Wings," the screen's story of the part played by the airplane in the World War, which William Wellman is to direct for Paramount.

The heavy in "My Wife's Honor," Lou Tellegen's initial directorial effort for Fox Films, will be played by Bardson Bard, known in vaudeville and musical comedy circles as Ben Bard. He recently rendered a characterization of a villain in "Sandy."

Tom Mix, having finished shooting scenes for his "The Great K. & A. Robbery," in the Royal Gorge and in the Yellowstone National Park, has returned to the Fox Films studio to film interiors. While at Yellow-

Churchmen Witness Start of "King of Kings"

CHURCHMEN, representing many of the religious creeds of the world, saw Cecil B. De Mille begin actual production Tuesday of this week on "The King of Kings," the story of Christ which the producer confidently expects will be his greatest production.

The first shots were taken at the huge new stage in the De Mille studios in Culver City, Cal. Guests who attended the launching of the screen epic included the following:

Bishop W. B. Stevens, of the Protestant Episcopal Church; Rabbi Magnin; Rev. Father O'Malley, of St. Vincent's Roman Catholic Cathedral; Rev. Dr. B. S. Hudson, of the Temple Baptist Church; Major J. J. Bell, of the Salvation Army; Judge Edmonds, of the Christian Science Church; J. Osno, of the Buddhist faith; J. B. Eobar, of the Mohammedan.

Other guests were A. F. Bent, president of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce; Robert Odell, president of the Board of Education; Mrs. J. B. Lorbeer, president of the local organization of the Federation of Women's Clubs; Rufus von Kleinschmidt, president of the University of Southern California.

Material of U. A. Press Books Copyrighted

ALL ideas—photos, cuts, lobby displays, heralds, mats and all accessory material found in the press books of United Artists Corporation and created by the advertising and publicity departments of that company are protected by copyrights.

The only exhibitors who are duly licensed to make use of the material found in the "Exhibitors' Campaign Book" for a special production of United Artists, are those exhibitors who have sales contracts to exhibit that particular production. Others using the material and not duly licensed to show the picture are guilty of infringement of the copyright law. A printed announcement on the back of the press book warns against the illicit use of the advertising material and ideas contained in the book.

stone Park he made sequences which will be used in "The Canyon of Light," another of his Westerns which is due for release soon.

The leading male role of Barry McGill in "Whispering Wires," the Fox Films screen version of the stage play of the same name, will be portrayed by Edmund Burns.

The latest addition to the cast of "Gaby," a contemplated Fox Films picturization of the life of Gaby Deslys, dancer of the courts of Europe, is William Powell, whose contribution will be that of a heavy.

Jerry Miley, son of a California oil magnate, has been given a role in "The Understanding Heart," Peter B. Kyne's story which Jaek Conway is directing as a Cosmopolitan production for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Miley, a former member of the Rainbow division, has played in "The Dancers" for Fox, "The American Senator," "Wild Oats Lane" and others. Appearing with him in "The Understanding Heart" are Carmel Myers, Joan Crawford, Francis X. Bushman, Jr., Rockliffe Fellows, Richard Carle and Harvey Clark.

Edward Sedgwick, director of "Tin Hats" for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, has been given a new directorial contract by that company in "Slide, Kelly, Slide," an original story by himself and A. P. Younger with the screen version by the latter. William Haines will head an all-star cast.

Columbia's screen play, "Sweet Rosie O'Grady," based on the old ballad by Maude Nugent, is now in the cutting room, where the director of the film, Frank R. Strayer, is supervising the cutting and editing with the assistance of Viola Lawrence, in charge of cutting activities at the studio.

An exclusive Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer contract was offered to and accepted by Louise Lorraine with the result that she will appear in support of Beatrice Lillie in "Exit Smiling," which Sam Taylor is directing. Miss Lorraine is what might be termed a veteran, having had much experience in comedies and in Westerns of a few years back.

Director Phil Rosen has gone to the F. B. O. lot in Hollywood and begun work on "Rose of the Tenements," Shirley Mason's starring Gold Bond vehicle which was taken from John Morosco's story, "The Stumbling Herd."

Gotham's fifth release through Lamas Film Corporation for the present season, "Money to Burn," an adaptation by James Bell Smith of the novel by Reginald Wright Kaufman of the same name, is now in production under the direction of Walter Lang. The leading roles are in the hands of Malcolm MacGregor and Dorothy Devore. Supporting players include Eric Mayne, George Chesebro and Jules Cowles. Ray June is in charge of technical details.

Plan to Make Part Sandow Film in Yukon

Chesterfield Pictures, Inc., producers of the Sandow series of pictures for Associated Exhibitors release, plan to send a unit up to the Yukon country of Alaska to film the snow sequences in Sandow's next picture, "Fangs of Alaska." Joe Rock will supervise production. The cast and director will be announced within a few days. Production will get under way about the first week in September. The second Sandow offering for Associated Exhibitors, "The Call of the Wilderness," is rapidly nearing its final stages.

Farber Manager of Advance Trailer Service Corp.

The position of manager of the Advance Trailer Service Corporation, with new offices at 729 Seventh Avenue, New York City, has been given Sam Farber, former manager of the Metro exchange in New Haven and representative for Vitagraph, Universal and Fox Films.

Excello in St. Louis Suffers $1,000 Fire Damage

Fire of undetermined origin did approximately $1,000 damage to the Excello Theatre, 2506 Salisbury Street, St. Louis, Mo. The house is owned by Joseph Mogler. There was no show in progress when the fire was discovered.

6XBR Due to Arrive in N. Y. Sept. 12th

THE Warner Brothers' portable radio broadcasting station, 6XBR, or the "Betty Warner," is due to arrive in New York for an elaborate demonstration on September 12th, according to a revised schedule prepared by Frank Cassidy, in charge of the world tour of the station. It is likely that New York would have been accorded an earlier date, but the popularity of the radio as a theatre attraction necessitated fulfilling extra requests for the appearance of the station. The revised schedule, which touches only the high spots for the present, includes the following dates: August 28th, Indianapolis; August 31st, Detroit; September 2nd, Cleveland; September 4th, Pittsburgh; September 9th, Baltimore; September 10th, Philadelphia; September 12th, New York.

The station has just completed a tour through Illinois.

Tie-ups Make Complete "Volga Boatman" Campaign

MANAGER E. R. ROGERS, of the Tivoli Theatre, Chattanooga, Tenn., made merchant tie-ups the basis of his entire campaign in that city for Producers Distributing Corporation's "The Volga Boatman." Through these co-operative arrangements the Tivoli showing was given a campaign of wide coverage. Window displays, arranged on an especially elaborate scale, and the use of the title of the picture in newspaper displays used by these merchants exploited the Tivoli presentation. Radio also entered the campaign when the radio company tied-in with the drive made announcements concerning the picture over the air through a local station.

As shown in the photos above the window displays were exceptionally attractive. Rogers made use of the national tie-ups effected by Producers Distributing Corporation, distributors of "The Volga Boatman." These included the Hudson automobile dealer, the Zenith radio set, and the Victor Talking Machine. In addition to these there was a tie-up with a sporting goods store featuring fishing tackle.

Offers Reward for Capture of Poster Mutilators

Manager J. P. Harrison of the Hippodrome Theatre, Waco, Texas, made the best of a mean trick that was played him when somebody mutilated date sheets on posters he had set out advertising his presentation of "Stella Dallas." Harrison offered a reward of $5 for the arrest of the guilty person or persons. The offer, published in a newspaper ad, attracted wide notice and firmly planted the correct showing dates.

Thumb Prints Are Basis of Resemblance Contest

Dayton, O., reacted most favorably to a resemblance contest conducted by the Dayton Herald in connection with the Keith's State Theatre during the presentation of "Outside the Law." Those whose thumb prints most nearly resembled Lon Chaney's were the recipients of passes to the show.

Arrows Bill "The Road to Mandalay" in Charlotte

Manager Warren Irvin of the Imperial Theatre, Charlotte, N. C., pulled off a unique exploitation stunt when "The Road to Mandalay" showed at the Imperial.

On Saturday night, signs were placed on all roads over which the people of Charlotte ride on Sundays. The signs were made in the shape of arrows and were worded, "The Road to Mandalay." The arrows always pointed in the direction of the Imperial Theatre.

This stunt was followed up by having the radio announcer tell the listeners-in Monday night that all those bringing in one of these signs to the theatre would be given a free ticket to see "The Road to Mandalay."

Dwarf in Go-cart is Crier for "Oh, What a Nurse"

Manager George A. Smith secured the services of a dwarf to exploit "Oh, What a Nurse" when it played at the Noble Theatre, Anniston, Ala.

With the dwarf in a baby carriage dolled up in baby clothes, and another person pushing the carriage, the pair created quite some excitement when they paraded down the street.

The baby would cry and the nurse would give the baby a slap. The baby then stood up in the carriage and yelled out, "Oh, What a Nurse." Following this episode, the nurse unrolled a banner reading, "See Syd Chaplin at the Noble Theatre in "Oh, What a Nurse."

Hat Designers Compete for "Kiki" Drawing Prize

In playing "Kiki," at the Stillman Theatre, Cleveland, Ohio, the management conducted a hat contest in connection with the Cleveland Press. The newspaper carried a drawing of a girl's head leaving the hat to be filled in by the reader. Under the drawing was the invitation to design a hat to cost not more than $50 and submit it to the judge.

The first prize was a hat modelled after the winning design or $50 in cash.

HERALDING THE MOST SIGNIFICANT DEVELOPMENT IN THE HISTORY OF MOTION PICTURES

E. F. ALBEE - PRESIDENT
KEITH - ALBEE
CIRCUIT

MARCUS HEIMAN
PRESIDENT ORPHEUM
CIRCUIT

THE association of E. F. Albee, the originator of modern vaudeville and the builder of "perfect theatres"; Cecil B. DeMille, the master-craftsman of motion pictures and star-maker of a brilliant galaxy of box-office favorites; and such outstanding showmen as Marcus Heiman, Al Christie, P. F. Proctor, B. S. Moss, John J. Murdock, Sylvester Z. Poli, Wilmer & Vincent, Harry Davis, M. Shea, Fred Schamberger, C. Hoblitzel and other associates writes an epochal page in motion picture history.

To this super-showmanship alliance Keith-Albee-Orpheum brings a chain of perfectly equipped theatres that reaches from Maine to Oregon, from Hudson Bay to the Mexican border. Producers Distributing Corporation contributes a box-office product rich in production, star and entertainment values, and of proved box-office value.

The New York Hippodrome, internationally famous as the greatest show house on the American continent, is the metropolitan headquarters for the exploitation of DeMille-Metropolitan feature films in conjunction with a program of super-vaudeville.

Every Broadway—every Main Street throughout the country—will be illuminated by DeMille-Metropolitan productions through the medium of the outstanding first run picture-palaces of the country.

AL CHRISTIE

Al Christie has won the title of The Comedy King of Producers by right of achievement. In the sphere of Feature Comedy, he reigns supreme.

The record-breaking sensational successes of "Charley's Aunt" and "Madam Behave", prove that as a producer of laughter-provoking features that inundate the box office with dollars and send audiences away chuckling, Al Christie is without a peer.

The first big Christie Special on P. D. C. Program for 1926-27 is "The Nervous Wreck", based on the stage play which created a furore on Broadway and on tour.

Albee-P.D.C. Merger Involves Big Group of Theatres

Details of Recent Affiliation of Vaudeville Circuits With Picture Company Discussed in Authentic Story

BY MARK LUESCHER

THE recent election of E. F. Albee, Marcus Heiman, B. S. Moss, and other representatives of the Keith-Albee-Orpheum and associated circuits to the directorate of the Cinema Corporation of America, the holding company for Producers Distributing Corporation, De Mille Pictures Corporation and Metropolitan Pictures Corporation, is the final step in the cementing of the most significant affiliation the motion picture industry has ever known.

Aside from the fact that it gives the picture producers an extensive and immediate field of distribution and gives the theatres of all the circuits a supply of first-class picture productions adequate to their needs, it is of infinite value to all exhibitors, all over the world, who play the pictures made by these companies.

Affiliation With Great Circuits

The affiliation with these great circuits means that these pictures will be shown in hundreds of cities and towns, from Hudson Bay to the Mexican border, and from Eastport, Maine, to Portland, Oregon, in the theatres controlled by these circuits. But it also means that the tremendous national publicity, advertising and exploitation given these pictures through these theatres will be reflected in increased receipts at the box-offices of all other theatres which play them. A demand for these pictures will be created which cannot fail to redound to the benefit of all others who may have booked them.

Before this affiliation the position of P. D. C. was not so strong as it should have been. It had the pictures, it had a distributing organization second to none, but it had no great chain of theatres of its own to absorb its product, as some of the other producing companies had. The Keith-Albee-Orpheum circuits were in a similar position. They had the theatres, but had no certain supply of pictures to exhibit in them. The heads of these great circuits, conceded to be some of the leading showmen of the world, realized the growing demand for motion pictures and knew that the time was at hand when the question of securing them must be faced. They studied the field carefully, and the affiliation with the Cinema Corporation of America was the result. An important need on the part of each party was thereby filled.

The Cinema Corporation to-day stands in this position. It has, through this affiliation, first run houses on the Keith-Albee circuit, which includes such cities as New York, Brooklyn, Philadelphia, Washington, Baltimore, Boston, Providence, Portland, Maine, Cleveland, Detroit, Cincinnati, Buffalo, Indianapolis, Dayton, Louisville, Toronto, Montreal, Pittsburgh, Youngstown, Columbus, Newark, Atlantic City, Akron, Ottawa—in fact, every city of note east of the Mississippi River as well as in many less important cities.

Large Number of Outlets

It has, through the Orpheum circuit, outlets throughout the Western United States and Western Canada in such cities as Chicago, Los Angeles, Kansas City, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, New Orleans, San Francisco, St. Louis, Winnipeg and Vancouver, B. C.

Through other associated circuits which will also play these pictures, such as the Poli circuit, the Proctor houses, the Keith-Albee Southern circuit, it can command scores of theatres in New England, in Pennsylvania and the Middle Atlantic States, in New York State and New Jersey, all along the South Atlantic Coast and in the Southern States, in Michigan, in Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Arkansas and Louisiana.

This geographical survey touches not only the high spots, but it gives a fair idea of the range of the newly-acquired distribution of P. D. C. And there is much more to come.

$20,000,000 for Building

Shortly after the news of this great affiliation had been made public, E. F. Albee, Marcus Heiman, F. F. Proctor and B. S. Moss made known their plans to expend $20,000,000 in building new theatres during the coming year. These operations will not more than twenty additional theatres to their circuits, and these new theatres also will be added to the list which will play the pictures from P. D. C.

The great Metropolitan show place for these pictures will be the New York Hippodrome, the most famous place of amusement in the United States, which has been remodeled so that it is now an ideal picture theatre. The building plans include, in the East, theatres in Rochester, Detroit, Richmond, Flushing, White Plains, Schenectady, New Rochelle, Providence, Columbus, two in New Jersey and three in Michigan. In Greater New York the expansion plans embrace a new theatre in East 86th Street, one in the Bronx, three on Long Island, and others in various sections of Manhattan and Brooklyn not now covered by the Keith-Albee, Proctor and Moss circuits.

New Theatres Built

In the West, Marcus Heiman, as part of the fast-growing Orpheum circuit, announces the completion of a 2,500-seat theatre in Chicago, and new houses in Seattle, Springfield, Denver, Omaha, Vancouver, Toronto, Madison and Sioux City.

These will take their places with the seventeen new theatres built by these interests in the past season, which include three in Boston, one in Los Angeles, three in Chicago, and others in Youngstown, Akron, Cincinnati, Coney Island, Far Rockaway, St. Louis, Paterson, Atlanta, Louisville and New York.

There are other factors, aside from the theatre situation, which bear largely upon this affiliation and add greatly to its importance. Prior to joining issue with P. D. C., the Keith-Albee-Orpheum group was the only large institution in the amusement business in this country that was not identified with the motion picture industry in one form or another. Those with an ear to theatrical affairs had been predicting such a move for some time, and there were many conjectures as to the identity of the organization with which K. A. O. would throw its interests.

E. F. Albee, President of the Keith-Albee interests, has always had a keen liking for Cecil B. De Mille, and has always been interested in his fine screen products. At the time of the affiliation, Mr. Albee explained his position in the following statement which he issued:

"Having been interested in building up the B. F. Keith organization of vaudeville, I have always been anxious to see that picture patrons receive the same consideration as far as that product is concerned. In all my years of experience in developing the Keith name to what it now holds in vaudeville, I have never taken any step after more careful thought and study of conditions in the amusement world than the association we are now making.

Albee's Statement

"For more than two years, scores of my business associates and men at the head of our vaudeville affiliated interests have urged me to take a decisive move into the motion picture business by entering the producing and distributing field. We have exhibited motion pictures in our theatres since the earliest pictures were produced. We have not heretofore been interested in feature photoplay producing. Hundreds of theatre operators with whom we are not now interested through our vaudeville booking office have also urged me to make a motion picture affiliation or actually engage in the business of producing pictures. Having become convinced on my own investigation that the occasion was now at hand for such an affiliation, I have done so."

Predicts Growth

Mr. Albee is the protagonist of theatre builders in the United States. The most recent examples of his perfect playhouses are the recently completed theatres in Cleveland, New York City and Brooklyn. The present affiliation of P. D. C. with Mr. Albee and his associates, it is predicted, will continue to grow in importance as time goes on.

Leaders Among P. D. C. Studio Talent

THE list of artists who will write scenarios, direct productions and enact principal roles in the photoplays which Producers Distributing Corporation will release during the coming season contains the names of many personalities of distinguished accomplishment. The program of the company comprises over forty feature pictures and will involve the expenditure of more than $10,000,000. To carry out this ambitious schedule there have been signed to contracts, specialists who occupy prominent places in the cinema world of today.

A review of the names, with brief sketches of their careers, which is given here, serves to emphasize the imposing character of the artistic talent which will be called upon to carry out the work of visualizing the stories which will be brought before the cinema public by Producers Distributing Corporation during the coming season.

Rupert Julian

A DIRECTOR whose brilliant record dates back a number of years, Rupert Julian is a recognized master in the accomplishment of sweeping pictorial backgrounds, a quality which manifested itself in such memorable works as "Merry-Go-Round," "The Phantom of the Opera," "Three Faces East" and others. Julian entered pictures as a leading man with Universal after a career of 18 years on the stage. He was born in New Zealand and there started his histrionic career, which later took him to England. Among the pictures he will make this year are "The Yankee Clipper" and "Silk," both of which will be important contributions from the Cecil B. DeMille organization.

Paul Sloane

IT was in the capacity of a film editor that Paul Sloane made his entry in pictures. That was with the old Edison Company, back in 1914. Sloane, who is now directing productions for DeMille, became a director with Paramount, making "Too Many Kisses," a Richard Dix vehicle, before joining DeMille. In this association he has directed such screen successes as "The Coming of Amos," "Made for Love" and "Eve's Leaves." He has drawn the important assignment of directing Leatrice Joy in "The Clinging Vine," an adaptation of the musical comedy of that title written by Zelda Sears.

William K. Howard

WILLIAM K. HOWARD'S rise from the comparative obscurity of directing independent pictures to a place in the front ranks has been phenomenal. He flashed brilliantly with his western productions, among which was "The Thundering Herd," one of the group he made for Famous and which landed among the big money-makers of 1925. Howard is now directing for Cecil B. DeMille, the picturization of Edna Ferber's "Gigolo" being one of the important assignments he has drawn in this new association. As a director he has essayed a wide range of subjects, scoring consistently in every attempt.

Alon Hale

THE career in pictures of this director traces back to the salad days of the films. Then he was a leading man, a rank to which a broad experience on the stage advanced him. He turned his talents to directing while with Fox and immediately established himself in his new field. After making "The Sporting Lover" for First National, he was signed by DeMille. For this organization he directed "The Wedding Song" and "Braveheart." He is now making "Risky Business."

George B. Seitz

THE technic of the screen is an open book so far as George Brackett Seitz is concerned. He was a writer of fiction who early saw the possibilities of the films and made his start as a scenarist with Pathe. He wrote many serials, then he became a director, filming several of the Pearl White serials. Later he became a producer and played leading roles in pictures he produced. Seitz joined Famous last year, made "Wild Horse Mesa" and "The Vanishing American" and thereby crowned a fine career in pictures. His excellent handling of the Zane Grey story led to his engagement by DeMille to film "The Last Frontier," the Courtney Riley Cooper story.

C. Gardner Sullivan

C. GARDNER SULLIVAN is one of the honor graduates of the greatest training school for picture makers—the old Tom Ince studios, where he functioned as star scenarist during the palmiest days of that splendid organization. He did stories for Bill Hart, Charlie Ray, Dorothy Dalton, and the other luminaries of that period. He wrote the story and scenario for "Civilization," the scenario for "Duley" and his name is associated with many great screen works. He produced pictures and directed as well. Now he is a supervisor of production for DeMille. "Clinging Vine," "Gigolo" and "Bachelor Brides" are among the assignments he will carry out this season.

Bertram Millhauser

CONCENTRATED study and broad experience in the endeavor have equipped Bertram Millhauser with a thoroughgoing understanding of screen values. Millhauser is now a supervisor of production with the DeMille organization. He made his start as a scenarist with Pathe and for many years was an important factor in the organization which made the Pearl White serials. He also directed pictures for this company. He joined DeMille as a scenarist at the formation of the company and has written the script for some of the most important pictures made by this firm. He wrote the scenarios and supervised "The Wedding Song," "Three Faces East" and "Silence," among others.

Jack Cunningham

IF only for his achievement as writer of the scenario for "The Covered Wagon" Jack Cunningham is assured a place among the first flight screen writers. But other achievements of equal distinction go to his credit. Among an imposing list of scenarios he has written one finds the titles "The Ghost Breaker," "The Tiger Claw," "The Black Pirate" and others as memorable. Cunningham is general scenario editor for Metropolitan and a supervisor of productions. He will supervise production of "The Night Bride," "The Heart Thief" and "Jim the Conqueror" and others.

Will M. Ritchey

E VANSVILLE, IND., is his native town and newspaper work the first professional endeavor of Will M. Ritchey, supervisor of productions for the DeMille-Metropolitan Company. Ritchey will supervise such coming pictures as "Pals in Paradise," a Peter B. Kyne story, "The Highwayman" and "West of Broadway." He is a well-known and accomplished scenario writer, a field in which he has practised his skill in developing screen dramatics and gifts for story construction for many years and with a number of the leading companies, the old Balboa outfit, Vitagraph, Famous Players and others. "Whispering Smith" is one of the outstanding works he accomplished for the organization with which he is now connected.

H. B. Warner

THE English stage provided the training ground for H. B. Warner's first endeavors in dramatic expression and there he climbed to distinction before coming to this country to earn new laurels as an actor. He was sought by picture producers when first they turned to the stage for artists to enact roles in photoplays and Warner became an outstanding star of the screen in a short time. After a highly successful career as a screen star he returned to the stage, scoring notably, and then went back to the studio to play in "Whispering Smith" and "Silence" and he will be featured in "King of Kings," which is to be Cecil B. DeMille's next super effort.

Marie Prevost

FARCE, high comedy, emotional roles, have been handled with skill and appeal by Marie Prevost—who despite the fact that since that time she has starred in such pictures as "The Marriage Circle," "Tarnish," "Kiss Me Again" and "Up in Mabel's Room" will always be remembered as a former Sennett bathing beauty. Miss Prevost is to star in a series of important pictures from the DeMille - Metropolitan Company this coming season. Among these will be "The Night Bride" and "Man Bait."

Robert Edeson

ROBERT EDESON draws upon a broad experience in the theatre and the studio in the accomplishment of the fine characterizations he is contributing to the current productions offered by Cecil B. DeMille. He received a thorough training in dramatics on the stage and attained to a rank among the leading American stage stars. He was a matinee idol at the period of his career when he played in "Brown of Harvard" and other successes. In pictures he has essayed a wide range of roles and now occupies a position as one of the star character actors. He was prominent in "The Volga Boatman," "Whispering Smith," "Eve's Leaves" and equally important roles have been selected for him in the pictures to be made this season.

Joseph Schildkraut

THIS actor's brilliant reputation as an interpreter of romantic roles is not confined to the stage, his performances in "Orphans of the Storm," "The Road to Yesterday" and "The Song of Love" have made him a well-known and favored personality with picture fans. Schildkraut starred also in "Shipwrecked" for DeMille, who now holds a contract for his services, and he will have a featured role in "The King of Kings," the producer's next personally directed contribution to the P. D. C. schedule for 1926-27.

Vera Reynolds

THIS capable actress and screen beauty became a star under the auspices of Cecil B. DeMille, who in speaking of her some time ago said: "Vera Reynolds is a girl whom I offer as a star with very particular pride." The producer then explained that no doing of his made her a star, but that she was made one because in less than six months her fan mail multiplied in number over six times. She first played for DeMille in "Feet of Clay." Since starting his own producing organization, the director-producer has offered her in "The Million Dollar Handicap" and "Silence." This season she will be seen in "Corporal Kate," "Sunny Side Up," "Risky Business," "The Dover Road" and other productions to be made on an elaborate scale.

Jetta Goudal

JETTA GOUDAL made her first big impression in Paramount's "Open All Night" and then played starring roles in "Salome of the Tenements" and "The Spaniard" for that company. DeMille, who has signed her to a starring contract, has presented her in "Three Faces East" and the value which he places upon Miss Goudal's abilities and popularity is indicated in the announcement that she will be seen as star in "Her Man O'War," "Black Marriage," and "White Gold," three of the important forthcoming features from his studios.

Lillian Rich

LILLIAN RICH is one of the actresses under contract to DeMille who will be given every opportunity to continue her steady advancement as an artist and growth in popular favor. Miss Rich, over a period marked by many fine accomplishments as a featured player and star in pictures, has convincingly demonstrated her right to further opportunities to go on to the greatest heights as an actress and a personality. Her beauty, charm of manner and dramatic skill she has displayed in many important contributions from such companies as First National, Universal, Fox and P. D. C. and she has been cast for principal roles in many of the forthcoming DeMille works.

Harrison Ford

HARRISON FORD has maintained his place among the popular and consistent leading men over a long period of time in the pictures, a career which he prefaced with appearances on the stage, in stock companies at Baltimore and Syracuse. Ford was born in Kansas City and adopted acting as his vocation when he started out on his own in the world. His most recent work was the leading male role in "Up in Mabel's Room," in which he scored emphatically. He will be remembered for his fine performances in such pictures as "Little Old New York," "Shadows," "Smilin' Through" and "The Old Homestead."

Marguerite De La Motte

DULUTH, MINN., claims Marguerite De La Motte as a distinguished native daughter. This actress, who has contributed many fine characterizations to the screen, made her real start in pictures in "The Pagan God," in which H. B. Warner starred. She rose quickly to prominence and drew the important assignment of leading lady to Doug Fairbanks in "The Mark of Zorro." This was followed by many other assignments of like prominence, her most recent work being in "The Unknown Soldier," a DeMille picture.

John Bowers

JOH BOWERS is now under engagement to Cecil B. DeMille and he will be cast for several leading roles in forthcoming works by that producer. He left the stage to play in a Mary Pickford vehicle and since has made steady progress in the art of screen acting. His appearances recently have been in "Whispering Smith," "The Dice Woman," "Rocking Moon" and "The Danger Girl."

Rudolph Schildkraut

THE finished dramatic technic of Rudolph Schildkraut was displayed to screen patrons in "His People," in which the actor, whose fame on the European and American stages was justified in the eyes of picture-goers. The elder Schildkraut—he is the father of Joseph Schildkraut—will be featured in "Pals in Paradise," a Metropolitan picture.

Kenneth Thomson

KENNETH THOMSON is listed by Mr. DeMille, who has signed him to a long-term contract, as one of the "comers" of the approaching season. Thomson appears as leading man with Vera Reynolds in "Risky Business" and "Corporal Kate." He is to have a leading part in "The Country Doctor," which will be among the most important DeMille releases and which is to be cast with particular care, according to announcements from the producer.

Julia Faye

WELL remembered for her work in "Ten Commandments," "Feet of Clay," "The Golden Bed" and other DeMille successes, Julia Faye continues to figure importantly in the productions of the famous director-producer, as witness "The Road to Yesterday" and "The Volga Boatman," in which she triumphed with a vital and sparkling performance as "Mariusha." A principal role in "The Country Doctor" is among her assignments for next season.

Junior Coghlan

THIS extraordinarily gifted youngster won feature honors in several pictures through his remarkable naturalness before the camera. Before joining the DeMille forces he played in pictures of other leading companies. His recent works are "The Road to Yesterday," "The Yankee Clipper," "Her Man O'War" and "The Last Frontier."

Vera Steadman

PICTUREGOERS know Vera Steadman as one of the most finished comedienne through her many outstanding performances in Christie comedies and features by Christie and other producers. Miss Steadman is to have her greatest opportunity, so it is reported, in a principal role in "Meet the Prince," one of the DeMille features now in production.

Josephine Norman

JOSEPHINE NORMAN is now under contract to DeMille Pictures Corporation, a natural circumstance following the excellent showing she made in parts in "Fifth Avenue," "The Road to Yesterday," "Silence," "The Volga Boatman" and others. Miss Norman is in line for important assignments to casts in pictures from the DeMille studio this season.

Clarence Burton

A PROMINENT member of the DeMille galaxy of screen players, Clarence Burton is well known to picture patrons. He started in pictures in 1913 after a stage experience of several years. His recent works are in important roles in "The Road to Yesterday," "Red Dice," "Shipwrecked," "Her Man O'War," "The Yankee Clipper" and "The Nervous Wreck."

Walter Long

BY the sheer power of his portrayals, Walter Long overcame the handicap carried by all heavy men and won a definite place for himself in the favor of picture-goers. He flashed in "The Birth of a Nation," in "To Have and to Hold," "Blood and Sand" and a long string of others preceding his recent work in "Red Dice," "Steel Preferred," "The Road to Yesterday" and other pictures made by DeMille, who has signed him to a long-term contract.

Alan Brooks

ALAN BROOKS joined the DeMille organization in an advisory capacity during the making of "The Volga Boatman" and he is now a member of the organization from which players for principal roles are drawn. He played in "Red Dice," "Young April," and will be seen in "Pals in Paradise." Brooks was for twelve years a headliner in the major vaudeville circuits.

May Robson

IT is altogether fitting that a stage celebrity who for forty years held the spotlight of popular favor should cap such a career as May Robson's with appearances on the screen. DeMille brought Miss Robson to pictures and he will be thanked by screen devotees. Miss Robson is to be seen in "Pals in Paradise" and it is hinted she may do "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary," which she made a classic of the stage, in pictures.

Arnold Gray

ARNOLD GRAY left Toledo, O., for Hollywood to make his mark as an actor. He stormed the studio gates and they budged not a bit, so he became an automobile salesman, and then the studios sought him. Now he is a member of the DeMille company. He played in "The Flame of the Yukon," and will be seen in "West of Broadway," another P. D. C. release.

Quality Production Bulwark of Progress

Cecil B. De Mille Foresees Great Year for P.D.C. as Result of Merger with Keith-Albee-Orpheum Interests

BY EDWIN SCHALLERT

THE Producers Distributing Corporation has become an organization second to none in the motion picture business. As a result of the deal with the Keith-Albee circuit, we are assured of unlimited facilities and scope for distribution. From a company fighting for a place in the sun, we have become an institution of power and pre-eminence."

This sweeping and prophetic statement covering the present and future of the organization, for which he is spokesman, was made by Cecil B. De Mille recently in Los Angeles. It followed the announcement that the company had not only affiliated, but actually merged with the oldest and most prominent vaudeville circuits in the country.

De Mille Comments

"No more important move has been made in picture history than this consolidation," Mr. De Mille continued. "It is the most important event of its kind since Famous Players, the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Co., and Morosco-Pallog Company were brought together with Paramount as their releasing organization. The Keith-Albee circuit has entered motion pictures because its heads believe in the future of pictures. We are not simply releasing through their circuit. We are partners, not only in the distribution of pictures, but also in their production."

The far-reaching influence of the consolidation may at present only be conjectured. Its full effect will not perhaps be felt before a year, at least, or even longer. However, this much seems definitely assured—both from the statements made by Mr. De Mille and by E. F. Albee, of the Keith-Albee interests—that there will be a gradual change in the character of the programs offered at a number of vaudeville theatres throughout the country in that a new prominence will be given to the films at these theatres. At the same time a vast distribution outlet for the P. D. C. pictures is provided.

Mr. De Mille foresees an especial benefit for the independent exhibitors throughout the country.

"The Keith-Albee circuits are noted for the character of their dealings," he said. "In many of the transactions made with affiliated circuits there is not so much as a scrap of paper in the nature of a contract. An understanding has, in practically every instance, sufficed between the parties to an agreement, and everything in their organization has moved with a remarkable smoothness and provided the greatest satisfaction to all parties concerned."

More than ever, it would seem, Mr. De Mille himself will concentrate his interests upon production, now that the very adequate distribution arrangement has been effected. The companies represented under the general heading of the Producers Distributing Corporation, including, besides the De Mille productions, the Metropolitan, Christie's and others, have enjoyed an exceedingly prosperous and progressive year.

"Our activities in production have been highly successful, as the proportion of popular pictures on our program already testifies. Such pictures as 'Three Faces East,' 'Steel Preferred,' 'The Last Frontier' and 'Eve's Leaves,' and others now being released, have a big demonstrated box office value."

The same is true in a larger way, also, of Mr. De Mille's own production "The Volga Boatman," which has proven its power as a box-office attraction through the extension of engagements in the various places where it has been exhibited. It is a tremendous hit also in England.

"My own personal interests, of course have always been in building up the forces of production," Mr. De Mille continued. "That is the place where I believe that advancement is both the most essential and most effectual in increasing the prestige of pictures. Without a quality product, the motion picture industry as an industry would soon go to pieces. It is impossible to give a salesman junk to sell and expect him to sell it without an unfavorable reaction from every sector.

"That does not lessen in my mind the importance of the selling organization. It is just as vital to the welfare and progress of the industry as the quality of the pictures themselves. One branch cannot exist without the other. Each has its proper function. There should be harmony between the two, and neither should attempt to dominate the activities of the other.

Outlines System

"The practical solution, in so far as production is concerned, lies, of course, in perfecting both the system and the character of production. Giving the proper freedom to the individual seeking out native talent, and affording that talent its most effectual opportunity—these are the important features of the system, along with the bettering and improving of the material resources of the studio.

"The machine-made picture, under the crushing restraint of organization, is what spells danger. Success cannot be achieved without a proper degree of supervision, but it must be intelligent and discriminating supervision and not the sort that forces its will regardless of the individual's bent and leaning, and without the proper knowledge of the production situation, developed through studio experience.

"The character of an output is naturally of the greatest importance. Without a program that reflects both novelty and worth throughout, no concern in pictures today can expect to meet the competition with any degree of adequacy. Each picture must be individually and separately considered, and must offer not only a single attraction or two to distinguish it from other pictures, but a variety of attractions. It must have an individual quality that is interesting to the public, and that sells it.

"In our own program this season we are showing a preference for extremes of comedy and extremes of tragedy. Either a picture must be so light and entertaining that it will captivate every audience member, or it must be dramatically so powerful that theatre patrons will all be talking about it, or arguing about it when they leave the theatre. Our program necessarily contains a certain number of melodramas. These, however, have greater dramatic force and more sincerity, we believe, than the majority that have been attempted heretofore."

Praises Personnel

Of the promise of the various pictures on the program, not only at his own studio, but also in the case of the other organizations that are making pictures for P. D. C., Mr. De Mille spoke more than enthusiastically. He believes very strongly in the success of both Vera Reynolds and Jetta Gondal, the two newly made stars of the organization, who, with Leatrice Joy and Rod La Roque, already established, form the stellar quartet of the De Mille company. H. B. Warner, William Boyd, Elinor Fair, Rudolph Schildkrant, and Joseph Schildkrant will figure prominently as featured players, and also on occasion as stars. Priscilla Dean and Marie Prevost appear prominently as stars of the Metropolitan program, while Seena Owen, John Bowers and Marguerite de la Motte and Victor Varconi will be highly featured. The entire group affords a great variety of types and personalities heading the P. D. C. program, and on the list are many who are increasing their prestige at the box-office very rapidly.

The directorial force of the company has been appreciably strengthened with the recent addition of William C. De Mille, Donald Crisp, William K. Howard, Frank Reicher, Paul Sloane, and others, who, with Rupert Julian, E. Mason Hopper, Edward Dillon, Frank Urson, Alan Hale and others will be primarily concerned in the making of pictures.

Lists Writers

The writers and supervisors either actually working for the company or associated with the organization, both in the providing of original screen stories or adaptations, include Edna Ferber, Peter B. Kyne, Jeanie Macpherson, Bertram Millhauser, C. Gardner Sullivan, Zelda Sears, Rosita Forbes, Owen Davis, Don Marquis, Samuel Merwin, Frank R. Adams, Lenore Coffee, Garrett Fort, Benlah Marie Dix, A. A. Milne, Jack Cunningham, J. Palmer Parsons, Denison Clift, Elmer Harris, Izola Forrester, Mann Page, Wallace Smith and others. Irvin S. Cobb is also to contribute one or two screen stories.

THE CHECK-UP

Weekly Edition of Exhibitors' Box Office Reports

Productions listed are new pictures on which reports were not available previously.

KEY—The first column following the name of the feature represents the number of managers that have reported the picture as "Poor." The second column gives the number who considered it "Fair"; the third the number who considered it "Good"; and the fourth column, those who considered it "Big."

The fifth column is a percentage giving the average rating on that feature, obtained by the following method: A report of "Poor" is rated at 20%; one of "Fair," 40%; "Good," 70%; and "Big," 100%. The percentage rating of all of these reports on one picture are then added together and divided by the number of reports, giving the average percentage—a figure which represents the consensus of opinion on that picture. In this way exceptional cases, reports which might be taken alone, and such individual differences of opinion are averaged up.

For ratings on current and older releases see MOTION PICTURE NEWS—first issue of each month.

Newspaper Opinions on New Pictures

"Waltz Dream"—M-G-M, Capitol, New York

Daily News: "What a lot of strange names and faces are to be seen on the Capitol screen this week. For that reason alone the picture is refreshing. 'The Waltz Dream' is good entertainment and in many spots beautiful to see. Yesterday afternoon the Capitol audience found much in the film to stir honest laughter and there were frequent bursts of warm applause."

Evening Journal: "'The Waltz Dream' is a liltily delightful romance of Vienna, based on the Oscar Strauss operetta. Willie Fritsch as the Prince Consort has a delightful grin and a fine screen personality. Fraulein Desni is blond and pretty, and Mady Christians is a good little actress."

Evening World: "This week in particular it is wise to attend the Capitol for the showing of 'The Waltz Dream,' which is accompanied by the music from the Oscar Strauss operetta. Charm is, I think, the outstanding feature of 'The Waltz Dream.' The charm induces a mood that forgives and forgets. The picture has some highly effective and imaginative variations in camera work. Mady Christians as Alix and Xenia Desni as Franz are players we shall want to see in other roles. But it is the production as a whole that charms. It catches to an unusual degree the spirit of light opera. The camera becomes almost a musical instrument for the hour. 'The Waltz Dream' is recommended as entertainment for parents and for children and particularly for those in between those two age groups."

Times: "The picture provides a delicate and amusing entertainment."

World: "Oscar Strauss' operetta came through its ordeal by camera with charm."

American: "If there's anything gayer than a Viennese waltz it is 'The Waltz Dream.' Thanks to an amusing cast and delightful direction 'The Waltz Dream' offers a pleasant hour or so."

Telegraph: "'The Waltz Dream' is a picture that is as irresistible as the swelling strains of 'The Blue Danube' and it is well worth a trip to the Capitol on a warm night."

"The Son of the Sheik"—United Artists, Roosevelt, Chicago

Tribune: "Thrilling and colorful photoplay—a charming picture and Valentino sure does make that son give a great account of himself. The supporting cast is splendid, the direction is ditto and the photography is simply grand—'The Son of the Sheik' is a film that no Valentino fan will want to miss, and one, I should say, that might make fans of some who are not."

Post: "The picture is a most gorgeous affair—it is a romantic melodrama with touches of humor wherever a laugh is needed, and with plenty of action from beginning to end. 'The Son of the Sheik' is a worthy successor to the first."

brand of lovemaking still burns with a bright scarlet flame. Witness, if you please, 'The Son of the Sheik' which is turning 'em away at the Roosevelt. It is healthy, rotously good entertainment!"

American: "Valentino proves again that he is one of the finest romantic actors of the screen."

"Devil Horse"—Pathe-Warners, New York

Evening World: "Here is a feature that would draw well in almost any audience and deserves Broadway booking. Hal Roach has contrived an unusual picture, combining the 'western,' the animal picture and the film romance, and retaining the best features of each. Rex is the star with Lady, his leading lady, and the piebald 'Killer' as the villain. An outline would suggest too much the conventional 'western,' which the picture is not. It is skillfully contrived and the plots cleverly interwoven. Rex is a truly magnificent actor in a star piece. The story is by Hal Roach, and Fred Jackman has given 'The Devil Horse' a scenic background rarely equaled in any picture. 'The Devil Horse' is first class entertainment, and is full of thrilling drama. I hope to see it again. At the Roosevelt it was introduced and accompanied by a musical novelty that might well interest the management of the Strand or the Capitol. This was an orchestra presented by S. Barret McCormick and featuring a battery of twelve tympani. Mr. McCormick believes this is the first use of more than four tympani in a single orchestra. The effect, particularly in connection with this horse and Indian picture, was tremendously effective. The audience was as enthusiastic over the music as over the picture."

Daily News: "Tuesday night in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Roosevelt an assemblage of more or less favored souls saw a moving picture presented by Hal Roach which is not a comedy. Quite a gang galloped and battled across the screen, but it wasn't 'Our Gang.' Probably the film will be shown at one of the Broadway houses in the near future. Therefore a complete review of it will be postponed until the paying customers also can sit in and see it. I'll tell you only that it is a Pathe picture, that the hero is a horse, and that it is directed by Fred Jackman."

"But the musical portion of this special showing deserves a word or two. The program said that the 'eurythmic setting and presentation' was by S. Barret McCormick, and featured for the first time 'an harmonic tympani battery.' A tympani battery, in case you don't know, is a set of about a dozen glorified drums, or enchanted wash-tubs. If that primitive description is offensive to the artists, I am sorry. No offense is intended, for I haven't enjoyed any musical program in months as much as the McCormick offering. I hope when this picture is presented to the public, that the tympani battery will be presented also. For, in addition to pleasing people capable of appreciating the skill of the artists, the offering will give great joy to all children, and to those of us who don't know anything about music, but know what we like."

"The Lone Wolf Returns"—Columbia, McVickers, Chicago

Tribune: "Billie Dove is one of the few 'women in the case' who may be described as thoroughly charming. She is beautiful. She is gracious. She is winsome. She is aristocratic. Her work is sincere and convincing. A screen asset and a home ornament. Mr. Ince has done nobly with the direction."

"Senor Daredevil"—First National, Colony, New York City

Times: "Mr. Maynard is good-looking and rides so well that he makes extraordinary feats of horsemanship look comparatively simple."

American: "Now First National has ridden into the great open spaces with Ken Maynard, two-fisted he-man."

Journal: "Ken Maynard, a new screen star, is 'Senor Daredevil' and Buenos Dios! but that boy can ride and fight."

Morning Telegraph: "We wonder where Ken has been all these years, for we thought that there was no one who could ever challenge the supremacy of Tom Mix, but here is a chap who out-Mixes Tom at his own game and even Tarzan, his marvelous steed, seems to be a candidate for the honors of Tony, Tom's faithful equine hero. Ken Maynard, a two-fisted, two-gun ridin' fool, rides into the Colony Theatre trailing a cloud of dust and a trail of glory in his initial First National picture, 'Senor Daredevil.'"

"With Lieut.-Com. Byrd, U.S.N., in America's Polar Triumph"—

Pathe, Warners, New York City

New York Telegram: The long stretches of sparkling snow, the jagged bergs, the mighty mountains looming in all their pristine glory against a heavy sky, the calm sea of broken ice-flats that is the Pole, have been captured in a picture that is not merely of historic but of genuine artistic interest as well.

Evening Graphic: The exclusive showing of Lieut.-Com. Byrd, U. S. N., in "America's Polar Triumph," is most interesting indeed.

Daily Mirror: The account of Com. Byrd's Polar flight is fascinating.

Times: The subject is of unusual interest and the flashes leading up to the starting of the airplane for the North Pole give one a graphic idea of the indomitable courage and the energy of the members of the expedition.

"The Waltz Dream"—Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Capitol, New York City

Evening Post: "It is not only the best screen offering of this week, but also of many weeks. The picture is a German one, and it demonstrates very effectively indeed the fact that German film makers appreciate comedy as well as tragedy. The comedy of 'The Waltz Dream' is light, pleasant and tasteful. It is an intelligent sort of humor, appealing to intelligent people, and it should be announced with a flourish in this connection that the audience at the Capitol on Sunday evening not only appeared to appreciate this humor, but actually burst into spontaneous applause. There are satirical scenes in 'The Waltz Dream' which remind one of 'The Beggar on Horseback'; there is plenty of sentimental plot from the operetta; and through it all runs the irrepressible lilt of the old Strauss waltzes. The work of Mady Christians as the princess, comes very near to perfection in the art of pure, joyful comedy. 'The Waltz Dream' carries with it the charm, the sentiment of the Strauss waltzes."

Herald-Tribune: "Tomorrow morning we begin our study of German. In 'The Waltz Dream' is a young man named Willy Fritsch, and it is said that he is coming to America. We must be able to interview him if he does. The humor in 'The Waltz Dream' is fine enough to have been produced by W. S. Gilbert. And, not only is that true of the story, but it is also true of the players and the direction. 'The Waltz Dream' delights us. It starts right out being marvelous from the very beginning and we liked all the people on sight. We found it a thrilling picture, perfectly produced."

Sun: "Vienna, its wine, its waltzes and its gay, sparkling pre-war spirit are eulogized in cinema terms in 'The Waltz Dream.' For once the Germans have sent us a light, sentimental, romantic comedy. The film provides as pleasing an entertainment as may be found in the city this week. I am aware that yesterday's cinema openings included that of Valentino in 'The Son of the Sheik,' but that important event must wait until tomorrow for space in these columns."

"The Amateur Gentleman"—First National, Mark Strand, New York City

Evening World: "Adds to his gallery of distinctive characterizations."

Times: "Captivating moments due to the frank and simple manner in which it has been produced and Richard Barthelmess' sympathetic portrayal of Barnabas Barty."

Herald-Tribune: "Another virtue that 'The Amateur Gentleman' has is the performance of Mr. Barthelmess, who here contributes the most effective and ingratiating portrayals of any of his recent pictures."

Sun: "Mr. Barthelmess is excellent in the romantic role of the country boy who became an amateur gentleman. He shows grace and poise and his personality is projected more forcibly than usual."

Short Subjects and Serials

Four Pathe Units Working on Coming Films

The comedy studio of Mack Sennett has three comedy units shooting this week and another about to start filming. An all-star company composed of Madeline Hurlock, Billy Bevan, Thelma Hill and Vernon Dent are filming a boat-race story under the direction of Del Lord, who is working with Glen De Vol as his assistant. Alice Day is well in work on a comedy prize-fight story under the guidance of Earl Rodney and Lonnie Dorsa with Danny O'Shea, Barney Hellum and Jerry Zier the supporting trio of funmakers. A kindergarten story is the "Smith Family's" assignment. The unit including Ruth Hiatt, Raymond McKee and Mary Ann Jackson, are working under Alf Goulding's direction. Harry Connett, Barbara Tennant and Bobby Nelson appear in supporting roles. Ben Turpin is assisting his directors, Eddie Cline and Joe Bordeaux, in the preparation of the story for his next vehicle. In this number the assisting players are Ruth Taylor, Stanley Blystone and Alma Bennett.

Lupino Lane Arrives in Los Angeles for Comedies

Lupino Lane, star of the Educational-Lupino comedies, arrived in Los Angeles a few days ago from London where he was playing leading roles for the last six months in his own production. Upon his arrival in the movie city the comedian reported immediately at the Educational studio where he will make six two-reelers for the Educational program this season. He has already commenced work on his first under Norman Taurog's direction.

New Gump Comedy Started At Universal City

A new two-reel comedy of the Andy Gump series has been started at Universal City with the Gump family, Joe Murphy, Fay Tincher and Jackie Morgan, working under the direction of Francis Corby. The Gumps, in this offering, meet adventure in the Swiss mountains. Sam Van Ronkel, producer of the series, is supervising.

Educational Plans Vehicle for "Old Timers"

Three "old timers" on the Educational lot will be presented in one picture in which Estelle Bradley, the "oldest" leading lady, will play opposite Lloyd Hamilton, the "oldest" comedian in point of service. Norman Taurog, senior director, will direct the picture.

Six Steve Donoghue Turf Films for America

The six Steve Donoghue two-reelers which Hi-Mark Productions will release in America under the state franchise plan, have, besides the featured jockey star, Carlyle Blackwell and "June," an English follies girl, and others.

Educational Lists Sept. Films

Second Romance Color Production on Schedule; Will Release Six Two-Reelers

A TOTAL of six two-reel and double that of one-reel subjects will be released by Educational during September. Included in this group is Jack Duffy's initial starring vehicle and the second of the Romance productions done in Technicolor titled "Blue Boy." Also prominent in the list is "My Kid," in which "Big Boy," the Educational baby star, takes the leading role.

"The Blue Boy" is based on director Arthur Maude's conception of the romance back of Sir Thomas Gainsborough' masterpiece, "The Blue Boy." John Roche is co-starred with Phillippe De Lacy, who plays the part of "The Blue Boy." "My Kid" is based on episodes in the life of the two-year star of the production and shows him in regular make-up with his derby hat, big shoes, etc.

Bill Dooley's first offering for the 1926-27 season is titled "A Dippy Tar." Dooley plays the goofy gob type of sailor who becomes the hypnotic subject of an amateur professor of hypnotism.

"Uppercuts" is the title of the Jack Duffy vehicle produced by the Christies. Duffy plays the role of an enthusiastic fight fan who is elected head of the Anti-Prize Fight League, which leads to amusing complications.

A Bobby Vernon comedy, "Wife Shy," is also scheduled for September release. Frank Pangborn, former stage comedian, is featured in "The Jelly Fish," a Mermaid comedy in which Estelle Bradley plays the leading feminine role.

"Toy" Gallagher, diminutive actress, and Phil Dunham are co-featured in two Cameos for the month. "Loud Speakin' Papa," the first, is based largely on the popularity of the radio. "Kiss Me, Kate" is the other Cameo.

Two new life cartoons and two new subjects in the "Felix the Cat" animated cartoons series are also listed. The initial Bruce Seemie Novelties picture, a new Lyman H. Howe's Hodge-Podge and the customary Kinograms, released twice weekly, are included in the September line-up for Educational.

Roach Studio Reopens After Annual Vacations

The Hal Roach studio, following its annual custom of remaining closed during the month of July so that vacations may be afforded players, directors and executives, is now opened for the production of pictures. An "Our Gang," Charley Chase, Mabel Normand and all-star comedies are the principal ventures in sight for immediate production. Another feature, starring Rex, the horse, is planned for next month, along with other features and comedies not yet in the production stage. During the vacation period several portions of the studio were remodeled, and the cafe entirely rebuilt.

Mayer Cartoon Pathe Highlight

List of Releases for Sept. 5 Include Mack Sennet and Hal Roach Comedies

THE Family Album," the first of a new series of Hy Mayer cartoons, is one of the principal releases on the Pathe program for the week of September 5. Also included is a two reel comedy each from the Mack Sennett and the Hal Roach studios, Topics of the Day, an Aesop Fable, the final chapter of "Snowed In," a Grantland Rice Sportlight, Pathe Review and the two regular issues of Pathe News.

"The Family Album" is the first of a series of four one-reel pen and ink strips from Hy Mayer's "Sketch Book," in which the cartoonist caricatures that family institution. "Should Husbands Pay" is the title of the Roach two-reeler star comedy featuring Jimmie Finlayson, with Vivien Oakland, Martha Sleeper, Anders Randolph, Tyler Brooke, Charlotte Mineau and Anita Garvin in support. The story tells of a reformer who is caught in the toils unwittingly and who pays and pays. F. Richard Jones directed.

The Mack Sennett offering is titled "Hoboken to Hollywood." Billy Bevan is featured and the supporting cast includes Vernon Dent, Thelma Hill and Lenore Summers. Del Lord directed. The story revolves around Bevan's adventures with a houseboat.

"Big and Little" is the latest Grantland Rice Sportlight. Fishin' as is Fishin'—that's the theme of this Sportlight.

Pathe Review No. 36 offers the following: "Tulane University," one of a Pathecolor series of the foremost American institutions of higher learning; "With the Roosevelts in Turkestan," No. 2 of a series of camera records of a thrilling adventure; "The Scrambled Scrapbook," a novelty produced with the "process-camera" invented by Alvin V. Knechtel of the Pathe Review Camera Staff.

"The End of Redfield" is the title of the closing chapter of "Snowed In," featuring Allene Ray and Walter Miller. All the various elements of mystery which have been built up in the past episodes are clarified in this chapter. Spencer Bennet directed this production from the scenario of Frank Leon Smith.

"Pests" is the title of the current Aesop's Film Fables release. Topics of the Day No. 36 presents selections of humor from the press of the world and two issues of Pathe News will offer last-minute world happenings.

"Her Actor Friend"

(Pathe-Mack Sennett—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Paul Thompson)

THIS is the latest of the Alice Day starring vehicles which will be given to the public under Pathe auspices August 29. The setting is a small town into which comes a troupe featuring a school girl's conception of a matinee idol. With the money collected by her father's clerk Alice and a schoolmate attend the theatre. Afterward they go backstage to see the star and accompany him to supper. With the chivalry of his ilk the matinee idol leaves his feminine guests to visit another table. He gets punched in the nose for his trouble by the returning escort of the girl he is trying to flirt with. Then in rapid sequence to escape the father the girls take refuge in the room of the actor, out into the hall and down the hotel steps to be more or less gently padded by a conveniently placed barrel stove. What the moral is, if there be one, I did not discover. Possibly "do not cultivate handsome leading men on the money owed to father on an unpaid hay and grain bill." The most amusing (or to put it another, more truthful way) the least uninteresting part shows the theatre with the actor burlesquing a costume play with the reactions of a small part of the audience to the same. It is not particularly clever or entertaining at any stage of the two reels.

THE CAST

Alice Day (starred), Eddie Quillan, Joseph Young, Ruth Taylor, Danny O'Shea, David Morris and Thelma Parr. Directed by Eddie Cline.

"A Knight Out"

(Pathe-Fables—One Reel)

INTO the realm of knighthood, cavaliers, "fayre ladies," etc., enter the leading man, feminine lead and supporting cast of the Fables this week. Al discovers the mice taking a typical Earl Carroll bath, with this difference; there is no question about the contents thereof being vinous. Chased away, Elaine seeks solace on the bosom of Lancelot. But the villain, this time in the guise of a black knight, armored cap-a-pie, kidnaps the fair one. This is as ingenious an excuse for the inevitable pursuit o'er hill and dale as any director could devise, be said director with Mack Sennett, Hal Roach or any other Hollywood megaphone wielder you may wish to name. Arriving at the villain's castle, with regulation moat, tower room in which the fair Elaine is locked up what else but battle after battle to free the imprisoned beauty and best the ambitions—albeit wrongly directed—of the dastardly one? This is done with clever use of brain and pen to more than justify the fade-out moral that "None but the conductor deserves the fare." The public must wait until August 29th for the release of this Fable.—PAUL THOMPSON.

"Buster Helps Dad"

(Universal-Stern Bros.—Two Reels)

LIKE Tennyson's brook R. F. Outcault's "Buster Brown" and his dog "Tige" go on forever. As long as they continue to amuse, more life to them. And in this two-reeler they do most effectually. And there is the added merit that the story which they tell in this particular picture is perfectly plausible as well as entertaining. Determined to help his father out of a financial hole by earning some money, Buster decides that his dog is as clever, if not more so, than any of the featured dog movie stars. Consequently they break into a picture being taken by one of the greatest of these canine screen luminaries and get away with all the glory. Arthur Trimble, as "Buster," Doreen Turner as "Mary Jane," and Pete, the dog comedian, are all excellent. This is a picture for grown-ups as well as children. Gus Meins, the director, has evolved some unusual and amusing situations with a cynical finale of the dog whose day has arrived condescendingly throwing a bone to his vanquished rival from his seat in a smart car.

"Kiss Papa"

(Educational-Mermaid—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Paul Thompson)

THE plot of this comedy is as old as the stage itself. Its more recent origin or development is to be found in innumerable French farces where a baby and a wife-mother must be found to satisfy the terms of an always embarrassing will. Inasmuch as the heirs in this instance are happily married—as much so as can be expected in this cynical age—and have a baby all would have been well. But there would have been no farce-comedy so they quarrel and separate just before the arrival of the lawyer-trustee with his fountain pen and the request, "Sign on this dotted line." Acting independently of each other husband and wife take temporary helpmeets and each corals also a midget to play the role of the stipulated baby. As though this was not enough, an itinerant photographer, who specializes in flashlights for divorce cases, is brought in to get in people's ways. With these ingredients and this premise the reader can figure out for himself or herself the marathons which are staged through the apartment, the mix-ups, with one of the midgets smoking cigars and indulging in other adult practices. Of course the parents become reconciled, their own child, who has been visiting his grandmother, comes back with the nurse in the last few feet of film and the trustee of the legacy goes away happy himself, leaving the couple and the audience feeling "all's well with the world." Stephen Roberts directed Lige Cooley, Estelle Bradley, Anita Garvin, Clem Beauchamp, Lou Archer and Otto Fries in the piece. It is a Jack White production.

"Thieves' Honor"

(Pathe-Serial—One Reel)

THINGS happen rapidly in this the eighth chapter of the serial of the Sierras, "Snowed In." Allene Ray is rescued from the sprung trap where we and the cameraman left her last week. The air mail-plane is signalled not to stop for the villains to rob the precious pouches. It seemed that the searchlight signal of the conspirators would be effective in the same way a flame is supposed to be for a moth. Then, knocked out but recovering, the hero, Forest-ranger Walter Miller, resumes his task of untangling the many threads of the tangled skein of the plot. Through a mistaken sense of duty the heroine is again left in a most perilous position at the end of the chapter. She and the villain have just fallen through the plaster from the garret where the "papers" were concealed and are hanging from the beams. Spencer Bennet directed Frank Leon Smith's scenario.—PAUL THOMPSON.

"Tiddly Winks"

(Universal-Bluebird—One Reel)

A MOVIE comedian in a series of more or less correlated pictures certainly realizes Shakespeare's "one man in his time plays many parts." In this Bluebird release Arthur Lake is the suitor for a girl living in the suburbs. He misses his last car to town because the girl's father becomes engrossed in a game of tiddly winks. The cavalier returns to the house with the idea of getting in and sleeping on the couch until morning. A burglar precedes him through the kitchen window. Naturally the family is aroused and then ensues a comedy pursuit, the burglar having taken refuge in a suit of armor. Of course he is captured and Arthur commended for having detected the attempted burglary. As usual Isobel Milestone and Billy Engle are the chief supports to the star. George Summerville directed the piece, which will be released August 27th.—PAUL THOMPSON.

"Open House"

(Educational-Tuxedo—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Paul Thompson)

ALL aphorisms, maxims and truisms should be taken with a grain of salt. To prove the truth in the case of "Charity Begins at Home" is the motive or moral, or what you will of this Educational comedy. Friend wife (Lucille Hutton) insists upon her husband sharing her charitable activities. She takes him with her on an expedition to succor some people in the poor quarter of town. Escaping from there the husband (Johnny Arthur) returns to his own home to find it filled with tramps whom his wife has invited as week-end guests. Every part of the house, even to the bathroom, is filled with the invaders. Forced to flee, the husband decides to teach her a lesson. He corrals all the animals he can, including a cow, donkey, elephant with geese and other birds thrown in for good measure and brings or has them sent to his home. The hobo contingent naturally are ousted and the wife made to see the error of her ways. The so-called and usually actual lesser half of the family is carrying out to the utmost the "Be Kind of Animals" week slogan, even surrendering his own bed to a complacent cow-guest. The comedy shows what an infinitude of trouble a company, director and strikers will go to to create scenes that will strike the spectators as amusing. Donna Barrell wrote the piece which was directed by Charles Lamont. Jack White, who supervises, supplements Mr. Arthur and Miss Hutton in the cast.

"Keeping 'Em Guessing"

(Red Seal—Magicians' Club—One Reel)

THE second of this series on which members of the light fingered gentry (not pickpockets, at least professionally) have collaborated with the camera men is well worth while. When you figure how welcome as dinner guest is the man who can do something whether it be to talk well, or otherwise entertain, this series offers an educational opportunity. It is an exposition of how some of the simplest yet most mystifying stunts are done with no apparatus needed. Everyone of them can be picked up through the brief showing on the screen and would be decided assets for anyone who plans a busy social season for the winter of 1926-27.

PAT SULLIVAN, the artist, takes Felix and the three—not blind, of the song of nursery days — mice far from home. Thwarted by Felix in their attempts to steal the cheese of the local store-keeper, the mice determine on a European invasion to sample Swiss cheese at the source. With the unwilling aid of a typical cartoon fish the mice cross the Atlantic, Felix clinging desperately to the tail of the transport. In Switzerland the quartet do some fine and fancy mountain climbing and descending. Alternately the cat and the mice have the laugh on each other, and all through the film they have the happy fortune to keep their spectators amused. It is a worthy inclusion in this nationally famous series of cartoon-comedies.

"The Film Reporter"

(Red Seal—One Reel)

THIS is issue number one of what promises to be an interesting series. It is nothing more or less than sidelights (photographically) on the "great and near great." This is a monthly news release devoted to the screen in this initial showing, but later to include celebrities not only of the stage but also of sports. Moments in the lives of Will Hays, Adolphe Menjou, Billie Dove and others are pictured for their admirers and followers to see and ponder.—PAUL THOMPSON.

Animated Hair Cartoons

(Red Seal—No. 14—One Reel)

MARCUS, the famous cartoonist on the New York Times, this time aims for laughs—and gets them. He takes the original drawings from his own pen and converts them into the cartoon characters of the best known newspaper artists such as Harry Hershfield, Rube Goldberg, Cliff Sterrett, George McManus, etc. It is uncanny how the shifting of certain lines and not with the addition of others not previously used will result in perfect reproductions of the trade mark characters of the United States' best known comic artists.—PAUL THOMPSON.

"Toot Toot"

(Red Seal—One Reel)

STILL the duel to the death between Ko-Ko and his creator, Max Fleischer. The latter has to win, of course, but this time his creation, like the Old Man from the Sea and Sinbad, nearly kills the artist who brought him into being. Taking charge of a real railway train Ko-Ko pulls the throttle wide open and there is a veritable dash for death until the train and passengers glide to safety into the artist's inkwell. Before this bit of drama the character has a merry time in a typical Rube Goldberg train of his own defying all the laws of gravitation that Sir Isaac Newton ever pretended to discover and then some. Like most of Mr. Fleischer's creations this one of the series will entertain.—PAUL THOMPSON.

Fashions in Photographs

(Pathe-New Process—One Reel)

THIS is a curiosity series. About every trick photographically that can be utilized is brought into play. Photographs which have been torn into pieces are replaced, each strip finding its way back to make a completed whole. It is a variation of reversing the camera, evidently, but the effect is uncanny and mysterious. This familiar trick is used also in stopping divers and pole vaulters, dogs dancing and then having them retrace their steps, jumps or motions. As a filler-in for a few moments it has its place in a program in any smaller theatre. It will keep the spectator guessing as to how it is done.—PAUL THOMPSON.

"Another Kick Coming"

(Red Seal—One Reel)

THE woes of a dog catcher in a small town, and they are many, are the basic theme of this Bronte comedy. While the boys whose dogs are corralled by the dog-catcher and that hated individual himself naturally play roles the important parts are assigned by the director to the animals. They play their roles well. One dog which has befriended the donkey attached to the dog-catcher's cart repays the kindness by kicking the wagon to pieces thus freeing the canine captives to their own and their juvenile masters' joy. Amusing and well carried out.—PAUL THOMPSON.

"Pack Up Your Troubles"

(Red Seal—Song-cartoons—One Reel)

THIS is quite an ingenious idea. Instead of using antiquated colored slides to get an audience to sing the song being played by the organ or orchestra KO KO and his allies figure in the showing of the song's words on the screen. In this instance artillery, armored cars, individual soldiers are used to emphasize the words and do so most effectively. It is at the same time amusing.—PAUL THOMPSON.

Marvels of Motion

(Red Seal—One Reel)

THE Novograt process displays the gracefulness of a dancer and an athlete going through the motions of their acts. By slowing up the camera and at times halting the pictures completely this grace is brought out more effectively than through ordinary projection. The drawback is that the film seems to be of an aged vintage.—PAUL THOMPSON.

Battling Butler

Right Up Keaton's Alley

(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

THE imperturbable Buster Keaton is at it again contributing highly mirthful film fare. This time he has taken the germ of a musical comedy plot which saw the lights of Broadway a couple of seasons ago and polished it up so that it shines like a new dishpan. Buster, directing as usual, sees to it that a new line of gags must be in order if he expects to bat 300 in the comedy league. So as the pampered son of the Butlers, he goes camping and the laughs come bouncing along when his ideas of camping are in line with Ritz ideas.

The piece goes off on a new tack here and the action is occupied entirely with Keaton's activities in and out of the ring. Some of it drags a little, but taken in its entirety the film is genuinely funny. The ring action is lively and filled with clever gags. And Buster takes a deal of punishment in taking and dodging the blows. It is well mounted and the star's support is good—especially where Snitz Edwards is concerned.

THEME. Revolves around pampered youth who is forced to masquerade as prize-fighter. Goes into training and emerges as the champion.

PRODUCTION HIGHLIGHTS. Buster's change of clothing at the camp. The evening meal. The introduction of girl's relatives. The prize fight sequences. The scene when Buster trains on the road. The support.

EXPLOITATION ANGLES. Bill as another fine Keaton comedy. Play up the prize-fight element, emphasizing the training, etc. Exploit Sally O'Neil. Tie up with sporting goods stores on correct apparel for hunting, fishing, etc.

DRAWING POWER. Should sell out everywhere.

Produced by Buster Keaton-Joseph M. Schenck. Distributed by Metro-Goldwyn.

Length, six reels. Released August, 1926.

Pals First

Should Satisfy Wherever Shown

A SATISFACTORY crook melodrama has been concocted from Lee Wilson Dodd's play with Lloyd Hughes as the star. It motivates around a sort of "Three Musketeer" idea with the central character, a forger and escaped convict, coming into a lot of luck through mistaken identity. In other words, "The Dominic" and "The Count" find him and nurse him back to health. They swear friendship and start out together—eventually winding up at an old manse in Louisiana where the forger is welcomed by the servants as the young master, whom the household believed drowned.

The action develops the logical touch of the crooks trading on their pal's resemblance to the missing youth. They make themselves at home and are taken in by the neighborhood. There is a quality of suspense which figures when the real heir's cousin has been spending his money and making love to his fiancée. This precipitates a conflict between the crooked relative and the forger—with the former attempting to expose the latter as a fraud.

The finish establishes the reformed crook (the romance attended to the reformation) as very much to the genuine. He turns out to be the missing youth. The picture is played with good dash and color by Lloyd Hughes, George Cooper, Alec Francis and Dolores del Rio.

The Duchess of Buffalo

Clever Farce Comedy Here

THE title means nothing in this picture. It could just as well be the Princess from St. Paul. But that is nothing against it. On the contrary, it is a smart little number which sparkles from inception to conclusion—and nothing is wasted toward making it one of the particularly bright films in Constance Talmadge's gallery. While the star demonstrates again her fine comedy talent and captivates her audience with the dash and charm of her acting, nevertheless, much of the merit belongs to Sidney Franklin for his clever direction.

The idea is of no great shakes. It simply features the romance of a Russian danseuse who hails from America. When her betrothed, a lieutenant in the Czar's army (the story antedates the Bolshevik regime) starts cutting up didoes and his life is threatened—well, the American girl masquerades as a Grand Duchess and gets away with it—for a while.

The piece dashes along with plenty of steam—which is a credit to the sponsors—seeing as how the plot is frail. The eye is captured by the sets, uniforms, gowns—and the tone of elegance which permeates the production. Altogether, it is a scintillating number—one sophisticated but not vulgar. The titling is excellent. And so is the acting.

The Cast: Constance Talmadge, Edward Martindel, Tullio Carminati, Chester Conklin, Rose Dione, Lawrence Grant, Martha Franklin, Jean de Briac. Director, Sidney Franklin.

PRODUCTION HIGHLIGHTS. The clever acting by star. The support by Martindel. Scene when lover places wrong construction on sweetheart's tete-a-tete with Duke. The expose. The settings.

EXPLOITATION ANGLES. Bill as one of the cleverest of the star's pictures. Play up as clean and sparkling comedy of court life in Russia. Stage a prologue in keeping with Russian backgrounds. Play up Chester Conklin.

DRAWING POWER. Should be a hit wherever shown. Best suited for high-class houses.

Don Marquis' Play On the Screen

THE stock phrase, "the original was treated with reverence" in its transferral to the screen, cannot be used because, according to Andrew Volstead, General Andrews, Major Mills, William H. Anderson and company, it is not a subject calling for reverence. I will say this, that the work of putting Don Marquis' lovable old tippler on the screen has been successfully done by Charles Kenyon, the scenarist, Director Edward Sloman and the star, Jean Hersholt. I have been familiar with Don Marquis and his character ever since his creation in The Sun Dial years ago. Then came the stage play, which I had the privilege of reviewing, and now the silent-drama version. Some authority may be vested inasmuch as the author once dedicated to me "The Foot on the Brass Rail," one in a collection of twelve poems, which appeared in the published collection of column musings anent "The Old Soak."

The spirit of the principal character and the stage play have been retained. Clem Hawley is a kindly, philosophic, amiable character and as such is realized to the utmost by Hersholt, who gives an excellent performance. The plot is negligible. Suffice it that his sanctimonious bootlegging cousin is worsted, the money misappropriated by the son recovered, and Clem's position as head of the family rehabilitated.

THEME. Family Drama, whose head imbibes not wisely but well.

Hersholt and Don Marquis reputations. Elemental appeal; simple everyday story.

PRODUCTION HIGHLIGHTS. Convincing performances Hersholt and others and real-ness of settings.

DRAWING POWER. Good because of stage play's success and humorous treatment of hero, not offensive even to prohibitionists.

EXPLOITATION ANGLES.

Length, 7,445 feet. Released October 24, 1926.

There is a quality of suspense in First National's "Pals First" with conflicts between crooks making up the melodrama

Chicago

A NUMBER of Great States theatres which have been closed for improvements during the summer months will be opened within the next few days. The 1,500-seat Orpheum at Galesburg, Illinois, has been remodeled inside and out and a new refrigerating plant and large organ installed and when it opens will have a policy of three acts of vaudeville and pictures, two changes a week. A novelty in the redecorated house are the rest rooms for men and women, which are fitted up as college fraternity rooms. Ed Toerpd is manager. At Joliet, the Princess Theatre closed Sunday night for remodeling and will be reopened in September with a new foyer, carpets and front, under a policy of big features for a week or more. The Orpheum will open on September 19th with a resident stock company and no pictures. At Quincy, the redecorated Washington Theatre will open in another week with vaudeville and pictures, and the Orpheum, which has operated throughout the summer, will close for minor changes. At Bloomington, the Majestic reopens on August 23rd with pictures and three acts of vaudeville, two changes a week. Plans have been made for a stock company which will divide its time between the Fox at Aurora and the Rialto at Elgin, each house running pictures and vaudeville half the week.

Al Bachman has returned from a vacation spent in Michigan and will leave the end of this week for Springfield, Mo., where he will open the new house for Universal Chain Theatres Corporation. The theatre, which is practically complete, is said to have cost $300,000. Mr. Bachman has been located in Chicago as assistant manager and manager of the Randolph Theatre for the past three years and has a host of friends who are wishing him every success in his new position.

Assistant Manager J. R. McPherson, of the National Screen Company's Chicago office, accompanied by several of his friends, motored to Saugatuck, Michigan, where they will remain for about two weeks. Manager H. C. Young also took a short trip to Saugatuck and stopped at Paw Paw Lake, en route to Chicago.

John Bobeng, of the Armitage Theatre, is on a two weeks' motor trip and will visit Minneapolis, Des Moines and other cities before returning to Chicago. Another prominent exhibitor who is about to motor northwest on a vacation trip is W. D. Burford, who expects to visit points in Canada before returning. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Burford.

Among Chicagoans planning to attend the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Wisconsin Convention at the Wisconsin Hotel, Milwaukee, on August 25th and 26th, are business manager Jack Miller and office manager Bill Sweeney, of the Exhibitors Association of Chicago, and S. ## St. Louis

MANNIE GOTTLIEB, of Des Moines, Ia., is the new manager for Universal Pictures in St. Louis, succeeding Nicky Goldhammer, resigned.

J. S. Wolf, auditor for Producers Distributing Corporation, is here. He is on tour of the offices in the Central West.

The St. Louis Amusement Company has awarded the contract for its proposed $1,000,000 theatre and apartment-store building at Hamilton and Easton avenues, to the Boaz-Kiel Construction Company. Construction will get under way at once. The new theatre was designed by Rapp & Rapp of Chicago, who also prepared plans for the Ambassador Theatre and office building, Seventh and Locust streets, which Skouras Brothers open on August 26.

The Bridge, Wellston, Newstead and Plaza theatres in St. Louis have been closed for repairs and redecorating prior to reopening for the fall season in September.

Barney Rosenthal, of Columbia Pictures, has returned from a trip through Eastern Missouri.

Visitors of the week included Green Luttrell, of Jacksonville, Ill., and H. C. Tuttle, of Desloge, Mo.

Georgious Panagiotis Skouras.

one of the Skouras Brothers, leading theatre owners of St. Louis, Mo., has filed an application at the naturalization offices in the Federal Building, St. Louis, for his final citizenship papers. He took out his first papers on May 17, 1924.

In his application Skouras gave his age as 33 years. He was born in Greece on April 23, 1893, and arrived in the United States on October 24, 1911. His application will be acted upon by United States Judge Davis at the November term of court.

Skouras is assistant secretary and treasurer of Skouras Brothers Enterprises.

The St. Louis Film Row is to lose its ornamental street lighting system. City Marshal William E. Duffy, of St. Louis, has notified the several property owners to remove the twenty-five street lamp standards located along the curbs.

From manager of a first-run theatre to an usher was the strange twist in the fortune of Cullen Espy, who will manage Skouras Brothers' $5,500,000 Ambassador Theatre, which opens August 26.

Espy put in several weeks as an usher for leading theatres in Chicago with a view of obtaining first-hand information on the problems of ushering, so that he can build up a courteous and efficient corps of ushers for the Ambassador.

The latest addition to the orchestra of the Ambassador Theatre, St. Louis, Mo., is Joe Winters, four years with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra and for a similar period with Gene Rodemich's band.

As concert master and first violin Winters will be called upon to display his full knowledge of classical music, acquired with the Symphony, and his acquaintance with modern syncopation, learned under Rodemich.

Edward Schilling, of the Woodward Players, has been named manager of the Empress Theatre, St. Louis, to succeed Edward L. Butler, retired. Schilling has been associated with the Woodward Players since their opening season in St. Louis at the Garrick Theatre in 1922. Since 1923 he has been associate manager of the Empress. He has also been a Woodward Player as well, appearing in many parts of consequence in the many plays put on by this dramatic stock organization.

The St. Louis Police Department plans to produce a motion picture depicting the danger attending the daily routine of policemen. The picture will be produced with the cooperation of the St. Louis office of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Picture Corporation and will be shown at various theatres in St. Louis. The picture is designed to create sentiment for the State Police Pension Fund to be presented to the voters of the State at the November elections.

The St. Louis film colony was grieved to learn of the death in Minneapolis, Minn., on Friday, August 20, of the mother of Nicky Goldhammer, manager of the St. Louis office of Universal Pictures. Goldhammer departed for Minneapolis on Saturday, August 21.

Jack O'Toole, of Minneapolis, Minn., on Monday, August 23, took over the management of sales in the office of Producers Distributing Corporation. Arthur La Plant, who had been acting branch manager, has been named assistant manager and will have charge of office details.

C. D. Hill, district manager for Producers Distributing Corporation, is in St. Louis and will spend several days in this territory.

Nicky Goldhammer has resigned as manager of the local Universal office to take over the management of Warner Brothers here. He succeeds Eddie Alpersen, who goes to Kansas City, Mo.

Cleveland

THE Cleveland Motion Picture Exhibitors Association has called a general meeting of its members for Tuesday, August 24, at the Hotel Statler.

Carl Son'n, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer district representative out of the home office, has been appointed manager of the M.-G.-M. Cincinnati branch.

John Kalafat opened his Five Points Theatre, Cleveland, last Saturday for the season. The house has been closed for several weeks for renovation. New carpets have been laid, new paint has been generously spread, and $5,000 worth of new attachments have been added to the originally installed Barton organ.

Ed Wheeler, formerly motion picture editor of The Times, is in charge of publicity for Martin

Printz' Circle Theatre. Wheeler is also handling the publicity for the Standard Film Service Company.

Nat Charnas, general manager of a string of theatres in Toledo, has all the luck. Last week he won a Ford car. Bought a few chances which were being sold for a benefit and walked off with the prize. Now all he needs is a steady traveling companion with whom to share the Ford.

A. M. Goodman has been appointed manager of the Standard Film Service Exchange in Detroit. He was formerly Pittsburgh manager for Standard Film and he succeeds Bob Rowan, who died recently.

Born: to Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Engelbert, Tuesday, August 17, a daughter, Genevieve. This item is of general interest, as Art Engelbert is head of the booking department of the Cleveland P. D. C. office and Mrs. Engelbert, formerly Genevieve Richmond, was secretary to the local Universal exchange manager prior to her marriage.

George W. Weeks, general manager of distribution for Paramount, passed through here last Saturday on his way to the West Coast. He was met at the station by a delegation from the Cleveland exchange, including district manager Harry Dodge and exchange manager E. H. Brauer.

The local Pathe Exchange is undergoing the hardship of vacations. Frank DeNoll, covering the central portion of the state, just returned in time to say good-bye to M. J. Glick, covering the Youngstown territory, who has left for an eastern trip. Henry Laws is also among the recently returned members of the organization. In the meantime Exchange Manager Oscar Ruby has closed with the Loew's Ohio theatres for all of the Hal Roach and all of the Mack Sennett comedy product for the year.

F. H. Blakely, who was in charge of the Paramount department of the Morgan Lithograph Company, has been transferred to New York and Miss L. W. Durgetto succeeds him.

George W. Erdmann, who resigned as manager of the local P. D. C. Exchange because of poor health, is traveling through the Adirondacks by motor car. He will take a rest of several months before going back into business.

Omaha

Bill Strickland, booker for the Liberty Film Exchange, is spending

Dave Sullivan, traveling auditor for Warner Brothers, is spending a week here going over the books.

Maud Carville, cashier at Pathe Exchange, will leave on her vacation August 14 to be spent in Minneapolis and the Minnesota lakes.

Regina Mulseed, assistant booker at Liberty Film Exchange, has just returned from her vacation.

H. L. Lefholtz, manager for the Liberty Film Exchange, is back from a ten-day trip through Iowa and reports business fine.

Miss Clara Olson, formerly cashier at Liberty Film Exchange, has resigned, and Miss Helen Whitmore, former assistant, has taken her place.

Esther Schwartz, stenographer for Enterprise Distributing Corporation, spent two weeks on a vacation in St. Louis.

Miss Estelle Maquire, former stenographer for the Liberty office, has been named assistant cashier.

Detroit

THE Michigan, as this latest amusement enterprise of the John H. Kunsky and Balaban & Katz organization is known, is scheduled to open Monday evening, August 23. It is to seat 5,000 people, of which 2,000 are on the balcony. It is said that this theatre has the largest stage switchboard in America. More than 6,000 circuits are operated through it.

Eduard Werner, who has been conducting the orchestra at the Capitol since it has opened, will be at the New Michigan pit.

Lincoln Square Theatre leased to Publix. It was understood officially that this house passes over to the Publix the 1st of January. It will be handled by the Kunsky Enterprises, as Balaban & Katz and Kunsky are now together so far as any new Detroit theatres are concerned. It will probably result in making the Lincoln Square a first-run neighbor house.

Henry S. Koppin, who now operates 23 houses in Detroit, announces the purchase of the property on Union Street and Penniman Avenue, Plymouth, Mich. Work will start shortly on a new 2,200-seat house. Mr. Koppin also announces that he will build a new theatre in Redford, Mich.

Starting September 1st, some of the Henry S. Koppin theatres will add vaudeville, making a combination policy of pictures and vaudeville. These are the Garden and Irving, at Brightmoor. It is likely that the Uptown Theatre, which opens in the fall, will play vaudeville and pictures also. And the East Jefferson will continue playing pictures exclusively, as it has proved successful all summer.

The Olympic Theatre, on Michigan Avenue, is being completely renovated and new equipment added.

William Fox is to build a new house on Woodward Avenue near Columbia Avenue. It is to be even larger than the New Michigan; it will seat 5,200. In connection with the theatre there will be a 20-story office building. The new house will be ready to open in about September, 1927. The total cost will be about $7,500,000.

Fred Shafer has arrived at the Henry S. Koppin office to become personal representative for Koppin.

Frank Howard and Sam Nathanson, city salesmen for Producers Distributing Corporation, left for Cleveland Monday night to attend a banquet given by Robert C. Cotton, district manager. This invitation was extended to the salesmen who have made the best showing on sales in Mr. Cotton's territory. Manager Henry Zapp and Abe Chapman also attended the banquet from the Detroit branch.

George F. Koppin's new theatre, The Embassy, is proving to be a great success. Although this little house seats only 250 and has a twenty-five-cent admission, Koppin has added a small orchestra to give the house real class. It is attended mostly by ladies, as the women shoppers who have a few hours to spare find this theatre to be the ideal place to spend their spare time.

S. K. Decker, who has been associated with James M. Minter for the last four years, has resigned to take over the booker's job with Producers Distributing Corporation. He succeeds Abe Chapman, who has been promoted as special representative for this district. Mr. Chapman is to make Cleveland his headquarters.

Harlan Starr, manager for Educational, has left for the northern part of the State. He will motor all the way and make his annual call on the exhibitors along the lakes. He will be back at the office Saturday.

Detroit Exchange of First National has landed on top in the summer contest for new business. Everybody, from Manager Fred North down to the inspectors, will receive an extra week's salary.

Fred Delodder, who controls a number of houses in Detroit, says that his new East End Theatre will be ready by September. It will seat 1,000 people.

Henry Zapp, manager of Producers Distributing Corporation, says that over 80 Detroit theatres have contracted for the new 1927 product.

Miss Jean Dewey, private secretary to Manager Henry Zapp, of Producers Distributing Corporation, has just returned from a two weeks' vacation. Although she has procured a nice coat of tan, she said that she had a wonderful time bathing and fishing up in the North.

The International News Weekly is to have its runs at the New Michigan Theatre. Every week the Universal Company will send a print to Detroit by aeroplane, so as to get here by Saturday to give the orchestra time to cue the picture.

H. F. Drew has sold his theatre in Grand Ledge to Z. E. Gooding.

Denny Vane, who recently took back the Tibbets Opera House from Nick Papas, will spend about $25,000 in remodeling the house. The remodeling is to include a new main floor and balcony in addition to a new lobby.

Joe Partell, a Detroit exhibitor, is having a wonderful time in Madrid, Spain. He writes that Madrid has beautiful streets and buildings. While in Madrid he witnessed a bull fight, and says he enjoyed it very much. Probably Joe will try to stage one at his theatre when he returns.

George Cambrill has been appointed one of the 13 exploiters by W. H. Rudolph, supervising director of Fox Films Exploitation Department. Cambrill will be responsible for all of Michigan. Another man to be appointed is Chas. W. Nebel, who is very well known around Detroit's theatrical circle. Nebel, however, has not informed us as to what territory he will cover.

W. C. Buchmeyer, formerly with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, has been appointed division manager over Detroit, Cleveland, and Cincinnati for Fox Film Company. He is expected to make his first official visit here during the week of August 23, when he will be duly installed by James R. Granger, Fox General Sales Manager.

F. O. Peters, formerly with Famous Players, has joined the sales force of the Fox Film Company. He will cover the Grand Rapids territory.

Luther E. Goble, resident manager of the Keith Albee circuit of theatres, has announced that the Keith Albee interests have acquired a large lot in Highland Park for their new theatre. It will be built at Woodward Avenue and the Six Mile Road and will accommodate approximately 3,200 people. It will be furnished and decorated under the personal supervision of E. F. Albee. It is expected that the new house will be in operation by November.

Sam Nathanson, city salesman for P. D. C., has returned from a week's work on the road. Sam says that business was very good while he was out.

J. E. Peters, formerly connected with the sales force of P. D. C., was in the Film Building Saturday, and said that he is now selling water heaters.

The Monroe Theatre at Monroe, Mich., has been closed by the Fire Commissioner on account of the projection booth. However, the management has informed that the house will be equipped with a new booth and that everything will be O.K. in four days.

All of the Pathe employees have returned from their vacations. They are all pepped up and are going strong for the Scott Billing Contest, which lasts nine weeks. The Detroit branch is now in second place—more power to them.

Miss Eva Bunk, for five years connected with Pathe as billing clerk, has just returned from her vacation with a large diamond ring and has announced her engagement. All the boys are wondering who the lucky man is, as Eva is silent on who he is. Congratulations, Miss Bunk.

Harry Long, the local manager of the Broadway Strand Theatre, has just returned from Pittsburgh, where he had a special conference with J. A. Carrier, general manager of theatres for Universal. Long has announced that he will be later assigned to one of Universal's big houses in the East. The Broadway Strand has been considered one of the biggest moneymakers and owing to the fact that the Kunsky Enterprises has bought Universal's product for first-run, this house is now being transacted for sale with a local theatre circuit.

George Koppin takes over the Broadway Strand Theatre from Universal September 4th. At present Koppin intends to continue the present policy, which is first-run pictures, until further notice.

Buffalo

SHEA'S Court Street Theatre opens Monday, August 30, with big-time Keith vaudeville. Shea's Hippodrome also is now offering vaudeville and pictures and with much success.

Gene Markens, Pathe salesman, is responsible for the following outburst, to be sung to the tune of "Thanks for the Buggy Ride."

Read it and weep:
"We rode right up the hill,
Right into Gloversville,
And we arrived right on time,
Don't care to spend the night,
Just hope you'll treat us right,
Buy all our film at the prices we ask you,

Know that you won't refuse to buy the Pathe News,

Sennetts and Roach brands as well,
We're here to sell,
For that's our vocation.

Pete thinks we're here just to spend our vacation,

Sign on the dotted line,
Thank you, Mr. Schine,
We've had a wonderful time.

And that's why Gene is a film salesman!

Contracts will be awarded within a few days for the erection of a new theatre in New Castle, Pa., to be known as "The Castle," according to Edward E. Henry, hotel proprietor. The plans call for a seating capacity of 1,800. Motion pictures and vaudeville will be the policy.

Syd Samson, manager of Bond Photoplay Corporation, has just returned from a statewide business trip, including Rochester. To celebrate his homecoming he took Herk Webster out to lunch last Saturday—only Herk paid the bill.

It was a dark week in Buffalo during the week just passed. At the Buffalo was the team of Sissle & Blake; at the Hippodrome, Fletcher Henderson and his colored orchestra, and at the Palace, a colored musical show.

The new Paramount Exchange in North Franklin Street is nearing completion and promises to be one of the finest in the country. It will be beautifully furnished and completely equipped.

Louise Glaum, vampire of other days in screenland, was in Buffalo at Loew's State the past week, appearing in person. A shopping tour was one of the exploitation stunts.

George Beban, himself, and company of 27 stars, on the stage and on the screen, in "The Loves of Ricardo," is the attraction this week at Shea's Buffalo. Beban is a prime favorite in Buffalo and it is expected that a new attendance record will be set up by this attraction, which is touring the Publix chain.

Kansas City

THE Kansas censorship seal on films no longer will bear the legend, "Kansas Grows the Best Wheat in the World." The sunflower, however, will remain a fixture on the seal. The original wheat boost was ordered put on by Governor Jonathan Davis. The use of the legend resulted in the requests of other industries and other activities of similar mention on the seal and it was found impossible to grant all such requests.

The "boys" were talking the other night in the office of the Newman Theatre, Kansas City, of Friday the 13th.

"I'm not superstitious," said Bruce Fowler, manager, "but I was married August 13, 1913, just 13 years ago. Tonight I fell and stumbled downstairs and sprained my left leg and thumb."

William Jacobs, publicity director of the theatre, smiled tolerantly. Later he rode home on a bus. Stepping off hurriedly at Meyer and Brookside boulevards, he fell and fractured a right ankle bone.

"Then I happened to remember," said Jacobs, "I married five years and eight months ago, the figures totalling thirteen—and there are thirteen letters in my name."

The Newman Theatre was chosen as the site of entertainment for city officials by City Manager H. F. McElroy, of Kansas City. The celebration, which was of the line party variety, was in observation of McElroy's sixty-first birthday.

The St. John Theatre, Kansas City suburban house, was sold this week by Mrs. Daisy G. Wilson to Mrs. Scott M. Hubbard, both of Kansas City, for $30,000. The sale of the theatre did not carry with it the operating control, since it was sold subject to an existing lease.

For twenty-six years there has been a face in the box office of the Orpheum Theatre, Kansas City, familiar to all theatre-goers. That face will not be there next year—the face of Leon A. Keller, who left the Orpheum last fall when it closed to seek other fields. The new face will be that of John D. Woolworth, formerly of Lincoln, Neb., and South Bend, Ind.

Not long ago Adolph Eisner, former president of the M. P. T. O., Kansas City, and now in charge of the booking of Universal theatres in the Kansas City territory, purchased a set of golf clubs, bag and all, the objective being to lose part of a rotund waistline under the steaming showers of some golf club. Thus far the clubs never have dug into turf, but they have been active to the extent of one broken lamp, a badly scarred parlor chair and forty-one new gray hairs in the head of Mrs. Eisner. But Adolph's a golfer, play or no play.

Among the out-of-town exhibitors in the Kansas City territory this week were: J. A. Jefferies, Manhattan, Kas.; Walter Wallace, Orpheum, Leavenworth, Kas.; S. A. Wilhoit, Jefferson, Springfield, Mo.; G. L. Hooper, Hooper & Jencks, Topeka, Kas.; C. M. Pattee, Pattee Theatre, Lawrence, Kas.; Glenn W. Dickinson, Dickinson Circuit, Lawrence, Kas.

The Bancroft Theatre, Forty-third and Troost avenues, Kansas City, has been sold by T. S. Wilson to A. E. Elliott, formerly of Independence, Mo. G. Siebens has purchased the half interest of his partner, E. E. Weber, in the Broadmour Theatre, suburban house of Kansas City. Frank Whittam, formerly manager of the Strand Theatre, has been named manager of the Bagdad Theatre, a Kansas City suburban house.

M. A. Levy, Fox branch manager at Kansas City, has been transferred to the Omaha exchange, being succeeded in Kansas City by John Nolan, special representative for Fox.

Bob Gary, former Universal exploitation hustler, has accepted a similar position with Fox in Kansas City.

A. A. Renfro, Pathe city salesman, is in charge of the Kansas City branch during the absence of F. W. Gebhardt, branch manager, who is vacationing in Ohio.

The film and theatre accounts of the Bruce-Stewart Transfer Company have been purchased by the Exhibitors' Film Delivery and Service Company of Kansas City, the latter also having added a truck service to Topeka, Kas.

T. W. Edwards, Pathe representative, is back on the job after spending a vacation in Idaho.

C. L. Hickman, formerly with F. B. O. in St. Louis, is covering Kansas for Pathe now, while H. A. Gregory, of the latter company, has resigned.

S. J. Hankin, St. Louis Educational branch manager, was a visitor in Kansas City, being the guest of C. A. Jones, Kansas City Educational branch manager.

"Gib" Jones, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer booker, had nothing to say other than that he fell in the lake and frightened all the fish away, concerning his fishing trip of last week.

Jimmy Lambert, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer representative, was forced to submit to an operation which lost him the use of his left eye.

Russell Borg, assistant Educational branch manager, will leave next week for a vacation in Minnesota.

C. D. Struble, president of the Yale Theatre Supply Company, Kansas City, returned from a prosperous trip into the territory.

The Universal branch is busily engaged in working on a Laemmle Surprise Celebration for the week of October 16.

Miss Nertha Dubinsky, of the Paramount Exchange, will be Mrs. Harry J. Katz ere another week goes by.

Leo J. McCarthy, Milwaukee First National branch manager and formerly of Kansas City, was a Kansas City branch manager.

Ben Blotcky, Paramount branch manager, has returned to his desk after having been confined to his bed because of illness.

Paul Miracle is the latest addition to the United Artists' sales force.

Homer Gill, of the A. H. Blank theatres in Des Moines, Iowa, was another Kansas City visitor.

Miss Marion Jacobs, of the United Artists' home office, is installing a new accounting system in the Kansas City branch this week.

The opening of the new Jayhawk Theatre of Topeka, Kas., was a gala affair Monday night. Many exhibitors of Kansas City attended the opening of the $500,000 house, which will be operated by G. L. Hooper and Maurice Jencks of Topeka. An elaborate entertainment program was arranged for visiting exhibitors.

The headquarters of Capitol Enterprises has been moved from Nineteenth and Main streets to the ninth floor of the Davidson Building, Seventeenth and Main streets, Kansas City.

Texas

GREATER Movie Season Ball went over with a bang, according to Sam Abrama, chairman of the local committee. Five hundred dollars in cash and theatre tickets were awarded for costumes and dancing contests. Two orchestras played until 2:30 a.m.

Al Lever will leave in a short time for New Orleans, where he will visit the home office of Saenger Amusement Co. Mr. Lever has been manager of the Isis Theatre for the past two seasons and his host of friends wish him well in his new field. It is understood that he will take charge of the Saenger theatres in Dallas, Tex.

Work on the Paramount Theatre, located in the Kirby Building, is well under way. This is the second theatre being erected for Paramount in Houston; a million dollar house is more than half completed at Main and Lamar streets.

Wm. Horwitz has returned from New Orleans, where he attended a business session.

H. Silverberg, owner of the Crown, Folly and Olympia theatres, is out of town on a short business trip.

Morris Schulman, manager of the Strand Theatre No. 1, is passing the cigars this week—it's a boy.

Harry Van Denmark has returned from Dallas, where he attended a district meeting of the Publix Theatre Company.

Central Penn

THE New Rialto, the Royal and the National theatres, controlled by Isaac Marcus, in Harrisburg, have been placed under the management of his son, "Atlas" Marcus, a former Harrisburg Technical High School football star who also played on the University of Pennsylvania varsity eleven in 1924 and 1925.

Announcement is made of the arrival of a baby boy in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis J. Appell, in York. Mr. Appell is associated with his father, Nathan Appell, in the control of the Appell Amusement Enterprises, which operate half a dozen York theatres.

Peter Magaro, veteran motion picture exhibitor, of Harrisburg, returned home from a European trip on the Leviathan, on August 16.

The new Marr & Colton organ in the Capitol Theatre, Reading, was formally dedicated on the evening of Sunday, August 1, when the Piccadilly Theatre, New York there was a recital on the organ and a screen showing. It was an invitation affair at which about 1,000 persons were present, and no admittance charged. The Capitol, a Wilmer & Vincent house, has placed the new organ in the hands of Charles Gotschalk, formerly of City.

THEATRE MANAGEMENT EQUIPMENT CONSTRUCTION OPERATION

Gala Opening of G.M.S. Held in Cleveland

Theatres React Most Favorably to Mardi Gras Pageant; Planned as Annual Event

THE Cleveland Greater Movie Season Mardi Gras and Pageant, which was held on Monday night, August 16th, under the general chairmanship of William R. Raynor, with the co-operation of John F. Royal, M. A. Malaney and Albert Kaufman was the biggest and most successful achievement ever attempted by exhibitors of this city.

Thirty-eight Cleveland motion picture theatres held popularity contests, starting August 1st. Each theatre gave a prize to its winner. Then each winner was entered into a city-wide contest, and the winner of the city contest was entered into the national contest.

The grand finale was a Mardi Gras and pageant staged Monday night, August 16th. Approximately a hundred floats were entered in the parade which started downtown at 8 P.M., proceeded out Euclid Avenue to East Fortieth Street, passed the reviewing stand specially erected at Euclid Avenue and East Thirtieth Street, and back downtown again. A committee of prominent Cleveland citizens not connected with the picture industry acted as judges.

The parade started with a police escort, followed by official cars carrying the committee. Boy Scouts were brought into town from the Boy Scout Reservation to escort the floats and to light them up with flares. Four bands, interspersed, supplied music. Louise Glaum, playing a week's engagement at Loew's State Theatre, headed the Mardi Gras parade. Floats representing the various theatres, both downtown and neighborhood, followed. These theatre floats constituted the first part of the parade, which was done in four sections.

The second section was the independent division, and was composed of privately owned decorated automobiles carrying beautiful girls. Then followed floats of different merchants and floats of the motion picture distributors. Among the exchange floats in the line-up were Paramount, F. B.

M. A. Malaney, publicity manager for Loew's Ohio Theatres and a big factor in the success of the Cleveland Movie Mardi Gras. Malaney placed over ten million words and five hundred photographs in the local papers

Billie Waterman, 16-year-old Cleveland school girl who won 1st prize as Miss. Keith's Palace in Cleveland's Movie Beauty Contest

O., Pathe, Educational, Columbia, and Fischer Film companies.

It is roughly estimated that 150,000 people lined both ends of Euclid Avenue to East Fortieth Street to watch the demonstration. Traffic was completely stopped for one hour on this main thoroughfare.

William Raynor, manager of Reade's Hippodrome, was general chairman of the committee of arrangements. John F. Royal, manager of Keith's Palace, was chairman of the Parade Committee. Albert Kaufman was brought in from Detroit to stage the popularity contests and to handle the campaign and M. A. Malaney, publicity manager for Loew's Ohio Theatres, was in charge of publicity. In this capacity Malaney secured more newspaper advertising space than has ever been accorded any other campaign in Cleveland. More than ten million words of publicity appeared in the local newspapers in every language in which newspapers are printed, namely, English, German, Italian and Hebrew. Malaney also placed 500 photos in the newspapers, in addition to rotogravure pictures in supplements.

Miss Billie Waterman, 16 years old, of 1280 East 143rd Street, Cleveland, entered as Miss Keith's Palace Theatre, was accorded first prize in the local Beauty Contest by the judges after two hours of deliberation. Miss Waterman, a high-school girl, was presented with a Whippet Overland sedan.

Margaret Catlin, 17, of 3135 West 86th Street, entered as Miss Loew's Stillman in a float covered with autumn leaves, and herself clad in a chiffon costume of autumn colors, won second prize—a diamond and sapphire bracelet.

Rena Van Cammell, 19, 3118 Lorain Avenue, appearing as Miss Lorain-Fulton, was given third prize—a fur scarf.

The second section of the parade, consisting of privately decorated cars, was judged separately. First winner, Miss Myrtle Allen, 17, of 4164 East 110th Street, also received a Whippet Overland sedan.

The publicity, the parade and the contests gave the industry a tremendous impetus and every motion picture theatre felt the reaction last week by marked increased business, although it was very warm and natural conditions were unfavorable.

Because of the success of this enterprise, plans are now being made to make it an annual feature.

Movies of the parade were shown in all local theatres and Miss Waterman, first-prize winner and Cleveland contribution to the national contest, appeared personally at several of the leading theatres.

Publix Signs Whiteman for 4 Months

Opens Engagement at Metropolitan, in Los Angeles

PAUL WHITEMAN and his band, in fulfillment of their contract with the Publix Theatres Corporation, recently negotiated through the William Morris Agency, will open a four months' tour of the leading Publix theatres of the United States at the Metropolitan Theatre, Los Angeles, on September 18. After four weeks in Los Angeles they will go to San Francisco for two weeks. The schedule then calls for a jump across the continent to Boston, where Whiteman will be the main attraction for a week at the Metropolitan Theatre. The itinerary from there on includes Buffalo, Detroit, Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, Dallas and Atlanta before the company returns for a New York engagement. With the exception of Chicago, where the schedule calls for three weeks, the musicians will remain in each city for one week.

Precludes Other Contracts

Mr. Whiteman's contract with the Publix Theatres Corporation precludes any other engagements of the jazz maestro and his men, either in concert or for dancing parties, for a period of approximately a year and a half. This does not mean, however, that the dance lovers of the cities to be visited on the coming tour will be deprived of an opportunity to dance to the magic Whiteman music, for the Publix Theatres Corporation plans that in each city visited a mammoth ball will be given for the benefit of a local charity.

Whiteman and his band, under the terms of the present contract, constitute the biggest stage attraction ever to tour the motion picture theatres of America. The band will consist of thirty-two musicians and will travel in two Pullman cars with an extra car required for the scenery and baggage. In addition to the musicians the personnel of the organization will consist of a complete stage crew, business and press representatives and a piano tuner to take care of the two concert grand pianos which will be carried on the tour. The staff will also include two advance men. The company will carry its own complete electrical equipment, together with three sets of scenery and a wardrobe consisting of four changes of costumes.

Clever Tie-Up with Reform Campaign Exploits "Monte Carlo"

FRANK HASSETT, manager of the Camden Theatre, Parkersburg, W. Va., capitalized the fact that a vice clean-up campaign was being waged by a new reform mayor to exploit his showing of "Monte Carlo."

Hassett secured an empty store room, whitened the windows and put in a show card reading, "On Sept. 1st these premises will be occupied by the Parkersburg 'Monte Carlo' Club. Roulette, faro, klondyke and all modern games of chance, including bets on horse races throughout the country. Charter membership list (no initiation fee)

now open. No one admitted except in formal dress."

After two thousand membership cards, with a blank line for the member's name, had been distributed, the card in the window was changed. The new card reading, "Owing to police intervention the Parkersburg 'Monte Carlo' Club will not open here as previously announced. Watch newspapers for further particulars."

An advertisement was then inserted in the newspapers, "The Parkersburg 'Monte Carlo' Club will not open as previously advertised, but anyone who wants to see how a club like this is conducted can do so by attending the Camden Theatre."

The MANAGER'S OFFICE

WILLIAM A. HAYNES is now managing director of the Lafayette Square Theatre in Buffalo. He succeeds Fred M. Shafer. Haynes was formerly manager of the Fox Theatre in Philadelphia.

LAWRENCE WAGNER, formerly assistant manager of the Capitol at Des Moines, has been appointed manager of the Rialto Theatre, Fort Dodge. T. W. Towner, former manager of the A. H. Blank house, resigned the position recently.

A. H. FRIESE, one of the veteran exhibitors of Wisconsin, who has made his home in St. Augustine, Fla., for the past five months, has been appointed manager of the Orpheum Theatre there. The Orpheum is a Universal house operating under the supervision of R. S. Campbell.

EDWARD A. SMITH recently was installed as manager of the Granada, San Francisco, by Edward B. Baron, general manager of Publix Theatres in that city. Smith succeeds Nat Holt, who resigned to become part owner of the Wigwam Theatre.

J. WM. HOUCK has been appointed manager of Saxe's State in Racine, Wis., to succeed Walter League.

Winnipeg Manager Opens School of Music

C. A. Schanfele, manager of the Lyceum Theatre, Winnipeg, one of the three local houses in the Manitoba Capital controlled by Canadian Universal, has announced the opening of a special conservatory of music on the third floor of the Birks Building by the Lyceum Theatre. One of the purposes of this conservatory is to rehearse the special musical arrangements for coming film attractions and it is also intended as a place of rehearsal for local musical attractions and for the development of new artists. Manager Schanfele has decided to make every possible use of good music as an inviting feature of Lyceum programs this coming season.

Shubert's Boston Opera May Become Movie House

Rumor is current that the Boston Opera House, under long lease to the Shuberts, may be added to the motion picture houses during the coming winter. The theatre is one of the largest in Boston with the largest stage in the city and would make an excellent place for presentations in connection with picture programs.

Peter Egan's Definition of "A Good Theatre"

PETE EGAN, manager of the Capitol Theatre, Regina, Sask., has published what he believes to be the definition of "A Good Theatre". It reads:

"A good theatre is something more than a playhouse where good pictures are exhibited. It is a place where good people go to have a good time together. It is a business institution with a good influence upon the community, serving a good purpose by making a good time possible at a moderate price.

"Good equipment, good music and good intentions are essential to the maintenance of the Capitol Theatre or any other good theatre. Good patronage is just one of the rewards. Good friends are a more important one."

"Discovery Night" Boosts Cleveland Theatres

Discovery Night has proved so successful at Loew's State theatre, Cleveland, O., that it has been adopted at the Liberty and Doan theatres as well. The policy was introduced last season at the State on Thursday nights. It boosted business to such an extent that Thursday, which was the poorest night in the week, became the best night of the week. It was found that good talent was revealed. In fact, several of the acts submitted on Discovery Nights, have been given professional contracts. It was also found that these stunts did not deteriorate the atmosphere of the theatre. All acts were carefully selected and interest in them was great. They will be continued at the State on Thursday nights. And at the Liberty on Tuesday nights, and at the Doan on Wednesday nights.

Singing Club Successful at Reading Strand

A singing club composed of boys and girls who live in the vicinity of the Strand picture theatre, Reading, has been formed by the theatre management, and it is under the direction of Miss Grace E. Faust. The Strand is one of the chain of ten Reading theatres now controlled by the Franklin Theatre Company of which Ben Amsterdam and Louis Korson are the controlling figures. The boys and girls sing every Saturday afternoon at the theatre performance and naturally they attract a lot of their friends and relatives to hear them each week.

Goldstein Managers Give "Advertising Talks"

At the monthly meeting of all of the managers of the Goldstein Brothers Circuit, held at the Broadway Theatre, Springfield, Mass., Bill Erb and Frank Shea of Famous Players and Milton Hill, head of the new Service Department for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, gave talks on "Advertising." A discussion of the Fall policy of all the houses and other matters was held and the session closed with a dinner at Hotel Highland, Springfield.

Harry Somerville, manager of the Vivian Theatre, Daytona, Fla., entertained the children who paraded in the community's summer festival, "The Halifax Frolics" thereby giving his house an important place in an event which enlisted the interest of the entire population of the town

Manager's Activities in Civic Affairs Promote Interests of Theatre

AS a means of reaching the ideal of all theatre men in the smaller cities and towns—that of making the theatre a real community institution identified with the civic activities of the town—Harry Somerville, manager of the Vivian, Florida and Crystal theatres in Daytona Beach, Florida, actively interests himself in the movements organized to promote the welfare of the community.

Somerville, as a result of the prominent part he has played in a number of these community activities, recently was elected chairman of the Convention Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce of Daytona Beach. His selection for the post automatically placed him among the eight most influential business men of the town. The committee which he heads is entrusted with promotional work. As a result of the first efforts of the body, a convention of the Florida Bakers' Association will be held at Daytona Beach—an event which will bring to the town more than a thousand visitors.

The manager's association with these community events has the direct result of giving his theatres a prominent place among the outstanding institutions of Daytona Beach. His connection with several organizations there further contributes to the position he holds as one of the town's leading citizens and the confidence and good will thus engendered associates itself with the amusement centers over which he presides.

Frequently he has opportunity to bring the theatres directly into connection with the civic events of Daytona Beach. The recent summer festival, "The Halifax Frolics," offers a case in point. This festival had the support of the most influential people in the town and it captured the interest of all classes.

One of the features of the festival was a pageant in which children participated. Somerville arranged to have these children as his guests at the Vivian Theatre at a special performance. They went to the theatre in their costumes and the theatre party therefore became one of the most important events of the pageant.

Somerville has officiated in other local affairs. He has been an earnest worker in every movement for the benefit of the town and its residents, and as a result he has earned the gratitude and the high respect of the people of Daytona Beach.

Cleveland Circle Opens Its Fall Season

The Circle theatre opens its fall season on August 21st. At this time the house policy will include Pantages vaudeville and first run feature pictures. Martin Printz continues as managing director. During the summer, the Circle has been playing revivals, changing daily. Last season the Circle theatre belonged to Warner Brothers and was operated as a combination vaudeville and picture house. The contract with Warner Brothers expires the end of August. It was not renewed, so the house reverts back to Printz and his associates.

Claims He "Discovered" Reserved Seats

RAY KERREDGE, of the Kerredge Theatre, Hancock, Mich., one of the pioneer showmen of the country, was a Milwaukee visitor this week. The claim to "discovery" of the idea of being the first theatre to reserve seats, made by certain interests in the east, is disputed by Mr. Kerredge. For the past fifteen years he has been running the Kerredge on a reserved seat basis and the theatre is famous throughout the upper Michigan peninsula for the high type of entertainment and the unusually fine management.

Clean Film Makes Clear Pictures

Lack of Proper Cleansing Equipment Largely Responsible for Blurred Presentations, Says Film Depot Executive

By Trevor Faulkner

In Charge of Film Depot, Famous Players-Lasky Corporation

(Paper presented before the Society of Motion Picture Engineers)

IN connection with a department of my firm which is concerned with the distribution of positive film, I have been interested since very early days in the production of an efficient film-cleaning machine. The machine which I am about to describe to you has been installed after much experiment and is one which very satisfactorily cleans and revitalizes dirty film.

That film should become soiled is in the nature of things. In practically all cases the projection booth is in the most remote part of the theatre, where it is seldom under the care of a janitor or porter, and in too many cases is hardly ever inspected by the manager. This means the periodical accumulation of dust and dirt till the operator is forced to have a "house cleaning." It is seldom that you will find the floor of a booth free from grit and oil, which is most harmful if the film has to be "spilled" to secure uninterrupted screen presentation during a minor accident.

Constant Flow of Dust

Again, on account of the booth being at the highest point of a theatre, and usually with an exhaust fan in it, most of the dust that arises from the constant stir of patronage is drawn into the booth and necessarily through the port holes in front of the projection machines. So much for the conditions supplying dirt.

Now let us consider our stock or ware and its handling. When positive film is first released, it is more sensitive to damage than when older, and consequently more care must be used in its handling. Regardless of any prior waxing the film may have had, to prevent this probable damage the "operator" often applies oil to the film. Then, there have been cases known where the unfortunate film runs through a continuous bath of lubricating oil. In one make of a projection machine, when the projector is tilted to fit the angle at which the light rays must be thrown to reach the screen, there is a receptacle created at the base of the mechanism that is capable of receiving and holding a sufficient amount of drainage oil to give a long lower loop a steady bath. Sometimes the film gets a constant spray or sprinkle of oil through a worn intermittent bearing. It is also customary for the operator to have a pan placed on the floor under the projector to catch the oil drip from the mechanism, and often this pan, with more or less oil in it, will also catch the ends of the film as the operator is either threading up the machine or is taking the film out of the lower magazine. You can rightfully place the blame for oil on film to one or all of these conditions, for in no other way does film ever come in contact with oil.

Motion picture film in its rapid passage through the machine may become charged by friction with static electricity which will enable it to attract and attach any dust in its vicinity. Consequently when the doors of an enclosed projector are opened or when the film is "spilled" it becomes plentifully coated with lint and dirt which it annexes permanently if there is any oil to act as a cement. Further passages through the projector rolls the mixture in until a very objectional layer coats both emulsion and base.

Wash Fluids

The projectionist is quite aware that a fine sparkling picture can only be produced from clean film; nevertheless, in too many cases the presentation is marred because he has no equipment for securing this cleanliness.

In considering cleaning machines, we have had in mind the importance of the wash fluid which is actually to do the work. It must be non-inflammable, give off no explosive or poisonous gases, and be free from any acids or alkalis that might attack the silver image, and furthermore it must be cheap. We have been fortunate enough to secure such a solution and are using it daily in our department with very satisfactory results.

At this stage we were able to enlist the co-operation of the manufacturer then making the best machine on the market. He agreed over an extended period to exploit certain of our ideas and make any changes necessary to carry them out. We are pleased to say that the experiments have resulted in a cleaning machine which really does the required work quickly and inexpensively. We find that our operators can clean twelve to fifteen reels an hour. As they come off the machine, they are handed to the inspector, the reel bands are placed in position, and the work is ready to be placed in the vaults. The output is thus about one hundred reels a day per unit.

Figures 1 and 2 show the actual machine, which is made by the Dworsky Film Machine Corporation. The film is first passed through a bath of the wash solution, contained in a trough A, about eight inches being submerged at a time. Felt brushes submerged in the liquid brush both sides of the film. The film then travels up through a series of four rubber wipers at B, suspended on a spring suspension at the same angle, which wipe the film very much in the manner that a window cleaning "squeegee" wipes the water from a freshly washed window pane. The film then passes between flannel strips fed from reels R1 and R2 and slowly driven in an opposite direction to that in which the film is traveling. The points of contact with these strips are arranged at offsetting points, so that the tension of the film is sufficient to polish it thoroughly on both sides. The film then passes through two rubber rollers at C, which simply pull the film through the machine. The film is then wound on a reel by an automatic take-up similar to the take-up on the lower magazine of a projection machine. The entire operation requires about 4½ minutes to the thousand-foot reel of film.

Filters Help

The solution tank holds approximately one quart of the cleaning fluid, which is drained off into a filter after every seventh or eighth reel. After passing through the filter, the fluid can be used as often as it is thoroughly filtered and freed from the dirt that it carries after it has cleaned the seven or eight reels. By actual measurements, this filter from a day's work of one hundred reels of film has caught 14 cubic inches of dirt.

Mr. Faulkner's experiments with the Dworsky machine resulted in one which does the required work quickly and inexpensively

I will repeat that the hopes of ultimately having available a satisfactory plant for cleaning film has been the goal toward which I have been striving for years. During these years of what you might classify as research there have been many machines considered and tested, many wash solutions analyzed, and every system with which we could come in contact investigated. Many of them have merit, and almost all of them offer in some manner a remedy for dirty film. In most instances, the plants that were investigated were operated by their owners as cleaning plants, and their business was confined to cleaning film and not to selling equipment for film cleaning. In such cases it meant the loss of time to transport film to and from our plant to theirs. This research work included a very careful study of various types of machines which were on the market and recommended for exchange use but which we found after a very careful analysis did not accomplish the result we desired.

In analyzing a machine, it is necessary to take into consideration the following pertinent factors:

First, in developing capacity, you must bear in mind the greater the speed of operation, the greater the possibilities of film damage. We have minimized damage by using large aluminum rollers with wide flanges to guide the film and by the elimination of sprockets. A gravity switch controls the motor so that, should the film break, the machine is stopped immediately. There are no buffs or fast rotating polishers to heat the film should it become stationary, and there are no sprocket teeth to injure it, or idler rollers to crease or mark it.

To summarize: We are now cleaning film, regardless of the amount of oil and dirt that there is on it, at the rate of a one thousand-foot reel in practically five minutes. Every inch of the one thousand-foot reel is entirely free from all oil and dirt, there has been no strain on the perforations in any manner, both sides of the film are polished, and this without shrinkage or damage to the tinting.

We may safely claim that film which has received such treatment is so smoothly polished on either side that, besides being clean and transparent, it is able to pass through the projector with the least possible friction and damage to itself.

Booth Ent. Acquires Three More in Tennessee

E. M. Booth, president of Booth Enterprises, Greenville, Tenn., has announced that plans are being materialized for the building of new theatres in Greenville, Newport and Sweetwater, Tenn. Booth Enterprises already have theatres at these points and have recently taken over the Grand at Lenoir City and the Moneta at Sweetwater. Other houses in the chain are the Princess and Liberty at Greenville, Lyric at Jonesboro, Gay at Newport and Jefferson at Jefferson City.

Clyde S. Jones, who has been with Booth Enterprises for some time, has been appointed manager of the recently purchased houses at Lenoir City and Sweetwater. He was recently manager of the Jefferson City theatre. Hugh Thomas has been named as booker for the circuit.

Boller Brothers Active in St. Johnsbury, Vt., Palace Almost Complete

Boller Brothers, Kansas City architects, are actively engaged in two theatre projects in New Mexico. During the latter part of August they will open bids for the construction of a Class A house seating 1400 at Albuquerque, and at Santa Fe they are planning a complete alteration of the Palace Theatre owned by Nathan Salaman.

Washington House Buys New Equipment

Armour and Kyeek, operating the new motion picture theatre at Montesano, Wash., have purchased for their projection equipment two of the latest model Powers machines equipped with Powerlite arcs.

A recent communication from John and Andrew Tegu of St. Johnsbury, Vt., states that citizens of that Vermont community are anxiously awaiting the opening of the new Palace, the premiere being scheduled for October 15.

According to Andrew Tegu, the new theatre will surpass any in the state. The auditorium is 100 feet long by 55 feet wide and the depth of the stage is 25 feet with an opening of 30 x 20. The lobby and vestibule is 85 feet in length by 17 feet wide and the front of the house is finished with cast stone. An expensive Robert Morton organ and the most comfortable type of chairs are being installed. Andrew Tegu will manage the Palace.

Outlay of $100,000 for Improvements on Proctor's Troy Theatre

IT is expected that Proctor's Theatre, on Fourth Street, now closed for repairs, will be re-opened the second week in September. It was thought that the work which was begun the 17th of July, would be finished by Labor Day, but this does not seem possible now. The improvements which are being made will cost approximately $100,000 and are the first of any magnitude that have been undertaken since the opening of the theatre in 1915.

The walls and ceiling of the lobby have been redecorated and the wood has been "remahoganized." The interior of the theatre is a mass of scaffolding arranged so that each workman has plenty of space in which to work. Foremen who specialize in the erection of scaffolding, attended to this part of the work. An idea of the amount of lumber used for this purpose can be gained from the statement that it required an entire barge to bring the scaffolding to this city from New York.

The walls of the theatre will be white with gold tracings. The whole interior will be decorated in a color scheme of white and gold. The old draperies will be replaced by new ones in soft gray and vivid old rose. Three beautiful crystal chandeliers will be suspended from the ceiling. These fixtures will be on a windlass, so that they can be raised or lowered by a person standing on the floor. New carpets, mirrors and panels will be put in the ladies' dressing and retiring room.

About forty or fifty seats are being removed on the east and west sides of the main floor, near the stage, to make room for two more boxes which are to be built on a line with the orchestra floor. The new Wurlitzer organ will be installed in the front of the theatre, directly over the boxes. This organ is one of the most up-to-date instruments available. The cost of installing it is about $30,000. The orchestra pit is being rearranged so that the entrance and exit to it is in the middle of the stage. Under the old arrangement the members of the orchestra had to traverse the entire length of the pit to reach the exit. The new arrangement will eliminate the confusion of entering and leaving and will also give additional space when it is necessary to have an augmented orchestra.

One of the features of the work and really quite a task in itself, is the rerigging of the stage. This part of the improvement may not be appreciated by the average theatre-goer, but it will be welcomed by those who handle the scenery. Under the old system of scenery shifting two men remained on the floor of the stage while another pair climbed to the top of the stage. The latter two were forced to perform stunts worthy of trapeze performers while the scenery was moved. The new system, which is called the Clark counterweight system, eliminates this because all scenery can be shifted from the floor of the stage. A new vacuum system for cleaning the rugs will be installed on the stage also.

The theatre, when re-opened, will present a charming and artistic interior to its patrons.

Fox's New Savoy, Brooklyn, to Hold Premiere During August

WILLIAM FOX will dedicate a monumental edifice of amusement when he officially opens his new and most magnificent Savoy Theatre on Bedford Avenue at Lincoln Place, Brooklyn, the latter part of this month devoted exclusively to the proper presentation of the highest class of screen productions interwoven with vaudeville of the better grade, together with comedy subjects, Fox News Events, Cartoons, Educational features and many other cinema innovations.

The aggressiveness, vision and industry of William Fox has made possible for the amusement loving public of that borough, one of the most modern, pretentious, luxurious and most completely equipped theatre of the present day. This latest addition to the extensive chain of Fox playhouses will take a position of eminence among the marvels of the super theatre construction.

Especially thought and attention will be exerted to the comfort of its patrons. It will have a seating capacity of 2,500. The decorations and furnishings throughout the auditorium together with the blending and harmonizing of its beautiful lighting effects will create an atmosphere productive of relaxation of both mind and body.

The great Kimball Organ contains the full instrumentation of a symphony orchestra as well as a syncopation combination and will be under the control of a well-known organist of this circuit who will bring into use individually and collectively each and every instrument represented, weaving solos, counter melodies and accompaniments into a manner that its tremendous appeal will prove a delight to music lovers of Brooklyn.

During the course of the current season, William Fox will present the screen version of many notable Broadway stage successes.

Under the personal supervision of General Manager John Zauf, elaborate preparations are now well under way for a gala and memorable premiere performance which will be attended by famous stage and screen stars, theatrical and motion picture producers and a number of prominent State and City officials.

Karzas Starts Wrecking of Woodlawn Theatre

Andrew Karzas started the wrecking of the Woodlawn Theatre Building, 63rd and Woodlawn Avenue a week ahead of schedule. As previously announced, one of the largest theatres in the United States will rise on the site of the old house and additional property recently acquired by Mr. Karzas, which includes an entire block, fronting on 63rd Street and bounded by Maryland and Drexel avenues. The new building is to be twelve stories high and contain, in addition to the theatre, stores, offices and a five-hundred room hotel. C. Howard Crane and Charles H. Bettis are the designers of the new Woodlawn, which it is said, will contain 4500 seats and will have an area greater than Roxy's Theatre in New York City. The design is to be Persian. One of the impressive features of the house will be the grand entrance lobby, eighty feet high and two hundred and fifty feet long, flanked by columns of travertine marble eight feet in diameter. A separate foyer will be provided to take care of the exits. The offices of Mr. Karzas and the Woodlawn Theatre Company, have been removed from the Woodlawn Theatre, 855 E. 63rd Street to 32 W. Randolph Street. The new telephone number is Central 3274.

Rebuilding Lyric Theatre Booneville, Mo.

The Lyric Theatre of Booneville, Mo., formerly of the Sears Circuit, and now a Universal house, is now undergoing extensive repairs, renovation and alteration. The entire floor elevation is being changed and steel girders being built in.

Also the house is to get new seats throughout, a new organ, new carpets and drapes and other improvements. The program of renovation will necessitate closing the house for several weeks. When it is reopened it will vie measurably with recently built theatres. The construction and redecorating work will total more than $50,000.

Announce Plans on Theatre at Crystal Lake

Specifications for the United Studio's new theatre at Crystal Lake, Ill., have been announced, according to W. E. Carson, the local realtor, who has been largely instrumental with bringing the enterprise to a head.

The cost of the building will be approximately $200,000 and the design of the exterior and interior will be done in Spanish style architecture. In addition to a 1000-seat theatre, the building will house five stores and eleven suites of offices.

William Fox, president of Fox Films Corporation, will officially dedicate the opening of the new Savoy Theatre, Bedford Ave. and Lincoln Place, Brooklyn, when this fine playhouse opens its doors the latter part of August

Koletis Repairing Tivoli at Monmouth, Ill.

The Tivoli Theatre, at Monmouth, Ill., operated by John Koletis, is at present undergoing extensive repairs and the addition of several new items of up-to-date equipment such as a cooling system, new scenery and velvet curtains. Vaudeville will also be added to the program. Mr. Koletis also operates the Bijou at Monmouth.

Perfect Projection First in This Theatre

B. H. TRUMBULL, owner and manager of the Liberty and new Palace theatres, in St. Petersburg, Fla., says, "When I built the Palace I figured first on having perfect projection, and then the comfort and entertainment of my patrons." So the motto of the Trumbull houses, "Perfect Picture Projection," is used in connection with all their advertising.

The picture published in this issue shows a corner of the projection room of the new Palace. The booth is constructed of steel and concrete and furnished with every practical form of ventilation. The battery of machines are shown, together with Cecil Fernandez, who is the supervisor of projection in this theatre as well as the Liberty and Euclid.

Besides the machines shown in the picture, the equipment includes a stereopticon, spotlight, and fireproof re-wind with film cabinet and stand. The Palace has been in operation about two months now and they are enjoying excellent patronage.

Five Illinois Theatres Well Under Way

Although changes in building plans somewhat delayed the start on construction of Balaban & Katz' new theatre at Kankakee, Ill., part of an Illinois building program by B. & K. of five motion picture theatres, foundation work is now well under way.

The building, designed by Hooper and Jansch of Chicago, will seat 1200 to 1500 and will contain a number of novel features; one of them will be a parking room for baby carriages. The interior will be of antique finish.

Other Illinois cities where B. & K. are building houses are: Decatur, Joliet, Danville and Wankegan.

Irvin to Spend $40,000 On Bloomington House

According to an announcement by Clarence E. Irvin, who operates the Majestic Theatre at Bloomington, Ill., $40,000 will be spent during the month of August in the way of improvements for the house. Heading the list is a new Barton organ said to be the largest in central Illinois. A Sturdevant cooling system and an entire new layout of scenery will also be included among the betterments. At present the house is being completely overhauled by decorators. The Majestic will reopen during the latter part of August.

Optics, Electricity, Practical Ideas & advice

Inquiries and Comments

Generator Capacity for Mirror Arc

OME time ago we received an inquiry from Wm. R. Pattie, Frankfort, Ky., concerning the proper size generator to use with a reflector are outfit for use on a throw of 115-140 feet.

His letter is as follows:

"Dear Sir:

"Will you please advise me what amperage Hertner Transverter to purchase for supplying current to a new reflector are on a Powers Projector.

"I have already received some advice on this but am a little in doubt as to what my advisors claim is the proper size for this throw.

"I recently closed a deal whereby I take over the new $250,000 (leased) Montgomery Theatre, in Spartanburg, S.C., which is very up to date and modern in every respect. This house has a seating capacity of 1,500.

"I would appreciate your advice on the Transverter."

Projection Distance Medium

A projection distance of 115-140 feet, Friend Pattie, is considered medium these days, so that a 20 ampere reflector are should provide all the screen illumination desired.

Hertner Transverters, for Mirror Arc service, are made in two sizes, double 20, and double 30. It is our recommendation that you use the double 20 since a reflector are operating at from 18-20 amperes will provide an intensity of approximately 10 foot candles on the screen at a distance of about 125 feet. This is ample for comfortable viewing of motion pictures, and indeed, an intensity of 7 or 8 foot candles would still be sufficient.

In view of this, we would advise the use of a double 20 Transverter and its operation at about 18 amperes. This would leave some slight reserve for stepping up the screen illumination in case it was deemed advisable.

Hertner Transverters, by the way, are designed to carry the arcs of both projectors in series without the use of a special ballast resistance for stabilization of the arc. This company lays claim to be the pioneer of this type of generator for motion picture projection, since they produced the first series machine early in 1915. It is now made in eight sizes designed for operation on any ordinary voltage, frequency and phase.

Series Versus Parallel Operation

There has been, and still is, for that matter, considerable argument as to whether a series generator or multiple generator is the proper thing to use for motion picture projection.

As far as the actual projection of motion picture is concerned, we believe that little can be said concerning the advantages which one form possesses over the other. Both give thoroughly satisfactory results, and this is attested to by the fact that no one type greatly predominates over the other.

There is a distinct difference, however, in the general flexibility of the two machines, since with the series type the same current flows through every device connected in the generator circuit, whereas with the multiple type each electrical device takes only the current necessary for the operation of that device.

Thus, if it was desired to use 50 amperes for movie projection supplied by a series type generator, then all auxiliary devices such as spot-flood lamps, Brenkert effect projector, etc., would also have to draw 50 amperes. With the multiple generator the projection arcs might take 50 amperes each, the spot lamp 40 amperes and the Brenkert effect projector, say, 35 amperes.

A Flexible Projector

Of course, it is not supposed that both picture projectors, spot lamps and Brenkert effect projectors would all be in operation at the same time and in this sense the above is merely intended as an example. It is, however, becoming common practice for superimposing appropriate cut-out projections on the titles of motion picture films, as for instance, a cut-out of a ship sailing the seas projected on top of the titles of a marine film.

Furthermore, the Brenkert projector is also designed for use as a spot-flood lamp, and a double-dissolving stereopticon. So it behooves the exhibitor and projectionist to consider this fact when choosing the generator.

In a nut-shell, the difference between the series and multiple types of generators can be expressed as follows: When current is confined to the motion picture projectors or other apparatus of the same ampere capacity, the series type is claimed to be the most satisfactory machine to use, and where a number of electrical devices of differing current capacities are to be used, the multiple type is the only thing which will operate satisfactorily.

Mirror Arc Generators Available

As stated before, the Hertner Transverter is available in two principal sizes—a double 20, which has a range of from 10 to 20 amperes, and a double 30, which has a range of from 20 to 30 amperes.

The highest amperage which can be used in connection with a reflector are is just about 30 amperes, since it is uneconomical and, indeed, impracticable to use currents much in excess of this figure.

The operation of these generators is exactly the same as that of the older form of Transverter used with the condenser are and it is so designed that when one are is in operation the other can be struck, the projector started and the first projector stopped without the change-over being noticed on the screen.

As mentioned before, no ballast resistance is required with this form of generator (series) since the generator is self-correcting as far as proper are voltage is concerned. It generates only sufficient voltage to operate the arc.

The Transverter for reflector are service is the same, mechanically, as the standard sizes with the single exception that in the smaller sizes, a two bearing mounting is used. There is no difference whatever in the electrical design of the two classes of machines.

It is so designed and constructed that the current remains constant whether one are at, say, 55 volts is operating, or two are in series at 110 volts are working.

The Hertner control panel "A" is regularly supplied with these generators.

Wehrenberg Announces New St. Louis House

A modern fireproof theatre building with stores and apartments adjoining will be built on Grand Boulevard between Maramee and Klock streets by Fred Wehrenberg, who now owns the Melba, Cherokee, Michigan, Ivory, Marguerite and Lidel Theatres in South St. Louis.

The theatre will occupy the rear part of the lot, covering a site 72 feet wide and 150 feet long and will include a full-sized stage, with dressing rooms, etc. The auditorium will seat 1,500 persons on the first floor and 750 in the balcony. There will be lounging spaces, a foyer and rest rooms for the accommodation of the public. Entrance will be on Grand Boulevard through an arcade.

Newspaper Opinions on New Pictures

"With Lieut. Com. Byrd, U. S. N., in America's Polar Triumph"
—Pathe, Warners,
New York City

World: "Somewhere in today's report, and it may as well be here, mention must be made of the exciting motion picture views made by Lieut. Com. Byrd, the North Pole flyer. These were seen at Warner's Theatre, and are under the control of the Pathe Company.

"I am sure that these represent the most impressive and most interesting of all news reels which I have seen, since they do reproduce the actual flights to and around the Pole. While in a position direct over the top of the world the aviator turned the eye of the camera downward into the calm, ice-crusted waters below and photographed the place. Added to these are scenes showing the getaway of the plane, sections of the forbidding white mountains and snowdrifts over which the airmen passed in their dash. Outlying theatres will present these pictures within the next few weeks. Make sure to see them."

"The Devil Horse"—Pathe, Warners, New York City

World: "The Devil Horse," Pathe's latest Hal Roach feature production presenting Rex, the beautiful black stallion also came in for a goodly share of the praise on the part of Quinn Martin of the World, his review of which ran as follows: "The amazing 'intelligence' exhibited by Rex, the big black horse actor, in 'The Devil Horse' at Warner's indicates again the importance of painstaking direction, camera work and as-sembling or, as we say in the cinema, 'cutting' of the subject. Nor will this spectacle of an animal acting as if he had good sense provide any special joy for those human players of the screen who find it beyond them to register understandable emotions. Every picture of Rin-Tin-Tin and Rex, may after all, serve to the benefit of us all, since one day the boys and girls who fail to express anything at all in their performances may find the task too filled with this type of humiliating competition to go on.

"If a horse and a dog can do it, and I can't, let us hope they may, in time, fall to thinking, 'I guess it's about time for me to quit and leave the field clear to those who find at least a little success in the business.'"

"But, 'The Devil Horse,' edited and titled by a man who knew how to write action into pictures, and so arranged as to make the utmost of the illusion that Rex knew what it was all about, seemed to me to be smart work. This is a good picture play and it is not good merely on the ground that it is novelty."

"Les Miserables"—Universal, Carnegie Hall, New York City

Daily News: "'Les Miserables' is a magnificent picture with some of the finest acting on the part of at least eight members of the large cast that any picture has contained. The most impressive characterizations are given by Gabriel Gabrio as Valjean, little Andree Rolane as the child Cosette, Mme. Renee Carl as La Thenardier, M. G. Sailard as Thenardier, Mme. Sandra Milowanoff as Fantine and Paul Jorge as Mgr. Myriel. Charles Radiole as the street gamin. Gavroche gives an excellent and touching portrayal. The photography, as has been noted in commenting upon other foreign films, is of the best, surpassing much that we see in this country."

Sun: "Though many impressive foreign motion pictures have been exhibited in this country in the last two or three years, few of them have carried with them so compelling a conviction of fidelity to an old art and craftsmanship in a new one as the French motion picture version of Victor Hugo's 'Les Miserables,' the picture is more than a spectacle. It makes vital for another generation the great story of redemption that Victor Hugo wrote."

Times: "An ambitious French film translation of Victor Hugo's immortal classic, 'Les Miserables,' was presented last night at Carnegie Hall before an invited audience which included many distinguished persons. The feature was prefaced by a fascinating prologue in which the principal characters of the story were introduced in the flesh, while at a table sat an actor impersonating the author. The outstanding performances are given by Gabriel Gabrio and little Andree Roland, who figure, respectively, as Jean Valjean and Cosette as a child. Jean Toulbout is also impressive in the role of the haunting Javert. Throughout the narrative it is obvious that Henri Fescourt, the producer, has endeavored to reflect most faithfully the work of the author, and in this he is materially assisted by M. Gabrio's earnest performance. The costumes and the detail of the stage settings have been for the most part reproduced in a way which could only be done in France by her native sons."

Definite demand

More and more definite is the popular demand for pictures that are photographically right on the screen. Quality must be there.

When the picture is printed on Eastman Positive Film you know in advance that it will be there—the film carries quality through to the screen.

It takes but a moment to check up—look in the film margin for the black-lettered identification, “Eastman” and “Kodak”.

Sure There's a Lot of Noise— Have Eyes, Haven't You?

Selling pictures is tougher than it was a year ago.

The number of theatres is increasing, but the number of buyers isn't.

They're decreasing.

There's a fight on for playing time.

Competition has reached the point where every man with film to sell is carrying a knife between his teeth.

Every man will tell you his company has the pictures.

The noise is terrific.

But you have eyes.

See for yourself.

Look 'em over,—features, short comedies and all the rest. That's the surest way of getting the cream, and that's the kind you've got to have if you want to flourish like the green bay tree.

Even if you have the pick of the features lined up for 1926-1927,—that doesn't let you out. You've got to have the pick of the short comedies too.

But You

Laughter is the most profitable thing you can sell your audiences.

Because a two reel picture is labelled "comedy" doesn't mean that it is one.

Laughs make a comedy. It takes genius to create laughs.

Mack Sennett is a comedy genius.

It's a very easy thing to get your local Pathe exchange to show you all the Sennett comedies you have time to see,— Ben Turpin, Mack Sennetts, Alice Days and The Smith Series

We don't have to tell you they're the pick of the two reel comedies. Your eyes will tell you that.

Forget the noise. Use your eyes.

JOHN FORD Production

"A wow from beginning to end!"

says Fred Shader in VARIETY, and goes on:

There are scenes in it as effective as the wagon train in the "The Covered Wagon," and the thousands in the mad race across country when the government lands are open to the public is bigger than anything of its kind that has been shown in a picture. . . . John Ford, who directed, has turned out a special in the fullest sense of the word—a picture that certainly will be a winner at the box office of the picture houses. —This is a super-western and every bit as big as the "The Iron Horse."

"One of the great thrills of the screen!"

says William A. Johnston editorially in the MOTION PICTURE NEWS. He continues:

The camera's sweep gives the impression of a mile-long line of closely packed wagons, horses, men, women and children—raring to go to the gold fields. Fifteen thousand extras were employed, say the Fox press sheets. For the first time in press sheet history the number seemed underestimated. This picture is confidentially said to have cost $800,000. John Ford spent a year at it. . . . It has bigness, beauty, dramatic power and enthralling interest.

"Bigger than The IRON HORSE!"

says John S. Spargo in EXHIBITORS HERALD, and further:

It is safe to say that this is the most ambitious and costly Western that has yet been put on the screen. The sets are not only massive, but artistic to the extreme, and the whole production abounds in beautiful and remarkable photography. . . . The entire story of the three bad men who turned good for the protection of a lone girl and her sweetheart is pictured with unusually fast action, and there is never a dull moment.

"We heartily recommend it as a money maker!"

says Arthur James in MOTION PICTURES TODAY:

If "The Iron Horse" was a great picture then "3 Bad Men" is a tremendous picture. . . . It makes good on all the sales promises that Jimmy Grainger made, and suits everybody concerned.

CASTS

Names like Earle Foxe, Florence Gilbert, Allan Forrest, Kathryn Perry and Arthur Housman, George Harris, Gladys McConnell and Lige Conley mean something at the ticket window. Fox Comedies are as carefully cast as the big Fox Giant Specials.

Exhibitors the world over acknowledge Fox short subjects are the last word in quality entertainment. Exactly the same care and attention that are given to feature pictures are centered upon the production of Fox shorts. They are gems in Tiffany settings.

Fast action is the keynote of Fox comedies. Whether they are based on stories by O. Henry and Richard Harding Davis or on originals by Comedy Chief Marshall's competent crew, speed is of the essence. Fox Comedies step right along, and there's a laugh a minute.

New stunts, new gags and fresh titles fill Fox comedies with real mirth. No custard pies, slapstick and antequated alleged comedy gags. The result is a full schedule of ingenious, unusual and sparkling fun pictures.

Beautiful girls and opulent settings give Fox Comedies their full measure of beauty. Cameramen are searching the world for beautiful subjects to be transferred to the screen in Fox News and Fox Varieties. Locations, stories and direction all are treated from the showmanship angle and are as seriously treated as though each "little giant of the screen" were to be the biggest feature ever released.

Mergers

A PRODUCER-DISTRIBUTOR executive, with whom I talked last week, was bitter in his denunciation of the buying tactics of large chains of theatres.

"The long and short of it is this," said he: "they are buying pictures at such unfairly low prices, that virtually they are enabled to purchase more theatres with the producer-distributor's money. That's what it amounts to."

Whether we accept this radical conclusion or not, the fact remains that serious cuts are being made today in the prices offered by the larger aggregations of theatres. If the prices are too low to permit a producer-distributor profit, then, assuredly, there is something to think about!

When theatres began to chain up in a large and general way, about two years ago, I discussed the matter at length with one of those most prominent in the chain movement. He cited the increased advantages in the way of efficient management and increased public service, all of which points were beyond argument.

I ventured, however, the opinion that if this association of buying power were used, in sledge-hammer fashion, to put rental prices down to where picture quality and even quantity were threatened, that the result would be bad.

He agreed and said that prices would not be cut. But apparently they are being cut.

* * *

Theatres have always gone along as if picture production was a sort of artesian well from which a steady flow was automatic and to be expected.

Suppose the flow dries up? What value has the billion dollar investment in picture theatres?

Or, suppose, the flow becomes pinched? Suppose pictures get worse instead of better. What then is to happen to the millions of cash going constantly into higher class seats for higher class patronage?

It's a serious enough question to put to any progressive theatre owner.

* * *

The pinching process put upon producer-distributors will result, first of all, in mergers. Protective alliances.

And mergers will put the control of picture making in very few hands, the same hands, of course, which also own theatres.

If that is what the theatres want they are going to get it.

What it means is this: that theatre control will bring about picture control. And then it is pretty easy to see picture control and theatre control in the same hands.

All of which may be economic. Distribution costs will be greatly lessened; and production will have an assured theatre market. And certainly we need economies.

But the important question—the all important question—still remains: what about the public? How about the public market?

That's the big market to consider. Will our production forces continue to expand, so that in turn we will hold and increase the public patronage? That's the one big question underlying the entire industry. It is the first and foremost concern of every theatre, every chain of theatres, and last, but not least, the producer-distributor who also owns theatres.

Speaking Editorially

THIS week's editorial on press book bunk is contributed by Roy W. Adams, of the Pastime Theatres, in Mason and Williamston, Mich. Mr. Adams presents the view of the exhibitor in the small town and what he has to say is very much to the point:

"Your editorial, with comments by Mr. Malaney, of Loew's Ohio Theatres, on press book bunk, is very interesting, but why does Mr. Malaney imagine that the average press book is any more useful in a small town than a large one?"

"I am operating theatres in two towns of less than two thousand population each, and I'm in personal touch with a large percentage of my patrons. What they ask me personally about coming attractions, and what I try to tell them in my newspaper stories each week, is this: Who are the players (and who is the author, if he is a popular writer) and is it a good, clean, lively, amusing and entertaining story?"

* * *

IF I have seen the picture I tell them what I know about it; if not, then I painfully sift the bushels of chaff in the press book in the hope of gleaning a grain of truth about the picture, and usually end by throwing the press book away, and looking up the review of the picture in MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

"I want to hit off each picture in about 200 words, and about once in a hundred times (and this is no exaggeration) I find something in the press book that will serve without alteration, and occasionally a catchline that is descriptive, and is sensible enough to appeal to persons of judgment, so that it is of value in an advertisement.

"My people don't care who punched the sprocket holes, or who watered the camera man. Also, I maintain that it's a grave crime against our art for press stories to reveal technical secrets of production, and so destroy a picture's illusion of reality, instead of maintaining it."

* * *

THOMAS A. EDISON'S views on the future of the industry are set forth in The Exhibitor, of Philadelphia, and contain a forecast by the famous inventor of what may be expected in the next thirty years. The article is by Fred Sully, associate editor of The Exhibitor and Philadelphia correspondent of MOTION PICTURE NEWS. Mr. Sully writes:

"Looking into the future—and there are few who will deny that Mr. Edison's foresight is almost prophetic—he sees and predicts many important changes in the development of the motion picture in the next thirty years. The time will come when the public will see a motion picture of full stage size. It will require a larger film, a larger machine, and will bring out every detail that the present film does not encompass. There will, of course, be a greater expenditure involved in making a picture of this type, but the people will be willing to pay more for it. Perhaps it may not survive long, but someone will introduce it as a specialty. It may not be practical, but Mr. Edison sees in it one of the next important steps in the development of the motion picture.

"In the radio-movie, which has come in for some share of publicity within the last year or so, Mr. Edison sees no great possibilities as an agent for entertainment. It does not seem to have those qualities that retain public interest, and does not further seem to admit of conversion to general and practical uses. The cost will be apart and away from the pocketbooks of the masses, and there will be that same disillusionment that was characteristic of the talking motion picture and very largely accounted for its lack of popularity in this country."

CONTINUING his summary of Mr. Edison's views, Mr. Sully says: "A man who, being both of the masses and of the classes, he has studied the public reaction to the photoplay, and sees that it is the 25 to 40 cent shows that suit the pocketbook of the masses. He sees their growing appreciation of what is well done, and because of this the cheap and tawdry will before long be eliminated.

"The projection angle of the picture, he has seen improve. Color photography has been introduced; the flickering and eye strain have been eliminated; film may now be obtained in abundance, and the first thirty years have been replete with changes and improvements. In the next thirty years, too, there will be equally as important innovations because the motion picture is the object of too much study and research to remain stagnant or to retrogress."

AN EDITOR ON BROADWAY

The Week in Review By William A. Johnston

past few days such plays as Selwyn's "Adorable Liar," Owen Davis' new thriller "The Donovan Affair," and Florence Moore's "She Couldn't Say No," have opened there just preceding the New York premieres. The audiences include New York's leading producers, professionals and critics.

PASSING through the Hays' offices last week, I saw tables piled high with press clippings and a lot of girls feverishly at work filing and pasting them in large scrap-books. Many were full-page advertisements. Texas was to the fore, among the states. All in all, it was literally a deluge of publicity. Looks like the "Greater Movie Season" has been established as an institution. Jerry Beatty deserves a lot of credit.

D. W. Griffith's next big one will be "The White Slave," the famous Bartlett-Campbell stage melodrama which D. W. has had in mind for several years. It will set forth a great chapter in this country's earlier history and evolve a climax that will transcend the thrilling finish of "Way Down East."

VALENTINO'S death has created, strange to say, a tremendous spur to Valentino's pictures. We leave the reasons therefor to the psychologists. And we apologize to ourselves for a commercial discussion of so pathetic an event. But the fact remains, and it is an important trade matter, that not only the late release, "The Son of the Sheik," but earlier pictures are in demand and the public interest is great.

This breaks another tradition of the box office. The death of a star heretofore has always and immediately hurt.

Valentino was evidently a symbol and the symbol does not pass. How long the popular interest will hold, the box office alone can tell. Let us hope and strive that it will last for long, not only in behalf of a valiant character, but for the sake of motion pictures.

The proposition that a striking memorial to Valentino be established is an excellent one from every angle and deserves universal support.

Two big mergers are on the fire downtown, where men gather around the long tables in the bankers' marble palaces. When I asked a Wall Street man just what was to be accomplished, he said: "Mergers!"

THIS week marked the opening of America's most famous playhouse, the New York Hippodrome, as a continuous performance, first-run house for P.D.C. This house is understood to seat nearly 6,500 persons, making it a force to be reckoned within the first-run situation. In addition to P.D.C. features the house will have each week a program of regular Keith vaudeville. The scale is 25 and 35 cents for matinees and 25 to 50 cents at night, with the house open from noon to 11 P.M.

The new policy was instituted by Mark A. Luescher, general director of the house on Monday and got off to a remarkable start. The house was filled by 1:30 P.M. and continued so all day. Five first-rate Keith vaudeville acts were presented, together with the feature, "Young April," making it a real entertainment bargain.

The experiment will be watched with great interest, and may have considerable effect on the presentation situation. Meanwhile P.D.C. is assured of an adequate first-run at all times in New York City.

COLUMBIA Pictures is moving right along. "The Lone Wolf Returns" is clicking at the box office. As an example, the picture grossed $16,500 the week of August 14 at the California Theatre, San Francisco, breaking the house's weekly average of $10,000—and against very strong opposition at other theatres.

Columbia's other product, we hear, is of like unquestioned value. The company is going ahead very successfully along the line of nationalizing its distribution. It has made, without question, remarkable strides in the last two years, under the direction of its founders, Joe Brandt, Jack and Harry Cohn.

EDUCATIONAL, by the way, last week showed other subjects in conjunction with "Blue Boy"—all of them excellent. The Christie Studios contributed "Uppercuts" to the program; Lloyd Hamilton appeared in "Jolly Talk"; and there was a "Big Boy" comedy which revealed the child actor as likely to go far in the affection of audiences.

Robert C. Bruce contributed some excellent scenics. And the other numbers were very good indeed. The program, as a whole, would, in our opinion, stand on its own feet in a theatre, from a box-office viewpoint.

FOLLOWING the striking success of the Vitaphone, now comes another device from the associated workshops of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender and General Electric Companies. It is the invention of Charles Stone, an executive engineer of the G. E. The device has been tried out, just recently, in several neighborhood theatres in the metropolitan section.

It begins to look as if we might, in time, have a roster of companies in this connection as imposing as those of the picture world.

We prophesied in MOTION PICTURE NEWS that Vitaphone marked a new and great epoch in picture theatre history. Every day, almost, it seems more certain that our prophecy was right.

Warners have the lead with the Vitaphone—a big one. Several years of laboratory work have been devoted to perfecting it; Warners have already added several improvements to be patented. But also—they are making heavy invasions in the musical and show world.

They have the stars of the Metropolitan and Chicago Opera Companies and the Victor Company. Every week adds new names from Broadway, the latest acquisitions being Al Jolson, Reinald Werrenrath, the Howards, George Jessel and Womrath's band.

"But," says Sam Warner, "we don't consider ourselves especially appointed and anointed for this great task. It's a huge job. All we hope is that competition will be of the highest order."

Warner's Theatre, by the way, is selling out right along with "Don Juan" and the Vitaphone. The capacity is $29,000 a week, with $2.20 top for matinees and $3.30 for the evenings.

Irving Lesser's Great Neck playhouse is already the topnotch try-out theatre of the New York show world. Within the

PICTURES AND PEOPLE

MY STARS!

ASTERISKS aplenty popped out of the hat at the last two weekly sessions of the National Board of Review, no fewer than eleven of the little merit stars finding their way to the producers' report cards. Alphabetically considered, the first is "Alaskan Adventures," a 6-reel Pathe travel picture. Then comes "The Amateur Gentleman," the latest Barthelmess vehicle for First National; "Gigolo," the P. D. C. picture with Rod La Rocque in the role of the cake-eater who reforms; "One Minute to Play," the initial celluloid opus of Red Grange for F. B. O.; "Three Bad Men," the Fox Films special of the Dakota gold land rush; "The Waltz Dream," the Ufa production distributed here by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer; "The Blue Boy," second of the Romance productions, done in technicolor and based on famous paintings, for Educational release; and the remaining four asterisks go to Pathe Review Nos. 31, 32, 33 and 34.

Joan Meredith, one of the 1926 Wampas Baby stars, who has been chosen as Bill Cody's leading lady in his next Association film

Robert T. Kane, producing for First National release, who has just completed a special production, "The Prince of Tempters"

MASTBAUM RETURNS

JULES E. MASTBAUM, president of the Stanley Company of America, about whose Rodin collection we have spoken here frequently, returned last week on the Majestic, together with such celebrities as Doug and Mary, Morris Gest, Constance Talmadge, Helen Menken and Krishnamurti. Mastbaum returned full of enthusiasm for the Rodiniana which he will house in a special museum in Philadelphia, ground for which will be broken on October 1. Thanks to the many pieces obtained on this last trip, the Mastbaum collection will present 245 examples in bronze and marble of the sculptor's work. Mr. Mastbaum denies emphatically that there is any pronounced feeling against Americans in France, citing

George Archainbaud, directing for First National, who is now at work at Burbank on his next picture, "Men of the Dawn," soon to be completed

Hunt Stromberg, M-G-M official, now making "The Fire Brigade," "A Certain Young Man" and "The Mysterious Island" for that firm

Colleen Moore, First National star, cycling around the lot at Burbank in her costume and make-up for "Twinkletoes," her next production, now in work

Svend Gade, Danish director, who is now completing "The Blonde Saint" on the West Coast, a Sam Rork production, for First National

June Mathis (centre), producer and supervisor, Balboni, director, and Einar Hanson, leading man, entertain Mrs. Mary M. Spalding and Grace Kingsley, during filming of "The Masked Woman," First National

Now and then a combination of story, director and players proves particularly happy. Such was the case with Columbia's "The Lone Wolf Returns." Here we have Billie Dove, Director Ralph Ince and Bert Lytell in proof of this the many gifts to him of priceless Rodin letters and drawings, and the remarkable co-operation extended to him in every way in his plans for the Philadelphia Rodin Musee, which will be a duplicate of the original at Meudon, in France.

THE BASHFUL "RED"

WHEN "One Minute to Play" opens at the New York Colony Theatre on Sunday, the shy young star, "Red" Grange, will be on hand, Charley Pyle having persuaded him to leave the ice business of Wheaton in other hands long enough to make a flying trip to New York for the occasion. Plans are under way for an elaborate luncheon for Grange, to be held on Saturday, attended by football celebrities, sports writers, the press and leading members of the celluloid industry.

"ROUGH RIDERS" OFF

SHOOTING began last week at San Antonio, Texas, on "The Rough Riders," and the city of San Antonio fairly outdid itself in welcoming the Paramount Company. A prominent delegation met the special train, and a military ball was held on the evening of the first day in honor of the event. Scenes to be shot at San Antonio include the training of the Rough Riders at the old fair grounds, as it took place 28 years ago.

"ROSIE" BROADCAST

RADIO fans will have good reason to know that Columbia Pictures has filmed a screen romance based on "Sweet Rosie O'Grady." Station KFQZ, Hollywood, is putting on a series of Rosie O'Grady Nights, the first of which, held recently, included "appearances" by Shirley Mason, Cullen Landis and Harry Cohn, and the playing of the song as it would be played in different countries.

F. N. OFFICIALS BACK

ROBERT LIEBER, president of First National, General Manager Richard A. Rowland and Mrs. Florence Strauss, scenario chief, have returned to New York from the dedication of the new studio at Burbank, Calif. With them was Charles R. Rogers, producing the Ken Maynard Westerns for First National, who will return to the Coast in a few days.

MISS CONGO

BEN BURBRIDGE'S captive gorilla, Miss Congo, caught while making "The Gorilla Hunt" in Africa, has been entertaining distinguished company at her home in Jacksonville, Fla. Prof. Robert M. Yerkes of the Institute of Psychology, Yale, has spent the past six weeks studying her mental reactions. She will make personal appearances with the picture.

The building which will house all First National directors at the new studios at Burbank, Cal., giving them unusually convenient office facilities and freedom from interruption and interference with other departments

Jerome N. Wilson, whose original story, "It Could have Happened," has been purchased by First National for a Colleen Moore production, and Agnese "Pat" McKenna (Mrs. Wilson), who will novelize it. Both are the authors of numerous successful stories. Wilson is a former newspaperman

THE WARNER ANNIVERSARY

SAM E. MORRIS, Warner Bros. distribution chief, returned from his vacation at Schroon Lake this week, and left the same day for Toronto to meet Harry M. Warner, from where the two were to go on to Youngstown, Ohio, for the golden-wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Warner, parents of the Warner brothers. All of the boys will be assembled at Youngstown, including also Sam and Albert from New York, Jack from Hollywood and Dave from Chicago, while three daughters, Mrs. Harry Charnas, of Cleveland; Mrs. Milton Robbins, of Youngstown, and Mrs. Edward Hepler, of Niles, will be present. A family dinner at the Ohio hotel will be followed by a public reception.

"THE VISION" SCORES

DAVID J. LUSTIG, as managing director, opened the new Mecca Theatre, 14th Street and Avenue A, New York City, last Friday night with a varied program on which was featured "The Vision." We were particularly interested in seeing this subject before an audience of plain, everyday folks, to see if we were right in our contention that "The Vision" is not a "highbrow" subject (whatever that is), but would appeal to any audience. We were right, in this instance at least, for the short subject was the applause hit of the show. Lustig backed it up well, giving it special musical treatment, marquee and lobby prominence, and every exploitation and presentation aid.

P CULTIVATED HIS MOTHER-IN-LAW

PHIL KAHN, exploitation director for New England Film Productions, Inc., with offices in Boston, has been invading New York recently on business—presumably but not positively. For two years he was publicity man in Boston for Preferred Pictures. It was he who conceived the idea of a mother-in-law's day for moving pictures and got the approval of Mrs. Goodhue, mother of President Coolidge's wife. The Metro and Universal companies had this tactful young man on their payroll for several years, either because of his canniness in paying tribute to that ordinarily unesteemed relation, or despite it.

NOTES IN PASSING

OUR own J. S. Dickerson is out of the hospital, after an attack of pneumonia, and is convalescing at home. He will be back at his desk at the NEWS about October 1, or a little later. . . . Robert T. Kane is out of the hospital. An attack of typhoid was feared, but did not develop. . . . Joe Brandt, threatened with pneumonia, is convalescing at home and will be back at his office in a week or so. . . . Rex Ingram has arrived from France, and has made himself inaccessible to interviewers while he discusses terms of his contract with Merto-Goldyn officials. He has two still to make for them, but there seems to be a difference of opinion as to whether he will make them abroad. . . . Jack Conway, M-G-M director, and Virginia Bushman, daughter of Francis Xavier, has announced their

A FILM DINING ROOM

CHARLES G. SNYDER, former advertising manager of The Morning Telegraph, is now representative for the Manger hotels. He wishes his friends to know that the new Hotel Manger, at 50th and Seventh Avenue, New York City, will have a beautiful dining-in the north wing where film men may gather as of yore at Rectors. Although he does not say so, we presume that tableclothes will be furnished with rows of ciphers woven into the fabric to simplify the million dollar calculations performed on them.

F. P. A. TO THE RESCUE

ANENT the publicity given to Valentino's illness and death by the newspapers of New York and the rest of the country and the riot scenes staged near his temporary resting place Franklin P. Adams, the well-known columnist who conducts The Conning Tower in the New York World over the initials F. P. A., has this to say:

"The deplorers are at it again. They say they can't see why all this fuss should have been made about Valentino's illness, and why such great crowds gather in the vicinage of his bier. If it were otherwise, it seems to us, it might be time to ask whither we are drifting and what is becoming of the formerly human race. Valentino appealed to the emotions of millions of people; to millions he gave a great romantic, emotional thrill—vicarious in most instances, but no less potent on that account.

"As to the newspaper space given to Valentino's death compared with that devoted to former President Eliot's, it may be said that nothing could be more obviously sound journalism. Our guess is that to one who ever heard of Mr. Eliot in his ninety-two years of life there are a thousand who knew of Valentino in his thirty-one year span.

MUSIC FOR RED GRANGE

POSSIBLY because Warner Brothers control Vitaphone or because it would be difficult to synchronize his dashes down the football field with music Red Grange is to have a special score with his picture, "One Minute to Play." This has been composed by James Bradford and includes a "Red Grange" march. F. B. O. should have borrowed the Harvard battle hymn, "Down the Field," for his cataclysmic assaults against the opposing moving picture football eleven. This team he vanquishes in true Grange style just before the whistle blows, or the pistol is fired (it is difficult to assimilate that Pacific Coast innovation) at the end of the epoch-making game.

Johnny Hines and Mary Brian, backed up by a dozen dancing beauties from George White's "Scandals," perform some dancing feats for the comedian's forthcoming picture for First National, "Stepping Along"

Paramount Inaugurates Road Show Dept. With A. Griffith Grey Manager

FAMOUS Players-Lasky announced this week plans for a road-show department to be managed by A. Griffith Grey, and with him will be associated Theodore Mitchell, who has long been identified with the management of road-show pictures.

The George M. Cohan Theatre, New York City, has been leased by Paramount, and this house, with the Rialto, Criterion and the new Publix, now under construction, will form the New York center for the new department.

"The Sorrows of Satan," D. W. Griffith's picturization of Marie Corelli's novel, is the initial production for the Cohan Theatre under the new policy. The theatre will be equipped with every modern improvement for the presentation of pictures on a big scale. The Griffith picture is scheduled to open next month.

Wisconsin Exhibitors Convene

Van Norman Elected President; All Other Officers Returned to Board

THE 10th annual convention of Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Wisconsin was held August 25th and 26th in Milwaukee. It was one of the largest and most successful conventions this organization has had, according to Henry Staab, secretary.

E. W. Van Norman was elected president to succeed Fred C. Seegert, who served as president for the last three years. Van Norman is manager of the Parkway Theatre, Milwaukee. F. J. McWilliams, of the Madison Theatre, Madison, is vice-president for the next term; E. Langmack, of the Colonial Theatre, Milwaukee, is treasurer; Max Krofta, of the Idle Hour, Milwaukee, is recording secretary; and William Jacobs, of the Lexington Theatre, Milwaukee, is sergeant-at-arms. With the exception of the president, all officers were re-elected.

Among the questions brought up for discussion at the meetings was that of non-theatrical distribution. In this connection, the association has been promised the support of Prof. William H. Dudley, chief of the University of Wisconsin Extension Department, Division of Visual Instruction, who will in the future distribute only purely educational subjects.

A resolution was passed to the effect that non-members and members in arrears in dues would not be granted the co-operation of associate members or the Arbitration Board.

An extended attempt to meet the problem of tent shows, carnivals and medicine shows was also voted upon. National president Eli Whitney Collins, of Jonesboro, Ark., gave an interesting talk on community co-operation and welfare. Every exhibitor should be a very important factor in the community in which he operates and should be mindful always of community co-operation and activity, said Mr. Collins in his address.

A wonderful tribute was paid the retiring president, Fred C. Seegert, by Tom Foster, of Stanley, Wisconsin.

The business of the convention disposed of, all members went to the Toledo-Milwaukee ball game as guests of Otto Borchert. The crowd certainly was a jinx to the Brewers, for they witnessed that sad game the Brewers dropped to the Mudhens to the tune of 7-4. Despite the unfortunate outcome, they all claim they had a great time at the game.

Many New Companies Are Formed in New England

New England corporations organized during the week include the new company formed by E. M. Fay for handling his six Providence theatres, to be known as the C. & F. Theatre Company, Providence, with capital of $100,000. Edward M. Fay is president, John E. Connolly and William H. Camfield are the other incorporators.

David Weinstock, Inc., Hartford, Conn., to exhibit motion pictures. Capital $50,000. Incorporators, David Weinstock, 22 Girard Avenue, Hartford, and others.

Warren Theatre, Inc., Boston. Capital $99,000. Incorporators, Jacobs J. Yonkers, Simon Rudnick and Julia A. Hoerrner, all of Boston.

New England Film Productions, Inc., Boston. Capital $10,000. Incorporators, Camillo Chioini, Harry Gaylord and Louis G. Radi, all of Boston.

F. P.-L. Canadian Corp. Sells Garden Theatre, Toronto

Famous Players Canadian Corp., Toronto, has sold the Garden Theatre, one of the first of the high class neighborhood theatres of Toronto, to Emanuel Gebertig, of Toronto, for $32,700. The Garden is on College Street, not far from the centre of the city, and has a frontage of 34 feet. George Morrell was formerly resident manager of the Garden for Famous Players. Incidentally, the Garden Theatre was once controlled by the Allens, of Toronto. Mr. Gebertig is a veteran showman.

Universal Chain Theatres Declares Dividend

Universal Chain Theatres Corporation directors have declared the regular quarterly dividend of two per cent. on the eight per cent. preferred, payable September 15, to stockholders of record September 1.

In and Out of Town

BUDD ROGERS, vice-president of Lumas and Gotham Productions, just had time to say "Hello" and "Good-bye" to his brother, Charles Rogers, who produces for First National this week. Charlie arrived in New York just as Budd was leaving for the Coast.

GENERAL SALES MANAGER HARRY SCOTT and Southern District Sales Manager E. Oswald Brooks, of Pathe Exchange, Inc., have returned to their desks after a two weeks' vacation spent on a motor tour through Canada.

Philadelphia Film Board Elects Officers

At its August meeting the Philadelphia Film Board of Trade elected the following officers for the ensuing year: Oscar Neufeld, president; S. Witman, vice-president; Ben Amsterdam, treasurer; Jack Greenberg, secretary.

W. G. Humphreys, Jack Hennessy and P. A. Bloch were elected to serve on the Arbitration Board for a period of three months. The president will name the fire prevention, credit and membership committees within the next month. This will be Neufeld's fifth successive term as president of the organization.

Iowa Theatre Owner Defies Sunday Blue Law

Another deft has been hurled at the Iowa state law against Sunday pictures. This time it is Walter Peterson, of the Rockwell Empress, who declares that popular demand forces him to open Sundays. Competition of nearby towns is also declared to be a factor in his action.

The Henry and Van Buren county farm bureaus have also opened Sunday shows at Mount Pleasant, Ia., on the ground that there are no Sunday services in nearby churches and that pictures offer an innocent diversion.

Colorado Waging Fight on Sunday Issue

BECAUSE four theatres in Colorado Springs opened last Sunday with no definite admission charge but a suggestion that patrons could contribute to the expense of the program, the four managers, J. W. Ady of the Burns, Fred J. Footman, Liberty; H. K. Davis, American, and E. P. Briggs of the Rialto Theatre, were hauled to court and ordered to pay a fine of $200 and costs by Judge Haines for violation of a city ordinance which prohibits Sunday amusements for pay.

All four immediately appealed to the county court but later Footman changed his plea to guilty and, on his promise to suspend further Sunday shows, his fine was reduced to $50, which he paid. The remainder of the defendants are still fighting and will open their houses next Sunday on the same plan as last week.

Valentino Rites Held in New York

Memorials Planned for Late Star; Crowds Storm Theatres to See New and Old Pictures in Which He Appeared

AT 11 o'clock on Monday morning, the bronze silver casket containing the body of Rudolph Valentino was taken from the Campbell Funeral Church in New York City to St. Malachy's Church, in West 49th Street, where a solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated. Admittance was by card only and these were issued only to those prominent in the industry, friends of Valentino and the press.

Warned by the outbreaks of last week, when mobs stormed the Campbell parlors to view the body, lying in state, 400 policemen were assigned to the task of keeping order during the procession of the cortege to the church and back. This passed off without serious disturbance, although it was estimated that nearly 100,000 persons thronged the streets along which the cortege passed.

The honorary pallbearers were Joseph M. Schenck, Adolph Zukor, Marcus Loew, Richard A. Rowland, Douglas Fairbanks, Hiram Abrams, Nicholas M. Schenck, Sidney R. Kent, Malcolm St. Clair, James R. Quirk, Michael Romano and Frank Manillo. The ushers included, among others, Richard Dix, Ben Lyon, William Collier, Jr., Johnny Hines, Captain Alistar McIntosh and the Marquis de la Falais de la Coudray.

No list of those present was given out, but among those seen were Pola Negri, Mary Pickford, Gloria Swanson, Norma and Constance Talmadge, Jean Acker, Marilyn Miller, Clifton Webb, Mrs. Ben Ali Haggin, Madge Bellamy, Forrest Halsey, Dorothy Mackaill, Greta Nissen, Mary Philbin, Fortune Gallo, House Peters, George Jessel, Lois Wilson, Harry Houdini, William J. Burns, Wilton Lackaye, Hope Hampton, J. E. Brulatour, Major Edward M. Bowes, Gene Buck and Nathan Burkan.

Valentino's brother arrived from Paris on the "Homerie" late Wednesday afternoon, and it was planned to start for Hollywood immediately with the body.

Hundreds of Chicagoans from all walks of life massed tightly in the Trianon Ball Room, to pay their last respects to Rudolph Valentino, on Monday, at the same time the funeral of the dead film star was being held in New York City.

The memorial services, which were held under the auspices of the Rudolph Valentino Memorial Association, included an invocation by the Rev. R. Keene Ryan, pastor of the Garfield Boulevard Presbyterian Church; a tribute from Dr. George Fox, rabbi of the South Shore Temple; two vocal solos, "Rock of Ages" and "Lead, Kindly Light," by Miss Kathryn Browne, and an expression of the sorrow of the theatrical world by Sophie Tucker.

Judge Francis Borrelli, treasurer of the Memorial Association, which has proposed to erect a statue of Valentino in Grant Park, Chicago, explained the aims of the organization.

Three minutes before the hour of the funeral of Rudolph Valentino, the Royal Theatre, Kansas City, where Valentino's latest picture, "The Son of the Sheik," was being shown, suspended its activities in honor of the film star. Following the

Second Order Sought in West Coast Cases

DECLARING that the stipulation filed by the respondents in the so-called West Coast Theatres cases upheld the validity of the charges of conspiracy in restraint of trade made by the Federal Trade Commission, Morgan J. Doyle, special counsel for the commission, this week asked that an appropriate order against the respondents be issued.

This was the second brief of this nature filed by Mr. Doyle, two complaints, each naming different respondents, having been issued by the commission. Some ten days ago, an order was asked against West Coast Theatres, Inc.; West Coast Theatres, Inc., of Northern California; The T. & D., Jr., Enterprises, Inc.; Herbert L. Rothchild Entertainment, Inc., and H. M. Turner, Fred Dahnken, C. L. Langley and F. W. Livingston, partners doing business as Turner, Dahnken & Langley. The brief filed this week asks an order against the two West Coast Theatres companies and the Venice Investment Company; Hollywood Theatres, Inc.; All-Star Feature Distributors, Inc.; Educational Film Exchange; Principal Pictures Corporation; H. M. Turner, Fred Dahnken, C. L. Langley and F. W. Livingston, partners, doing business as Turner, Dahnken & Langley, and A. L. Gore, Michael Gore, Sol Lesser, Adolph Ramish and Dave Bershon.

The taking of testimony in these cases was stopped upon an agreement that a stipulation should be filed setting forth the agreed upon facts in the case, which stipulation is declared by the commission's attorney fully to uphold the charges made in the complaints.

death of Valentino the attendance at the Royal increased 80 per cent., according to Bruce Fowler, manager.

Three Valentino memorial funds have been started, one in New York, one in Chicago and one in Castellana, the Italian village in which the star was born.

Formation of the Rudolph Valentino Memorial Committee was announced by S. George Ullman, manager of the dead actor. Associated with him are Joseph M. Schenck and James R. Quirk, editor of "Photoplay."

Quirk has announced that the committee will be incorporated, with its activities national in scope. Contributions of from five cents to $1 will be accepted and may be sent to Quirk at 221 W. 57th Street. Checks exceeding $1 will be returned. As yet the form of memorial has not been determined.

Somewhat in contrast to past events of this sort, the death of Valentino has aroused an unprecedented interest in his pictures. Famous Players and United Artists both report that all prints, including many which have been lying dormant, have been required to meet the demand.

Police reserves were called out in Chicago, Newark, N.J., and Charlotte, N.C., where "The Son of the Sheik," Rudolph Valentino's last picture, distributed by United Artists Corporation, was playing.

In addition to breaking records at Loew's State Theatre, New York, and Loew's Metropolitan Theatre, Brooklyn, "The Son of the Sheik" pulled a crowd of 5,000 people to the Rialto Theatre, Newark, for the opening matinee, and police reserves were called upon to prevent serious disorder. The crowd collected about 11 a.m. and grew until a line almost a block long was formed.

Practically the same thing occurred at the Tivoli Theatre, Chicago. According to telegraphic advice, within an hour after the doors of the Tivoli Theatre were opened for the first showing of "The Son of the Sheik," it was necessary to call police to control the crowds. This is almost unprecedented in Chicago in the case of a feature that has already played a four-weeks' engagement in that city.

The Imperial Theatre, Charlotte, N.C., in addition to breaking records, had to call for police assistance in controlling the crowds that waited outside the theatre.

At Asheville, N.C., "The Son of the Sheik," at the Plaza Theatre, brought record business, and approximately one thousand persons were turned away.

The Grand Theatre, Columbus, Ohio, broke its house record, both in gross receipts and number of admissions the first day of the engagement of "The Son of the Sheik," and it is likely the picture will be held over for an additional week beyond its week engagement.

Among other houses that broke records with "The Son of the Sheik," are the Imperial, San Francisco; the Million Dollar Theatre, Los Angeles; Royal Theatre, Kansas City; Virginia Theatre, Atlantic City; Strand Theatre, Minneapolis; Clemmer Theatre, Spokane; and the Columbia Theatre, Seattle.

The biggest day's business in the history of the Lafayette Theatre, Buffalo, was the first day of the engagement of "The Son of the Sheik."

Chicago theatre men are confident that the public wishes to see pictures in which Rudolph Valentino starred and more than fifty Chicago houses have booked Valentino features, including "Cobra," "Blood and Sand," "The Sheik" and others of the older Valentino successes. That there is immediate public demand for Valentino's pictures was evidenced this week by the tremendous crowds that flocked into Balaban & Katz's Tivoli to see "The Son of the Sheik," and blocked nearby streets, the congestion outside the theatre becoming so great that it was necessary to call out police reserves to control the crowd.

Demand for films in which Rudolph Valentino starred has been beyond all ability of Paramount and United Artists exchanges in Boston to fill and they are booked ahead for several weeks. Never before in the history of the exchanges has the death of any person called forth such a demand for films in which they appear.

Clara Bow

CLARA BOW NOW FAMOUS STAR Elinor Glyn's "It" First Production

CLARA BOW, long known as a portrayer of flapper roles, has been elevated to stardom by Paramount, is the announcement this week from Jesse L. Lasky. Miss Bow's first production as a full-fledged star will be Elinor Glyn's "It," scheduled to go into production October first. Her activities will be directed by B. P. Schulberg at Paramount's West Coast studio.

Clara Bow gained entrance into the picture business through winning a beauty contest in an Eastern city and since that time her rise has been rapid, due to portrayal of the present-day American girl. For some time past she has been a featured player in Paramount pictures, but her work has resulted in her new promotion.

Operators Win in Two Cities

New York Exhibitors Agree to New Scale; Union Victor in Washington

WAGE disputes between operators and exhibitors in several cities were settled, or about to be, as Motion Picture News went to press.

In New York, the Theatre Owners Chamber of Commerce and the operators' union reached an agreement satisfactory to both sides after a session lasting fifteen hours. A two-year agreement was signed, with operators receiving increases as follows:

Five per cent in houses seating 600 or less; 10 per cent in houses seating between 600 and 1,000; and 15 per cent in houses of 1,000-1,500 seats. In theatres of more than 1,000 seats, a double shift was agreed to.

Homer J. Brown, representative of the U. S. Department of Labor, acted as mediator throughout the dispute.

Washington, D.C., theatre owners and the operators practically settled their differences on Wednesday, though at that time no agreement was reached. However, a victory for the operators was conceded at that time and the actual signing of contracts remained as a mere formality. The Washington operators demanded an increase from $65 to $75, four men in the larger booths, where there formerly were two, in addition to a 40-hour instead of a 44-hour week. These demands at first were characterized as "outrageous" by the theatre owners, who stated they would stand out against them. A sudden change in the situation came when the Palace and Columbia, Loew downtown houses, broke from the ranks and made a separate agreement. With this turn of affairs the organization leaders held it would be unfair to force Harry Crandall, who operates three downtown houses in competition with the Loew theatres, to stand by his agreement with them to fight the new wage scale demands of the operators.

The threatened strike of Detroit operators to start at midnight Wednesday was averted following meetings between the representatives of the union and the theatre owners headed by H. M. Richey, president of the Michigan organization, on that day. The operators returned to work Thursday as usual. However, officials of the union stated that they did not think a 10 to 15 per cent increase sufficient. Richey stated that his organization will not come to the union's proposed scale, which provides for an increase of 10 to 40 per cent. So the dispute was not settled by Thursday and at that time a strike was considered a possibility if not a probability.

Paramount Takes Over Spanish Dist. Co.

WORD has been received by Paramount from its foreign office of the taking over of Seleccion, S. A., the organization which has been distributing Paramount product in Spain and Portugal in recent years. M. J. Mosseri, who spent some time in the foreign department offices at the New York headquarters of the company, has been appointed general manager, with headquarters at Barcelona.

Additional offices are maintained at Bilbao and Madrid and plans are being completed for the installation of a fourth exchange. Seleccion, S. A., controls and operates the Coliseum in Barcelona.

Statistics Show Growth of Business in Antipodes

According to the report of a representative of a large American film company made to the Department of Commerce, the motion picture industry of Australia has made enormous strides in the last five years. In 1921 the total investment amounted to $6,700,000, payments in wages amounted to about the same sum and the country had but 800 motion picture theatres. Figures given for the past year show that the investment has jumped to $75,000,000, wages are double those paid in 1921 and 1,216 motion picture theatres now serve a population of 6,000,000.

Advocate Federal Censor Board for Canada

Whether or not the Dominion of Canada should have a Federal board of moving picture censors, with experts in psychology, artists and businessmen as members, replacing all of the Provincial censor boards now operating across Canada, was seriously discussed at the triennial conference of the Canadian Federation of University Women held at the Royal Victoria College, Montreal, Quebec, August 27.

It was decided that university women all over Canada should agitate for a Federal film board, the recommendation being made by Mrs. J. Young, of Victoria, B.C. On the suggestion of a Toronto delegate, a committee was appointed to study the situation and provide the members of the Federation with details. It was intimated that a Federal film board would operate under the jurisdiction of the Canadian Department of Customs and Excise, which also controls the importation into Canada of all books and periodicals, a number of which have been banned in recent months.

The Federation's committee on education advocated greater use of moving pictures in the public schools of Canada.

Casanave Trying to Organize Cleveland Exhibs.

Charles L. Casanave is in town trying to organize the Cleveland exhibitors into a buying unit, with himself at the head of the unit. It is said that local exhibitors are interested in the plan, and while nothing definite has been done, there's a lot of discussion about it and many exhibitors have expressed themselves as favoring it.

Schneider Denies Merger of M. & S. Circuit

ON his return this week from out of town, Louis Schneider, of the Mayer and Schneider circuit, New York City, emphatically denied a report published in one of the film trade journals that his firm was one of three large New York City circuits said to have plans under way for the pooling of their interests in order to effect a sale to a producer-distributor organization.

Small-Straussberg and the Steiner and Blinderman circuits were the other two firms mentioned as parties to the combine and the report further stated that an important local banking institution had lent its interest to the refinancing of the single corporation. Approximately sixty theatres would have been involved in the deal.

Schneider said: "The M. & S. Circuit has no move for merger or sale under consideration and it is my opinion that the circulation of such reports was made for the specific purpose of in some way injuring the firm of Mayer & Schneider. They are absolutely false."

In addition to the opening of the new 3,000-seat Commodore Theatre at 2nd Avenue and 6th Street, New York City, on September 2—a house said to have cost $2,000,000—Mayer & Schneider have other expansion plans well under way.

Berlin Picture Theatres Described

German Tradepaper Writer Gives Details of Construction and Operation of Leading Houses in German Metropolis

By Harry Knopf
Hamburg Film Journal

IN describing the motion picture theatres of Berlin, it would be ridiculous for me to directly compare the theatres of Berlin and New York. There is no comparison, for beside New York Berlin is, in short words, very poor in picture theatres. Our Berlin "Broadway," the Kurfuerstendamm, for example, has but six theatres, and of these only four are really large theatres, as compared with the great number of big houses on New York's Broadway.

The majority of the theatres in Berlin belong to the Universum Film A.-G., or Ufa, some of which are large and some small. The biggest house is the Ufa Palast am Zoo, so called because of its nearness to a Zoological gardens, which is an enormous building, once a legitimate theatre, which was purchased by Ufa and converted into a motion picture house. This theatre seats 3000 persons, and can accommodate a 100-piece orchestra. The interior is modeled after the Capitol Theatre in New York. An unusually large stage, high and deep, with ample room in the wings and back-stage, and every modern technical device, permits of elaborate stage presentations and make easy all changes of scenery. The house has a parquet, a balcony and loges, the latter around the front of the balcony. The colors are red and nut-brown, and the curtain is of gold brocade. The setting around the orchestra is of the same material.

The other Ufa theatres also are furnished more or less luxuriously. All of them have upholstered seats, and stages equipped to handle scenery. The most luxurious theatre in Berlin is the Gloria Palast, a house of the Ufa chain, next to the Kaiser Wilhelm Gedachtniss Church on the Kurfuerstendamm. This was built about a year ago and is in the same building with a restaurant and a furniture company. It seats 800 persons, and is particularly luxurious in its furnishings, owing to the fact that it is located in a very exclusive neighborhood and its patrons demand the best. It has a parquet, balcony and loges, the balcony extending out over the parquet seats. The seats are upholstered in beautiful damask, dark red in color. The floor and stairs are of Swedish marble. Four elevators run to the balcony. The orchestra contains 40 men, and the pipe organ is so powerful that it must be muffled with sacks containing a sea-grass to modify its sound. Presentations can also be presented on its stage, which is smaller, however, than that of the Palast am Zoo. The curtain is dark red and gold brocade. The ceiling is dome-shaped, and the walls are panelled in light green tapestry. Around the entire theatre is a promenade, 30-feet wide, with Persian rugs. The lighting of the auditorium is indirect by reflection from the dome, while in the promenade are elaborate chandeliers.

Other Ufa theatres are Das Theatre am Kurfuerstendamm, Nollendorfplatz, Kammerlichtspiele, Tauentzienpalast, Koegnickstadt, Friederichstrasse, Turmstrasse and Friederichshain. These are well furnished with all modern apparatus, but not as elaborate as the others mentioned. The orchestras will average about 15 men each, except the Turmstrasse, which has more.

The next great theatres belong to Phoebus-Film. This company now has two large houses, the Capitol and the Marmorhaus. A third is being erected now and will be opened at the close of this year.

The Capitol was opened about six months ago, and was built as a motion picture theatre, near the Gloria Palast, at the meeting point of the important streets of West Berlin. It has 800 seats, upholstered in yellowish-brown, over the arms as well as the seats. The Capitol has a parquet and balcony. The walls are in light yellow ochre and the floor is a darker shade of the same. The orchestra includes 50 musicians, and the stage has dark brown velvet hangings, with room for stage numbers. The theatre, from the inside, appears pyramidal in shape, but is of the conventional appearance from the outside. The entire auditorium is lighted from one powerful lighting arrangement in the ceiling. Two obelisks are erected at the sides of the orchestra. During the overture, the house is darkened and these two obelisks are flood-lighted in dark violet. The orchestra is on an elevator, and is raised during the overture.

The Marmorhaus, opposite the Capitol, is a small theatre, which plays second-runs.

The next concern is Sued-Film, with its premiere house, the Alhambra, on the Kurfuerstendamm near Luna Park. Sued-Film shows its newest productions here, while Emelka uses its theatre, the Piccadilly in Charlottenburg, on Kaiserdamm, as a pre-release and first-run house.

So much for the leading theatres. The other houses in Berlin, which are not considered by the people of the city as being in the same class, are small, and play pictures which are two and three months old and cost little money. At the most a piano and perhaps a violin furnish the accompanying music. These houses do not represent the best in Berlin, and it would be of little interest to consider them.

Referring again, then, to the leading theatres, the following must be said: The hours of opening of the aforementioned houses are very different from those in New York. In Berlin the performances are given at 7 and 9 P. M., and on Sunday at 3, 5, 7 and 9 P. M. At the largest houses, such as Ufa-Palast, Capitol, and Gloria Palast, the doors are closed during each performance, so that no one may enter during a show. The same is true of the Alhambra and the Marmorhaus. The tickets are numbered for each seat for each performance and all are reserved. The program usually includes the following: A musical overture, a stage presentation, a news weekly, a comedy or educational film and the feature. Organ music is not particularly popular in Berlin, but the organ is used to some extent in conjunction with the orchestra. The new policy at the Ufa Palast am Zoo provides for three shows daily, at 5, 7 and 9, the 5 o'clock performance being accompanied by organ only.

The musical directors are musicians of the first rank and will be dealt with in a separate article. Outstanding among these has been Erno Rapee, with his 75-piece orchestra at the Palast am Zoo, but who has since returned to New York to open the Paramount Theatre. Next comes Dr. Giuseppe Beece, director at the Theatre Nollendorfplatz; Hans May, in the Alhambra; Otto Stenzeel and Franco Fedeli, at the Gloria Palast; Schmidt-Gentner, at the Capitol; Edmund Meisel at the Apollo, where was shown the three-forbidden picture, "Potemkin," to which he arranged the music, which was well spoken of by the critics.

Fay Buys Five Providence Theatres

Purchase Gives Buyer Practical Control in Downtown Section of City; Publix Plans 3,000-Seat House for Tampa, Fla.

WHILE there are no reports this week of the buying, selling or merging of any of the large circuits, the theatre map will be graced with the designation of new houses as considerable property was purchased throughout the country for theatre sites. The seating capacity of both large and small towns will be added to in the near future according to announced construction plans.

With the expiration of the sixty-day option which Edward M. Fay secured on the five Providence theatres owned by Alton G. Emery comes the announcement that the purchase of the theatres has been completed in accordance with the terms of the option by Mr. Fay and control of the houses passes from Mr. Emery to the C. & F. Theatre Company.

The five theatres are the Majestic, seating 2300; Emery, 1700; Rialto, 1600; Modern, 1600, and Capitol, 1400. Purchase of these houses gives Mr. Fay practically full control of the theatres in downtown Providence. The amount involved in the deal is said to be $1,000,000.

Of the five theatres purchased, two have been dark during the summer, the Emery and the Modern. Both are undergoing redecorating and other improvements and reopen Labor day, the Emery with a change in policy inaugurating films and vaudeville, while the Modern will continue for the present with stock.

Mr. Fay already owned the Fay Theatre in Providence, thus giving him six houses in that city. In addition he has theatres in Philadelphia, Rochester, and one under construction in Buffalo.

The recently incorporated 261 Main Street Corp., Worcester, Mass., is a subsidiary of the Arthur S. Friend companies and the Marcus Loew companies of New York, it has been announced, and the new theatre for which plans have been drawn and which will be built at 261 Main Street, Worcester, will cost approximately $2,000,000 and will be Worcester's largest theatre. The company's purchase at 261 Main Street, corner of Central Street, was a $450,000 transaction, according to records filed at the registry of deeds in Worcester.

Another new theatre for which plans are being drawn will be erected in City Square, Charlestown district of Boston, alongside the municipal building. Work will be started within a month and the house will seat 1,600. Benjamin H. Green of the Melrose and Coolidge-Watertown theatres and the Atlantic Theatre Corp. are the owners and will operate it upon completion.

Bids closed this week for the new Colonial Theatre at Augusta, Me., to be erected by the Main Theatres Corp. and for which Bunker & Savage of Augusta drew the plans.

Meyer Fine and Abe Kramer have sold out their interests in the Ohio Amusement Company, one of Cleveland's leading neighborhood motion picture circuits, to the remaining members of the company. Their withdrawal from the firm with which they have been associated since its organization becomes effective September 1st.

A reorganization of the Ohio Amusement Company has been effected and the following officers elected: Leo Keller, president and treasurer; Arthur Keller, secretary and assistant treasurer; David L. Schumann, general manager; John Kalafat, Sidney Seidman and Jesse Seidman.

The Ohio Amusement Company now consists of eleven theatres, namely, the Dennis Square, Garden, Five Points, Jewel, Savoy, U-No, Yale, Capitol, Knickerbocker, Photoplay and Lakewood. It is the intention of the company to branch out and increase their theatre holdings both by buying theatres already constructed and by building new houses, as rapidly as healthy business conditions warrant.

Great States Theatres, Inc., is continuing to increase its holdings, the latest theatres taken over including the Lyric at Streator, Indiana, and the Majestic, Rialto and La Petite at Kankakee. The acquisition of the Lyric gives Great States three houses in Streator, as it is already operating the Plumb and Majestic. Manager A. J. Ragnier will continue in charge at the Lyric and Ed Scheivel goes to Streator as general manager. Great States has also secured the lease on the new twenty-three-hundred-seat theatre being erected in Kankakee by a local syndicate.

Announcement is made by the Publix Theatres Corporation of the leasing for 99 years of an entire half block in the heart of Tampa, facing Zack, Ashley and Tampa Streets, and the erection there within one year, a theatre to seat 3,000 and to cost, with the building, which will be either a hotel or office building, one million dollars.

A. S. Friend Companies, Inc., through a new subsidiary, the 261 Main Street Corp., of Worcester, Mass., have bought the property at 261 Main Street, corner of Central Street, Worcester, covering 18,000 square feet, for $450,000. As soon as present buildings are demolished a theatre will be erected on the site at a cost of about $1,400,000 which will be partly financed by the issue of $800,000 in first mortgage bonds. The theatre will seat 3,000.

Fifty Theatres Warner Bros. Goal

Expect to Secure House in Every Big City of Country Before Start of Fall Season; Jolson and Jessel for Vitaphone

WARNER BROS. have instituted a policy of expansion as regards theatre holdings which, if carried through, will make the company a big factor in the business of providing entertainment in this country. As previously announced it has secured a lease on the Colony Theatre, New York City and is negotiating for two other houses that have been playing legitimate productions.

It is expected that by the time the regular fall theatrical season is under way Warner Bros. will have fifty first-class theatres and at least fifty Vitaphone production units before the public, say the Warner officials.

Two theatres will be added to the company's chain in Boston and, it is a practical certainty, say Warners, that two Chicago houses now running legitimate productions will be added to the Warner-controlled theatres in that city.

As quickly as plans are settled for this country the company will turn its attention to introducing the Vitaphone in Europe.

In response to the many inquiries from theatre owners as to whether the installation of Vitaphone necessitates any great alteration, Warner Bros. wish it known that the installation problem is very slight.

The third production to be equipped with Vitaphone accompaniment will be a John Barrymore vehicle, it was announced this week. This act will be made at one of the legitimate houses on Broadway, New York City, but most of the activity in connection with the Vitaphone is centered at the Manhattan Opera House, where Elsie Janis has been preparing a number to be used with the Syd Chaplin starring vehicle, "The Better 'Ole."

Al Jolson, popular comedian, was signed by the company this week to do his "Mammy" songs in an act for Vitaphone, which will precede the presentation of "The Better 'Ole" when that picture is shown at the Colony, New York, early in October. In addition to Miss Janis and Jolson the Howard Brothers will also do a "skit," burlesquing opera. George Jessel, stage star, who has just finished a picture for Warners, and Reinald Werrenrath, well-known baritone, will also contribute numbers for Vitaphone.

The company has taken a lease on Balaban & Katz's McVickers Theatre for an indefinite time, effective on September 13th, on which date the Chicago premiere of "Don Juan" and the Vitaphone will be given in this Madison Street house. While Warners have not announced further plans for McVickers, it is thought that other important Warner features will follow "Don Juan," and that the showings will be in conjunction with the Vitaphone.

French Increase Duty on Positives 150%

AN increase of 150 per cent in the duty on positive motion picture films imported from other countries has been made by the French Government, according to advices to the Department of Commerce at Washington. The new duty of one franc per meter becomes effective as of July 10, last.

The increase was made by advancing the arbitrary value on which duty is assessed from two to five francs per meter, the rate being 20 per cent ad valorem.

The duty on negative films, 20 per cent ad valorem on an arbitrary valuation of 15 francs per meter (figuring out as three francs per meter), remains unchanged.

The Keith-Albee interests exert a powerful influence aside from the houses directly controlled by the organization owing to booking arrangements with the Poli, Proctor and Keith-Albee Southern circuits and other chains. Due to these connections they command scores of theatres in New England, Pennsylvania, Middle Atlantic states, New York, New Jersey, along the South Atlantic coast and in the Southwest.

Last year 17 houses were constructed as follows: Boston, three; Chicago, three; and one each in Los Angeles, Youngstown, Akron, Cincinnati, Coney Island, Far Rockaway, St. Louis, Louisville, New York, Atlanta and Paterson.

Keith-Albee will operate the new Highland Park, Detroit, being built by David T. Nederlander. The new uptown house will have a seating capacity of 3,200.

Universal Announces Story Line-Up

Edward Montagne Leaves for Coast With Rights to Original Stories and Plays; to Stress Human Interest in Films

APPROXIMATELY a score or more big productions will be made from novels, plays and original stories by Universal for the 1927-28 season, according to an announcement received from the company's New York home office. Edward Montagne, Universal West Coast scenario chief, and Phelps Decker, Eastern scenario head, have been combing the Eastern markets for story material for the past two months. S. Montagne has just left for the Coast with the rights to a number of popular works and, on his arrival in Hollywood, the scenario force will start to whip these stories into shape for filming. Among the stories secured in "The Big Gun," a naval story from the pen of Richard Barry, which Universal will produce with the promised assistance of the Navy Department. Barry will work on the story in association with the company. After many delays occasioned by illness "Uncle Tom's Cabin" is now under way with Harry Pollard directing.

Another super-production listed will be the screen version of "The Cat and the Canary," the mystery stage play by John Willard. Paul Leni, foreign director, will handle the megaphone on this production. Frederick Arnold Kummer is at present writing "Dixie," a story of the South's development industrially and spiritually, and it will appear both as a novel and in a magazine in the near future. Universal will also make a picture version. "Let's Go Home," a story written by Stuart Lake, dealing with the Army of Occupation, will also be picturized by Universal.

In all, twenty-one new productions have been lined up by Montagne and the Universal home office heads. Among the other pictures to be made for 1927-28 are "Alias the Deacon," from the popular stage play by John B. Hymer and Leroy Clemens, and in which Jean Hersholt probably will star; and "The Chinese Parrot," a new mystery novel just on the stands, by Earl Derr Biggers.

Then there will be screen versions of "The Stolen Lady," an original story by William Dudley Pelley, with Laura La Plante in the principal role; "Bill Smith, M. D.," an original by Bayard Veiller, written for Jean Hersholt; "Kiss and Make Up," an original by Julien Josephson, written for Miss La Plante; "The Claw," from the novel by Cynthia Stockley, and "Cheating Cheaters," from the famous play by Max Marcin.

There will also be picturizations of "This Way Out" by Fred S. Isham, "Thoroughbreds," a story by the late Gerald Beaumont, "Class," a Blister Jones story by John Taintor Foote, "Engineer," a railroad story by Frank Spearman, "The Big Doe," a Saturday Evening Post story by Fred Hergesheimer, as well as productions from the following originals: "It Can Be Done," by E. V. Durling and Robert Welsh; a dog story especially written by Charles Logue, which will feature one of the most popular dogs on the screen; and "Signs," a clever original, probably to be used for Reginald Denny.

"We are well set for 1927-28," said Montagne on the eve of his departure. "My trip East enabled me to work directly with the Universal home office officials and executives and work out a buying and production schedule following their ideas and advice. Our policy is to be one of human interest pictures, dealing with everyday people in modest surroundings. We are going out to make pictures with real people in them—people you see every day—people who live next door or across the street."

K. C. Exhibs. Warned Against Removing Tags

Kansas exhibitors are to be warned by the M. P. T. O. Kansas-Missouri, in a bulletin to be issued soon, against the removal of censorship tags on films, following several complaints filed by the Kansas State Board of Review. It is possible C. E. Cook, business manager of the M. P. T. O. K.-M., points out, for the censor board to close a theatre which does not exhibit the censor tags.

Fred Niblo

NIBLO MAKES FILM PREDICTIONS Prophesies Development in All Branches

FRED NIBLO, at present working on "The Temptress," a Cosmopolitan production for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer release, gave voice to a number of predictions concerning the future of the cinema recently.

"The evolution of the Screen," says Niblo, "has been very rapid, swifter than the advancement of any other art or industry." Some of the developments prophesied by the director are: Theatres that seat tens of thousands, theatres without orchestras but which will be supplied with music by radio from central broadcasting stations, likewise the ultimate broadcasting of pictures from a central point when the vision phone invention has been completed.

The majority of pictures will be shown in natural color on a screen reflecting the image in three dimensions before the next quarter of a century has elapsed, says Niblo. The next, and greatest development, to be brought about will be the segregation of film theatres into picture type classification. There will be houses showing nothing but drama, others featuring love stories and romance, comedy houses, Niblo predicts. But, he says, the greatest feature of such film segregation will be the theatres catering to juveniles only.

Bray-Hurd Brings Patent Suits

Settlement with Fables is Announced;
Actions Against Other Animators Due

SOMETHING of an unusual situation in the animated cartoon field came to light this week with the announcement by the Bray-Hurd Process Company, Inc., owners of the Bray and Hurd patents, that the suit for infringement brought against Fables Pictures, Inc., producers of Aesop's Film Fables, had been settled out of court. Actions have been brought or will be against several other animated cartoon makers on the contention that they are infringing on the Bray and Hurd patents. This unusual situation will be analyzed in full in Motion Picture News next week, with extracts from the various patents involved and a resume of the development of the animated cartoon, prepared exclusively for this publication.

The Bray-Hurd Process Company, Inc., is the owner of five patents claimed to substantially cover all of the processes and methods now employed in the creation and production of animated cartoons and industrial or technical animated drawings. Several actions have been brought by the Bray-Hurd Process Company against the makers of animated cartoons which actions are now pending, except that the makers of Aesop's Fables have settled the action against them, and as a result of such settlement Fables Pictures, Inc., have secured a license under which they may continue to make the Aesop's Fables.

Owing to the increasing number of releases of animated cartoons, it is understood that the Bray-Hurd Process Company, Inc., will institute proceedings against a number of the producers of animated cartoons, claiming infringement of patents because of the processes employed in the making of such productions.

Comedian Eddie Lyons Dies in Hollywood

Eddie Lyons, well known comedian director, died in Hollywood on Monday last after a lingering illness which started three months ago with a nervous breakdown. He was forty years old.

Born at Beardstown, Ill., in 1886, Lyons started his stage career in Chicago, with the Marlowe stock company. His first screen connection was with the old Biograph, later working for Imp and Nestor. His widest success was as a member of the famous team of Lyons-Moran, Star Comedies for Universal. After dissolution of the team, he made the following feature comedies for Universal: "Everything but the Truth," "La, La, Lucille," "Once a Plumber," "Fixed by George," "A Shocking Night," and "Roamin' Romeos."

Nathanson Against Canadian Quota Idea

AT a meeting of theatre managers in Toronto, Ontario, on August 24, N. L. Nathanson, managing director of Famous Players Canadian Corp., Limited, crossed verbal swords with those who had been suggesting a quota plan for moving pictures in Canada as a means to encourage the presentation of British productions.

Nathanson pointed out that 95 per cent of the stockholders of Famous Players Canadian Corp. were Canadians and the company owned and controlled close to 100 theatres in the Dominion. An office was maintained in London, England, at considerable cost for the purpose of examining British pictures and the pick of these were procured for the Canadian market. When a British picture measured up to a certain standard, it would be booked for the circuit of Famous Players Canadian Corp. Recent instances were given by Nathanson in the booking of "Nell Gwyn," "Every Mother's Son" and similar productions of value.

In the opinion of Nathanson, the quota idea was entirely beside the question.

Historic Films Preservation Urged by Hays

PRESERVATION of historical films in the Government archives at Washington was urged by Will Hays this week in an interview with President Coolidge. The idea is favored by the President, according to newspaper dispatches from the summer White House.

The plan has already been indorsed by Senator Smoot, chairman of the committee making plans for the archives building. There will be twenty vaults, at first, it is expected, with a capacity of 1,000 reels each. Later, thirty additional vaults will be built.

Among the pictures which Mr. Hays named as being of the character that should be preserved were: the inaugurations, beginning with McKimley; the signing of the Versailles Treaty; the return of Pershing from France; Woodrow Wilson at Versailles, and others.

"The Covered Wagon" and "Abraham Lincoln" are types of pictures which Mr. Hays believes should be preserved.

Foreign Director Will Make Picture Here

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS announced this week that Eisenstein, director of the Russian film "Potemkin," has been signed by United Artists to make one picture in this country. Eisenstein will come to this country in about four or five months as a temporary release from the Russian Government has been secured.

The title or nature of the picture has not yet been announced.

Cast Chosen for Barrymore United Artists Film

The cast supporting John Barrymore in the picture based on the life of Francois Villon was announced this week. It will consist of Marceline Day, feminine lead; Otto Matiesen, who will portray Louis XI; Lawson Butt, Mack Swain and Slim Summerville, who will provide the comedy relief; Lucy Beaumont and "Nellie," a duck.

Alan Crosland will direct from a scenario prepared by Paul Bern, and Joseph August is chief cameraman. William Cameron Menzies is the art director.

Sterling Pictures Expanding Exchange Interests

Henry Ginsberg, president, and George E. Kann, vice-president of Sterling Pictures Distributing Corporation, announce that they are expanding their exchange interests, having become partners in the Premier Film Exchanges in Chicago and Indianapolis with I. E. Chadwick. According to present plans, Sterling will have established several more Sterling Exchanges and become interested in others before the end of the year.

Carey to Appear in M-G-M's "The Little Journey"

Harry Carey has signed to appear in "The Little Journey," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production. This will mark the Western star's first work for this company. He will also, for the first time, play a "white collar" role. Claire Windsor plays the heroine and William Haines plays the hero in this adaptation of Rachel Crother's novel. Robert Z. Leonard will direct.

Change in Gotham Schedule of Releases

Because exchange men and exhibitors have requested a railroad story, Gotham productions will release "The Block Signal," starring Ralph Lewis, before "The Silent Power," which also has the same star. Original plans called for release of the latter first, but the dates are now switched.

Hurley Exploiting Hi-Mark Horse Race Films

Ed. Hurley has taken over the special exploitation of the Steve Donaghe series of two-reelers which N. Nathanson of the Hi-Mark Film Sales Company is distributing over the state right market.

Fox Preparing Belasco Plays

Allan Dwan to Direct "The Music Master," and Al Green "The Auctioneer"

Allan Dwan (left) and Alfred E. Green who are directing the picturization of two David Belasco plays for Fox Films

THE majority of the Fox directorial staff are hard at work either on production or in the preparation of vehicles for the new season at the present time. Alfred E. Green is at the Fox West Coast studio preparing for the filming of "The Auctioneer," the Belasco play in which George Sidney will portray the name part. Exteriors only for this production will be filmed in New York.

Allan Dwan is at the New York studio preparing another Belasco play, "The Music Master," for filming. The cast has not yet been chosen but an announcement is expected when Winfield R. Sheehan reaches New York. It is intended to make the Belasco play one of the Fox giant specials.

F. W. Murnau has made preliminary plans for his first Fox picture "Sunrise," based on an idea taken from Hermann Suderman's novel "A Trip to Tilsit." He will film exteriors for this picture at Lake Arrowhead in the San Bernardino mountains in California.

Raoul Walsh is scheduled to direct "The Monkey Talks" in which Jacques Lerner will make his film debut. George Melford is at present directing "Going Crooked," a screen version of the John Golden stage play. Bessie Love and Oscar Shaw play the leading roles.

John Ford is now making "The Story of Mother Machree" with Belle Bennett in the lead and Frank Borzage is preparing to film "7th Heaven," another of the Fox specials. Harry Beaumont is in England at present shooting exteriors for "One Increasing Purpose," the interiors will be made in Hollywood.

Victor Schertzinger has just finished camera work on "The Return of Peter Grimm," another Belasco drama with Alec B. Francis in the name part. Irving Cummings is at present in New York filming exteriors in "Bertha, the Sewing Machine Girl," interiors will be made in Hollywood. J. G. Blystone is busy with "On the Wings of the Storm."

R. William Neill is now directing "The City," Clyde Fitch's play and John Griffith Wray is preparing for his next production, the title of which has not yet been announced.

Bushman-Hanson in Next Corinne Griffith Film

Francis X. Bushman and Einar Hanson have been chosen for important roles in Corinne Griffith's next production, "The Lady in Ermine," based on the operetta by Rudolph Schanzer and Ernst Welisch. Production will start in about two weeks, under direction of James Flood and the picture will be released through First National.

Patsy Ruth Miller Signed for Barthelmess Film

Patsy Ruth Miller has been chosen to appear opposite Richard Barthelmess in "White Black Sheep," his next Inspiration production for First National release.

First Nat'l. Starts K.O. Club

Selection of Ten High Salesmen Every Quarter; Cash Awards and Insurance

WITH the idea of developing a closely knit organization, the sales cabinet of First National has caused the formation of a club to be known as the K. O. Salesmen will be eligible and it is the intention of the company to make promotions from the membership. The year will be divided into four quarters during each of which ten salesmen will be selected, selection being based on the record of the preceding three months.

Salesmen with a K. O. button will have an assured future with the company says the cabinet. They will attend conventions and have a part in the sales conferences. Competition will start October 4 and the initial members of the club will be announced the first part of January.

A salesman to be eligible for the club must have been in the service of First National for three months prior to the beginning of any quarter. Net billings will be figured on a percentage basis against revised quotas. The results will be accumulated from week to week until the close of the first thirteen weeks' period, which will be January 1, 1927. After that there will be a fresh start for another thirteen weeks and so on from quarter to quarter.

At the end of each quarter the sales cabinet will review from various angles the performances of the twenty leading salesmen and out of that number will select the ten foremost for membership in the club. There will be a checkup on the number of play-dates secured against possibilities; also on the number of specials booked in the salesman's territory against possibilities, the completeness with which he has covered his field, expenditure and other points deserving of consideration in estimating a salesman's accomplishments.

The final selection of members of the K.O. Club will rest with the sales cabinet, whose judgment will be final.

Each of the ten men named as a K.O. will receive the same award. At the end of the first quarter, the ten winners will each be given an extra week's salary. Such of these men as qualify for the second quarter, whether it be the quarter immediately following the first quarter or some subsequent period, will receive another extra week's salary, plus $1,000 additional life insurance.

To the men who qualify a third time, First National will give another week's salary and still another additional $1,000 insurance. Those qualifying for a fourth quarter will receive another additional week's salary and a trip to New York at the company's expense where they may spend one week visiting the departments of the home office and enjoying the White Lights.

Fox "Location Studio" Opened

Dedication of Scenic Wall Highlight of Celebration Open to the Public

WITH a fanfare of trumpets, Fox Hills, the new one hundred and fifty acre "location studio" of Fox Films, in Los Angeles, was opened formally to the public last week. Highlights of the attendant ceremonies were the dedication of the new scenic wall, an address by Hon. Isadore B. Dockweiler and the presentation by Olive Borden of the flag to a company of marines that appeared in "What Price Glory."

The program that followed included a complete rodeo put on by Tom Mix and his band of cowboys, the awarding of prizes for a Charleston contest by Winfield R. Sheehan and the personally-conducted tours of the studio grounds where many sets were viewed by the visitors.

Among the stars and players present, besides Tom Mix and Olive Borden, were George O'Brien, Anita Stewart, Virginia Valli, Belle Bennett, Alma Rubens, Janet Gaynor, Gladys McConnell, Lou Tellegen, J. Farrell MacDonald, Dolores Del Rio, Bessie Love, Alec B. Francis, Buck Jones, Kathryn Perry, Florence Gilbert, Richard Walling, Walter McGrail, May McAvoy, May Allison, Robert Frazer, William Powell, Tom Santachi, Frank Campeau, Leslie Fenton, Oscar Shaw, John Roche, John St. Polis and many others now making pictures on the Fox lot.

Many directors were also present. These included Raoul Walsh, Frank Borzage, F. W. Murnan, Victor Schertzinger, George Melford, John Ford, George Marshall, R. William Neill, Albert Ray, Lew Seiler and Howard Hawks.

Among the officials of the Fox company who attended were W. R. Sheehan, vice-president; Sol M. Wurtzel, general superin-

Mae Allison Signs for Two Fox Productions

MAE ALLISON has been signed by Fox to appear in two pictures, "One Increasing Purpose" and "The City." As her work in "One Increasing Purpose" will be confined to interiors, it will not be necessary for Miss Allison to journey to England, where Harry Beaumont is at present filming exteriors for the A. S. M. Hutchinson novel. While awaiting Beaumont's return, Miss Allison will portray a featured role in "The City," the Clyde Fitch play now in preparation, which will be directed by R. William Neill. It is expected her work will be finished by the time the unit in England returns to this country.

tendent of the William Fox West Coast Studios; Ben Jackson, business manager; Kenneth Hawks and Ernest Maas, supervisors of productions.

While the area included in Fox Hills studio is one hundred and fifty acres, the motion picture company and individuals possess four hundred and fifty acres of the valuable land which will be held available for expansion of the film plant from time to time. Fox Hills is situated west of Wilshire Boulevard, between Santa Monica and Pico. The main entrance is on the south side of Santa Monica and is easily accessible by automobile or the traction lines.

Title of Hines' Production Now "Stepping Along"

In order to avoid conflict with titles already used in First National's program for the 1926-27 season the latest Johnny Hines comedy known as "The Knickerbocker Kid," has been changed to "Stepping Along."

Patricia Avery Wins New Contract With M-G-M

On the strength of her excellent work in "Annie Laurie" Patricia Avery, former stenographer at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Studio, has won a new contract with that company. Louis B. Mayer "discovered" her.

"Kiss and Make Up" Next Jewel for Laura La Plante

"Kiss and Make Up," a story by Julian Josephson, has been chosen as the next Universal Jewel production in which Laura La Plante will be starred. William A. Seiter will direct.

Filming of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" Under Way

AFTER many delays, occasioned by illness and bad weather, the Universal production "Uncle Tom's Cabin," based on the story by Harriet Beecher Stowe, has finally gotten under way under the direction of Harry Pollard.

Though production was delayed for five and a half months, due to the illness of Pollard, the entire company is now working at top speed. Several massive sets are being erected at Universal's studio in Hollywood.

De Mille Completes Cast for "King of Kings"

Cecil B. De Mille has finally completed the cast for his super-production for release through Producers Distributing Corporation titled, "The King of Kings." The list now stands: Ernest Torrence as Peter; Joseph Schildkraut as Judas Iscariot; Joseph Striker as John, the Beloved Disciple; Robert Edeson as Matthew, the Publican; James Neill as James; Sidney Dalbrook as Thomas, the Doubter; Robert Ellsworth as Simon, the Zealot; David Imboden as Andrew; Charles Belcher as Philip; Charles Requa as James the Less; John Price as Thaddeus, and Clayton Packard as Bartholomew.

Among the members of the cast previously announced are H. B. Warner in the title role, Jacqueline Logan, Rudolph Schildkraut, Victor Varconi, Majel Coleman, and Dorothy Canning.

Fox Announces Additions and Changes in Casts

Betty Miller and George Irvings have been added to the cast of "The City" and Sammy Cohen will appear in "The Return of Peter Grimm." Merta Sterling and Hank Mann will be seen in "Gaby" and Thomas Jefferson replaces Samuel Allen in the role of the King in the same production.

Ellen Bardin has been added to the cast of Tom Mix's latest for Fox, "The Canyon of Light." Alice Howell will replace Blanche Payson in the name role in "Madame Dynamite."

First of Stern Bros. "Newlyweds" Series Released

"The Newlywed's Neighbors," the first of the series of thirteen "Newlyweds and Their Baby" comedies, produced by Stern Bros., was released this week by Universal. Gus Meins directed and the characters are played by Jed Dooley, Ethlyn Clair, and a baby designated as "Snookums."

Paramount School Graduate for Meighan Picture

Thomas Meighan has personally chosen Mona Palmer, graduate of the Paramount Picture School, to be his leading lady in "The Canadian," his next production. The unit will do location work near Calgary, Alberta, Canada. William Beaudine is directing.

Laemmle Offers Scholarship

Sets Aside $6,000 for College Students Writing Best Essay on "Les Miserables"

CARL LAEMMLE is sponsor for a plan which offers scholarships to college students writing the best essays on the Universal release, "Les Miserables." The plan has been outlined to the presidents of 748 universities and colleges and, while replies have not as yet been received from all, those who have answered have expressed enthusiasm for the idea with the result that the plan will be put in operation.

The letter sent out by Mr. Laemmle outlines his plan in detail, also stressing the fact that the idea is free from "any form of blatant advertising." It is in view of the enormous educational power of the production, both from the point of view of raising the standard of cinema entertainment and that of drawing the attentions of millions of scholars to what Swinburne describes as "the greatest epic and dramatic work of fiction ever created or conceived," says Laemmle, "that I am contemplating the endowment of several Victor Hugo-Carl Laemmle Scholarships, setting aside the sum of $6,000 for these scholarships."

The suggestion conveyed in Laemmle's letter is that students of all universities, colleges and high schools should be eligible as contestants in the writing of an essay or examination paper on "Les Miserables," to be judged by competent literary authorities.

A. L. Burt, the publishers, are rushing a new edition of Hugo's work with elaborate illustrations from the picture and publishers of other editions of Hugo's are planning campaigns on their own editions.

Warner Bros. Preparing Eight

List Headed by "The Missing Link," "Third Degree," "While London Sleeps"

WARNER BROS. expect to have eight companies working on special productions during this month, according to the program laid out at present. Manuscripts on three pictures are almost complete. They are "The Missing Link," "The Third Degree" and "While London Sleeps." Syd Chaplin will be starred in "The Missing Link," for which Charles Reisner and Darryl Francis Zanuck prepared the scenario. Production will be started this week.

Dolores Costello is the star of "The Third Degree," based on the famous stage play by Charles Kline. Bess Meredyth and Graham Baker furnished the scenario from which Michael Curtiz will direct.

Rin-Tin-Tin's next starring vehicle will be "While London Sleeps," based on the story by Walter Morosco, who will also direct the picture version.

The fourth production will be a mystery-comedy drama based on a story by Arthur Somers Roche in which Louise Fazenda and John T. Murray will be featured. Lloyd Bacon will direct.

"The Brute" is the title of Monte Blue's next starring picture, which Herman Raymaker will direct. Paul Stein's second directorial assignment will be "The Climbers," starring Irene Rich. A special cast will be chosen for this production.

Vitaphone accompaniment for all Warner Winners will be the policy of the company.

Fox Lists Release Dates and Title Changes

Several title and release date changes have been announced by Fox Films. The Imperial Comedy, originally titled the "Steeplechase," has been changed to the "Steeplechasers"; the Van Bibber Comedy, formerly "The Clown," will be released on October 10th as "King Bozo."

"Riches of the Earth," a Fox one-reel Variety, has been retitled "Rocky Mountain Gold" and will be released September 19th, instead of September 5th, as originally announced, changing places with "Around the World in Ten Minutes," also a Variety subject.

: : : : "THE CHECK-UP" : : : :

"The Check-Up" is a presentation in the briefest and most convenient form of reports received from exhibitors in every part of the country on current features, which makes it possible for the exhibitor to see what the picture has done for other theatre managers.

The first column following the name of the feature represents the number of managers that have reported the picture as "Poor." The second column gives the number who considered it "Fair"; the third, the number who considered it "Good"; and the fourth column, those who considered it "Big."

The fifth column is a percentage figure giving the average rating on that feature, obtained by the following method: A report of "Poor" is rated at 20%; one of "Fair," 40%; "Good," 70%; and "Big," 100%. The percentage ratings of all of these reports on one picture are then added together, and divided by the number of reports, giving the average percentage—a figure which represents the consensus of opinion on that picture. In this way exceptional cases, reports which might be misleading taken alone, and such individual differences of opinion are averaged up and eliminated.

No picture is included in the list which has not received at least ten reports.

Evelyn Brent Signed for Paramount Picture

EVELYN BRENT has been signed by Famous Players to play the feminine leading role in "Love 'Em and Leave 'Em" which Frank Tuttle will direct at the Paramount studio in Long Island.

Miss Brent is now on her way East from Hollywood, as are Townsend Martin, scenarist, and Russell Matthews, assistant to Tuttle.

Four Cosmopolitan Pictures in Work at M-G-M Studio

Two additional Cosmopolitan productions are soon to be launched at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio which will make a total of four pictures in work at one time. Marion Davies, at present finishing the filming of "The Red Mill," will shortly begin work on "Tillie, the Toiler," an adaptation of the comic cartoon strip appearing in the daily newspapers.

George Hill will soon begin direction of "Captain Salvation," an adaptation of the story by Frederick William Wallace. Jack Conway is now wielding the megaphone on "The Understanding Heart," and Reginald Barker is directing the filming of "The Flaming Forest."

September 10 Release for "Flying Mail"

"Flying Mail," starring Al Wilson and directed by Mason Noel, will be released on September 10 by Associated Exhibitors. It is based on a story by Frank Howard Clark and was produced by Al Wilson Productions. Joseph J. Girard, Kathleen Myers, Harry Von Meter, Carmelita Geraghty, Eddie Gribbon and Frank Tomick make up the supporting cast.

Moore Signed for Laura La Plante Production

Tom Moore has been signed to appear opposite Laura La Plante in "Beware of Widows," a Universal Jewel production. It is an adaptation of the Owen Davis stage play. Harvey Thew is doing the continuity and Millard Webb will direct.

Beaumont Starts Filming of English Story

Harry Beaumont is at present in England shooting exteriors for the Fox production, "One Increasing Purpose," taken from the novel by A. S. M. Hutchinson. Edmund Lowe, Lila Lee and Lilyan Tashman play the leads.

"Red" Grange to Make Personal Appearance

WHEN "One Minute to Play," the "Red" Grange starring vehicle being released by F. B. O., opens at the Colony Theatre, New York City, next week, the football star will make a personal appearance at each performance it was announced this week from the distributor's home office.

Wynne-Jones on Trip in Interest of Ufa Films

Frederick Wynne-Jones, managing director of Ufa Films, Inc., is visiting exchange centers throughout the Middle West in the interests of Ufa product released through Paramount and M-G-M. and to sell to state rights and other independent exchanges a series of twelve imported features.

A Lya de Putti film, "Manon Leseaut," a Victor Varkoni feature, "Dance Fever," and Emil Jannings special, "Tartuffe," or "The Hypocrite," directed by F. W. Murnau, a Paul Richter production, "Peter the Pirate" and others will be shown to the independents. "Variety," "The Waltz Dream," "Faust" and "Metropolis" will be discussed with Famous and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer executives.

The itinerary will take in Chicago, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, Des Moines, Omaha, Kansas City, St. Louis, Indianapolis, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh and Washington.

Andres de Segurola Signed for Swanson Picture

Andres de Segurola, Spanish nobleman, who for many years sang with Caruso in this country and who was a member of the Metropolitan Opera Company for twelve years, has been signed by Gloria Swanson to appear in a character role similar to that of his real life in her first production for United Artists release.

Segurola has appeared before the crown heads of Europe, receiving the Medal of Incorporation from King Edward of England. He is Knight of the Order of the Crown of Italy and the Order of Alphonse the Twelfth.

Chadwick Secures Distribution for Product

Standard Film Service, serving Eastern Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Kentucky, Ohio and Lower Michigan, will distribute the eleven First Division pictures of the Chadwick Company on the 1926-27 season. The Independent Film Company of Omaha has acquired the Nebraska and Iowa territorial rights for Chadwick's "April Fool" and "Devil's Island." "The Bells," third of the Chadwick Eleven, will be distributed in the same territory by Fontenelle Feature Film Company.

"Captain Salvation" May Be Filmed at South Seas

"Captain Salvation," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture adapted by Lorna Moon from the story by Frederick William Wallace, is to be a Cosmopolitan production, it was announced this week. George Hill is to direct and the production will be made on an elaborate scale with a special cast. The company may go to the South Seas on location.

Frances Marion Signs Long Term M-G-M Contract

Frances Marion this week affixed her signature to a long term contract with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer to write scenarios for that company. Her first work will be on "The Wind," Dorothy Scarborough's novel, in which Lillian Gish will be starred after she completes work on "Annie Laurie."

Fox Announces Release of Six Varieties

THE first six releases for the new season of Fox Varieties, the ten-minute visual voyage around the world, which are made under the guidance of Ray Hall, were announced this week. "Down to Damascus" will be released August 22; "Rocky Mountain Gold," September 5; "Around the World in Ten Minutes" on September 19.

"The Great Lakes" goes to exhibitors on October 3 and the next release is "Austrian Alps" scheduled for October 17. The last, "Under Colorado Skies," will be released on October 31.

Fineman to Assist Schulberg at Paramount

Following the termination of his two-picture contract with First National B. P. Fineman has rejoined Famous Players-Lasky where he will serve at the West Coast studio as executive assistant to B. P. Schulberg.

In 1914 Schulberg brought Fineman to Paramount and after serving there both left to produce. Fineman produced a series of productions, starring Katherine MacDonald in association with Schulberg, after which they split, Fineman going to F.B.O., then going to First National.

Cast Chosen for Richard Talmadge Picture

Supporting players for Richard Talmadge's production for Universal release will include Barbara Bedford, Stuart Holmes, David Mir, Bennett Hastings, Robert Chandler and Christian Frank. Irvin Willat will direct this picture version of "The Black Rider." It is planned to produce the picture on an elaborate scale. Willat adapted and prepared the scenario.

Rights to "Spring Fever" Bought by M-G-M

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has purchased the motion picture rights to "Spring Fever," a play by Vincent Lawrence, produced by Al Woods and which was shown in New York this season. No assignments have been made for the picture version.

Lumas to Handle Product of Other Producers

AS a further step in the nationalization plans of Lumas Film Corporation, President Sam Sax announced this week that his company would take on pictures of other producers for distribution in addition to the Gotham product which Lumas handled exclusively until recently.

The new move is made because of expansion plans laid out which call for a larger number of pictures for the Gotham exchanges.

CHANGE is the keynote of the motion picture's history. No business alters its complexion so rapidly—no industry demands such constant alertness to maintain leadership. The motion picture company which does not keep step from day to day with the steady change going on in the demands of the business soon falls behind and is lost sight of. Powerful corporations have risen, prospered and fallen, all because of their failure to adjust themselves properly to the shifting bases of an industry unique in its demands.

From the organization of First National Exhibitors Circuit, Inc., in 1917, to the building of the $2,000,000 studios at Burbank, Calif., in 1926, is a long and interesting trail—not only in point of time (for nine years is a long time in this shifting industry), but in point of the interesting progression of changes which the steady progress of the corporation has involved.

There was no lack of scoffers in 1917 when a little group of exhibitors, strong in their own territories but with practically no knowledge of national distribution, undertook to enter the field in competition with the strongest companies to assure for themselves and for exhibitors everywhere a steady supply of first-class product, regardless of threatened monopolistic conditions—but there are no scoffers today when First National throws open the doors of the mightiest and most modern studio yet built, to maintain that same steady supply of worthwhile product under conditions which now demand that First National produce a certain share of its own product and in its own studio. Just another move to keep step with the needs of the industry.

WHEN First National was formed on April 25, 1917, the purpose of the original franchise holders was to assure the availability of a plentiful supply of first-grade product, suitable for showing in the important first-run houses which they controlled, regardless of any threatening moves on the part of certain menacing interests. It was felt that this could be done through the supplying of adequate distribution to independent producers, who were then virtually without a channel for the marketing of productions of any magnitude. First National, it was felt, could function best as a cooperative, exhibitor-owned organization, engaging in no production, but affording impartial and thorough distribution to any producer who could meet the quality demands of the group.

The men who made possible the fulfillment of this dream—the 26 original franchise holders, who dug down in their pockets for their proportionate share of the negative and print cost on each picture and who distributed the program in their respective territories—included N. H. Gordon (Boston); Jake and Otto Wells (Charlotte, N. C.); Jones, Linick and Schaefer (Chicago); Swanson and Nolan (Denver); A. H. Blank (Des Moines); John H. Kunsky (Detroit); Robert Lieber (Indianapolis); T. L. Tally (Los Angeles); Col. Fred Levy (Louisville, Ky.); Thomas Saxe (Minneapolis); Frank Hall (New Jersey); E. V. Richards, Jr. (New Orleans); J. D. Williams (New York City); Samuel Rothafel (New York City); H. O. Schwalbe (Philadelphia); Rowland and Clark (Pittsburgh); William Sievers (St. Louis); Turner and Dahnken (San Francisco); Jensen and Von Herberg (Seattle); Tom Moore (Washington, D. C.); E. H. Hulsey (Texas); Brouse and Stapleton (Eastern Canada); W. P. Dewees (Western Canada); Emanuel Mandelbaum (Cleveland).

These men, with the few State Rights exchanges already operated by members as a nucleus, obviously covered the strategic points of distribution in the United States and Canada, but there was open skepticism on every hand concerning the successful functioning of the members as one group. Where, said the wise ones, could product be found to compete with that offered by powerful rivals? How could a group of men scattered about the country and with little in common successfully conduct a highly specialized business on a national scale? How could financial expenditures be allocated in a manner to suit each member? The opinion in many quarters was that these things could not be done, and the prophets gave First National but a short while to live.

DESPITE these pessimistic forecasts the men in charge went ahead with their plans. Offices were opened in two small rooms at 18 East 41st Street, New York City, with a staff of four persons. The first picture to be acquired was "On Trial," an Essanay production.

Then came a move that completely eclipsed the sensation created by the original formation of First National—the signing of the Famous "Million Dollar Contract" with one Charles Spencer Chaplin. This was hailed as another preposterous move—but none could deny that First National was in a position to deliver a number of sure-fire attractions as a result of the contract.

Nevertheless, there was the immediate future to worry about, and things moved slowly for a time, of necessity. Two other pictures were acquired during 1917, "Daughter of Destiny" and "Alimony."

A critical period developed as the time for the annual meeting in April, 1918, drew near. Progress had been all that could be expected, but would the franchise holders—exhibitors rather than men familiar with distribution—realize this and be willing to carry on?

Fortunately, just at this time a rapid sequence of events changed the entire complexion of the situation and left little doubt as to what the franchise holders might think. First National obtained for distribution two of the outstanding box-office successes of the year, "Tarzan of the Apes" and "My Four Years in Germany." These went into the Broadway and Knickerbocker theatres respectively, where they played to capacity business. The very day before the opening of the annual meeting, Chaplin's first picture under his contract, "A Dog's Life," made its bow at the Strand Theatre and registered a sensation.

As a result the visiting franchise holders had such tangible evidence of the sound judgment being displayed in making up the releasing program that they returned home with full confidence in the future of the company.

The next star to be placed under a First National contract was Anita Stewart, who was signed in the summer of 1918. Chaplin delivered his second picture, "Shoulder Arms," which still ranks as one of his greatest. "Pershing's Crusaders" came just at the right moment and scored a triumph.

A few weeks later the roster of stars was brought up to full big league strength with the acquisition of Mary Pickford, Norma Talmadge and Constance Talmadge.

Three Mary Pickford vehicles were delivered in following months, "Daddy Long Legs," "The Hoodlum" and "Heart of the Hills," all outstandingly popular.

DURING 1918 outside interests made persistent efforts to weaken and disrupt the First National organization. This succeeded in but one instance, but this one case convinced members that the time had come for the first change in the form of organization, so that measures might be adopted which would prevent any territory passing into the control of alien interests.

Long and careful consideration was given the problem and in the fall of 1919 the members of the circuit, aided by the best lawyers available, drew up plans for reorganization and refinancing along lines that would insure uniform accounting, centralized and uniform sales, distribution and exploitation. A committee of five was appointed to work out details.

As a result, in November, 1919, First National Exhibitors Circuit gave way to Associated First National Pictures, Inc. The stock of the company was placed in the hands of five voting trustees, elected by the entire membership, with full control over the transference of stock vested in them. The men elected were Robert Lieber, Indianapolis; N. H. Gordon, Boston; J. G. Von Herberg, Seattle; Fred Dahnken, San Francisco; and Moe Finkelstein, Minneapolis.

Shortly after the meeting, N. H. Gordon, J. D. Williams, H. O. Schwalbe and E. Bruce Johnson toured the country obtaining the signatures of the original franchise holders to the new agreement, preparatory to a meeting in Atlantic City in January, 1920. At the conclusion of a series of conferences all the territories were signed up with the exception of Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas.

Experience had shown that central control was needed to bring about uniform policy and practice in the releasing of the program, which could not be accomplished under local handling, so with the formation of Associated First National complete control of all the exchanges was centralized in the home office.

Having progressed thus far and proved that exhibitor co-operation in distribution was possible, the franchise holders decided that a broadening of the franchise idea, to take in a larger number of exhibitors, would strengthen the organization and extend its benefits throughout the industry. Conferences with this end in view were held between January and April, 1920, and at the annual meeting in Chicago a complete sub-franchise plan was presented to the stockholders and received their enthusiastic endorsement.

IN November, concurrently with the time for release of "The Kid," sub-franchises were offered to exhibitors, and the response was immediate. An intensive campaign was carried on, and ultimately some 3,500 exhibitors were enrolled as sub-franchise holders.

Difficulties had arisen with Chaplin, meanwhile, over the terms upon which "The Kid" was to be released to exhibitors, but these were ironed out and the picture placed in circulation in February, 1921. Charles Ray was added to the roster of First National stars.

During 1921 a difficult situation arose. The sub-franchise plan had extended the scope and strength of First National, but it had also increased the number of men who might be affected by adverse propaganda and made dissatisfied by opposition interests. This came about in some cases, and First National might have been wrecked from the inside had not wise and prompt action by the executives headed off the danger.

A "get-together meeting" was held in Chicago in October, attended by approximately one hundred delegates elected by the sub-franchise holders. The cards were laid on the table, and for four days all of the important actions of the company were freely and openly discussed. A rousing vote of confidence was given the executives.

Any remnants of dissatisfaction were dispelled by President Robert Lieber's announcement that any sub-franchise holder who wished to withdraw might do so, provided that he was not in arrears under his agreement.

Conditions were again changing, and a considerable number of sub-franchise holders withdrew under the terms offered, due to local conditions, and harmony once more reigned.

While these organization changes were taking place, First National continued to strengthen its line-up of releases. The first Constance Talmadge vehicle, "A Temperamental Wife," had arrived in September, 1919, and Norma's initial contribution, "A Daughter of Two Worlds," in January, 1920. In September, 1921, all of the released pictures of the Associated Producers (Thomas H. Ince, Mack Sennett, Marshall Neilan, Allan Dwan, Maurice Tourneur and J. Parker Reid) were taken over and another contract was signed with Ince and Sennett for new product.

The year of 1921 also brought other important additions to the program. In April, Sol Lesser signed with First National for "Peek's Bad Boy," starring Jackie Coogan. A contract with Richard Barthelmess followed, under which he delivered "Tol'able David" in November. During the same year agreements were closed with Louis B. Mayer for the John M. Stahl productions and with Joseph M. Schenck for the Buster Keaton pictures.

SO 1922 found First National accepted in the trade as not alone the expression of an ideal and unique method of distribution, but as an industrial giant—an outstanding force in the business. The men who had brought it along to this point from its inception felt the need of an executive familiar with national distribution as well as the needs of the exhibitor and cast about for a suitable man.

They found him in Richard A. Rowland, who, after years as a successful theatre executive, partner in the Rowland & Clarke Circuit of Pittsburgh, had organized Metro and remained president of it until its sale to other interests.

Rowland stepped into office as general manager—but we will let him tell the story from that point:

"When I came into First National, I found a wide variety of product being released, all from independent sources. Some of the pictures were excellent, some of them were fair—and in order to make up a full schedule it was necessary to accept some product that was distinctly mediocre. Schenck was giving us first-class pictures; so was Ince; so were a few of the others—but some of the product needed to complete the schedule was anything but satisfactory.

"Gradually I became convinced that First National, to maintain a consistently high standard, must make a certain amount of product. I didn't favor making all of the pictures we released—I don't today—because I don't think any one man or one organization can make all the pictures we need and make them right.

"What I wanted to do was to replace the mediocre product on our schedule with pictures of our own. I knew they couldn't be worse and hoped that they might be a great deal better.

"Also, I wanted to build up and develop some stars of our own—stars that would be a definite asset to First National and whom we could keep under the First National banner, once we had built them up.

"First National, up to that time, had been solely a distributing organization for outside product and producing meant a radical change of policy. Naturally, there was some little skepticism.

"It was necessary, first of all, to convince the directors and franchise holders that we could make pictures successfully. As president of Metro I had largely kept my hands off production, respecting the tradition that there was some great mystery or secret about picture making—although I believed then, as I believe now, that that idea was pure bunk.

Views of the $2,000,000 First National studios at Burbank under construction, including the dressing rooms, the cutting and projection rooms, the carpenter shops and the four dark stages, which may be seen in the background of all four pictures, showing how all of the departments are grouped around the stages

John McCormick, general manager of West Coast production for First National

"All that a man needs to make successful pictures is a show 'slant' and a realization of the value of money. Showmanship and sense—nothing mysterious about that.

"That idea that some secret, God-given gift is necessary to picture making was so widely current that, naturally enough, the franchise holders were not at all sure that we could produce suitable features. I said: 'Boys, let's make just one picture on a modest scale and see what we can do. Then you can decide whether or not you want to go ahead.' They agreed.

"We went ahead and made that first picture, 'Mighty Lak' a Rose.' It was a success, and smashed the bunk about the mystery of picture making. Soon we were launched on the group that included 'The Sea Hawk,' 'Flaming Youth,' 'The Lost World' and 'Black Oxen'—pictures that made screen history. We had proved that ordinary, commonsense mortals with showmanship instinct could compete successfully in picture making with those who made a great mystery of it.

"I have said that a man, to make successful pictures, must have both the showman's 'slant' and a sense of the value of money. That is because it is not enough that he make good pictures—he must make good pictures 'at a price.' A picture which would be a success if made at a cost of $200,000 might be a failure if $300,000 were spent in filming it.

"That has been the keynote of our effort—good pictures at a price. They must be good, but they must not cost too much.

"After producing for a time on the West Coast, we brought a portion of our production to New York because we felt that certain pictures could be made here to better advantage.

"All this time we were producing in rented studios and were cramped by lack of space. We needed more stages and we needed a large lot where we could build sets and leave them standing. Plenty of space offers the biggest chance for economy of anything in picture making. It became obvious that for economy and efficiency we must have more studio space, either in New York or on the West Coast.

"Plans for both were under consideration, though nothing was being done, when the United Studios were suddenly sold, forcing us to immediate action. The result was the decision to build the studio at Burbank—and we decided to build it right, benefiting by our own experience and that of other companies with their studios."

ONCE a decision had been reached to build on the West Coast, the problem of a site became paramount. Real estate values have progressed far from the early days, when ten or fifteen thousand dollars would take care of the purchase of a large tract. Appreciation in value has been rapid in the past, and has played an important part in the expansion of many companies, but this appreciation will be less noticeable in the future in the well-developed sections.

First National wanted, above all, a large tract of land on which there would be ample space for all the facilities which might be needed for many years to come. That meant, necessarily, getting away from the area where property is priced on a residential lot basis.

Rowland explains the selection of Burbank as follows:

"We took Hollywood as the geographical

M. C. Levee, general executive manager of the First National studios at Burbank centre of production. Hollywood itself we did not consider suitable, for the reason that real estate values are very high, and since the city is growing rapidly there can be no telling what building restrictions may arise in the future.

"In every direction we went from Hollywood, except one, we ran into a highly developed sector—but in that one direction, toward the hills, we found Burbank. The moment I saw the present site, I exclaimed: 'What a perfect setting for a studio!'

"The widening of Cahuenga Pass to allow for an 80-foot boulevard made Burbank an easy 10-minute drive from Hollywood. The section was relatively undeveloped and real-estate values were at a sensible level. That meant that we could have room enough to build as we wanted to, with a surplus for future expansion. We were convinced that in Burbank we had found our ideal site.

The row of administration buildings under construction at the First National Burbank plant. These buildings, now complete, will house the executives, producers, directors, writers and casting department

Some conception of the vast area and height of the four stages at the First National Burbank studios may be gained from this view of one of the stages under construction. The floors are so solidly built that trucks may be driven in on them with materials

"We purchased three tracts, totaling 62 acres, and began building. At the same time, at the United Studios, we began work on a group of pictures. When that group was finished and a new one started, the units were housed in the new studio at Burbank—in other words, the studio was completely erected while one group of pictures was being filmed. From the turning of the first spadeful of earth to the commencement of production at Burbank, only 72 days elapsed, marking a new record in studio construction.

"The fact that we were able to transport men and materials to Burbank and put the studio up in record time is the best proof of the accessibility and convenience of the site.

"In laying out the plant at Burbank the effort was made to build a model studio—one that would take advantage of everything which our own experience indicated was necessary, and which would avoid the mistakes which we had seen others make.

"Fortunately, we were not handicapped by limited space, and could lay out the plant the way we wanted it. Virtually all of the other studios have grown up, building by building, and the general arrangement is far from efficient. We had the advantage of starting with a clean slate and each building has been placed where it will be most convenient. In addition to that, we have laid it out in such a way that future stages and buildings can be just as conveniently placed. This allowance for future needs is unique in studio planning and we could not have done it had not the site been so favorable in every way.

"Although the Burbank plant has been built economically, it is a thing of beauty. The natural setting is perfect, and I can imagine no greater inspiration for a writer, for instance, than to sit in his office at Burbank and look out over the foothills. That setting has been taken advantage of in every way possible in laying out the general plan, and the buildings are in a uniformly attractive style of architecture.

"As you approach the studios from the boulevard in front, you find the administration building, the one housing the producers, another for the directors, and the casting office. Back of these are the dressing rooms, the shops, the property and wardrobe departments, and so on, and to the rear of these are the large stages themselves. Behind the stages is a large, open lot, where we will put up sets and can leave them standing. Here will be built three streets, which will serve for street scenes of all sorts. Sets can be repainted and altered and used over indefinitely.

"As I have said, you must not only make good pictures but you must make them at a price. The room we will have at Burbank will be a big move in the direction of economy. When you have to tear down each set as you finish with it, to make room for another that must go up, your set cost is high. When you can leave them standing, to be redressed and repainted, you can sometimes save as high as 80 per cent. of set cost, and at absolutely no sacrifice in quality or screen value at any point.

"We feel that we have at Burbank what represents the ideal studio of today. We are only ten minutes from Hollywood, and can get anything we need quickly until we are able to supply it ourselves. Our investment in real estate is very moderate, and values at Burbank are already rising rapidly, so that our site is bound to appreciate heavily in value over a period of years. Everything about the studio represents sound common sense, and picture making there will be on the same basis.

"Burbank is a good studio—at a price; and we are making and will continue to make there good pictures—at a price."

Detailed Story of the New Burbank Studio

By R. L. Russell
(Construction Engineer)

ON a site where alfalfa grew four months ago now stands the newest and largest motion picture city—the Burbank First National Studios, erected by the Austin Company of California under the supervision of John McCormick, general manager of West Coast production, and M. C. Levee, general executive manager.

The new studio at Burbank comprises twenty-three huge buildings containing over 350,000 square feet of floor space, besides the various bungalows, sheds and minor buildings. All the buildings are of old Spanish architecture.

The remaining ground is held for future expansion, for temporary street, village and other "sets," and for location work. It includes flats, a river bottom and wooded hills.

Within the permanent part of the studio are several miles of concrete-paved streets, all heavily reinforced to support not only the heaviest trucks, but even artillery, should the filming of war pictures at any future date call for it. There are six main streets, fifty feet wide; four smaller streets and a number of paved alleys.

Within the grounds is a parking station for employees' cars, capable of taking care of the machines of the entire studio personnel.

The entire forty-eight acres of permanent building space is enclosed by a high ornamental metalwork fence, on two sides facing the streets, and on the remaining sides by wire and ornamental board fences. The entire street frontage of the studios is covered by lawn and landscape gardening, and the buildings seen from both streets are very pleasing to the eye.

THE administration buildings are occupied by the chief executives, by business managers and production heads of various units; the accounting department; the publicity department; the telephone exchange, the telegraph office, scenario writers' offices and directors' private offices.

The part of a motion picture studio around which all others revolve as the spokes of a wheel around the hub, are the stages upon which three-fourths of the average production is filmed. Therefore the central positions on the big First National lot are occupied by the four mammoth stages already built, and the space for four more which will be erected when further production activities require them.

The system of overhead tramways, and block-and-chain methods of handling the heavy mercury-vapor lights and sun-ares not only facilitates the use of this electrical equipment and saves time, but it also prevents accidents caused by falling light apparatus.

The floors, in themselves, are an innovation. They are built so heavily that a truck of any weight may drive over them and deposit its load wherever it is needed on the floor, instead of backing-up to one of the doors and unloading there. One of the two huge doors in each wall of each stage has a cement apron to allow trucks and "mules"—the slang term for little gas and electric tractors used in the studio—to enter the buildings.

On one side of the stages are the three dressing-room buildings. These, in common with every other building on the ground, are Spanish in style, and made of stucco of a soft brown tint. They are two-story structures, one containing twelve star suites of two rooms each on the ground floor, and twenty-four single dressing rooms on the upper floor; the others containing single rooms and general rooms. Every room is fully equipped, well lighted and heated, and nicely furnished. The dressing room buildings cover a ground space of 124 feet by 33 feet each.

Equally handy to the stages is the property and wardrobe building. This is one of the larger buildings in the studio, being one hundred and twenty feet square, and two stories in height.

BETWEEN the stages and the administration buildings is a collection of structures connected in function with each, inasmuch as it houses on the side nearest the executive and directors' offices of the latter, the film cutting rooms and projection rooms; and nearest the stages, the cameramen's dark rooms and camera vaults, the still photograph printing and developing laboratory, and a portrait gallery.

In this group is one large building that measures 75 by 111 feet. It contains the projection rooms, three in number, each of which is a miniature theatre; the well-equipped art portrait gallery, where a portrait specialist makes photographs of the players; the camera rooms, and incidentally, the studio barber and manicure shop.

The entire southern part of the enclosure is devoted to other mechanical departments of the production work. Here is to be found the carpenter shop, with its benches, machinery, tools and a large force of men. In an adjoining building, the metal working shop—a sort of super-smithy—and the plaster casting shop, where everything of this nature from making imitation brick wall sections to fine casting and sculpture work goes on.

Another vitally important part of any large motion picture studio is the electrical shop and generator plant. All massive, stationary electrical equipment at First National Studios is housed in a single large building, 58 by 75 feet in floor area and 30 feet in the clear, inside height. There is space here for a battery of twelve generators, but this is a provision for future expansion only, as but a third of this number is needed to supply the entire studio at present.

The electric lighting and power system at this time handles electricity of 33,000 volts delivered by the Southern California Edison Company, reducing it by transformers to the required voltages of 220 and 110. Twenty billion candlepower is available; in other words, current more than sufficient to supply a city of 10,000 population.

HHEADQUARTERS of the mechanical departments, and the transportation department, are in the Planning Department Building, 120 feet square, in the center of this group of structures. This includes also sheet-metal shops, the mechanical equipment storage shops, the timekeepers' headquarters, and the studio hospital.

A garage building, fully equipped and manned by expert auto mechanics, takes care of the transportation cars and others on the lot as the need arises. It is 40 by 100 feet in area, and has its own gasoline and oil station.

Behind the carpenter shops and other mechanical buildings are two lumber sheds, each 30 by 50 feet; a lumber storage shed 24 by 75 feet, and a saw mill and planing mill, housed in a building 60 feet square. Connected by suction pipes with all the woodworking shops is a huge incinerator, which also has a mechanical belt feed from a dump hopper into which general rubbish is thrown from trucks.

Toward the far corner of this group is a scene dock where large units of scenery are stored for future use. This structure is 80 feet wide and 100 feet long. At the outpost of all the buildings is another shed, of similar proportions, where wreckage of used sets is stored for future salvaging.

Another structure that must not be overlooked, so constant is the demand for what it supplies, is the studio greenhouse, 40 by 100 feet in measurement.

In the course of the work, which was finished just one month ahead of schedule, several new records in industrial construction were established. Each of the four huge stages, measuring 240 x 135 feet was framed complete within three working days. On stage No. One, 40,000 feet of roof sheathing was erected and laid in three and a half hours and 35,000 feet of sub-flooring was laid in a little over four hours.

The big bowstring trusses for the stages, measuring 136 feet, the largest of their kind ever constructed in the West, were erected at the rate of nearly one an hour. In the construction of the three Administration buildings the excavations were made and the foundations completed within twelve working hours from the time ground was broken. These structures were framed complete in three days.

AN idea of the size of the plant can be gained from the fact that three million feet of rough lumber, or 150 carloads, was required. In the electrical system six miles of underground conduit, 20 miles of lighting wire and 10,000 feet of telephone wire was consumed. Twenty-five thousand feet of steel sash, or three carloads, was used in the mill buildings, while dressing-rooms and offices required between 500 and 600 steel casement windows.

In spite of the fact that "dark" stages are now used exclusively in motion picture studios a large amount of glass is used in the construction of a modern film city. In the erection of the plant, over 50,000 square feet of glass was used.

Each stage measures 137 x 240 feet. The buildings have been designed so as to greatly facilitate the taking of indoor scenes and the huge floor area makes it possible for several production units to work on the same stage. A 35-foot clear height from the floor to the bottom truss gives ample room for the tallest sets and for the arrangement of overhead lights.

Leading First National Production Personalities

Lewis Stone and Lloyd Hughes

TWO of the outstanding players developed by First National, and who will work in the new Burbank studios, are Lewis Stone and Lloyd Hughes. Both have appeared as leading men in First National productions, but they offer a striking contrast in type—Stone representing the polished, mature man of the world, while Hughes is the typical two-fisted American young man. Recent releases in which Lewis Stone has appeared include "The Girl from Montmartre," "Easy Money" and "Old Loves and New." Hughes' latest roles have been in "Irene," "Fast Steppers" and "Ella Cinders."

Warner Oland

FOR many years the real ability of Warner Oland was not fully realized by many, half hidden as it was by the melodramatic nature of the serials in which he appeared. Even in serials, however, his work was distinguished by rare subtlety and consummate artistry. Oland is a master of character make-up and his portrayal of oriental types, in particular, has been distinguished by an absolute fidelity to the original. His most recent screen engagement has been for an important role in "Twinkletoes."

Ben Lyon

THIS popular young First National player has been kept very busy the past year, alternating between productions for Robert Kane and First National. He has recorded a steady advance, both in box-office popularity and in the character of his work. Recent appearances have included "The Savage," "The Reckless Lady" and "The Great Deception." His next release is "The Prince of Tempters." He is now preparing to start work in "Not Herbert," based on the Broadway stage play of the same name.

Jess Smith

THE youngest executive producing for First National release is Jess Smith, who is a veteran despite his years. His record goes back to the old Lubin days in 1914. For the past six years he has been one of the most successful managerial agents, bringing to the screen such new faces as Dorothy Mackaill, Ben Lyon, Pauline Garon and Glenn Hunter. He has now purchased for production the Broadway success, "The Poor Nut," which ran in New York for ten months and has just started off brilliantly on a Chicago run.

Dorothy Mackaill

AN outstanding feminine player developed almost wholly in the realm of First National productions is Dorothy Mackaill. This charming young English girl, who has been on the screen for only a few years, has advanced steadily in popularity as her work has grown in charm and artistry. She appeared in the first picture to be made by First National, "Mighty Lak' a Rose," and was placed under contract shortly after. Her most recent release is "Subway Sadie," in which she scores a personal triumph. She is now working in "The Charleston Kid."

Ralph Hammeras

THE all important work of the miniature and trick department, which makes possible many scenes and effects which would otherwise be difficult or out of the question, falls on the shoulders of Ralph Hammeras, so far as the New York studio of First National is concerned. Hammeras played an important part in the production of "The Lost World," and was instrumental in solving some of the knotty problems encountered. A former artist, he developed the illustrated art title and later the method known as "glass work," on which he holds an important patent.

June Mathis

APPROPRIATELY enough, the first production to be started at the Burbank studios of First National was a June Mathis production, "The Masked Woman," which has now been completed. Miss Mathis has been a vital force in film production for years. First as an actress and later as a continuity writer she made an important place for herself, but it was her work in connection with "The Four Horsemen" that placed her in the front rank of writers and editorial supervisors. Now, with First National, she has an opportunity to give full rein to her abilities, which were displayed most recently in "The Greater Glory." "Here Y' Are Brother" is next.

Frank Capra

PROBABLY no class of work makes severer demands upon the director than comedy work. Comedy is usually filmed rather than written, and the director must play an important part in evolving the gags and situations. Dramatic work may succeed in varying degrees, but comedy is either funny or not funny, and on that test the comedy director stands or falls. One of the fastest rising men in this field is Frank Capra, the megaphone wielder of the Harry Langdon organization. He has just finished directing Langdon in "The Strong Man."

Carey Wilson

SEVERAL veteran scenarists occupy positions of great importance in the First National production lineup at the present time, one of the most prominent of whom is Carey Wilson, who first gained a knowledge of motion picture requirements in the sales department. He has been equally successful as an adaptor and as the author of original screen stories, and has held important editorial positions. The first of a series to be produced under his management at First National is "Men of the Dawn." He will also adapt "Midnight Lovers" and "Ladies at Play," and has done an original for Colleen Moore, "Orchids and Ermine."

Sam Hardy

ALTHOUGH he is freelancing, Sam Hardy has been in such constant demand by First National and Robert T. Kane that he has been rushing from picture to picture, almost without a breathing spell. His likeable personality and rare sense of comedy, combined with genuine ability as an actor, have brought him recognition as a distinctive figure. His more recent pictures in which he has walked off with spotlight honors include "The Halfway Girl," "Bluebeard's Seven Wives," "The Savage," "The Great Deception," and "The Prince of Tempters."

A. L. Rockett

SOUND common sense is the basis of A. L. Rockett's success as a producer. His knowledge of production is thorough and far-reaching, the result of many years' experience with leading companies and a period as independent producer in association with his brother, Ray Rockett, which culminated in the filming of "Abraham Lincoln." This led to his connection with First National, where his first production, "Puppets," showed the wisdom of the move. He repeated this success in "Subway Sadie" and is now making "The Charleston Kid."

Robert T. Kane

FEW independent producers have achieved the spectacular, consistent success which has attended the efforts of Robert T. Kane in producing for First National release. He has displayed a remarkable instinct for box-office angles, combined with a shrewd sense of production values. The list of successes has included "The New Commandment," "Bluebeard's Seven Wives," "The Reckless Lady," "The Dancer of Paris," "The Wilderness Woman" and "The Great Deception," while a special, "The Prince of Tempters," has just been completed.

Lothar Mendes

THE best in European technique, plus the finest American resources, is being brought to the screen by Lothar Mendes, leading German director, under contract to Robert T. Kane, who has just completed "The Prince of Tempters," his first production here. Mendes is thoroughly schooled in European methods, and is applying the best and most suitable of them to his work, but he is keenly alive to American box-office demands and point of view. Those who have seen his first picture declare that he has succeeded admirably.

C. C. Burr

CLOSELY coupled with the success of the Johnny Hines comedies is the personality and ideals of the man who has piloted Hines from the days of two-reel comedies to the present features. Sound showmanship has been the keynote of Burr's efforts, who has seen to it that the Hines comedies have appealed to the greatest possible number of persons. Vulgarities and suggestiveness have been completely taboo, and each Hines picture has been a clean, entertaining story of American youth and its triumph over obstacles. "The Live Wire," "Rainbow Riley," and "The Brown Derby" are recent releases, while "Stepping Along" is in production.

Johnny Hines

SOMETHING of a unique place among comedians of the screen is occupied by Johnny Hines, who represents the typical American youth—breezy, resourceful and unfailingly optimistic. His climb has been steady, from the two-reel "Torehy" comedies to feature-length comedies on the independent market, and now a First National release. "The Live Wire," "Rainbow Riley," "The Brown Derby" and "Stepping Along" (in production) are his latest vehicles.

Howard Higgin

ONE of the most reliable and consistent of the directorial aces of the day is Howard Higgin, who has contributed notably to the First National program the past year. After years of successful scenario writing, which gave him a sound knowledge of screen values and construction obtainable in no other way, Higgin took up the megaphone, and consistent success has attended his efforts since that time. He is now directing "Not Herbert" for First National. Other recent productions include, "In the Name of Love," "The New Commandment," "The Reckless Lady," "The Wilderness Woman" and "The Great Deception."

Ray Rockett

ASSOCIATED with his brother, Al Rockett, over a period of many years, including their joint production of "Abraham Lincoln," Ray Rockett is now also producing for First National. His first to be completed is "Paradise," recently shown, which establishes him definitely as an outstanding production executive. He is now about to start "Not Herbert," which will be followed by a special, "Head of the House of Coombe," and "The Crystal Cnp." Ray Rockett is regarded as one of the sanest and most reliable of producers.

Jack Mulhall

ONE First National player who may be counted upon for reliable, consistent performance is Jack Mulhall, who has appeared in leading roles with several of the First National feminine stars. Mulhall turned to the screen at an early age and was almost immediately successful. One of his best recent performances was in "Classified," which won him considerable critical and public acclaim. He then came East to appear in "Subway Sadie," where he again scores. He is now working in "The Charleston Kid," after which he returns West for "Orchids and Ermine."

Svend Gade

ALTHOUGH his fame in Europe was as an art director, and it was a mission of this sort in connection with a stage play that brought him to this country, Svend Gade has demonstrated here that his ability in the field of direction is equally great. He has brought to his work in motion pictures, including the memorable "Siege" and several Mary Philbin vehicles, a rare sense of pictorial values and lighting. His current productions are "The Blonde Saint," which he is now directing for Sam E. Rork, and "Into Her Kingdom," likewise for First National.

Ken Maynard

UNDER the management of Charles R. Rogers, Ken Maynard is appearing in a series of Western productions for First National release which should make Western history. Each is being produced with the same care that would go into a feature of any type, and they are not characterized by the cheapness and lack of story which is typical of the routine Western. Maynard's personality is tremendously likeable. "Senor Daredevil" is his first for First National.

Harry Langdon

FEW comedians have recorded as rapid or as sure a rise to featured rank as has Harry Langdon. A graduate of the school of vaudeville, it did not take him long to find himself in the newer medium. His appearance in two-reel comedies was so outstandingly successful and attracted such widespread attention, that it was only a step from this to Langdon's own company to produce feature-length comedies for First National release. The first was "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp," which has now been followed by "The Strong Man."

Francis X. Bushman

FEW players have maintained their screen popularity as steadily as Francis X. Bushman. Had his fame not been based upon genuine ability as an actor, he would have dropped from sight after the few years which constitute the film life of a screen idol, instead of which he has gone on steadily to increasing triumphs. As Messala in "Ben-Hur," he walked away with a lion's share of the acting honors, while as the theatrical director in "The Marriage Clause" his work ranks as one of the outstanding performances of the year. He appears in "The Lady in Ermine" for First National.

Colleen Moore

ONE of First National's objects in starting its own production was the development of its own stars, and in no case has it been more remarkably successful than in the case of Colleen Moore. Her rise has been phenomenal but steady, and has been aided by able story selection and every production resource. Her comedy gift, plus a likeable personality and charm, have placed her solidly among the most popular feminine stars. Her first production for First National's Banner Group will be "Twinkletoes," to be followed by "Orchids and Ermine."

Sam E. Rork

VETERAN showmanship combined with a sound knowledge of what the public wants has made the career of Sam E. Rork as a producer eminently successful. Such pictures as "Ponjola," "Inez from Hollywood" and "The Talker," displayed Rork's ability to assemble all the elements needed for an outstanding production. His most recent release is "Old Loves and New," based on "The Desert Healer." He is now completing work on the West Coast on "The Blonde Saint," adapted from the popular novel by Stephen Whitman.

Winifred Dunn

FULL recognition of the tremendous importance of properly prepared continuity is given at First National, and every effort has been made to obtain the best scenario talent available. As far as possible, each story is being adapted to the screen by the writer best qualified to put that particular story into screen form. Illustrative of this is the selection of Winifred Dunn to adapt "Twinkletoes" to the screen for Colleen Moore. Miss Dunn is the author of "Sparrows," a Mary Pickford original.

Kenneth Harlan

ONE of the most consistently popular of screen leading men is Kenneth Harlan, whose appearance and physique make him an ideal foil for a feminine player. His screen record includes Metro, Thomas H. Ince, Lois Weber, several pictures with Constance Talmadge, Warner Bros., and a number of productions for Preferred. He appears as Chuck Lightfoot in "Twinkletoes" for First National.

Albert Rogell

AS Ken Maynard's director, filming a series of special Western productions for First National release, Albert Rogell has distinguished himself among the men making this type of feature. The usual cheap Western was not enough for First National, and Rogell has set himself the task of producing Westerns as fine in their way as any type of production. His success was demonstrated in "Senor Daredevil," and will be again in "The Unknown Cavalier" and "Flame of the Border."

J. N. Wilson & "Pat" McKenna

IN line with the growing tendency toward original screen stories, developed for the screen alone, First National has purchased for a forthcoming Colleen Moore special the story "It Could Have Happened," by Jerome N. Wilson, which will be novelized by Agnes "Pat" McKenna (Mrs. Wilson). This strong story team, which has been specializing in powerful screen tales, based on big themes and soundly developed, has just completed the adaptation and treatment of Richard Barthelmess' forthcoming production for First National release.

George Archainbaud

BEGINNING his career as a director in his native France, and first coming here to direct for a French company, George Archainbaud occupies a firm position to-day in American directorial ranks. He directed a great many pictures for Selznick, including "The Common Law" and "One Week of Love." He was one of the first directors to be brought East by First National. His last three pictures are "Men of Steel," "Puppets" and "Men of the Dawn."

B. P. Fineman

ANOTHER of the young producers playing such an important part in the studios of to-day is B. P. Fineman, who has one of the units at the new Burbank studios. Fineman made a brilliant reputation for himself while in charge of the F. B. O. studios, where he delivered remarkable results on that company's program. Now, producing on a larger scale for First National, he is accomplishing even greater things. His productions for First National are "Forever After" and "Ladies at Play."

A New Era in Studio Construction

Air View First National Studios

NEW records for industrial construction were made by the Austin Company of California in the construction of the First National Studios at Burbank.

In seventy and one-half working days from the time ground was broken—two months ahead of schedule—the studio was ready for production, complete in every detail.

The entire plant, including administration offices; publicity and scenario buildings; stages; dressing rooms; property building; cutting, camera, and projection rooms; garages; mills; shops; and sheds; was designed and constructed by Austin under a single contract. Electrical installation, the fire protection system, all underground work, street paving, in fact everything to the smallest detail, was taken care of under this one contract—another example of the success of Austin's plan of "Unit Responsibility."

And the total cost of the project was well within the original appropriation.

Before you plan your studio expansion program investigate Austin's standard and special dark stages.

When the director wants a set built... "TomorrOw"

... you can't imagine the studio Purchasing Agent and stage carpenters tearing wildly from one lumber yard to the next — getting prices — hunting for materials — wasting precious time.

... They know they can get every kind of building material they want from the huge Hammond organization. And get it quick! In the vast Hammond yards are materials enough to build cities — a mill-working department equipped to handle the biggest rush order — and a fleet of trucks that make delivery on time!

... It's not unusual for Hammond to get an order that would exhaust the stocks of the ordinary lumber yard. But experience has proved to the studios that Hammond can be depended upon to furnish almost anything immediately—from stock! And the sharpest studio buyers admit that dealing with Hammond is economical in the end.

Coast Resort Sees Model Drive for Red Grange

"One Minute to Play" Exploited in Atlantic City as New York Campaign Gets Under Way

SIMULTANEOUS with the preliminary exploitation campaign accorded "One Minute to Play," starring Red Grange, when it was shown to the trade in the Times Square Theatre recently, and on September 5, when it goes into the Colony Theatre, New York, for an indefinite run, the Strand Theatre in Atlantic City, New Jersey, played its big exploitation guns on the public during the film's great seaside resort premiere in that city this week.

The Strand did nothing by halves. It had the picture, and it did not intend to fall down on the exploitation angles of the film. The management plastered the entire city with flaming Red Grange posters, decorating the famous boardwalk until it resembled a Grange memorial.

An ice-wagon was secured, with two men in football togs, to parade the streets, thus capitalizing the tremendous publicity this nationally known football star has received due to his Wheaton ice-wagon activities.

At the premiere, the management took advantage of the fact that Jack Dempsey, world's champion heavyweight fighter, was in training in Atlantic City, and invited him to appear at the opening.

Lobby Decorations

The theatre itself was decorated as befitted the occasion. Footballs in miniature and cardboard were given to the public, the ushers were dressed in corresponding costumes, the entire auditorium of the theatre was covered with collegiate banners advertising the name of Red and his team—and the net result was a public enthusiasm and a profitable week that bids fair to rival anything of its kind in this city.

The Atlantic City newspapers caught the fever, and Wally McCurley, famous sports writer of the Atlantic City Times, ran a nine-inch double column criticism of the picture and Grange which had nothing but praise for the actor and the technical novelties of the film.

In Wildwood, N.J., one exhibitor framed a novel stunt by printing his own Red Grange News, and distributed this throughout the city. This house, the Hunt Theatre, employed unusual showmanly tactics. So infectious was the enthusiasm that the Leader, a Wildwood newspaper, printed a snappy cartoon titled "Red Grange Is Here," which caught the attention of the fans and helped the sale of tickets considerably.

Finger-Print Expert Judge of "Outside the Law" Test

The thumb print contest suggested in the Universal Press Book for "Outside the Law," which A. J. Sharick, Universal Exploiteer, has been using with a great deal of success in Ohio cities, was given an even wider appeal in Cleveland, where the "Plain Dealer" ran it, by having George Koestle, superintendent of the police bureau of criminal detection and one of the best finger-print experts in the country, act as judge of the contest.

Balboa Theatre Given Good Publicity by Restaurants

The Balboa Theatre is finding a good medium of publicity in the cards which it sends to nearly all the restaurants and cafes in the city, announcing the week's programs. The cards, three by six inches, are gotten up in a tasty manner, and bear at the bottom the name of the restaurant to which each parcel is sent. The head waiter clips the cards to the regular menu cards of the cafe or restaurant.

Play Up to Kids and Build Increasing Patronage

By Louis C. Shimon

(Uptown Theatre, Sheboygan, Wis.)

I am, and always have been strongly in favor of a short subject program—a variety bill carefully selected. That is just exactly what I am giving them in Sheboygan—and incidentally the other houses are following right in line.

This town is full of kids—so I'm making a strong play for their trade, to repeat what one big advertiser said, "My children formerly knew only the theatres on Eighth Street and now all I hear in my house is Uptown Theatre, certainly, I'll advertise with you."

The latest idea is presenting beautifully framed photos of the "OUR GANG" kids to my gang and it's doing wonders.

Shoes Prizes for Winning Hikers in Macon

During the run of "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp," a tramping contest was arranged by Manager Robert Simpson of the Capitol Theatre, Macon, Ga., in cooperation with the Macon Shoe Company. Boys and girls, men and women of all ages were eligible to compete for the prizes.

Judges were stationed along the route of the race to see that the contestants kept in a walk, for anyone breaking into a trot or run was disqualified.

The first male hiker and the first feminine pedestrian were rewarded with fine new shoes from the Macon Shoe Company's stock and the two finishing second were given $5 each.

Novel Slide Announcements for "The Scarlet Streak"

A blank slide with a scarlet line drawn across it was the opening gun in W. W. Fraser's campaign for "The Scarlet Streak" at the Moreton Picture House, Moreton, Cheshire, England, which he manages. He followed this up with the question, "What does this mean?" and proceeded to answer his query by another slide announcing "It means the great Universal serial, 'The Scarlet Streak,' appears here next week."

"Red Extra" Ballyhoos Tie-Up Edition

Regular Copies with Ads for "Johnstown Flood" Overprinted

DOUBLE-TRUCK advertising layouts are not at all uncommon, nor is the old reliable "Red Extra." The apparent simplicity of both, however, does not in any way reduce their effectiveness as sure-fire business getters.

When "The Johnstown Flood" played Pantages Theatre in San Diego, Cal., co-operative advertising pages were placed, not only in one newspaper, but in two of them. The Independent carried a single page and the Sun two pages.

The title adapted itself to tie-ups with Builders, Finance Companies, Auto Dealers, Banks, Bathing Suits, Fishing Tackle and Sporting Goods Stores.

The issue of the Sun that carried the "double truck" also carried a "red extra," running diagonally across the front of the page reading: "'The Johnstown Flood' now at Pantages Theatre."

"Our Gang" Tie-ups Gain Large Window Displays

Recent dealer tie-ups on the Hal Roach-Pathe "Our Gang" comedies brought about window displays in conspicuous locations on two of the most important thoroughfares in New York and Chicago.

A tie-up made by a Lubliner & Trinz Theatre gained space in the most prominent window in the Boston Store at State and Madison, the window being given over to a display of Our Gang candy.

The Fifth Avenue, New York, store of the Rudd Manufacturing Company recently contained an enlargement in colors of the Gang gathered about a Rudd heater, along with a display of stills from the recent Our Gang comedies.

Old shoes were an effective decoration for the title displayed in huge cut-out letters and still boards which dominated the front of the Crystal Theatre, Los Angeles, as exploitation for First National's "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp"

Parsons Newspaper Joins Theatre in Stunt to Launch "Green Archer"

COOPERATING with the Parsons, Kan., Daily Sun, Theodore P. Davis of the Best Theatre, Parsons, staged a big morning show for the screening of the first episode of "The Green Archer." Here's how Mr. Davis displayed some real showmanship in exploiting "The Green Archer":

"We sold the idea to the Parsons Daily Sun, our evening paper, that they would get much good advertising and build up good will for themselves by cooperating with us in giving all children in town under fifteen years of age a free show. The Sun was to furnish all advertising and we to furnish the show. The program was to be advertised as being given by the Sun and the Best Theatre. They gave us nearly a full page of advertising altogether without any cost to us.

"We bought a hundred pounds of candy and a thousand striped candy sacks from the wholesale house for $12.50, which made about seven hundred sacks of candy and advertised that each child would be given a sack of the candy free.

"The show was run as a special matinee at 10 a.m. Announcement was made advertising the excellence of the regular program for that day and the wonderful Saturday program, which we believe stimulated business on these days.

Hawaiian Music in Lobby Atmosphere for "Aloma"

Concentrating his efforts on a good selling factor for "Aloma of the South Seas," Manager Charles R. Hammerslough obtained the services of a colored man to play Hawaiian music in the lobby every evening during the engagement of that picture at the Broadway Theatre, Newburgh, N.Y.

Makes All Comedy Circus Monthly Event

Star Theatre, Ashton, Starts Feature with Two-Day Engagement

THE Star Theatre, Ashton, Idaho, has made the All-Comedy Circus a regular monthly program unit. So successful were the first three programs of this nature, that on the fourth, it carried for a two-day run, this being the first time in that territory that the All-Comedy Circus was used more than one day.

The laugh program for July 20th and 21st consisted of the following short comedies:

"Fly Time," an Aesop Fable; a Hal Roach "Our Gang" comedy, "Buried Treasure"; Theda Bara in "Madame Mystery," a Hal Roach comedy; Harry Langdon in "Remember When," a Mack Sennett comedy, and Charley Chase in "Mama Behave," another Hal Roach two-reel production.

The varied-colored circus heralds were illustrated with Pathe cornerblock ads.

This stock three-sheet yielded the figure which the Strand Theatre, Seattle, made the feature of a frontal display for First National's "High Steppers"

Flood Ads Stir Johnstown's Interest in "Torrent"

The disastrous Johnstown Flood of 1889, one of the famous national catastrophes, was a factor in catching the attention of the public for the run of "Ibanez" Torrent" in Johnstown, Pa.

Special cards were printed and posted in prominent places by Manager L. M. Conrad of the Nemo Theatre with copy reading as follows: "Warning! (Weather Report). 'Torrent' of thrills and Whirlwind of emotion Sweeping down on Johnstown at Nemo Theatre."

The psychological effect was to arouse great curiosity by a poster of this kind in the city famed for the havoc of the great flood.

"Brown of Harvard" Tied-In with Lima Political Campaign

MANAGER A. Ritzler, of the Sigma Theatre, Lima, Ohio, cleverly tied-up his campaign on "Brown of Harvard" to the campaign of a popular politician, one "Thad" Brown, a candidate for nomination as Governor.

He chartered a street car and ran it over the entire local route for three days in advance of the picture's opening. Large banners on both sides of the car carried the words "Brown of Harvard is Coming to Lima." The word "Brown" was in very large letters, the balance of the slogan in much smaller letters. Because of the fact that "Thad" Brown was well-known locally, the sign aroused an unusual amount of curiosity and comment. On the day of opening the trolley signs were changed to "See 'Brown of Harvard'—Sigma Theatre. Now."

An effective lobby display was supplied by a large shadow box in front of the box office, with three sheets cut out and colored electric lights forming a frame. Cut-out letters, surrounded with white electric light bulbs, were suspended over the marquee to spell the name, "Brown of Harvard."

Editions of "Midnight Sun" Herald Showing

Special editions, hawked about the streets as "Extras" of "The Midnight Sun" proved sensational announcements of the showing of the Universal picture at the Howard Theatre, Atlanta, Ga. 5,000 copies of the extra were distributed by five newsboys on the Saturday before the opening date of the engagement.

Idol Featured in Display For "Road to Mandalay"

A large idol, placed in the lobby of the Lincoln Theatre, Lincoln, Neb., one week in advance of the showing, proved an effective advance agent for "The Road to Mandalay" when it played that theatre. A mechanical arrangement attached to the statue kept the eyes in a constant blinking motion.

Lobby atmosphere and a window display for "The Road to Mandalay" (M-G-M), when the picture showed at the Majestic Theatre, Austin, Tex.

Short Subjects and Serials

"Mona Lisa" Title of New Romance Color Picture

LEONARDO DA VINCI'S painting "Mona Lisa" will furnish the inspiration for the third Romance natural color production to be released through Educational. Arthur Maude wrote the story and Hedda Hopper, Crawford Kent and Arthur Shaw will be seen in the principal roles.

Humorous sequences from the "Her Ambition," a S. ern Bros. comedy released through Universal

"Alaskan Adventures" Rights Acquired by Pathe

Pathe has acquired the rights to "Alaskan Adventures," a feature production filmed by Capt. Jack Robertson, noted explorer, and Arthur H. Young, world's champion bow and arrow shot and big game archer.

The picture deals with adventures in parts of Alaska never before touched by the foot of man and affords some wonderful scenic views of the midnight sun on its course around the horizon, the breaking up of the ice in spring, the birth of an iceberg and scenes in the Valley of Ten Thousand Smokes.

Pathe to Release Two Features on Sept. 12

"The Devil Horse" and "The High Hand," two Pathe feature length productions, will be released on September 12. The first, which stars Rex, the horse star, has already been previewed. Hal Roach wrote and produced this story and Fred Jackman directed.

"The High Hand" is the first of a new series starring Leo Maloney and is of the Western type. Ford Beebe wrote the story and Maloney directed at his own studio. Josephine Hill is the heroine and Paul Hurst plays the "heavy."

Anna May Wong Signed for Hal Roach Comedy

Anna May Wong, Chinese actress, has been signed by Hal Roach to appear in a special comedy to be made by that producer for Pathe release. Miss Wong appeared in "The Fortieth Door," a Pathe-serial starring Allene Ray.

"Our Gang" Comedy in Five Reels for Foreign Market

The latest "Our Gang," "The Fourth Alarm," is being edited in five reels for the European market because of the demand for the kiddie comedies in this length by foreign exhibitors, claim the Pathe offices. Robert McGowan directed the Hal Roach production.

Tunney Serial on Pathe List

Schedule for September 12 Includes
"Our Gang" Comedy and Aesop's Fable

PROMINENT on the Pathe list of releases for the week of September 12 is the first episode of the serial starring Gene Tunney, heavyweight pugilist champion aspirant, titled, "The Fighting Marine." The schedule also includes a new "Our Gang" comedy, "The Fourth Alarm," and an Aesop's Film Fable along with the regular issues of Pathe News, Topics of the Day and Pathe Review.

The story for "The Fighting Marine" was written by Frank Leon Smith and it was directed by Spencer Bennet, who has directed all of the recent Patheserials. Supporting Tunney are Virginia Vance, who plays opposite the star, Walter Miller, who has the second male lead, and Marjorie Gay in the second feminine lead role. The title is explanatory of the nature of the action. "The Fourth Alarm" is, as the title indicates, a story of the fire department. Robert McGowan directed.

"Abraham the Patriarch" is the first fall release of the "Pilgrimage to Palestine" series of Biblical subjects. It shows scenes down the River Euphrates, past Damascus, the Valley of the Shechem and Abraham's wells.

Pathe Review No. 37 presents "Sub-Flapper Fashions," Paris styles for the debutante's kid sister; "Taking a Chance at Chimney Rock," a rope-climbing nunber; "Beyond the Purple Pool," a camera fantasy of the ballet, dances arranged by Mr. Ernest Belcher at the Hollywood Bowl—photographed with the process-camera invented by Alvin V. Knechtel of the Pathe Review Camera Staff.

"A Buggy Ride" is the latest of the Paul Terry cartoons of the Aesop's Film Fables series. Topics of the Day No. 37 offers latest humor from the press of the world; issues Nos. 76 and 77 of Pathe News offer last minute world events.

"The Blue Boy"

(Educational-Technicolor—Two Reels)
(Reviewed by Paul Thompson)

THIS second in the Romance series of famous paintings, presented by Eugene Roth, maintains the splendid standard which characterized the first, "The Vision," shown last May. It is photographed by the technicolor process and rarely have I seen more beautiful or effective pictures thrown on the screen. There is a constant succession of groupings you feel you would like to cut out and, were it possible, frame the same. The colors are invariably soft, never glaring or offensive to either your physical or aesthetic vision. Why pictures of this kind are not seized by every exhibitor in the country is a mystery. Were I the directing genius of a Broadway house I would eagerly book every one of these that they could turn out and then ask for more. And I would publicize it so that people would come to see it as much as they do for a feature picture. Once would be enough; the second time they and others would come on the mere announcement. It is a simple tale, moreover, and needs no great intellect to appreciate and applaud it. In other words, from my point of view, it would appeal to every class of movie patron. The applause greeting it at a purely professional pre-showing proves that.

"The Blue Boy" is suggested, of course, by Gainsborough's famous painting, familiar to everyone. Long in the National Art Gallery in London, it is now owned in this country. Arthur Maude, who directed it, wrote a story of a child stolen by the gypsies from an aristocratic English family. Eight years later the boy is returned to his parents and the famous painter decides to use the youngster for his model for "The Blue Boy" painting. George W. Stout produced the piece and Ray Bannahan photographed it.

THE CAST

John Roche, Jane Thomas, Frank Austin, Esther Rhoades, Philippe DeLacy and Montague Shaw.

"Two Dollars Please"

(Universal-Bluebird—One Reel)

YES, Neely Edwards may marry Betty Baker (on the screen) if he has an office full of patients at two o'clock when her father calls. What could be more simple? The highways and byways are scoured by friends picking up people to go to the office with the promise of a two-dollar bill if they put in an appearance. The denomination seemingly has lost its sinister significance, for the office is crowded by, among others, six girls in a beauty contest who proceed to put on bathing suits for the doctor's inspection, thinking he is the judge of the contest. Another caller is a cramp-suffering clergyman. The latter's call is most opportune because he can and does marry the lovers before the reel ends, or anyway, just after, I have reason to believe. Director Kennedy is the man who moves the two featured pawns mentioned above hither and thither. "Two Dollars" will be put in circulation September 20.—PAUL THOMPSON.

"Uppercuts"

(Educational-Christie—Two Reels)
(Reviewed by Paul Thompson)

COMING events cast their shadow before in the pictures as well as the other worlds we live in. Jack Dempsey's defending his crown from Gene Tunney's assault, inconsistently now scheduled for the "City of Brotherly Love," has made prize-fight pictures the thing. Educational has not been slow to realize this, hence "Uppercuts." Jack Duffy is the comedian to be starred in this drama of fisticuffs. There is as much action out of the ring as there is in it, so you can bank on being on the edge of your seat as often as you would be at Boyle's Thirty Acres, the Sesqui grounds or Madison Square Garden.

To settle which man shall be president of an anti-prize fight club, Jack Duffy and his opponent decide to let victory between the former's butler and the latter's regulation fighter decide. Hence the prize fight. Here is action galore, with Jack, unethically, but effectively, reviving his representative with hat-pin jabs when he is, to all intents and purposes, out. A police raid breaks up the fight and the picture also concerns itself with the pursuit of Duffy and Jimmie Harrison, his would-be son-in-law. Their ingenuity in escaping is great. The picture really is amusing and worth while.

THE CAST

Jack Duffy, Stella Adams, Violet Bird, Jimmie Harrison and William Irving. Director, Walter Graham.

Summary—Proving the race sometimes is to the swift, the max'm to the contrary. Plausible and entertaining rough-house comedy.

"Jim Hood's Ghost"

(Universal-Mustang—Two Reels)
(Reviewed by Paul Thompson)

JOSIE SEDGWICK'S moving picture brother was not kicked to death by his favorite horse, but was murdered by a rapacious, beetle-browed neighbor. That is what she discovered when she returned from the East (or California) and put on his clothes to be more at home. You see, she and the brother were twins and when she made her appearance the villains all thought it was a ghost of the murdered man. Naturally, the rest was easy, especially when Edward Hearn, a sort of foreman of the ranch, helped sister out by hard riding and equally hard fighting. So you may be comforted by being forewarned that Josie and Edward get married at the end and regain the property and live happily ever after. The marriage will not be exactly as durable as that because they will have to play new parts in a new Mustang series and, while the characters may be the same, the names will have to be changed, as will the title and the plot—the latter only slightly. I will pay Miss Sedgwick this compliment, however—she does not look or ride like a ghost and is justly claimed by the other featured player. He doesn't do much to win her though, there being really only one fight and that is not enough in two reels. Director O'Brien has the honors of the piece, which will be released December 4, 1926.

"Big and Little"

(Pathe-Spotlight—One Reel)

GRANTLAND RICE, the authority on sports on the New York Herald-Tribune and Collier's who also contributes to other magazines, displays his usual catholicity in this week's spotlight pictures. Fishing, sailing, golf and other activities are the subjects for his descriptive captions and the pictures. The average is decidedly high. Girl campers in war canoe races, landing tarpon and other smaller fish, small classes of yachts, and a miniature golf course that through its trickiness nullifies its size; all lend themselves to effective pictorial treatment. As always, Grantland's comments add greatly to the enjoyment of the photos.—PAUL THOMPSON.

"The Fighting Marine"

Gene Tunney Enters Lists as Hero
(Reviewed by Paul Thompson)

TILDEN, Dempsey, "Lefty" Flynn, "Red" Grange and now Gene Tunney, with Suzanne Lenglen surely in the offing, the movies are surely seducing our athletic heroes. The man who hopes to win the heavyweight pugilistic crown and, because of his record in the war, hopes shared by the majority whether fight fans or not, has made his debut as a hero of the screen. Pathe will show his fighting and histrionic prowess in ten chapters in a melo-thriller called "The Fighting Marine." The first of these will be released September 12th. Judging by the three chapters shown at a pre-review here is meat for strong men and fair women, admitting that the unfair, so-called, weaker sex also can assimilate the same diet.

The favorite Pathe team, Spencer Bennet, director, and Frank Leon Smith, scenarist, has prepared the serial. Judging by the physical prowess displayed Dempsey bettors will hedge wisely their bets on the fight for the world's championship. Tunney is really good and makes a mighty effective newspaper-reporter, Sir Galahad knight-errant for the fair lady in distress, in this case Marjorie Gay, alias Lady Chatfield. It is going to be quite a shock to 100 per cent. American admirers of Tunney to find him masquerading as an English lord and wearing a monocle, which he does quite convincingly.

The plot is concerned with Tunney's agreeing to act as a guard for the heroine for six months in a California mining camp, that she may inherit the property there left by her grandfather, the founder of the town. In the first three reels Tunney has licked twelve opponents and only the producers know how many are scheduled for annihilation before the end of the serial.

The Cast: Gene Tunney (starred), Marjorie Gay, Walter Miller, Virginia Vance, Sherman Ross, Mike Donlin, Wally Oetell, Jack Anthony and Anna May Walthall. Director, Spencer Bennet.

Theme: Gene Tunney protecting English heroine in California mining camp.

Production Highlights: Physical prowess of star. Ingenious introduction.

Exploitation: Angles Obviously Tunney's athletic fame, Dempsey fight and hero's war service.

Drawing Power: Great. Public already made for it. Tunney is good actor.

Made and distributed by Pathe.

Length, ten chapters. Released September 12, 1926.

The Tropics for a Subject (Educational-Bruce Scenics—Two Single Reels)

WHEN Educational Films decided to declare a Roman holiday and show the second of the Romance Technicolor pictures, "The Blue Boy," at the Wurlitzer Auditorium, they built up a program of short subjects reviewed elsewhere in this issue, to hold the attention of their critic-guests. Two of these were Robert C. Bruce scenic novelties. Each was in one or part of one reel. The first was "A Typical Tropical Sky," the second, "Sons of the Surf." Both are beautiful pictures from a photographic viewpoint and that of interest. The second of the two deals with surf-riding in Hawaii. Of course, it will be objected, this is not a new subject, but, on the other hand, the pictures are as effective as anything on the subject shown on the screen.—PAUL THOMPSON.

"Should Husbands Pay?" (Pathe-Hal Roach—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Paul Thompson)

THIS is a gratuitous question: the married ones say they do anyway whether they should or not. However, that is a subject for the international economics conference, held annually at Williams College, Massachusetts, and not for a family (among other things) trade motion picture magazine, such as this. The characters in this picture pay and plenty, for, F. Richard Jones, the director, insists, as most of his ilk do, that his players shall go the limit to win approbation for himself from the producers and money for the latter from the exhibitors. This piece should do both. The piece features Jimmy Finlayson, who is supported by Vivian Oakland, Martha Sleeper, Anders Randolph, Tyler Brooke, Charlotte Mineau and Anita Garvin. All who wish may see them on the release, September 5th.

Jimmy is a reformer and in court saves his neighbor, Tyler, accused of flirting, from jail by promising to act as his conservator-of-morals for a month. They have not been out of the courtroom five minutes before they are both tangled up with a lady in distress whom they try to help across a puddle-filled street. Almost as many newspaper photographers as are employed in New York on the tabloids, The Daily News, Mirror, and Graphic, miraculously are on the job, photographing the reformer in the most compromising positions and situations. Given that premise write your own comedy after the wife has seen the pictures reproduced in the paper. Before the end is reached the police court judge, his wife, and seemingly every man's wife or every woman's husband is mixed up in the plot. Certainly, marathons are part of any well-regulated Hollywood "daily dozen" exercise program.

"Morning Judge" (Red Seal—"Carrie" Series—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Harold Flavin)

THIS, the first of a new series of comedies produced by Max Fleischer based on the adventures of a chorus girl, is a mildly amusing effort of the situation type of fun-film. Carrie and her company put on their show in a hick town and are arrested for performing a too realistic hula-hula dance. Due to Carrie's ability as a vamp the company is released by the local judge, who has a penchant for pretty girls, but, as they are leaving town they are rearrested by the judge's son, a police officer, and are hauled back to court for sentence. In the meantime the judge's wife, a militant type, learns of hubby's defection, visits the court while the case is being tried and interrupts the hearing to chastise the judge. During this interlude the son proposes to Carrie and is accepted, so all ends well except for the judge, who has been "beaten" on all sides. Peggy Shaw handles the role of Carrie capably. Flora Finch is excellent as the judge's wife.

Summary—Will probably prove fair entertainment for patrons of the small houses. Not for sophisticated audiences.

"The Fourth Alarm" (Pathe-Hal Roach—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Paul Thompson)

"OUR GANG" as firemen; can't you just imagine even before seeing the picture its possibilities? Well, they are realized in one of the best of the recent releases of what has become one of the classic gems of the screen.

Playing around a firehouse, as what kid would not delight to do, they decide to form their own department. Everything is there; makeshift uniforms, the dormitory where the juvenile fire-fighters sleep, the pole for descent to the floor where the apparatus is housed, this equipment with goats and a mule substituted for regulation horses or auto fire engines, hook and ladder and hose carts, etc. Also there is a fire patrol which, discovering a fire in a barrel of pitch for a house under construction, turns in the alarm. Then ensues the awakening (?) of the brave firemen and their start for and arrival at the fire. Then a real fire where the regulation adult firemen are engaged. Shunted away from this because they are so much under foot and in the way, they discover a fire has broken out in the rear that threatens to destroy a chemist's laboratory where T. N. T. powder and other explosives are stored. These they remove to safety while battling the fire themselves and thus save the situation.

It is one of the cleverest things Hal Roach and his youthful Thespians have done in a long time. There is no question about the hilarious reception which will be accorded the piece when it is thrown on the screen. That goes double for every youngster and every adult who has the slightest semblance of humor in his composition.

"My Kid" (Educational-Juvenile Comedy—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Paul Thompson)

IT is uncanny how some of the juvenile actors and actresses of the screen do the work they do before the camera. It is not merely a question of following the director's commands, because he can be within a few feet of his cast and still be out of the camera range. It is not the physical action which they go through but the facial phases that get me. Youngsters from two years up act with the assurance and aplomb of their elders. And they do not spoil it by appearing self-conscious or smart-Alecky. There are any number of juvenile thespians to whom this praise is due, possibly starting with the widely known "Our Gang" and including "Big Boy" Wilson.

This particular one of the "Big Boy" series is delicious. His nose out of joint because of the presence in the household of a baby he revolts and runs away. He pals up with a Knight of the Road and they hit the ties together. A reward being offered for the return of the child there ensues a conflict between sheriff and constable to claim the same. A donkey is responsible for the return of the prodigal. Entertaining, whimsical, convincing and any other laudatory adjectives you wish to use, is "My Kid."

"Pests" (Pathe-Fables—One Reel)

MOVING pictures are invariably signs of the times, whether the pictures are news-reels, features, comedies, dramas or fables. So it is quite logical to find that the next Fable offering deals with prize fighting. To raise money needed for some reason or other Farmer Al trains for and enters a prize fight. The training and the fight of a Dempsey or a Tunney are carefully and amusingly burlesqued. Instead of a human being Farmer Al's opponent proves to be a gorilla. The latter is finally knocked out by a pop bottle thrown by a spectator. It is good fun, never failing to be amusing, with action from start to finish. Oh, yes, now I remember why the fight was dragged in. It was because the mouse hero or villain, all dependent on the point of view, needs the purse to bribe his sweetheart's young brothers to stay away while he pursues his courtship with no spectators. That is as good an excuse as any for the comedy fight.—PAUL THOMPSON.

"For the Love of Pete" (Bray-Hot Dog Cartoon—One Reel)

THIS is one of Walter Lang's efforts—patterned after those which feature an artist and one or more of his inkwell creations—and it's done in first rate shape. Lang is not only a good cartoonist but a pretty good actor as well. As to the story, it's all about the loss of the cartoonist's trousers. It's an amusing novelty and good program filler.—EDW. G. JOHNSTON.

"The Steeplechase" (Fox-Imperial Comedy—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Paul Thompson)

HERE the title of the picture really has something to do with the picture, which does not always happen. A Southern colonel has an entry in an important steeplechase race and has a famous jockey coming to ride his entry. A bunch of crooked gamblers, including the colonel's own trainer, kidnap the boy on his arrival. His place is taken against his will by a patent medicine vendor, Lige Conley, who is virtually catapulted into the saddle. Knowing little or nothing of riding he is unhorsed several times, yet crosses the line a winner, carried to victory in the mouth of the sapient horse. One feels that the race, to make possible the many and varied contretemps of the patent-medicine vending jockey in the course of the event, is like Tennyson's brook—it is going on forever. He wins the colonel's daughter also because there seems to be a lamentable absence of acceptable suitors for her hand in the small town where she lives. I suppose this proves the truth of Kipling's assertion about the "colonel's lady and Judy O'Grady being sisters" underneath the skin you love to touch. The piece is amusing but hardly intended for metropolitan consumption, yet it may score in that area as well as in the hinterland.

THE CAST

Lige Conley, Gladys McConnell, Frederick Sullivan, Stanley Blystone, William Fletcher and Frank Rice. Directed by Lex Neal. Supervised by George Marshall.

Summary—Amusing action-full comedy filled with "rough-house."

"Hoboken to Hollywood" (Pathe-Mack Sennett—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Paul Thompson)

FOR prospective automobile tourists from the Atlantic Seaboard, or even from the Middle West, I would hardly recommend this comedy. It would discourage them and then, when they arrived in California, instead of the perpetual sunshine which they have been led to expect, they might have the experience of Billy Bevan, Vernon Dent, Thelma Hall and Leonore Summers (in the film) and encounter a down-pour. I doubt if they will permit the picture to be shown in California, or, had that State the control, anywhere else in the United States. Any native son will tell you it can't be so; rain in that State.

It really is an entertaining picture and filled with comedy situations even if you vicariously do suffer with the players when you see what they have to go through. Bevan, transferred from New York to Los Angeles, decides to motor there with his wife and mother-in-law. Logically, a decrepit Ford is used. On the road they encounter a sort of house-boat bus headed for the same destination. After getting his fellow motorist into all sorts of troubles, Bevan arrives to find the latter is his divisional boss and that he, Bevan, has to retrace his steps as he has been re-called to New York.

"A Buggy Ride" (Pathe-Fables—One Reel)

IT would be more consistent to call this "When Knighthood was in Flower," because it deals with the hero's rescue of his lady-love after she has been kidnaped by the king in his coach-and-four and spirited away to his moated castle. Nothing daunted, Benny Beetle, the hero, converts the snail which has been drawing Benny and June Bug, the heroine, into a sort of high-wheel bicycle and starts in pursuit. Arriving at the castle he reaches the room where the king is forcing his unwelcome attentions on June and slays the villain. Before this successful denouement Benny kills a veritable army of regal courtiers and supporters. The fable is unusually amusing and that is high praise when one considers the uniform excellence of Paul Terry's work.—PAUL THOMPSON.

The Kick-Off

Fordham's Most Versatile Athlete Stars

(Reviewed by Paul Thompson)

GEORGE WALSH, who won his varsity letter in several major sports at Fordham, is now capitalizing some of that experience on the screen. This means that the man who was "nearly Ben-Hur" brings reality to the screen doing the things he knows how to do. This is particularly true of "The Kick-Off," another in the series of increasingly popular football plays.

This present vehicle, as is true of the majority of football pictures, has for its locale a small college. Has it ever occurred to any of the producers that it is a bit inconsistent to stage the championship game which the hero must win, and does, of course, in the Yale Bowl? Disregarding this possibly hypercritical comment, let's go on with the story. Walsh is an automobile mechanic football star. He evidently finds both jobs profitable, as he obviously shifts from one college to another offering better wages. His rival in sport and love decoys him from the championship game. Finding this out in his home town the hero is compelled to get back to the field as best he can. Auto, one horse-shay, horseback; all serve his purpose in an amusing sort of Sheridan's Ride "twenty miles away."

It is an always convincing and entertaining picture and will score not only with Walsh adherents but other fans. Wesley Ruggles wrote and directed the piece.

The Cast: George Walsh, Leila Hyams, Bee Amann, Earle Larimore, W. L. Thorne, Joe Burke, Jane Jennings. Director, Wesley Ruggles.

THEME: Inevitable winning football game at last moment by misunderstood hero.

PRODUCTION HIGHLIGHTS: The Paul Revere ride; not "The British or the Campbells are Coming," but George Walsh to save the game.

EXPLOITATION ANGLES: The star's feminine—and—masculine following; for the latter fact that he was National League baseball player.

DRAWING POWER: Should prove an excellent draw for most houses.

Marriage License

Alma Rubens in Well Done Drama

(Reviewed by Paul Thompson)

TRANSPOSITION of the stage play, "The Pelican," by that talented relative of Lord Alfred Tennyson, England's one-time poet laureate, F. Tennyson Jesse, writing in collaboration with H. M. Harwood, has been successfully accomplished by Fox Films in the scenario by Bradley King called "Marriage License" and directed by Frank Borzage. The company, headed by Alma Rubens, could scarcely be bettered and play their roles well.

For those unfamiliar with the original it may not be amiss to tell the plot. The heir to an ancestral title in England meets a girl in Canada, marries her and takes her home to his unreceptive parents swollen with pride of birth. Despite the girl's pregnancy, the boy's mother schemes to separate the son and his wife and succeeds. Years after, when the wife has met and fallen in love again, her ex-husband, discovering the existence of his own son, insists upon re-marriage for the boy's and his own sake. The woman, self-sacrificing yet torn between her love for her son and the other man, gives up her promised happiness. An unhappy ending, yes, but consistent and as such to be applauded.

What the moving picture world needs are more plays of this type as well conceived, directed and acted as is "Marriage License."

THEME: Conflict between mother love and that for a man.

PRODUCTION HIGHLIGHTS: Successful creation of atmosphere of aristocratic world in which action takes place.

EXPLOITATION ANGLES:

The Cast: Alma Rubens (featured), Walter McGrail, Richard Walling, Walter Pidgeon, Charles Lane, Emily Fitzroy, Langhorne Burton, Arthur Rankin, Edgar Norton. Director, Frank Borzage.

Use rear-of-train honeymoon scene. Alma Rubens and boy Robin (Richard Walling) close-ups. Accentuate mother-love theme.

Beau Geste

Sure-Fire Appeal in This Fine Picture

(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

AS stirring and colorful a picture as has been shown this season is "Beau Geste"—and it flies the Paramount banner. The plot, surging with adventure, seasoned with a thick mixture of mystery—and carrying on a vivid line of crackling action, keeps the spectator right on edge from the moment the characters are planted. It starts off with a terrific amount of suspense—does this tale of the Foreign Legion—and then unfolds in the flash-back manner.

One sees a picturesque fort in the midst of the desert. The relief forces arrive and discover dead soldiers at all the embrasures. That is the mystery element which keeps the patron in an overwhelming state of suspense. How did those soldiers appear in such a manner? It is positively uncanny.

The film is best with its assault on the fort—and in those scenes pertaining to the Legion. It has dash, danger, romance, adventure, heroism, brotherly love and villainy in large measure. Moreover, it is finely directed, finely photographed and finely acted by Noah Beery (who nearly steals the picture), Ronald Colman, Ralph Forbes, Neil Hamilton, William Powell and others. "Beau Geste" is worth anyone's time and money. Even the tragic end of its principal hero is testimony of its honesty and vigor.

The Cast: Ronald Colman, Ralph Forbes, Neil Hamilton, Norman Trevor, Noah Beery, Mary Brian, William Powell, Alice Joyce, Victor McLaglen. Director, Herbert Brenon.

THEME: Romantic drama of Foreign Legion with three brothers swearing eternal love for one another. Two die heroic deaths, leaving the other to renew his romance.

PRODUCTION HIGHLIGHTS: The Arab assault. The excitement, suspense and action in the fort. The acting by Beery, Colman and others.

EXPLOITATION ANGLES: Tie-up with book-dealers, etc. Play up Foreign Legion. Stage prologue. Dress ushers in costumes of Legion. Play up cast. Tie-up with military organizations, etc.

DRAWING POWER: Should pull 'em in anywhere. Action, thrills and cast see to that.

Produced and distributed by Famous Players-Lasky. Length, about ten reels. Released

Young April

Romance Again in the Balkans

(Reviewed by Paul Thompson)

FOR the inauguration of the new policy of first-run feature pictures at the Hippodrome, New York, in connection with vaudeville, Producers Distributing Corporation wisely selected "Young April." I say wisely, because it sets an excellent standard and gives the Keith-Albee patrons a splendid idea of what the future holds in store for them. There may be captions critics who will say, "What, another of those mythical kingdom pieces?" and was Laertes right, "There is nothing new under the sun?" I disagree with these cavers. If the treatment be what it should it matters not how hackneyed the theme.

Possibly trite but not to me, because the twain falling in love not knowing that they are supposed to marry for reasons of state. Then the crown prince gives up his right to the succession to the throne to prove his love for the supposed American girl and messes things up rather generally. Among other things this catapults her into the arms of his scheming uncle, the new occupant of the throne of Belgravia. For a finale the abduction of Bessie Love in successively, the bridal coach, a high-powered car and lastly over the border to safety in a plane. Pictorially, histrionically—not only by the three principals but by the support, and directorially "Young April" is worthy the imprint of the De Mille Studio.

Adapted from Egerton Castle's story by Jennis MacPherson and Douglas Doty.

The Cast: Joseph Schildkraut, Rudolph Schildkraut, Bessie Love, Bryant Washburn, Clarence Geldert, Alan Brooks, Dot Farley, Carey Daumery and Baldy Belmont. Director, Donald Crisp.

THEME: A marriage of convenience between heirs to two mythical Balkan kingdoms.

PRODUCTION HIGHLIGHTS: Girls' school scenes; atmosphere of small kingdom; convincingness of story.

EXPLOITATION ANGLES: Reputation and acting ability of three featured players.

DRAWING POWER: Good, especially for women fans.

The Flying Horseman

A Corking Good Western

(Reviewed by Edw. G. Johnston)

ALL the ingredients which go toward the making of an unusually good Western are to be found in this latest Buck Jones release and there is every assurance of its being a strong box-office attraction with audiences who enjoy a smashing good story, flavored with romance, fast and clever riding, villainy and six-shooters.

The picture is based on the novel, "Dark Rosaleen" and appeared serially in "The Ladies' Home Journal." Action gets under way with Buck and his steed headed for the "Comanche Free For All," a race with a $20,000 purse. On the way, adventures of all description befall our hero; he befriends a brood of poverty-stricken kids, buys Boy Scout outfits for them and teaches them the regulations of the order; foils the villain's efforts to wreck the fortune of the heroine's father and wins the $20,000 and the girl.

Buck, as usual, is convincing in his two-fisted, six-shooting role and while Gladys McConnell hasn't much to do, she does her bit well. Hank Mann, as the sheriff, lends a deft touch of comedy to some serious situations. The rest of the cast is excellent.

The Cast: Buck Jones, Gladys McConnell, Bruce Covington, Walter C. Percival, "Silver Buck," Hank Mann, Harvey Clark, Victor Pagg, Joseph Rickson. Story by Max Brand. Scenario by Gertrude Orr. Directed by Orville Dull.

THEME: Cowboy en route to race becomes involved in plot to ruin ranch owner. Foils plot, wins heroine and race.

PRODUCTION HIGHLIGHTS: Buck's horsemanship and well-trained steed. The race, fine action shots, excellent story and supporting cast.

EXPLOITATION ANGLES: The Boy Scout stuff is great and will make a fine tie-up. In addition, the novel appeared in "The Ladies' Home Journal." Tie-up also with bookstores.

DRAWING POWER: Great fare for a house where they enjoy Western melodrama. Will probably go well elsewhere.

The Golden Web

Good Program Fare

(Reviewed by Edw. G. Johnston)

ACCORDING to the press book, this screen version of one of E. Phillips Oppenheim's stories inaugurates a new series to be known as "Greater Gotham Productions" and while there's nothing particularly outstanding in the picture, with the possible exception of a strong and well-known cast and strict adherence to the story, it can be set down as good program fare.

Unlike Oppenheim's general run of yarns, practically the whole plot is revealed long before the end; however, this is somewhat offset by a strong finish with everything turning out as it should for the righteous.

Huntley Gordon gives a good interpretation of the miner left as sole possessor of a gold mine which finally pans out; the others left, due to the uncomfortable presence of earthquakes. Jay Hunt, of "Lightnin'" fame, is seen in the role of the original owner and Lillian Rich, his daughter. The scene changes to the East, where Gordon presides over the destinies of a newly formed mining company. The deed to the "Little Anna" mine is stolen and the original owner and Gordon are involved. Romance is brought in at this point, the murderer confesses, and all is well.

The Cast: Lillian Rich, Huntley Gordon, Jay Hunt, Lawford Davidson, Boris Karloff, Miss Philbury, The Butler, Office Boy. Adaptation by James Bell Smith and directed by Walter Lang.

THEME: Abandoned mine pans out for owner, deed is stolen and former owner involved in subsequent murder of thief.

PRODUCTION HIGHLIGHTS: Landslide shots at mine; third degree scene and acting of well-known cast.

EXPLOITATION ANGLES: Play up name of author and title; also, names in strong cast.

DRAWING POWER: Suitable for the average middle class and neighborhood houses.

Speeding Thru

Better Than Average Program Effort

(Reviewed by Harold Flavin)

RELETE with action, thrills, romance and comedy, this is above the average program production even though lacking in so-called production values. It is an auto-race comedy drama very much similar in treatment to the stories of this type in which the late Wallace Reid appeared, though in this case it is the girl who has the "fat" part as it is she who drives the car that wins the race.

Creighton Hale, the popular player, gives an excellent performance as the college youth with a passion for fast cars and Juda King more than satisfies with her characterization of a flapper with a positive mania for speed. The story and its denouement is obvious, being that of the automobile manufacturer's daughter who saves daddy's business by winning the Classic, which results in the awarding of a large contract to him. An attempt is made to inject a suspenseful element but one forgets it, or the lack of it, in watching the vivacious Miss King jazz her way through the six reels.

The scenes of the auto race are particularly good and there's many a thrill as the "spills" occur. Robert McKim, the villain, and Lionel Belmore, the serio-comic manufacturer, contribute sterling performances in their respective roles.

THEME: Comedy drama of rivalry between automobile manufacturers with the daughter of one defeating the other with the help of a college boy who wins her love.

PRODUCTION HIGHLIGHTS: The girl's altercation with the police. The scenes at the dance. The fight in the deserted cabin. The "spills" which occur during the race.

The acting of Miss King and Creighton Hale.

EXPLOITATION ANGLES: There are many possibilities for a tie-up with automobile manufacturers. Play up acting of Juda King and Creighton Hale.

DRAWING POWER: Should have no trouble getting over in second run and small town houses. It is a picture that the whole family can see.

Produced by W. T. Lackey and distributed by Elbee Pictures Corporation. Length, 5,500 feet. Released September 15

The Show-Off

Funny But Not Up to the Play

(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

WHAT was expected has happened here—and that concerns the inability of the camera to catch the psychology of the central character from which the play and picture took its name.

"The Show-Off" is a disappointment in that it has lost much in its transference from stage to screen—much of its force and logic. It loses a great deal of its subtleties and shadings—qualities difficult to capture when they have been woven so deeply in dialogue and characterization. Again Ford Sterling has a tendency to burlesque the title role. Which is excusable, inasmuch as he was forced to compensate for the raucous laugh that scored so highly on the stage.

The picture is funnier than the play. The latter was described in the program as a "transcript of life," but on the screen it is treated for its mirthful measures. As comedy it evokes sufficient laughter to score most anywhere—and Ford Sterling makes Mr. Show-Off a self-satisfied, demonstrative person given to boobish outbursts. Gregory Kelly, however, walks away with the acting honors.

The Cast: Ford Sterling, Lois Wilson, Louise Brooks, Gregory Kelly, C. W. Goodrich, Claire McDowell, Joseph Smiley. Director, Mal St. Clair.

THEME: Comedy-drama of demonstrative person who misrepresents himself and things in order to be recognized as a super person.

PRODUCTION HIGHLIGHTS: The comedy. Ford Sterling's characterization. The human interest touches. The exteriors in Philadelphia.

EXPLOITATION ANGLES:

Bill as film version of one of the greatest hits of the stage. Play up title and handle with throwaways on history of play and character of show-off.

DRAWING POWER: Play is widely known and its popularity will appeal to filmgoers who will want to see screen version. Should pull 'em in wherever shown.

Produced and distributed by Famous Players. Length, six reels. Released in August, 1926.

The High Hand

Leo Maloney Takes the Pot

(Reviewed by Paul Thompson)

IT seems to me it was Arnold Bennett, England's ex-linen draper, pronounced with a broad "a," who wrote "Helen of the High Hand." That is the only character in fiction thus designated that I remember until it was my privilege to see Leo Maloney in his latest Pathe Western. And, curiously, the star does not play poker, at least on the screen, but does hold the winning cards when the last fade-out comes. Frankly, I like this piece which he has directed and in which he stars, having taken the story written and arranged for him by Ford I. Beebe. There is a refreshing absence of those long-distance broad-jump records getting into the saddle and the horse phase is minimized throughout.

Leo comes to the aid of a family that is being terrified by a bully hired to drive them out of the county. This is that the not fully paid up ranch may revert to the lawyer who has worked the stunt many times before. Hero Maloney regularly steals from both saloon-keeper and lawyer and deposits the money thus obtained with the sheriff, with a note asking that it be held until the final collection has been made. No one knows who the burglar is and Sir Galahad in sombrero is even hired as a body-guard and to ferret out the marauder by lawyer and bad man. His "high hand"—he takes every pot in the course of the drama—also scoops in the saloon-keeper, who is brought stocking-footed with the descendant of Lawyer Marks to the sheriff, with whom we know they can be safely left.

The Cast: Leo Maloney, starred; Josephine Hill, Paul Hurst, Murdock MacQuarrie, Whitehorse, Gus Saville, Dick La Reno and Florence Lee. Director, Leo Maloney.

THEME: Outwitting two crooks trying to "gyp" family out of a ranch.

EXPLOITATION ANGLES: New type of Western; Maloney's personal popularity.

PRODUCTION HIGHLIGHTS: Convincing Western saloon scenes with hero master of all situation.

DRAWING POWER: Should be excellent draw in most any kind of house.

Prisoners of the Storm

Northwest Mounted Guesses Wrong—for Once

(Reviewed by Paul Thompson)

WERE the fourth word in the title of this thriller in the plural the casual reader might think that it referred to the New Yorkers held more or less imprisoned by the almost constant rainfall of last August. But it does not; it is concerned instead with the hero, the heroine, the Northwest Mounted (one) and the villain caught in a cabin in the Canadian Northwest by a snowslide which buried them all to work out the solution to their problems until the final fade-out. House Peters is the star. He is a rough, uncouth miner in love with Peggy Montgomery through a picture possessed by her father, House's side-kick in mining. The latter, Harry Todd, a halfbreed, is murdered and suspicion is thrown on Peters because Walter McGrail, one of those who "always get their man," had misinterpreted a rough-house between Todd and Peters the last time he saw them together and taking it seriously, figured out that Todd must be the murderer.

It is a thin story even if the perennial James Oliver Curwood is the author. Charles Logue, who did the adaptation, has done all that he can to create and hold suspense. This is mostly limited to the imprisonment in the cabin, but even then you know they will ultimately be liberated from the cabin and the guilt placed where it belongs. It is filled with good pictures of the Northwest and of a blinding, swirling snow storm that provides the title and the setting.

The Cast: House Peters, Star; Peggy Montgomery, Walter McGrail, Harry Todd, Fred De Silver, Clark Comstock and Lillian Nichols. Director, Lynn Reynolds.

THEME: Solving murder mystery in cabin which is snow-bound.

EXPLOITATION ANGLES: Peters' Popularity. Comedy bathing scene of half-breed, and forest scenes.

PRODUCTION HIGHLIGHTS: The storm scene; successful reproduction of Canadian Northwest atmosphere.

DRAWING POWER: Fairly good as second run attraction and in the small houses.

Fine Manners

Nothing Much to Boast About

(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

GLORIA SWANSON'S new picture which took such a long time to finish cannot be catalogued as anything out of the ordinary. While it has been going through the movie machinery it appears to have lost much of its substance. It is an obvious affair—one handled obviously, with the result there isn't much to intrigue the imagination.

The contrasts are sharply divided. The heroine is poor—while the hero is rich, and anyone with half an eye can spot that the girl learns how to be a lady. Miss Swanson enacts the part with considerable vitality and enthusiasm, but as clever as she is she cannot overcome the shortcomings of the plot. It is a Cinderella pattern cooked to a turn. So was "Manhandled"—but that picture had substance and imagination.

The poor girl meets the rich fellow and a romance begins. The youth intrusts her to the care of his aunt while he is away for a few months—and during the interim the girl is made over into a lady. There is a bid for drama toward the finish when the heroine has a fit of temper and becomes the lowly East Sider for the moment. But it is merely a gesture and retreats behind the cloak of happiness.

The appeal of the picture rests entirely with the star, who undergoes her transition from a rowdy into a classy dame with poise and abandon.

The Cast: Gloria Swanson, Eugene O'Brien, Walter Goss, Helen Dunbar, John Milern. Director, Richard Rosson.

THEME: Cinderella pattern revolving around poor, but pretty girl, winning love of rich youth. TEASE the title. Play up Swanson and tie up with ladies' shops on clothes, lingerie and hair-dressing.

PRODUCTION HIGH-LIGHTS: The acting by star. DRAWING POWER: Popularity of star should draw them. Suitable for most types of houses.

Flames

Melodrama With a Blazing Background

(Reviewed by Paul Thompson)

WE doubt the press-agent's "We feel 'Flames' will prove one of the big pictures of the coming season," but that it will score there can be no question. It has for one asset three featured players, all with their own followings: Jean Hersholt, a sort of Danish man-of-all-work, judging by the variety of parts handed him; Eugene O'Brien, the handsome and debonnaire, and lastly—ungallantly without intention—Virginia Valli. For full measure Bryant Washburn, with this season's correct mode in villain moustaches, is an added starter. I insist, however, that the principal honors go to the forest fire, which forms a most melodramatic background for the latter part of the story.

The man with the euphonistic name, Lewis Moomaw, is responsible for this Associated Exhibitors' picture based on the story and scenario by Alfred A. Cohn. It tells, in brief, of Virginia, for the picture's purposes, the daughter of George Nichols, a section foreman become railroad owner, being rescued from Boris Karloff, a very bad western man. Eugene O'Brien does the heroic stuff, carrying Virginia through a burning forest after a rough-and-tumble fight with the villain. Hersholt is a Swedish foreman with a penchant for cheap love stories who gets Virginia into her troubles through a mistaken desire to help Eugene win the lady. Cissy Fitzgerald, she of the wink of the last century, is among those present. Oh! Bryant Washburn is the "typical" New York society man anxious to marry Virginia. Does he succeed? He does not after Eugene's heroism—how could he?

The Cast: Eugene O'Brien, Virginia Valli, Jean Hersholt, Bryant Washburn, Cissy Fitzgerald, George Nichols, and Boris Karloff. The director, Lewis H. Moomaw.

THEME: Rescue of heroine from villain and forest fire.

PRODUCTION HIGH-LIGHTS: The amazing fire scenes and railroad construction camp.

EXPLOITATION ANGLES: Fire scenes, prominence of four stars in cast.

DRAWING POWER: Excellent, filled with thrills and action.

Produced and released by Associated Exhibitors, Inc.

An operation for sinus trouble and complications, in which his left eye was removed, was performed on C. A. Goebel, president of the Goebel Theatres, Inc., Bristol, Va., at a hospital in Richmond, Va., recently, where he went for expert medical attention. His entire recovery is expected now. Frank Goebel, secretary-treasurer of the company, has managed the company during C. A. Goebel's absence.

The American Theatre, Roanoke, Va., will be demolished in the near future, as the new American Theatre Building will be built on the site. During the time the construction is under way moving picture shows will be given at the Rialto by Elmore Heins, proprietor of the American.

Southwest

GRIFFITH BROTHERS have begun work on a theatre in Pampa, Texas. This makes the third town in the Texas Panhandle this amusement enterprise has entered as they already have a theatre in operation in Panhandle and Borger, Texas. The new theatre will be similar to their other oil town theatres, seating 800. It will be called the Rex.

Albert Jackson, one of the pioneer theatre men in Oklahoma, who sold his theatre in Pawhuska, "The Jackson," to A. B. Momand early in the year, has again entered the theatre business in Pawhuska, temporarily at least. Jackson was recently appointed receiver of the Constantine Theatre by the Bankruptcy Court, with the understanding that if the theatre becomes solvent, it will again revert to Mr. Constantine.

Claude Fulgham, one of the best known film salesmen in this territory, has just been made city manager of the Griffith Brothers theatres in Okmulgee. These are the Orpheum and Hippodrome Theatres. Fulgham has been selling for Oklahoma Specialty since he left Metro-Goldwyn.

R. F. Wilson, ventilating engineer for the Nu-Air Corp., is spending some time in Oklahoma inspecting all the Cooling Systems installed by Nu-Air this season.

R. F. Wilbern announced this week that his new Ritz Theatre at Duncan will open September 8th. The Ritz makes the third theatre for Mr. Wilbern in Duncan, as he already has the Liberty and the Palace.

A. B. Momand opened his new theatre at Wewoka on August 24th. The Key Theatre, as it is called for Colonel Key—a figure well-known to Oklahomans—seats 800.

Gus Solomon, assistant general sales manager for Red Seal Short Subjects, was here from New York recently and spent a week with the Enterprise Exchange which is handling this product in Oklahoma.

Judges have already commenced their work in assorting and grading the answers in the Greater Movie Season Contest. The Judges who will choose the winners are: George W. Trendle of the Kunsky Theatrical Enterprise, H. M. Richey, manager of the Motion Picture Theatres owners of Michigan, and Mrs. Frank M. Bather of Detroit's Federation of Women's Club.

Central Penn

THE Pastime picture theatre, Mechanicsburg, recently damaged by an explosion of gas in the cellar which resulted in one man's death and injuries to two other persons, has been repaired by Manager Walter Yost and has resumed giving shows.

A change of policy has been adopted for the Grand Theatre, Williamsport, the lease of which recently passed from the hands of the Frank H. Keyte estate to the Williamsport Hippodrome Company, of which Norman R. Hill is president. It will be open hereafter all the year around, with a change of pictures daily. The Keeney Theatre, which has been acquired by the same interests, will offer two or three different attractions each week, which is the plan now in force in the Hippodrome also.

The York Opera House, York, devoted to pictures and Keith-Albee vaudeville, opened for the season on August 30. The house is controlled by the Appell Amusement Enterprises.

C. Floyd Hopkins, head of the Wilmer & Vincent Theatrical Enterprises in Harrisburg and Reading, took a leading part as "Chief Kidder" at the quarterly meeting of "The Knockers' Club." Another

Mrs. C. Floyd Hopkins, of Harrisburg, wife of the head of the Wilmer & Vincent theatres in Harrisburg and Reading, was hostess to twelve ladies at a luncheon in the Oaklyn Tea House, on August 26, in honor of Mrs. Seymour Schwartz, of Fort Sheridan, Ill.

New York and New Jersey

FIRST of five new theatres to be added to the Bijou Circuit under the control of Messrs. Steiner and Blinderman, the Mecca at Avenue A and 14th Street, opened its doors last Friday evening to an enthusiastic audience.

Under the direction of David J. Lustig, the new managing-director, everything connected with the premiere program went along without a hitch—a testimonial to Lustig's ability and experience in this field.

Following the dedication address, personal appearances were made by W. C. Fields, Esther Ralston, Stella Doyle and Kenneth Webb. Chas. Judels of the Shubert forces, who was active in ceremonial matters, introduced John R. McCrory, who is credited with the new and interesting Life cartoons. Mr. McCrory, in explanation of the process used, sketched several of the characters for the audience.

The Mecca is a 2000-seat house of the stadium type and one of the outstanding features is its simplicity of design. A policy of first class feature pictures with presentations will be followed.

Besides the four other houses on the East Side almost ready to be opened by the Bijou Circuit, that concern also own and operate eight first class theatres in the Harlem section of New York City. The officers of the company are: Samuel Krohenburg, president, Harry Blinderman, vice-president, and Charles Steiner, treasurer.

In addition to the opening of the Bijou Circuit's Mecca, several other theatres are slated for their premiere during the early part of September. The Bronxville, a new house belonging to the Chrystmos-Eldridge circuit, will open on Thursday evening of this week and the Bijou Circuit's Palestine is scheduled for September 2. At Secaucus, N.J., the Community Hall started business on August 30 and over in Brooklyn, A. M. Schwartz's Avenue U Theatre is expected to be ready about September 10. Sol Brill will also open up his Great Kills Theatre on Staten Island. This house is scheduled for September 3. These are only a few of them—all in all, it looks like a merry month for the boys.

Far away from the white lights is one of Broadway's familiar figures—Joe Hornstein, high-powered purveyor of projection apparatus. He has taken to the Maine woods and when last heard from was still there. However, he's expected back some time during the week.

Although the following item of news is somewhat belated, it may interest some readers to know that the Bureau of Standards and Appeals has granted the Washington Improvement Corporation permission to erect a motion picture theatre at Kings Highway and East Eighteenth Street, Brooklyn, despite the strenuous opposition on the part of residents in that section. An appeal reopened the case and the protesting delegation was conspicuous by its absence. Certain conditions were imposed to make the fifty feet in question less objectionable to the attorney who appeared in behalf of the residents.

Leonia, N.J., long famous for its street car pictures of children with little red wheelbarrows and contented mothers planting red geraniums, is at last to have its motion picture theatre, according to a recent announcement in the Hoboken Observer. For several years Leonia has hoped—and at last a large theatre site on the west side of Broad Avenue has been sold to Barnet Nelson, president of the Melrose Realty Corporation. Plans call for a stadium type house with a seating capacity of approximately 1,100. Building operations will start about the middle of September.

Another building project is that of Harry Suchman's, down at Southampton, L.I. Mr. Suchman, who controls six houses in New York City, is the son of Israel Suchman, a pioneer exhibitor, and active in local exhibitor politics, will erect at that point a theatre building which will contain a 2,500-seat auditorium, dance hall and stores and offices. This is Mr. Suchman's first invasion of Long Island.

Des Moines

THE picnic and first annual golf tournament promoted by the Des Moines Film Board of Trade the second week of August was one of the most successful get-togethers that Iowa exhibitors and exchange men have ever seen. A great deal of credit is due the committee in charge not only because of the success in getting out numbers and in the spirit of the whole affair, but also because the whole thing was promoted and put across in two weeks' time.

James Winn, of Educational, and Harry Frankel, of the Blank interests, had charge of the golf tournament in which forty-five players qualified in the first round. Five flights were arranged for match play with Bob Mitchell, of Paramount, at Omaha, as winner in the first, beating Jess Collins, of Perry. In the second, R. Kissinger, of Omaha, won from P. W. Robbins, of Paramount, Des Moines. Rube Wagle, of P.D.C., Des Moines, won in the third from James Winn. The fourth flight made George Naylor, of First National, winner with Carl Reese, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. In the fifth flight, O. H. Garland, of Pathe, won over Jimmie Rogers, of Enterprise, Omaha. In the consolation flight, Leo Moore, exhibitor at Centerville, won over Joe Staak, of Carroll. Leo Moore also won the ten-dollar cash prize for the low medal score. Prizes in all flights were very handsome. In the different flights the contestants were so well matched that extra holes were played in several instances.

Fire caused considerable damage to the theatre at Hedrick, the Gem, owned by W. J. Jinks. The fire broke out in the booth from burning film. The damage caused is to the interior of the theatre, which was badly smoked, and to the booth. The Gem is closed while the adjustment of the insurance is being made.

Arriving in Des Moines to be present at the opening of the Publix Shows at the Capitol Theatre, were Harry Hollinder, of Chicago;

Frank Cambria, of New York, and Nate Finster, of New York. Mr. Blank scheduled the Publix Shows at the Capitol, beginning with August.

A fire in the booth of the Palace Theatre, Des Moines, one of the A. H. Blank chain of houses, caused the loss of the entire film and some damage to the booth.

Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Stolte have just returned from Wisconsin, where they found plenty of good fishing. Mr. Stolte is booking manager for the Blank interests in Des Moines.

W. E. Banford, with his wife and daughter, have been in Canada for two weeks. Mr. Banford is manager for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

M. Gottlieb, who for nearly two years has been manager of the Des Moines branch of Universal, has been transferred to the St. Louis office. George C. Naylor, who was head salesman for Universal, covering the key towns, will take the managership of the office. John E. Daily, of Charleston, West Virginia, will cover the territory previously in charge of Mr. Naylor.

Alexander Frank sold his house at Oelwein, the Grand Theatre, to the Eastern Iowa Theatres Corporation. This consolidation already owns the Gem Theatre at Oelwein.

C. T. Charrack, from the St. Louis office of Universal, has been in Des Moines for special exploitation service.

Visitors in Movie Row were Bill Eddy, of Indianola; Jake Collins, of Ottumwa; Joe Gerbracht, of Ames; F. F. Livermore, of the Lyric Theatre at Garner.

Lew Allman, salesman for First National, is sporting a new Chevrolet coupe.

Miller and Rinold have opened a very pretty new theatre at Riverside. The theatre is equipped with the latest in motion picture machines.

Philadelphia

WITH the acquisition of the Park Theatre, Palmerton, Pa., and the Spielmont Theatre, Marcus Hook, Pa., the East Coast Theatre Company has increased its holdings in this territory to eleven theatres. Lester Wuerle, who has been acting as booker in the De Luxe Exchange, controlled by Oscar Neufeld and Sam Stiefel, owners of the East Coast Theatre Company, has been appointed manager of the Spielmont Theatre at Marcus Hook. Charles Pettycooper will manage the Park Theatre at Palmerton.

Sales representatives of the Pittsburgh and Philadelphia offices of Producers' Distributing company recently held an all-day session at the Sylvania Hotel, Philadelphia, at which each salesman gave a verbal report of the conditions in his territory and a general sales campaign for the coming season was outlined. G. M. Dillon, district manager, presided over the meeting with Frank Drumm acting as his assistant.

Joe Leon has recently joined the sales force of Associated Exhibitors and will cover the upstate territory.

Clayton D. Buss, proprietor of the Wilbur Theatre, Easton, Pa., has returned from an extended stay in St. Petersburg, Fla., where he also conducts a theatre and has extensive real estate holdings.

William Freihofer has purchased a lot at 69th Street and Ashby Road, Upper Darby, a suburb of Philadelphia, and work has already been started on the erection of a 3,200-seat motion picture theatre.

Charles Klang, who has been special representative for Timely Films and Aesop's Fables in this section, with headquarters in Philadelphia, will transfer his headquarters to the New York office.

Kansas City

AMONG the out-of-town exhibitors in the Kansas City market this week were H. W. Hardman and son, Royal Theatre, Frankfort, Kans.; Frank Weary, Farris Theatre, Richmond, Mo.; Hugh Gardner, Orpheum and Photosho, Neosho, Mo.; W. J. Beoree, Hume, Mo.; Ed Peskay, Penn Theatre, St. Joseph, Mo.; Walter Wallace, Orpheum, Leavenworth, Kans.

With "movie careers" in sight, the "Myers triplets" of Slater, Mo., came to Kansas City Sunday for screen tests. Two of them, A. B. and A. S., are employees at the Kansas City Fox exchange, while the third, A. L., is an exhibitor in Slater.

A farewell dinner was given M. A. Levy, former Fox branch manager in Kansas City, who was transferred to Omaha, where he will be branch manager.

While Jack Quinlan, manager of the Mainstreet Theatre, Kansas City, away on a vacation, attempting to lure the fish ashore, Lawrence Lehman, manager of the Orpheum, is managing both theatres.

Ira Cohen, Fox district manager, and Max Miller, personal representative of Jimmie Granger, were Kansas City visitors.

Among the vacationists this week are E. P. Berhorst and Miss H. Armstrong, First National; C. G. Oliver, F. B. O., and Miss Veronica Cunningham and Miss H. Sinclair of Metro-Goldwyn.

Russell Borg, assistant Educational exchange manager, purchased a brand new "bus" in which to depart on his vacation.

James Lambert, Metro-Goldwyn representative, who underwent an operation for the removal of his left eye recently, was able to be on the row this week.

C. D. Hill and C. A. Schultz, P. D. C. district and branch manager, respectively, returned from business trips to Topeka, Kans., and St. Joseph, Mo.

Miss Betty Houts, P. D. C. cashier, and Miss H. Rubin of Educational left on long anticipated vacations this week.

Ned Depinet, district manager for First National, was a visitor.

Joe Rosenberg, Universal salesman, took a two weeks' vacation and obtained more contracts than he ever has under "regular" working conditions.

Charles Knickerbocker, P. D. C. representative, returned from northwestern Kansas, where he says business is good.

Kansas City is to have another suburban theatre—the Sunset—which will be at Prospect Avenue and Swope Parkway. The house, which will seat about 875, will be constructed by J. P. Zimmerman and operated by Superior Theatres, of which W. T. Wood of Kansas City is secretary. The house will be 60 by 134 feet and will have all modern improvements. L. H. Dodd and George H. Chandler, Kansas City, are the architects.

W. E. Truog, Universal district manager, returned from a sales conference at the home office in New York.

W. R. Pittenger, Pathe booker in Oklahoma City, was a Kansas City visitor, renewing old acquaintances.

The Lyrie Theatre, Boonsville, Mo., a Universal leased house, is undergoing improvements which will cost $50,000. The entire floor elevation is being changed and steel girders put in. New seats, a new organ and new carpets also will be included.

Milwaukee

THE convention of M.P.T.O. of Wisconsin brought many out-of-town exhibitors to the Milwaukee film exchanges. Among the visitors were Jack Hickey, manager of the Grand and Rex theatres at New London; Al Robarge, of the Cosmo Theatre, at Merrill; Dan Kelliher of the Princess, Elkhorn; Monty Smith and W. L. Ainsworth of the Fond du Lac Theatre Company, Fond du Lac; Jack Yeo of the Odeon, Beaver Dam; J. P. Adler of the Adler and Trio theatres, at Marshfield, and the Majestic and Lyrie, at Stevens Point; Neil Thompson of the Crystal, at Fort Atkinson; Ed Michaelson of the Opera House, Evansville; Charles Bauman of the Star at Oshkosh; E. C. Aecola of the Bonham Theatre, Prairie du Sac; P. Waterbury of the Idle Hour, Jefferson; F. E. Wolcott of the Majestic, at Racine; Joe Winniger of the Palace, at Waupaca; Charles Guelson of the Badger, Stoughton.

J. Plowright, formerly traveling out of Milwaukee for Producers, has left that company and is now in the East.

John DeLorenzo, who was seriously ill a few weeks ago, is now associated with Celebrated, traveling in southwestern Wisconsin.

Roy Langford, of Wisconsin Theatre Supply Company, has just returned from a short trip to Wausau.

Otto Meister, manager of the Whitehouse, Milwaukee, gave another of his justly famous picnics on August 27th, on the upper Milwaukee River. The Luce Brothers team, at present headliners at the Miller Theatre, were guests of honor. Other guests were Ray Nolan, manager of Pathe exchange, M. Ashman of Associated Exhibitors, Walter A. Baier of the Baier Exchange, J. G. Frackman, manager of Progress Pictures, and Bob Trester of Trester Electric Co.

Donald Bohl is the newly appointed assistant manager of presentation at the Alhambra Theatre.

Though every effort was made to maintain strictest secrecy before the event, news has been spread that Heinz Roemheld, musical director of the Alhambra Theatre, and Miss Florence Defnet, alternate winner of Milwaukee Bathing Beauty contest, were married on August 29th.

G. C. Granger, special home office representative of Fox Film Corporation, is visiting the Milwaukee offices for a few days.

Carl Cohn, manager of the Waupaca Theatre, Waupaca, was taken very seriously ill recently and is now convalescing after an appendicitis operation.

C. C. Wallace, manager of Chicago branch, United Artists, was in Milwaukee to attend the convention.

South East

CLAUDE F. LEE, city manager of the Universal theatres, at Fort Myers, Fla., spent several days in Charlotte, leaving for Hickory where he will spend the balance of his vacation. We understand Mr. Lee has made a very successful showing with these theatres.

C. J. P. Edwards, manager of the Waynwood Theatre, Waynesville, N.C., was a Charlotte visitor the past week arranging his bookings and attending the automobile races.

Ed Curdts, of the Bijou Theatre, Greenville, S.C., was in Charlotte to attend the Automobile Races.

Dr. Harper, of the Whiteway, Selma, N.C., will reopen his house on September 1st, same having been remodeled and put in first class shape.

The entire Universal staff was entertained by Manager Dardine the past week at a watermelon party. Everyone enjoyed themselves immensely and claimed that the watermelons were the best they had ever eaten because they were raised by Mr. Dardine.

Nat Royster, former manager of the Broadway Theatre, Charlotte, N.C., and now manager of three theatres in Winston-Salem, signed a contract yesterday with the Paramount Record Corporation for the exclusive use of three of his songs which he has written, "Mamie Lee from Tennessee," a jazz ballad; "Just Powder Your Nose," a fox trot, and "Will My Dreams Come True?" a melody.

"Mighty" Walter, salesman for Producers Distributing Corporation, is being congratulated on his marriage to Miss Ila Mae Smith. The entire film fraternity extended to him their best wishes.

Ben Baplon, manager of the Jake Wells theatres at Hendersonville, is making the rounds of Film Row this week.

The automobile races were largely attended by exhibitors from North and South Carolina and Film Row practically declared a holiday for this event.

Claude Ezell, district manager of Warner Brothers, for the Southeast, is a Charlotte visitor, arranging policy for the Warner Broadway Theatre, for the coming season.

It is reported that the deal between F. A. Abbott and Warner Brothers for this theatre has been called off.

L. S. Drumm, booker for Universal Film Exchanges, is being extended the sympathy of the film colony and others on the death of his father, who died at Newton, N.C., the past week.

The Blue Ridge Amusement Company, of Mt. Airy, N.C., we understand, has gone into the hands of a receiver. Mr. W. H. Marion, one of the stock holders, had a receiver appointed the past week.

Arthur C. Bromberg, president of Progress Pictures, paid a short visit to the local office the past week.

B. F. Southern, of the Ideal Theatre, Winston-Salem, N.C., was in Charlotte the past week.

M. F. Schnibben, owner of the Opera House, Florence, S.C., was along Film Row the past week.

W. E. Garrett, and associates, of Greensboro, N.C., will make alterations in the building at 331 S. Elm Street. These alterations will cost between $25,000 and $30,000, and it is their intentions to take this building and change it into a modern theatre for exhibition of moving pictures and vaudeville programs. The theatre will occupy the lower floor and the second floor will be removed to permit the erection of a balcony. The basement will be extensively altered and will contain a rest room for men, and women and a nursery for children whose parents are attending the show.

Modern projection machines and ventilating devices of the most approved design will be purchased and will be received in ample time for the opening, October 15th. Mr. Garrett states a well-known theatre manager, and one who is known in Greensboro, has been secured and his name will be announced later.

Rufus Davis, of the local Liberty office, spent the week-end in Atlanta, Ga.

R. B. Wilby, president of the Piedmont Theatres, Inc., spent Tuesday with his general manager, Mr. H. F. Kineey, at the local office in Greensboro, N.C.

Cleveland

LOEW'S Metropolitan theatre will open on Labor Day. Once upon a time the Metropolitan was Cleveland's motion picture theatre de luxe. As the trend wended its way eastward, the Metropolitan was left in the embarrassing position of being neither a downtown nor a neighborhood house. It has been closed for several seasons, except for occasional showings. It is now being completely renovated and redecorated. George Dumond, who formerly was general manager of theatres operated by Warner Brothers, will manage the Metropolitan and is now overseeing its changes. The house policy has not yet been definitely determined, but in all probability a combination picture and vaudeville program will be offered.

Leo Devaney, local Universal exchange manager, attended a central Universal convention in Pittsburgh last week, which was attended by managers of the entire eastern division. Lou Metzger, general sales manager, and Earl Kramer, sales director, presided. The business before the gathering was a general discussion of distribution policies for Universal specials for the new year.

The vacation epidemic is all over at the local Universal exchange. For the time since June 1st, the entire force is again regularly assembled. Leo Devaney, manager, is the only one who hasn't had his vacation. He says he'll get one some time in September, if he's lucky.

The Cleveland Fox exchange moved into its own newly completed building last Saturday. The new structure has 6000 square feet of space, and is equipped with every known fire preventive.

James R. Grainger, Fox general sales manager, stopped off in Cleveland last Tuesday, coming from Detroit and bound for Buffalo.

Charles C. Deardorf, for years and years in charge of publicity for the Cleveland Metro-Goldwyn office, has changed his address. Dating from last Monday, Deardorf is with the Cleveland Fox exchange and will handle publicity on all Fox pictures in the northern Ohio territory. For the time being, at least, there will be no Metro-Goldwyn exploitation man in this territory.

Howard Christman, for several years secretary of the Film Board of Trade of Cleveland, has accepted a position as office manager of the Producers Distributing Corporation's exchange in Indianapolis.

Robert Cotton, central division manager for P.D.C., has been making a tour of the exchanges in his territory, and J. E. Beck, manager of the Cleveland branch, has been making personal calls on the exhibitors in the territory.

George W. Erdmann, who recently resigned as local P.D.C. exchange manager because of poor health, is touring through the Adirondacks.

Edwin Oehler has been added to the Indianapolis P.D.C. sales force. He was formerly with Warner Brothers.

William, Ezra and Harry Skirboll, in conjunction with Max Young, have purchased the Grand Theatre, Massillon, from John Schwarm, and takes possession of the house September 1st. The Grand is a first-run house, with 400 seats, and is one of two first-run theatres in Massillon. The Skirbolls also own the Opera House in New Philadelphia.

Chicago

LOU KRAMER, of Balaban & Katz's publicity staff, is scheduled to leave September 4th for Detroit, where he will handle the publicity and exploitation for the theatres in which Balaban & Katz are interested in that city.

S. E. Rose, of the Robert Morton Organ Company, attended the opening of H. S. Coppins' two-thousand seat Irving Theatre at Brightmoore, Mich., this week. One of the features of the new houses is the fine Robert Morton Organ.

Ben Beadell is now buying and booking for the Ezra Rhodes' houses in South Bend and Elkhart, Ind. Mr. Beadell has opened offices at 732 S. Wabash Avenue.

Howard Brolawski, formerly country sales manager for Metro-Goldwyn's Chicago exchange, is now covering northern Illinois for Producers Distributing Corporation.

Jack Curry, of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, has been transferred from Des Moines to Chicago to fill the vacancy made by the resignation of Andy Jacknaic, as ad sales manager.

George Miller, manager of the Lido Theatre, has left for Lake

Chautauqua, N.Y., where he will spend two weeks' vacation at his father's country home. Mr. Miller is accompanied by his wife.

Ben Edelman is now booking for the Hamilton Theatre, where J. W. Schwartz, the owner, is now operating. It was formerly operated by National Theatres Corporation.

Paul Sittner, of the Criterion Theatre, has left for a vacation which he will spend at Browns Lake, Wis.

Martin Steck, popular Milwaukee motion picture theatre owner, was here on business this week.

General Sales Manager Herman Robbins and Assistant Sales Manager Pat Garyn of National Screen Service were here this week for a conference with Chicago Manager H. C. Young.

Eddie Zorn, Paramount salesman, has taken over Eddie Opperman's motion picture house at Pontiac.

R. W. Thayer, manager of Paramount's outdoor advertising department, is making his headquarters in Chicago for the present, and, it is reported, has negotiations under way for a big local campaign.

Salt Lake City

Jack Byrnes, J. Tillman, Joe Wolf and Jos. F. Samuels, all special sales representatives for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, are still working in this territory. They have been joined this week by J. G. Beckman, special sales representative who has formerly been working in the Seattle territory.

J. A. Epperson, manager here for Pathe, left recently for the Yellowstone branch in Idaho.

Wm. Rossiter, manager of the Cozy Theatre of this city, is leaving within a few days to tour Yellowstone National Park. The Cozy will be left in charge of Allen Kaighn.

I. R. Miller and small son are in this city attending to the fall bookings for the Cameo Theatre at American Fork, which Mr. Miller operates.

C. Ward and L. F. Brown of the Isis and Oak theatres at Preston, Idaho, are visiting the local Film Mart this week.

Clyde H. Messinger, branch manager of the Educational exchange in this city, is still in the Idaho territory, where he has been spending several weeks. He is expected to return the latter part of this week.

A new salesman has been added to the Fox sales force in the person of Frederick Young, who was formerly with the Capitol Theatre at Logan, Utah. He is now working the Utah territory out of this exchange.

George Mayne, owner of the local Preferred Pictures exchange here, is leaving immediately for a month's trip into the territory.

Florida

WORK has started on the new theatre at Lakeland, located at the corner of Florida Avenue and Lemon Street. Beside the theatre the building will house a hotel and stores. The theatre will seat 2,000 and of course will be of the most modern construction, and will be provided with a stage so that the Keith vaudeville may be used in connection with the picture programs.

The Consolidated Amusement Company of Tampa have taken over the Seminole Theatre, located in the residential district on Florida Avenue. This is a beautiful little house, a feature of which is an immense parking space which is furnished free to their patrons.

The S-B-T Properties, Inc., who operate a string of houses in Tampa, Lakeland and St. Petersburg, have purchased the Fort Myers house, known as the Palace, from Ernest Mitchell, who owned the house but has not operated it for some time. The new owners are remodeling it and will have it in operation by the first of the month.

De Luxe Policy Pays In Mountain Airdome

Ye Jester Theatre at Arrowhead Lake Thrives Under Management of Dr. Ralph L. Power

HIGH up in the mountains of Arrowhead Lake, Calif., surrounded by pine trees and fanned by breezes from the bosom of the lake, stands one of the smallest and most unusual theatres devoted to the presentation of First National pictures. This is Ye Jester Theatre which is being handled by the Arrowhead Lake Company under the personal supervision of Dr. Ralph L. Power.

Dr. Power, formerly professor of business administration at University of Southern California, became a KFI announcer and finally went to the resort company as manager.

A brief resume of how Dr. Power put pep and life into Ye Jester, which is designed much after the fashion of old English playhouses, will be interesting and instructive.

Ye Jester was built for lease but reverted to the company when it failed to succeed. Prices were immediately dropped from 75c, 50c and 35c to 25c, 35c and 50c. The loges went down from 75c to 50c and were at once popular. So, as comfort was evidently the need of the open air theatre, more loges were added and good cushioned seats provided for them. The dreary lobby was fixed up with a little fish pond at one corner of the entrance, pine and cedar boughs drape the walls and colored lights give a charming general effect. Three-sheets are used for feature pictures and are run up and down the Rim of the World drive on a Ford car for a ballyhoo. Twelve one sheets are framed and placed at various public camps and stores within a ten mile radius. Slides and trailers are also employed to advantage.

On theatre boards 11 x 14's and publicity stills are used. Special nights are a feature—Country store, presents to the ladies and the kiddies on certain nights are a big drawing card. Combination tickets at certain times admit to the picture and dance afterward.

The theatre is open three months in the year.

"So far as I know," observes the genial manager, "it is the only theatre in the West of an open air sort, which offers a complete change of program seven days a week. We run a feature of five to nine reels and short reels as well."

The theatre, as stated, is along the style of the Norman English architecture prevailing in the Lake Arrowhead woods. A bath-

New Buildings

—By P. M. ABBOTT—

THE present era of theatre building is remarkable in more than one way. Its magnitude has never before been equalled either in number or size of project, or the advanced engineering and beauty they incorporate. Theatres today represent the most elaborate and monumental group of architecture in this country.

Houses built today are radically different from theatres of ten, or in most cases, five years ago. These new theatres are thoroughly modernized. Just as an instance of the change of design—theatres, at least the palatial ones, have lobbies that come very nearly being awe-inspiring; of great magnitude and height to invite patrons to balcony levels. Cooling and lighting systems—these and other improved apparatus have made the modernized theatre. But while these modern theatres have exerted their influence for the betterment of the industry, they have forced a serious problem on many exhibitors.

Exhibitors who are operating theatres built during the old regime are feeling the competition of these newer houses. The rapid change in style of theatres has caused excessive depreciation of theatres built prior to 1920.

This appears to be the explanation, at least in most cases, of the over-seating problem. Better theatres are built in a neighborhood which had been served by the same theatre for several years. All things being equal, the new theatre secures the larger share of the patronage of that district.

Perhaps two theatres of the type and size of the new house would be supported by that neighborhood. But patrons, sensing the difference in the old and the new, lose interest in the original theatre. Hence the squeeze of apparent over-seating.

Facing the problem squarely, over-seating often resolves into preference for a better theatre. And no cut-and-dried solution can be devised as long as theatres will continue to be built to appeal more and more to the movie public.

In the mountains of Arrowhead Lake stands Ye Jester, one of the smallest and most unusual theatres devoted to the presentation of First National pictures.

Managers' Convention Held in Canada

Famous Players Corp. Theatre Men Attend Meeting in Calgary

ONE of the best theatre managers' conventions ever held in Canada was the conference of Western Canadian managers of Famous Players Canadian Corporation, at the Palliser Hotel, Calgary, Alberta, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, August 10 to 12, with H. M. Thomas, Western general manager, presiding as manager. Theatres from Port Arthur, Ont., to the Pacific Coast were represented.

A few of the many important addresses included "What Constitutes a Good All-round Theatre Manager," by J. R. Muir, district manager at Vancouver; "My Impressions of the B. and K. Theatre Management in Chicago," by Ralph Ruffner, manager of Vancouver Capitol; "Service," by Walter F. Davis, Metropolitan Theatre, Winnipeg; "Keeping a Theatre Clean and Attractive," by J. V. Winning, Empress Theatre, Edmonton; "Service, Courtesy, and Community Good Will," by C. S. Ferguson, Dominion Theatre, Nanaimo, B.C.; "The Reaction of My Audience When I Raised Admission Prices," by E. P. Fields, Capitol Theatre, Moose Jaw, Sask.; "How I Changed a Second-class Theatre into a Well-liked First-class House," by Frank Robson, Royal Theatre, Fort William, Ont.; "Special Orchestras," by John Hazza, Capitol Theatre, Calgary; "New Year's Eve Programs," by L. C. Straw, Colonial Theatre, Port Arthur, Ont.; "How to Increase Business by Special Nights," by James Lynch, Capitol Theatre, Regina, Sask.; "The Value of Acts and Special Presentations in Small Theatres," by J. M. Robertson, Capitol, Victoria, B.C.

Others present included J. B. Reisman, Capitol Theatre, Brandon, Man.; Pete Egan, Capitol Theatre, Moose Jaw, Sask.; F. Miley, Daylight Theatre, Saskatoon, Sask.; W. P. Wilson, Capitol Theatre, Edmonton, Alberta; F. H. Gow, Broadway Theatre, Vancouver, B.C.; J. P. Pitner, Starland Theatre, Nelson, B.C.; Harold A. Bishop, Capitol Theatre, Calgary, and the following guests: J. B. Barron, Palace Theatre, Calgary; K. M. Leach, Strand, Calgary; Maynard Joiner, Grand, Calgary; George Findlay, Empire Theatre, Edmonton; Col. J. A. Cooper, Toronto, president Motion Picture Distributors and Exhibitors of Canada; R. S. Bell, First National manager, Winnipeg; J. Berman, Toronto, general manager, United Artists' Corporation of Canada; V. Armand, Winnipeg, chief projectionist of Famous Players' Canadian Corporation, for Western Canada, and others.

New Haven Palace Presents Musical Revue

The orchestra at the Palace Theatre, New Haven, Conn., is this week presenting a musical revue under direction of Harry Berman. Elaborate stage settings and artistic features have been added and the feature bids fair to break box office records.

The MANAGER'S OFFICE

EVERETT HAYS has assumed the management of the St. Louis Theatre, Grand Boulevard at Morgan Street, succeeding Clarence S. Williams, who has been named resident-manager of the Hennepin-Orpheum Theatre in Minneapolis, Minn. Hays comes from Chicago, where, for the past four years he managed the Majestic, the Riviera and Tower theatres successively. All are Orpheum houses.

SAXE Amusement Enterprises has made several changes in managers in state theatres. Harry Olson, formerly manager of the Orpheum and Neenah theatres at Neenah and Menasha, has been transferred to the Jeffries at Janesville. R. S. Barkman will manage the Orpheum and Eaton M. Sizer is taking over the Neenah. James Zanias, who formerly managed the Jeffries and Apollo theatres in Janesville, will now devote his time exclusively to the Apollo.

ROLAND W. WATERSON is leaving his position as manager of Saxe's Wisconsin Theatre, Milwaukee. James Long, now assistant manager of the Tower, succeeds him. Mr. Waterson will be relief organist at the Tower for the present. Paul Hayden has been selected as assistant manager of the Tower.

Blumberg General Manager of "U" Milwaukee Houses

Noney Blumberg, it has been announced, has been appointed general manager of the new Universal theatres in Milwaukee recently purchased by Universal Film Corporation from Grauman-Silliman.

The houses now in the new Universal group are the State, Downer, Jackson, Murray, Riviera, Astor, Kosciuszko, Lake, Juneau, Fern, and the new Venetian, which is under construction at 37th and Center streets. Change in management will be effective September 6th.

This chain of theatres will form the nucleus of a state-wide group being acquired by Universal.

Director of Gaumont Palace Praises Eastman Theatre

Paul Fosse, musical director of the Gaumont Palace, the largest moving picture theatre in Paris, was an enthusiastic visitor to the Eastman Theatre, Rochester, last week. After an inspection of the theatre built by George Eastman "for the enrichment of community life," M. Fosse declared that "there is nothing like it in the whole world." He was impressed not only by the luxurious appointment, the beauty of workmanship and decorations that represent world famous artists and designers, but he found the mechanical conveniences equally interesting, as he said there was nothing like them in the French theatres. Such devices as the signaling system by which the orchestra conductor can indicate to the operator whether the picture is running too fast or too slow for the music, aroused his unbounded interest.

ing beauty parade was held recently followed by an electrical parade and the three winning girls were given the titles of "The Misses Lake Arrowhead."

A bed of iris in place of an orchestra pit. The orchestra doubles in brass and plays for the dances and offers solos at the show. There is an amateur night semi-weekly. A big electric sign on a hill and ornamental lights leading to the theatre are attractive. All in all it is an example of what may be done when a thing is running down hill by application of showmanship, hard work and good judgment.

Managerial Changes at New England K-A Theatres

Further changes in the personnel of Keith's interests in New England follow closely upon the heels of the resignation of Harry Crull, long in charge of their affairs in Providence, to go with the Butterfield Circuit in Michigan.

Mr. Lardner has been named as general manager of the Providence territory succeeding Mr. Crull. Owen Reddy, for many years with the Keith interests in Providence, is promoted to assistant manager. Matt Riley, who has been with the Keith people for some thirty years, has been made manager of the E. F. Albee Theatre in Providence.

Charles Harris, for many years manager of the old Boston Theatre and manager of the Keith-Albee New Boston Theatre since its opening two seasons ago, has relinquished his Boston duties to go to New York, where he becomes assistant to Arthur White, who is to have charge of the booking for the New England group of Keith-Albee houses.

Albany Downtown Theatres Do Flourishing Business

That Albany is not near a saturation point in so far as motion picture theatres are concerned, has been clearly demonstrated during the past two weeks in connection with the opening of the new Mark-Ritz, a downtown house. Not only has the Mark-Ritz been playing to capacity crowds each day, but the neighboring Leland, an opposition house, has been filled each afternoon and evening. The Leland, according to its management, grossed approximately $1,000 more during the week the Mark-Ritz opened, than during the same week a year ago.

The Maximum Emotional Effect

THE GENERAL USE of Panchromatic Negative in motion picture production means much in the way of improvement in the art.

USED WITHOUT A FILTER it helps the picture— with a filter, the color corrections are positively sensational. As one user has put it: “The use of ‘Pan’ gives the maximum emotional effect on the screen.”

EASTMAN PANCHROMATIC NEGATIVE is now the same price as ordinary negative. It keeps as well as ordinary negative and, except for the lighting in the darkroom, is developed in the same manner as ordinary negative.

Yet Eastman Panchromatic is an extraordinary product.

Two Orchestras New Crandall Feature

Breeskin and Davis Units Alternate at Washington Theatre

THE new policy of continuous orchestra music from opening at 11 A.M. until closing at 11 P.M., recently installed at Crandall's Metropolitan Theatre, Washington, D.C., is proving a popular success.

In addition to the Metropolitan Symphony Orchestra under the conductorship of Daniel Breeskin, the Metropolitan now has an auxiliary orchestra of twelve expert syncopationists under the direction of Milton Davis, long one of Washington's leading theatre pianists, pipe organists and composers.

The newly organized orchestral unit which is a distinct group has been given the name of the Metropolitan Ramblers. This orchestra takes the pit at 11 o'clock in the morning and plays until 1:30 in the afternoon, whereupon the Metropolitan Symphony, Mr. Breeskin conducting, assumes its regular afternoon task of musically interpreting the pictured subject. At 5 o'clock the Ramblers again succeed the Metropolitan Symphony and continue until 7:30, when the Symphony again resumes.

The Metropolitan Ramblers are a far cry from the usual jazz band. While their numbers are executed in modern spirit and purely American tempos, they nevertheless interpret the picture on the screen as effectively as the Metropolitan Symphony but with a different type of selections.

Waldron's Boston Casino Adopts New Policy

Waldron's Casino, Boston, on the Columbia burlesque circuit, has adopted a new policy in observance of the 25th year of the Boston playhouse and will add presentations of musical comedies, minstrels and revues, according to announcement of Manager Charles H. Waldron. The new policy is effective August 30.

Restore Vaudeville at Harrisburg State

Standard vaudeville, with five Keith-Albee acts, together with a nightly motion picture feature, has been restored at the State Theatre, Harrisburg, for the Fall season. During the summer musical comedy stock productions were shown part of the time, in addition to photoplays.

Katz Signs Personal Pact With Eddie Peabody

Sam Katz, president of Publix Theatres Corporation, and Eddie Peabody, banjo virtuoso and orchestra leader, on Friday last signed a personal contract extending over a term of six years and involving a huge sum for the services of Peabody with Publix Theatres and particularly with the Metropolitan Theatre in Los Angeles.

Peabody, one of the greatest banjo virtuosos, was discovered by Jack Partington and started his theatre career at the Granada Theatre in San Francisco. There he achieved tremendous success and some months ago was transferred to the Metropolitan Theatre in Los Angeles, where he has since shared with Mr. Partington and Managing Director Frank Newman the responsibility for putting the house over to tremendous receipts. With a fine personality, pep and the drawing power of a Paul Ash, he has proved a real sensation in Los Angeles.

New Type of Show Offered at Detroit Capitol

The Capitol Theatre in Detroit last week offered a new style of stage presentation for the house. The policy was inaugurated with the appearance of Isham Jones and his orchestra of 18 players, who formed the musical background for the presentation. Frances White, well-known musical revue and vaudeville entertainer, was the featured specialist in the presentation, which included numbers by Kerenoff and Maree, dancers, and the Cavaliers, vocal quartet. The screen feature was "It Must Be Love," Colleen Moore's new vehicle.

Toronto Hippodrome Artists Appear at Capitol

With the Toronto Hippodrome closed and the Uptown Theatre, the big house to which Hippodrome shows are to be transferred, not ready for its new policy until September 6, various artists of the Hippodrome have been appearing at other Canadian houses. Leon Leonidoff and Florence Rogge, permanent stars at the Hippodrome for the past years, appeared at the Capitol Theatre, Montreal, during the week of August 22 in a dancing specialty, "A Study of Hearts," accompanying "La Boheme."

Nelson Shea, house manager of the Hippodrome, has been officiating at the Toronto Regent, and Jack Arthur, director of presentations, has also been busy at the Regent.

Special Cambria Act Opens New Michigan Theatre

The opening bill at the new Kunsy-Balaban and Katz Michigan Theatre in Detroit, last week, offered two stage acts produced by Frank Cambria and featuring a group of well-known performers. The screen feature was "You Never Know Women."

The stage entertainment included an operatic quartet composed of Emma Noe, Sudworth Frazier, George Kanony and Inga Wank. Another group presented at the Michigan included Jack North, comedy singer; Rita Owin, travesty dancer; John Quinlan, tenor; Marie Herron, soprano; Boyd Senter, saxophonist, and the Michigan Ballet. The orchestra, under the direction of Eduard Werner, formerly of the Detroit Capitol Orchestra, offered Tschai-kowsky's "1812" overture. Dean Fossler, formerly of the Chicago, is the organist at the Michigan.

No Policy Change at Mark-Strand in Albany

There is no truth to the rumor that there will be a radical change in policy at the Mark Strand in Albany. Uly S. Hill admitted that there might be an occasional act or a vocalist, given along with the feature picture, but he scouted the idea of road shows or burlesque.

Recent S. M. P. E. Activities Reviewed

Thirty-three Technical Papers Prepared and Read by Experts; Members Derive Valuable Help From Meetings

By Willard B. Cook

(President of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers)

THE Society of Motion Picture Engineers celebrated its tenth anniversary at the spring meeting, held in Washington, D.C., May 3 to 6, 1926, and this was in many respects the most successful meeting the Society has held.

Thirty-three papers of a technical nature, or closely related to important activities of the motion picture industry, were read at the Washington meeting. These papers were prepared and read by experts who represented many of the most important organizations connected with this industry, and for the purpose of indicating the scope of the thirty-three papers read, the titles of twelve of them will be given. These twelve papers were selected, more or less, at random and placed in four classes by me, but were not so divided on the program. The first three papers selected are of a highly technical nature: "Subtractive Color Motion Pictures on Single Coated Film," by F. E. Ives, Philadelphia; "The Hyper-sensitizing of Panchromatic Motion Picture Film," by J. I. Crabtree, Research Laboratory, Eastman Kodak Company, and "Effect on Screen Illumination of Bubbles and Striations in the Bulbs of Projection Lamps," by L. C. Porter, Edison Lamp Works, Harrison, N. J. The next three papers are of a somewhat more practical nature: "Film Mutilation," by Hickman Price, Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc.; "Some Problems of a Projectionist," by L. M. Townsend, Projection Engineer, Eastman Theatre, Rochester, N. Y., and "The Useful Life of Motion Picture Film," by F. H. Richardson, Technical Editor, "Moving Picture World."

Interesting Developments

The third group covers interesting developments in the production of motion pictures: "First Production of Stereoscopic Pictures in Motion Picture Theatres," by J. F. Leventhal; "The New Chronotone Camera," by C. Francis Jenkins, Founder S. M. P. E., and "An Apparatus for Time Lapse Motion Picture Photography," by Howard Greene, Motion Picture Division, U. S. Department of Agriculture.

The fourth classification covers progress and history of motion pictures: "Internal Development in the Motion Picture Industry," by Carl E. Milliken, Secretary of Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc.; "Early History and Growth of the Motion Picture Industry," by Otto Nelson, National Cash Register Company, Dayton, Ohio, and "The Organization and Procedure of the Public Theatre Managers' Training School," by John F. Barry, Director of the School.

In making up this list, I have necessarily been compelled to omit the names of some splendid papers, but from them an excellent idea can be gained of the range of subjects covered at the meetings of the Society,

Next S. M. P. E. Meeting at Briarcliff Manor

THE attention of the industry is called to the fall meeting of the S. M. P. E., which will be held at Briarcliff Manor, N.Y., beginning Monday, October 4th, up to and including Thursday, October 7th.

A special effort is being made to have a program prepared which will prove both valuable and interesting from the angle of papers presented and also enjoyable recreations.

Briarcliff Manor is located within thirty miles from New York City, and is one of America's foremost resort hotels.

The Society holds two meetings a year, spring and fall, and the fall meeting will be held at Briarcliff Lodge, Briarcliff Manor, N.Y., October 4, 5, 6 and 7, 1926. The complete program of the fall meeting has not yet been prepared and it is also too early to give a full list of the papers to be read at this meeting, but the following papers, which are to be read at the fall meeting, will give a very fair idea of the scope of this part of the convention of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers: "Recent Developments in Phonofilm," "Stereoscopic Motion Picture Photography with a Motion Picture Camera," "Some Considerations in Spotlighting," "The Projector Carbon Arc, How to Obtain the Best Results from It," "The Printing of Motion Picture Film."

The meetings of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers are not in any sense sales conventions and their main purpose is to exchange ideas and encourage the development of matters of a technical nature. The members, for the time being, are not directly concerned with the commercial side of the industry, but their activities are of a very practical nature and directly influence the prosperity and progress of the entire motion picture industry. The Society is gratified by the encouragement and support received from some important sources, but feels that the motion picture industry, as a whole, is not as well acquainted with the activities or as appreciative of the work of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers as it should be.

Foundation of Society

The very foundation of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers rests on its scientific members and it is the nature of these men to work quietly and alone. Such men ordinarily do their work and pursue their investigations without much outside interference or assistance. In recent years, however, there has been a growing tendency in large manufacturing enterprises to utilize practically the abilities of scientists and technicians, and the world has thus derived almost incalculable benefits from this co-operation. In this manner science has become more humanized and there has been a tremendously increased effort to analyze human needs and requirements.

Along these lines the members of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers have come to a better realization of the object of their activities and the original scope of the Society has been greatly broadened.

Associate members are now admitted with no other requirements than those demanded by any reputable organization, viz., affiliation with the motion picture industry and interest in its advancement. Many of our most active and prominent members are in the associate class and we gladly welcome to membership anyone who can meet the simple requirements outlined.

The initiation fee for associate membership is $20 and the dues are $10 per year. In addition to other benefits, every member is supplied free of charge with the "Transactions" of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers, which are published four times a year and contain all the papers read at the meetings of the Society, together with the discussions of the same, frequently more important than the papers themselves.

The Social Side

On the social side, I will quote briefly from the S.M.P.E. Bulletin to show that this part of the convention is not neglected:

"We were the guests of our nation's Executive at the White House for a brief interval and President Coolidge honored us conspicuously by being photographed in the center of our group picture. Furthermore, in response to a question from the writer, he expressed himself as particularly enjoying motion pictures. We were also accorded many courtesies by the various government departments. We were entertained by the Local Motion Picture Operators' Union and welcomed to the entertainment they tendered us by the Hon. William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

"At the banquet on the following night, Mr. Henry D. Hubbard of the U.S. Bureau of Standards, was the guest and principal speaker on the subject of 'Wonderlands of Tomorrow,' with an introduction by Mr. C. Francis Jenkins. A radio-microphone at the speaker's table broadcast the meeting. Several song selections were rendered by Mr. George P. Clark, followed by dancing."

The committee of arrangement is preparing a very interesting social program for the fall meeting in October at Briarcliff Lodge, and members and friends of

Four de luxe buses and twenty autos carried this group of International Projector Corporation employees to their recent outing held at Belvedere Park, Pearl River, N.Y., on Saturday, August 25

Projector Corp.'s Outing

International Employees Acclaim Pearl River Excursion as Huge Success

DOWN in the lower east side of the Isle of Manhattan, known as the old swamp district, there is a big substantial brick building in which is a manufactured equipment that means more to the motion picture industry than is generally realized. The plant of the International Projector Corporation, makers of Simplex and Power's Projectors, does not often get into the light of publicity, but fairly stirred up things on Saturday morning, August 28th. The event was the outing of the employees of the International Projector Corporation, held at Belvedere Park, Pearl River, N.Y. With four de luxe buses and about twenty autos containing over two hundred employees of the company and accompanied by its own band, the outing made its way rapidly through the city preceded by a special police escort stopping all traffic for the time being. The International employees awakened Times Square and Film Row to a realization that Hollywood and its products are not the whole motion picture industry.

"And a Good Time Was Had"

Arriving at Pearl River the outing got into action at once by having photographs taken and this was followed through the morning by various games until the time came to eat. Dinner proved to be one of the successes of the day, and cash and other prizes were drawn for and presented to the lucky winners. A telegram was read at the dinner from H. L. Clarke, President of the International Projector Corporation, expressing his regret that engagements in Chicago prevented his being at the outing. Prizes were also given to the winners of the games in the morning and afternoon, and the following are some of the donors: H. L. Clarke, W. H. Rabell, J. C. Hornstein, Jacob Lurie, F. H. Richardson, Hoffmann & Sons. The following is a list of the winners of the games: William McKeown, George Bangay, John Dwyer, Henry Maksaymo, L. H. Peek, J. E. Soons, S. Boeck, M. Jacobs, John Krulieh, William Wetter, William McKeown, Mike Jacobs, William McAloon, D. H. Stender, Herbert Griffin, W. C. Michel, Osear E. Becker, Joseph Bookman. Among those present were Vice-Presidents: W. C. Michael, W. E. Green and S. R. Burns,

F. H. Richardson, George Edwards, F. Nagel, E. Hartmeyer, H. Griffin, P. A. McGuire, A. H. Meyer, L. S. Frappier, T. A. Healey, and R. C. Kneuer, Chairman of the outing to whom is due much of the credit for the complete success of this event.

Sparks Has Six Florida Houses Under Way

E. J. Sparks, head of the E. J. Sparks Enterprises in the South, has announced the construction of a 600-seat Motion Picture Theatre at 18 East Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla. The new house will be one of the best equipped in Florida and the remodeling of the building and equipment will cost in the neighborhood of $40,000. A Wurlitzer organ will be installed.

Sparks Enterprises have six other Florida theatres under construction at the present time. One in Riverside, one in Lakeland, one in St. Petersburg and another at Valdosta, Ga. The locations of the other two have not as yet been given out.

Mr. Sparks has recently left on a four months' tour of Europe, accompanied by Mrs. Sparks and P. B. Garner, of Lakeland. M. C. Talley, secretary-treasurer of the Sparks interests will be in charge of operations during the absence of Mr. Sparks.

Theatre Project Financed at Phoenix, Ariz.

Riekards and Nace, who control a number of theatres in central Arizona, have completed the financing on the construction of a reported $400,000 theatre building and business block at West Adams Street and Second Avenue, Phoenix, Ariz.

Slotnick Plans New House at Utica, N. Y.

Another Motion Picture Theatre will be added to the dozen or so already doing business in Utica, N.Y., according to a recent announcement.

Samuel Slotnick, formerly engaged in theatrical enterprises in Syracuse and other upstate cities, has purchased property on the northwest corner of Neilson and James streets, and will start construction early in the fall on the new house. A building permit has already been issued.

Gen. Elec. Ltd. Now Power's Canadian Agent

General Electric, Limited, of Canada, with head office in Montreal, Quebec, is now Canadian distributor for the Powers projection machines, Minusa Gold Fibre Screens and Roseo lamp coloring, as well as being agent for Simplex projectors and parts and the Hertner transverter.

C. A. Dentelbeck, of Toronto, chief projection supervisor for Famous Players Canadian Corp., for years, and president of the Toronto Projection Machine Operators' Local for many terms, is in charge of the Toronto office of General Electrics, Limited. R. D. Sutherland, of Montreal, general manager, announces that branches have been opened in Quebec City, St. John, N.B., and Ottawa.

Barrington, Ill., to Have Novel Theatre

Barrington, Ill., a fast growing community of Lake county, is to have a most attractive and novel new theatre, according to plans recently announced by W. B. Catlow, owner of the present Auditorium Theatre at that point.

It will be located on Main street, seat about 800 and be done in the style of an old English home with its half-timbered effect. The orchestra pit will be on one side of the proscenium and the organ console on the other. The estimated cost is $95,000 and completion is looked for around the first of next year.

Concord Theatre Leased to Paramount.

Concord, N.H., will have a new theatre which is now under construction, ready for opening this fall. The theatre is being built by the Masonic fraternities and is to be leased to Paramount. It will cost upwards of $300,000.

800-Seat House for Pico, Calif.

Plans are being prepared for a $30,000 theatre, store and office building to be built in the community of Pico, Calif., by Whittier investors. The house will have a seating capacity of 800.

Crandall's Metropolitan Completely Altered in Record Time

C RANDALL'S Metropolitan Theatre, of Washington, D.C., operated by the Stanley-Crandall Company of Washington, of which Harry M. Crandall, founder of the theatres bearing his name in and about the national capital, is the executive vice-president, recently underwent complete alterations in the record time of thirteen days. The entrance foyer and main lobby were completely done over, the lighting effects were totally changed and new decorative schemes put in. The auditorium proper was recarpeted, rescaled, the dome was redecorated as well as ceiling and side walls, the proscenium and side stages were wholly reconstructed, the center stage was put upon an elevator, new dressing-room facilities were installed, the orchestra pit was rebuilt and a multiple color lighting system supplanted the former single-color unit.

The lobby of the Metropolitan now presents a beautiful study in Circassian walnut with gold freize and column tops set off with panels of mouse-colored satin. The three-pendant lighting fixtures which previously illuminated the lobby have been supplanted by a magnificent center chandelier of Tiffany cut crystal, which not only adds immeasurably to the beauty of the lobby but increases the illumination by a considerable candle-power. The display frames for current and coming attractions instead of projecting into the floor space of the lobby as formerly, are indented and invisibly illuminated.

The orchestra floor has been completely recarpeted with a rich heavy nap carpet on three layers of soft padding in colors of black and gold. This softer tread takes the place of the naturized rubber flooring which was used experimentally and found not to be wholly satisfactory for theatrical use. The new seats that have been installed have upholstered backs in rich velour and leather seats.

Probably the most noticeable changes to patrons of the Metropolitan are those which have been made upon the stage. The sides, which were formerly plainly curtained apertures, have been converted into decorative French-window effects with frosted glass, which permits the utilization of the multiple-color lighting system to gain added color in the staging of prologue overture numbers and other special features, where stage settings and lightings play an important part. The installation of an elevator under the center stage permits the setting and striking of acts with remarkable rapidity. In fact, the acts do not have to be struck for the reason that they sink to basement floor level and the setting need not be disturbed. This is a great time saver and equally a labor saver, as it permits one stage setting to stand throughout an engagement instead of necessitating the setting and striking of the stage twenty-two times a week. Another great improvement is that which has been brought about in the arrangement of the orchestra pit, where the Metropolitan Symphony holds forth under the conductorship of Daniel Breeskin. The orchestra pit, while it has not been enlarged, has been so graduated in floor levels as to permit the conductor a better view of his ensemble and the members of the organization an unimpaired view of their direction. Backing the orchestra there has been installed a sounding-board with a front veneer of mahogany which not only adds to the beauty of the proscenium but also adds materially to the effectiveness of the orchestra numbers played by the Symphony.

The multiple-color lighting effect has been carried to all parts of the house, barring only the lobby and entrance foyer. This has been found to be a material aid in creating atmosphere for subjects on the screen as well as for special attractions on the stage. As a corollary to the installation of the color system in lighting an added battery of spotlights was installed in the projection booth and still another at the top of the proscenium for the illumination of the orchestra pit.

These extensive improvements, which were miraculously wrought in the Metropolitan in less than two weeks, were planned by Mr. Crandall and his executive staff and executed under the personal supervision of Joseph P. Morgan, general manager of the Stanley-Crandall theatres in and about the national capital.

Roche Story First for Murray and Fazenda

The first production of the series of comedies to be made by Louise Fazenda and John T. Murray for Warner Bros., will be made from a story by Arthur Somers Roche. Lloyd Bacon will direct.

Optics, Electricity, Practical Ideas & advice

Inquiries and Comments

AFTER having listened recently to one sob story concerning excessive condenser breakage, along comes R. A. Ford, projectionist at the Pastime Theatre, Hickory, N.C., with a truly large bucket of woe.

Friend Ford smells a rat in his optic line-up, since he attributes his trouble to errors in same, and requests help, aid, and assistance in arriving at a satisfactory set-up.

He writes as follows:

"Dear Sir:

"I have been a reader of the projection department for the past three years, and I find that it is a lot of help to me. I am, therefore, taking the liberty of asking you a simple, but, to me at least, very important question, which has to do with the correct optical setting for my particular conditions.

"I have been on the job at this theatre for the past eight months and so far have had no trouble except that my condensing lenses break nearly as fast as I put them in. It seems as if I just can't help but break them, so will you please give me some advice concerning the proper set-up for my conditions.

"The equipment at this theatre consists of two Simplex Projectors with regular Type E lamphouse. Am using 6½ in. collector lens and 7½ in. converging lens, in connection with a 40 ampere are supplied with alternating current. The projection distance is 85 feet."

Checked Up Himself

"I have made a few check-ups on the system myself, in an effort to locate the trouble, but so far have had no success whatever.

"Of course, we all know that condensers will expand when heated and that a draft of cold air will break them, so I keep my holders loose and also am careful about keeping bad drafts away from the lenses.

"I think the entire trouble comes when I boost the are to 60 amperes. When I do that, well, the lenses do everything but climb out and dance around the floor. I believe if I could bring my are about four inches away from the collector lens my trouble would be over, but I have been unable to do this.

"I have also tried adjusting the lamphouse to bring it back but that does no good at all. Will you, therefore, please be kind enough to help me out of my trouble as my manager believes in nothing but first-class projection and I want to do all that I can to put a show over in first-class order. That is what I always try to do.

"I would certainly appreciate hearing from you at once in regard to this matter."

Friend Ford, if you will pardon our saying so, you exhibit all of the characteristics of a projectionist. Now, let us explain what we mean by that.

According to your own statement, you have been afflicted with condenser breakage for the past eight months—ever since you took this new job at the Pastime Theatre.

Yet, here it is August (the letter was dated August 6th), and you are just now asking our advice as to its correction.

One At a Time

We have made it a practice to discuss but one subject, or answer one inquiry, each week, as we feel that if a thing is worth talking about at all, it deserves to have a page devoted to it. Anything less would hardly permit of a complete reply, since frequently, even one page is insufficient.

Inquiries requiring but a paragraph or two are ordinarily answered by mail direct and nothing more is said thereon.

Not Enough

Now, as for your trouble, since you feel (and perhaps rightly so), that an improper optic set-up is responsible for your difficulty, let us see what your set-up should be.

You say that you are using a 40 ampere A. C., which apparently is satisfactory, but when you try to step it up to 60 amperes, things begin to happen.

Merely telling us the amperage of the are you are using doesn't mean much, as that leaves us to guess at the size of the erater of your are. In order to figure out, with any degree of exactitude, the correct set-up for any given set of conditions, it is highly important that the size of the erater be given. The horizontal diameter is the thing usually measured, since that ordinarily represents the smallest distance across the erater.

The smallest are diameter is chosen in order that the image of the erater will be magnified to such an extent that every part of the aperture will be evenly lighted.

Under the present conditions the best we can do is to guess at the size of your are erater, trusting to luck that we will guess somewhere near its true size.

Without going too much into detail, we are giving what we believe to be the correct set-up for your conditions when a 40 ampere A. C. are is used.

Condensers—collector lens 6½ in. focal length; converging lens 6½ in. focal length. Distance of are from face of collector lens 3¾ in., distance of face of converging lens from aperture 21 in.

Try that on your Simplex, and if it doesn't work let us know. If you wish to use 60 amperes instead of 40, change your set-up to agree with the following: condenser set—6½ in. collector lens, 6½ in. converging lens. Distance of are from face of collector lens 4 in., distance of face of converging lens from aperture 18½ in.

Arc-Condenser Distance

You will note from the foregoing, Friend Ford, that a reasonable separation distance between arc and face of collector lens is given in each case. I believe you mentioned something about wishing to use a 4 in. distance in this case. Well, the 60 ampere set-up will give you such a condition.

It is desirable to keep the arc-condenser separation distance greater than 3½ in. if it is at all possible, since this figure represents the minimum distance for satisfactory condenser service.

If, on trying one, or both, of the set-ups, you find the condensers still breaking, then look elsewhere for your trouble.

Check the lamphouse ventilator to make sure that the housing is not running up its temperature. From what you write, however, we are inclined to believe that your trouble lies in a faulty optic set-up.

Contract Let on K. C. 1st Run Theatre

The general contract for construction of Kansas City's 4,000-seat, $4,000,000 first run theatre, has been awarded to Boez & Keil, a St. Louis firm, and excavation began Wednesday. The St. Louis firm's bid was lower than New York, Chicago and Kansas City firms' bids. The St. Louis company erected the Ambassador Theatre in St. Louis. The Midland is being constructed by Midland Theatre and Realty Company of Kansas City, allied with Loew, Inc.

Permit Likely at Evansville

Although there has been some protest from residents in the Washington zone of Evansville, Ill., Isadore and Oscar Fine, operators of the Columbia and Franklin Theatres, are likely to be granted their permit to erect a Motion Picture house on Washington Avenue near Kentucky Avenue.

May Build at Glendale, Cal.

Glendale, Cal., is likely to have another theatre in the near future. John J. Forshaw, a real estate dealer of Jamaica, N.Y., has recently requested the Glendale Realty Board to locate a site for a theatre on a 21-year lease.

the Society can be assured of an enjoyable time.

As stated in our constitution, the object of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers is the advancement in the theory and practice of motion picture engineering and the allied arts and sciences; the standardization of the mechanisms and practices employed therein, and the maintenance of a high professional standing among its members.

Every phase of the motion picture industry is benefited by the papers prepared and the discussions that follow their reading.

Upon the members of our society rests the responsibility that the motion picture production—created for the entertainment and instruction of the public—shall be properly prepared in the studio, developed and printed in the laboratory, distributed to the exhibitor and perfectly presented in the theatre.

Through its members, the society originates new and improved devices, processes and methods. It acts as a clearing-house for the dissemination of this information to those who will be benefited by it. It encourages and insures a better understanding between the different departments of the motion picture industry; enhancing the economy and improving the efficiency of everything connected with the production, distribution and projection of the ultimate in the motion picture industry.

Discuss Million Dollar Urbana Theatre

Plans are being discussed at Urbana, Ill., for the erection of a new motion picture theatre which will cost in the neighborhood of one million dollars, according to report. It would be designed especially to attract patronage of the student body of the University of Illinois, numbering approximately 10,000.

New Theatre Planned at San Jacinto, Cal.

L. A. Reynolds, president of the San Jacinto Improvement Association, San Jacinto, Cal., is planning a $20,000 motion picture theatre to be built on a site purchased on Main Street, between San Jacinto and Sheriff avenues.

- Theater Names: Arcade, Allen, Stanley, Loew's Palace, Loew's State, Capitol, Sun.
- Star Name: Lon Chaney is prominently featured on all posters.
- Supporting Cast: Lois Moran, Owen Moore, and Henry B. Walthall are mentioned on several posters.
- Plot Teasers: Phrases like "The Road to Mandalay", "The Man of 1000 Faces", and "His Own Lawyer" are used to draw interest.
- Artistic Styles: The posters vary in design, from simple text-based layouts to more elaborate illustrations and portraits of the actors.

Advertising for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "The Road to Mandalay" at first run theatres sold the star first and backed up the name of Lon Chaney with an appeal based on the Oriental atmosphere of the play. The representative ad displays in the group above were used by the following theatres: Newman, Kansas City; Sun, Omaha; Rialto, Denver; Allen, Cleveland; Loew's Palace, Washington, D.C.; Arcade, Jacksonville; Stanley, Philadelphia; Capitol, Des Moines, and Loew's State, Memphis.

Newspaper Opinions on New Pictures

"So This Is Paris"—Warner Bros., Cameo, New York City

American: "Mr. Volstead, fortunately, has not yet tackled the intoxicating qualities of certain motion pictures. Otherwise we should never have had 'So This Is Paris,' which comes nearer to being real champagne than your bootlegger's highest priced case. Lubitsch has done it again. From first titter to last deep chuckle, his latest film is a thing of joy. And its exhilarating effect upon a hot, movie-weary audience was a marvel to behold."

News: "From the moment the Lubitsch picture began unreeling, it is doubtful that any watcher remained conscious of either the heat or the humidity. The picture moves with a pace as perfectly timed as a symphony orchestra's rendition of a masterpiece. The players seem to know exactly what is expected of them and they do not fall one degree below expectations."

Graphic: "'So This Is Paris,' the latest directorial effort of that genius at the megaphone, Ernst Lubitsch, is this week's attraction at the Cameo, and attraction it is, indeed. The result is an amusing celluloid piece that kept yesterday's audience in gales of laughter."

Journal: "'So This Is Paris,' Ernst Lubitsch's latest production at the Cameo Theatre, is a gorgeous comedy of the most scintillating sort. Lubitsch has a farcical touch at once so delightful and sly that even an ordinary sequence under his direction sparkles."

Evening Post: "It is a sparkling, sophisticated farce, done with a delicate, deft touch which disguises completely the trite plot of a husband whose one lie leads him into a maze of intrigue and deception. 'So This Is Paris' is a picture well worth seeing. It is bright and smart and there isn't a dull minute in it."

Evening World: "'So This Is

Paris,' first shown by the Film Arts Guild at the Cameo last evening and scheduled for a run, is a riot of fun. It is full of the diaphragm laughter of broad, hilarious comedy verging at times on slapstick. Any adult audience would like it. It is a box-office picture, but it also retains the best of the Lubitsch who has previously seemed to cater to a somewhat limited following."

Herald-Tribune: "That sly genius of the cinema, Herr Ernst Lubitsch, has turned out the most hilarious of his comedies in 'So This Is Paris,' the madly satirical farce that is playing at the Cameo Theatre for what, I hope, will prove an engagement of months. Dropping for the moment his interest in the quieter forms of pantomimic wit that distinguished 'Kiss Me Again,' the director has broadened his stroke perceptibly and plunged into the unashamedly farcical."

Mirror: "Three cheers and a tiger! A really delicious flicker has come to us in 'So This Is Paris,'—bubbly, sparkly, exhilarating entertainment. It is to the screen what pre-war champagne is to a gala event."

Times: "A gay picture, entitled 'So This Is Paris,' which hails from the workshop of that master director, Ernst Lubitsch, is doing its share to uphold the screen art at the Cameo, where it is being presented by Warner Bros. and the International Film Arts Guild. No matter how brilliant may be the picture Mr. Lubitsch produces, he succeeds invariably in inserting a transcendental stroke."

World: "A movie, magnificent in details, witty, sly, with completely devastating quips and quirks, has been cut out by Ernst Lubitsch, who again proves with 'So This Is Paris' that he is one of the few directors who can smartly turn a phrase with the camera. The piece shimmers with satire."

My dear Mr. Hornstein:

You will no doubt be pleased to know that after careful consideration and analysis of my projection engineers and myself, that I have again decided to use the five Simplex Projectors, in the new Roxy Theatre.

The excellent work done by this projector makes me feel secure in giving them the place in my projection room, and we feel sure that they will do their part in keeping up the reputation that the theatre has "the largest and most modern theatre in the world". Knowing as you do what a crank I am on projectors, this should be great news for you.

Very truly yours,

Showmanship and Common Sense

Study the successful Exhibitor and there is one thing that will impress you—a talent for showmanship. After all, what is showmanship but common sense applied to the showman's problems?

The Feature Picture and the additional attractions on the program, are of utmost importance, but the successful Exhibitor knows that the right type of Musical Accompaniment is absolutely indispensable, therefore, his chief concern is not so much the first cost, but what the organ investment contributes to his show as a whole, and what it brings him in profits.

The Robert Morton Unit Organ is specifically designed to meet the demands of the modern motion picture theatre. It is the most powerful single factor any Exhibitor can employ to provide a Complete Picture Presentation Program.

Aside from combining the world's finest pipe organ with all the different voices of the Symphony Orchestra, the variety of effects on the Wurlitzer Organ is unlimited. The organist, without interruption, can imitate perfectly any conceivable effect portrayed on the screen—the canon's boom, cat call, locomotive, bird, bell, chimes, cuckoo, lion roar, and many other perfect reproductions. Install a Wurlitzer and get the crowds.

Juvenile COMEDIES

HIS latest work stamps "Big Boy" as the greatest baby star the screen has ever produced.

Here's a two-year-old youngster with an almost uncanny ability as an actor, whose antics will tug at the heartstrings of every man and woman, and bring roars of laughter from them as well as from the kids.

E. W. Hammons presents

"MY KID"

"That precocious kid with the derby and the big shoes does his best work thus far. 'Big Boy' is without doubt a wonder for his years, and does some bits that would do credit to a full grown star . . . This offering is going to make a host of new friends for the baby star . . . A fine comedy for any type of house."

—FILM DAILY

"This particular one of the 'Big Boy' series is delicious . . . Entertaining, whimsical, convincing and any other laudatory adjectives you wish to use, is 'My Kid.'"

Better in Every Way

The new inside frost Edison MAZDA Lamps give much more light and better diffused light than outside frosted lamps. They are more pleasing in shape, are pearl grey in color and blend perfectly with any background. For efficiency as well as for decorative lighting these new lamps are unequaled by any other type of lamps made.

Five sizes of the new inside frost lamps meet lighting requirements that previously called for forty-five types and sizes of clear and outside frosted lamps. The savings effected through simplified production are passed on to you. For though the new lamps are better in every way than the old types of frosted and clear lamps, which they replace, they sell at practically clear lamp prices.

Specify the new inside frost Edison MAZDA Lamps when you need lamps for any part of your theatre.

by Carrier Centrifugal Refrigeration

ONE of the many important and exclusive features of the Carrier System for cooling and dehumidifying the air in theatres and public buildings is Carrier Centrifugal Refrigeration.

There are other machines which will produce cooling but none so compact, so simple and dependable in operation, so entirely safe and so efficient as the Carrier Centrifugal unit. This machine has been invented, designed and developed by Carrier Air Conditioning Engineers to specifically meet the problems of air cooling and dehumidification within buildings.

The machine occupies about 1/5 of the space required for other refrigeration equipments of like capacity. The centrifugal principle permits operation by a directly connected motor. The unit in appearance and operation is almost exactly like the ordinary motor driven centrifugal pump. The refrigerating medium is not a gas but a harmless liquid. The control of operation and temperature is automatic.

Carrier Centrifugal Refrigeration is combined with the complete Carrier System which cleanses the air, automatically establishes and controls ideal conditions of Temperature and Humidity and diffuses the conditioned air uniformly through the theatre.

The whole is backed by the long experience of a trained organization of Air Conditioning Specialists. A part of each Carrier Contract is the guarantee to produce specified results.

Theatre owners, architects and engineers are invited to investigate the results accomplished in Carrier Cooled Theatres. Our book, "Theatre Cooling" and a list of Carrier Cooled Theatres will be sent upon request.

~~ARCTIC NU-AIR~~ System Completely Controlled Ventilation

Read the Facts

Controlled Ventilation—ventilation as needed—when needed—where needed!

Now a system of ventilation for your theatre that solves not only your summer cooling problem, but your winter comfort problem as well.

Horton Variable Speed Pulley

Completely Controlled Ventilation became a reality with the adoption of the famous Horton Variable Speed Pulley as the means of controlling the volume of air.

This remarkable invention provides almost unlimited flexibility. The speed of the impeller wheel can be regulated to give 300 changes of air volume through the operation of a lever. It can be operated by remote control—right from the box office if desired.

Reduces Current Consumption

Volume control through the Horton Pulley saves electricity. When you reduce the volume of air you also reduce the consumption of current. Compare this with the more costly variable speed motor which permits but few changes of speed down to 50%, and uses as much if not more current at lower speeds than at maximum speed.

Exhaustive tests under the supervision of Horton and Arctic Nu-Air electrical engineers proved that a 50% reduction in the speed, or volume, of the Horton Pulley Equipped Arctic Nu-Air Impeller reduced the motor current consumption to 70%.

Requiring a less costly motor to operate and decreasing the current consumption in even greater ratio than the reduction of speed the Horton Pulley effects economies that are reflected in the low initial cost and operating expense of the Arctic Nu-Air System.

Present Arctic Nu-Air Owners Can Now Have Controlled Ventilation

Your present Arctic Nu-Air Cooling and Ventilating System can be equipped to give you the year 'round advantages of Completely Controlled Ventilation. No change in your present installation is necessary.

Send the coupon and get all of the facts concerning Arctic Nu-Air Controlled Ventilation—the greatest achievement in the field of ventilation and cooling.

System of Controlled Ventilation

"SPARROWS"

"What a picture! Mary Pickford has never done anything better,—and that's covering a lot of ground. 'Sparrows' is the type of production that exhibitors will long remember.

It is delightful. It is poignant. It is a potpourri of these and many other things, all of which spell dollars at the box-office.

THE LITTLE MOTHER

Mary does splendid work. Never has there been a more delightful and genuinely human group of children seen than in 'Sparrows.'

SURE-FIRE AUDIENCE APPEAL

There is a sequence wherein the children defy the treacherous swamps in order to escape the farm boss. It carries a kick. Led by Mary, the kiddies scramble one by one over a fallen tree which forms a sort of natural bridge. The alligators yawn below. Had grown-ups done it, the audience reaction would have been certain. But when the children do it, the wallop is magnified.

'Sparrows' is going to be talked about. This, partially because it has something beneath the surface.

What exhibitors want to know concerns its drawing power. Mary's picture has it. The production deserves the success it will get. It's a meritorious picture from every angle. And all those concerned with its making have the right to feel that they have turned out one of the industry's best."

Profit for you in one or more of these uses

1. In response to a universal demand for a light, automatic, professional camera which would approximate the work done by our larger Pioneer Standard B. & H. Camera, the Eyemo was perfected and made available for general use less than a year ago.

Already it is considered indispensable for field use in every enterprise involving the making of professional motion pictures.

In Newsreel Scoops it stands supreme, having given the world first visual news of the sinking of the Japanese Steamer, "Raifuku Maru," the rescue of the "Antinoe" crew, the Mauna Loa volcanic eruption, the recent Arsenal explosion, and many other unusual happenings which have been flashed on the screens of the world. Eyemo is used by International, Pathe, Fox, Kinograms, Universal, Paramount and others to scoop the picture because it is thoroughly professional—and so compact and light that it can instantly be brought into use wherever things are happening.

2. Eyemo is used for professional production purposes by Universal, Famous Players-Lasky, Warner Bros., Mack Sennett, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Charlie Chaplin, Christie and others. These people consider Eyemo absolutely necessary for getting stunt shots, special effects and testing locations.

3. Eyemo has been used in every recent exploring expedition of importance. It adds little to the weight of materials to be carried—and much to the weight of historic evidence brought back. The following expeditions are among those Eyemo-equipped:
 Byrd Polar Expedition
 Amundsen-Ellsworth Polar Expedition
 Speer Expedition
 Bering Sea Expedition
 Third Asiatic Expedition
 Smithsonian-Chrysler Expedition to Africa
 African and Mongolian Expedition of the American Museum of Natural History
 U.S. Dept. of Interior Geological Survey (Alaskan)

4. The most recent activity of Eyemo is "putting the neighborhood in the movies"—the new idea that is coining money for local exhibitors. The Chicago Daily News has instituted a local screen service which has already been accepted by forty theatres. The Detroit News and other newspapers and independent exhibitors everywhere are also using this idea. It is bringing wonderful results in box-office returns.

THE PIONEER

The Bell & Howell Company are pioneers in the motion picture industry, having by superior design and construction brought about the present standardization of producing equipment.

Stability

TALKING with an executive of an automobile company, the other day, and discussing makes of cars from the buyer's viewpoint, he said: "Oh, well! Most all cars are good, these days."

We did some reminiscing then; over the early and chaotic days of the automotive industry; when the public demand was great but plants and man power much slighter than today; of how new makes of cars were announced right along and territorial rights sold before even a plant, let alone a car, was built. Competition was feverish, there was vast over-production, and save with a few organized concerns the quality of the product was not well-assured.

* * *

And then I told him what a close and interesting parallel exists between the careers of that industry and our own.

It wasn't long ago that the possession of a single star determined the competitive position of a producer. Today, great stars go from one distributor to another, with no disturbance.

In those earlier days two or three directors could get together and change the production map. The acquisition of a single distinguished author was a matter of acclaim. Technicians were so few as to be greatly distinguished. Studios were many, but mere garrets or shacks compared with the big and departmentalized plants of today.

All this has come about by degrees and we are only now well along the road. There is much to come in picture making, it is coming right along and importantly. But the point is that today a very large part of our pictures are good. They will be constantly better.

And the consequence is that the industry is far more stable today than ever before; and there is more stability to come.

With this new stability, we will have to revise some of our industrial traditions, and fears.

Theatres used to worry about product—especially big theatres that had invested a million or more, and were constantly afraid that next season's pictures would not fill their seats; or else they were afraid that the making of good pictures would get in the hands of one concern and enable that concern to take over the theatres.

That concentration of power never came about and it never will.

This year the selling competition is stiffer than ever before in the industry's history. Exhibitors a few years ago were quick to tell you that they had to have either one or two leading services in order to feel secure. They don't talk that way today. They don't buy that way this year; they use judgment as well as independence and they are taking into account not only the matter of product but the business treatment accorded them by the various distributors.

* * *

Another bugaboo that is passing is that of the first-run.

There have always been too many pictures that were believed to deserve first-runs; and the first-run theatres always complained that they never could get adequate product.

Neither contention need be discussed today because the trade importance of the first-run is fast passing. Neighborhood theatres are building and will continue to be built on such a scale that they can and will pay the prices and do the advertising that once made the downtown house so great a factor in the trade.

Things move too fast in this business and in too big a way to let traditions—half-baked ones at that—last very long.

Speaking Editorially

THE conference between the President and Mr. Hays, in which the decision was reached to preserve films of historical importance in the Government archives, has attracted wide comment in the press.

The New York Herald-Tribune points out editorially: "If there will be room in the new Archives Building in Washington for at least 20,000 films and negatives, the pictures of outstanding national interest can easily be garnered, and in a hundred years they will have a human value at least equal to the state documents of these times."

This would seem rather an understatement of the importance of the project. The motion picture, properly preserved, will be a far more vivid human document than a state paper could possibly be—at least to the masses.

The Tribune goes on: "A motion picture library much more extensive than the Government can accommodate might be established and securely housed by the motion picture industry as a legacy to its successors and to a future public which may pay $10,000,000,000 a year in admissions, ten times as much as last year's total."

This is a very interesting suggestion, on one hand, and a prophecy of future growth, on the other, which gives every indication of being fulfilled, judged by the present amazing rate of progress of the industry.

* * *

THE big future ahead of motion pictures also engages the attention of The New York World. Commenting upon Mr. Hays' conference with the President, the World adds: "The possibilities of the films now seem illimitable. The part they play in the daily life of the average person has just been impressively shown in the death of a favorite movie actor; that they may, and should, play an important part in the education of the educated, through the preservation of pictures of history in the making, is quite as clear."

ACCORDING to the always intelligent viewpoint of John Grierson, the Scotch critic and author, who spent some time in Hollywood studying the American picture proposition from every possible angle, its future lies in the development of the epic theme. Granting to the American screen industry the best comedians and greatest comedies and that Hollywood is most fortunate in its natural resources for picture-making of any place in the world and with a plethora of feminine beauty to call upon for beauty shows and fashions the defect is in the American ability, up to now, at least, to make really great epic tragedies.

In time we doubtless will overcome this handicap also, but emotionalism, according to the eminent Scotchman, is not entirely a matter of purchase at any time. In an article in the Herald-Tribune (N. Y.) Grierson pays tribute to Chaplin, Raymond Griffith, and Langdon as the comedians par excellence.

"I suggest that there is something in the national destiny that makes America weak (for the present) in the sense of tragedy," Mr. Grierson continues. "America is very rightly preoccupied with the conquering of the material world and in the extension of the work of men's hands. It is not greatly interested in the about-it-and-about of philosophy and fate, which lies at the root of tragedy. There is no good reason why it should be.

"This gives the suggestion that the American cinema will do something in epic as well as in comedy. By epic I mean the recounting of great ambitions and great achievements, great hopes and great disasters, principally physical. Hollywood made a fine job of 'The Covered Wagon.' It made a good job of 'The Pony Express,' 'The Iron Horse,' and 'The Vanishing American.' America, with its sense of physical bignesses and the great spaces, can do that sort of thing. Europe (with the possible exception of England) is too interested in its intellectual and emotional bowels to compete."

AN EDITOR ON BROADWAY

The Week in Review By William A. Johnston

THIS week brought remarkable business to Broadway. Last week was good, on the whole, but this week, as we write, bids fair to set several records. Labor Day in New York marks the end of the summer lull, and thoughts turn from auto trips to amusements.

Sunday was a remarkably good day for all of the houses up and down the Rialto, despite the exodus of week-enders. Monday saw amazing matinee business piled up, but the storm which broke at 5 o'clock in the afternoon paralyzed traffic and made heavy inroads on what would have otherwise been a record day for several Broadway houses.

Starting on upper Broadway and working south, the Colony Theatre got off to a remarkable start with "One Minute to Play," "Red" Grange making a personal appearance amidst excitement and cheers. The picture scored heavily, and the Sunday house record of $7,100, hung up by Harold Lloyd, was announced as having been broken by some two hundred dollars. As this is being written, business continues remarkable, with every indication of a record figure on the week.

At Warner's Theatre, Vitaphone and "Don Juan" continue to pack them in, with seats selling weeks in advance and hard to get, at that.

At the Capitol, "Mare Nostrum," following its long run at the Criterion at $2 prices, was breaking records. The Capitol always does big business with a picture played following an engagement in a legitimate house, but it does not always break records. Standing room was being sold on Sunday, and on Monday (Labor Day seems to be a day for breaking records at the Capitol), the matinee record, set a year before by "Graustark" and broken the week previous by "Battling Butler," was smashed by a thousand dollars. Except for the storm, Labor Day would probably have seen a new day's record set at the Capitol. On Tuesday, business was again rushing. The Capitol must do a certain figure by Wednesday to insure holding the picture over for the following week—and on this Wednesday "Mare Nostrum" had passed that figure by more than fifty per cent! This is particularly interesting, in view of the disputed popular appeal and box-office slant of "Mare Nostrum." After such a long run at the Criterion, it seems to us, word-of-mouth cannot have failed to let New Yorkers know what manner of picture it is, and the way it is packing them in at the Capitol certainly would seem to indicate that there is a definite public for it.

Comedy holds the boards at the Rivoli and the Strand, with "Hold That Lion!" (Douglas MacLean) and "The Strong Man" (Harry Langdon) respectively. The Rivoli suffered with the others from the Labor Day storm, but there is every indication that the figure for the week will bear strong proof of the surpassing popularity of comedy. At the Strand, the house was filled on Sunday before the 2 o'clock de luxe performance started, and waiting lines were in evidence during most of the day. Monday matinee business taxed the capacity of the house, and slumped after the storm with the others. On Tuesday, aided by splendid newspaper notices, the Langdon vehicle was again pulling them in in droves.

"Variety" at the Rialto continues its amazing performance. "How many times have you seen 'Variety'?" has become almost a game in New York. House attendants say that the number of repeaters is beyond belief, and probably no picture, with the possible exception of "The Big Parade," has attracted so many return visits.

"Beau Geste" is sitting on top of the world at the Criterion, with the small house doing capacity. "The Big Parade" and "Ben-Hur" have lost none of their potency at the Astor and the George M. Cohan, with the former slightly stronger.

We venture here the prediction, however, that this New York situation is going to be reversed on the road. "Ben-Hur," to our mind, is going to set records, everywhere, and if the small towns aren't turned upside down by it we shall be very much surprised. "The Big Parade" will do business, of course, but it seems to us that "Ben-Hur" is an even better picture for the smaller cities and towns. "Ben-Hur," with its religious angle, and the millions who remember the title and story, is ready-made for the small community. "The Big Parade" is less easy to advertise in advance—and its success in New York, let us admit honestly, will mean mighty little in Kokomo and Kankakee, deluged as they have been with stories of this and that picture's reception in New York, only to be handed a "lemon" which had been given a forced run in a Broadway house.

RUSSELL HOLMAN, advertising manager of Famous Players, writes: "You carry a lot in your columns about press sheets. Attached is the type of press sheet which this department turns out at the rate of two and three a week regularly, a month in advance of the first showing of the pictures. Please note how practical and bunkless this press sheet is and tell me what a sensible exhibitor could find to kick about in it."

This forms an interesting addition to the press-book discussion, which has been going on in Motion Picture News for several weeks. Evidently, a very live topic.

We have had occasion before to note—in fact, we noted it in the original editorial which brought forth the press book discussion—that the Paramount Showman's Manual, originated by Mr. Holman, is the best thing of the sort we have seen.

* * * * *

MEANWHILE, the discussion has attracted attention overseas, where The Film Renter, in a recent issue, devotes its lead editorial to the subject. After reprinting some of the points registered by exhibitor letters to MOTION PICTURE NEWS, the British trade paper says:

"It is possible to fool some of the public some of the time, but it is difficult to bounce the wily showman into the belief that the average 'dope' with which he is supplied is really going to help him sell his pictures. Some of the publicity chiefs in this country, we gratefully admit, have learned their business, and the auxiliary literary matter they send out has a distinct selling angle. . . . But there are others, whose sole enterprise and originality in this respect seem to consist of transcribing a lot of platitudinous press cuttings from local newspapers, and filling up a lot of trivial details about the parentage of the actors and the pedigree of any animals who may be appearing in the play. Only the feeble-minded could waste their time studying such inane piffle."

A "RED" LUNCHEON

SPORTS writers and movie critics foregathered at the Astor on Tuesday noon to luncheon in honor of a star of both firmaments—one "Red" Grange, who after displaying some little aptitude for pigskin juggling essayed the equally hazardous celluloid arena, and again came off with honors.

"One Minute to Play," the first Grange starring vehicle, opened on Sunday at the Colony Theatre on Broadway, and immediately established both the box office value and the likable screen personality of the football hero.

"Big Bill" Edwards, the famous Princeton guard, presided at the luncheon and introduced the star, who made a most favorable impression by his modest bearing and engaging personality.

BALINESE BYPATHS

MISS LOLA KREUTZBERG, woman explorer and motion picture producer, has come recently to this country, after a seven months' stay in Java, Sumatra and the Island of Bali, with remarkable motion pictures made in the last-named location under the title "The Wonder Isle." After producing an animal film for Ufa of Germany in Java and Sumatra, Miss Kreutzberg proceeded on to Bali to make another picture of her own. She had heard particularly of the beauty of the Balinese women and of the remarkable temple dances, many of which had never been seen by the eye of a white man.

She found that the Prince of Bali was interested in preserving the Balinese dances for future generations, since the inroads of "civilization" make it likely that if fifteen or twenty years they will disappear. He could not aid her openly, however, without arousing

Hugh Gray, doorman of the Famous Players' Eastern studio for fifteen years, and once of Biograph, who died suddenly on Tuesday morning of this week. (M. P. News Photo)

Laura LaPlante, Universal star, who has just completed "Butterflies in the Rain," seems pleased with the new car which she recently purchased

Helene Denizon, of the Fokine Ballet, now touring the Publix houses in "Phantom Melodies," a presentation staged by John Murray Anderson

Sam E. Rork, prominent producer, and his daughter, Ann Rork, who is now playing her second screen role in his "The Blonde Saint" for First National. Her first was in "Old Loves and New"

Jim Beecroft, of The Herald, as he appeared when he was property man at the Horsley studios and played extra bits in "off" moments the religious feelings of the natives. He managed to place her behind a wall where, by removing a stone, she was able to insert the camera lens and photograph the interior of the temple, which was open to the sky and well lighted.

After arranging for the American distribution of this remarkable picture, which shows all the beauties of Bali, she plans to return to Bali to produce a dramatic feature built around the life and customs of these people, after the manner of "Nanook" and "Moana."

A particularly interesting feature of this plan is the fact that it is the intention of Ufa to have this picture directed by F. W. Murnau, maker of "The Last Laugh," now directing "Sunrise" for Fox Films in Hollywood. Mr. Murnau is keenly interested in the idea, and is anxious to do it. The combination of his technical skill with the rare material which Miss Kreutzberg has unearthed should be a most happy one.

An interesting feature of her work is the fact that she travels entirely alone—no retinue of guides and guards, no interpreters, no scientists, no expedition. With her motion picture camera mounted on the front of her car, she is ready to start anywhere. All of her big game hunting has been done with a camera, and such is her hypnotic power over them that she has never been molested by a savage beast.

Miss Kreutzberg came to New York with the intention of making a lecture tour of the country with her Balinese picture, but immediately after arriving she was run down by an automobile on Broadway, painfully injuring her knee, which has confined her to her room for several weeks. As a result, it will probably now be necessary to cancel the lecture tour and return to Bali. She remarks that she will be glad to get back to the comparative safety of Bali, after her unfortunate experience with the dangers of Broadway.

T VITAPHONE CONVERTS AL WOODS

THAT graduate of the melodrama school typified by "The Bowery After Dark," and for years one of the most prolific and successful Broadway managers, A. H. Woods, has become a convert to grand opera. At least he says he has and credits his conversion to the Vitaphone. The publicity goes three ways, so the story may have originated in the brain of any one of three men: William Guard, the courtly Chesterfieldian publicity man for the Opera Company; Bill Murphy, of Warners, or Samuel Hoffenstein, Woods' own erudite Boswell. Anyway Woods says that after hearing Anna Case and Martinelli (he leaves out Marion Talley—unfair) on the Vitaphone, he ordered a season ticket for the Metropolitan although he had never been in that Gatti Cazzaza's temple of music. Woods suggests that Al Jolson sing his Mammy songs for the Vitaphone and thus invade every hamlet in the country.

Fred E. Hamlin, former publicity director of the New York Mark Strand Theatre, with Lewis Stone and Sam E. Rork, producer, whose publicity director Hamlin has become after completing a cross-country trip in the vehicle shown. This was snapped on location for "The Blonde Saint" (First National)

Sam Wood and Byron Morgan, director and author, respectively, of "One Minute to Play," the football story starring "Red" Grange, which is being released by Film Booking Offices and which opened in New York this week

W HAMLIN HITS HOLLYWOOD

WITH "the scars to prove it," Fred E. Hamlin has finally arrived in Los Angeles, completing his trip in a flivver from New York City. Hamlin, until June the publicity director for the Mark Strand Theatre at Broadway and Forty-seventh Street, New York City, made the trip as a vacation feature for the New York World and the World Syndicate of more than 100 newspapers. On the trip, described as "A Broadway Tenderfoot" loose in the wide-open spaces, and intended to inspire other city folk to get out in the open for their vacations, Hamlin wrote a weekly signed story for the World and it was in turn reprinted by the World Syndicate papers, such as the Kansas City Star, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, Indianapolis Star and the others.

Twenty-four hours after Hamlin arrived, he was engaged by Sam E. Rork to handle publicity and exploitation for Sam E. Rork Productions, Inc. He has already gone to work, with offices in the new First National studios at Burbank. It is his intention of permanently residing in Los Angeles, which, incidentally, was his home for four years when he was a youngster twenty years ago.

W PARKER PENS A LINE

WILLIAM PARKER, formerly associated with Irving M. Lesser in New York and production manager for Gaumont in England until the general strike, writes from Marseilles to say that he is returning here this autumn.

"I often wondered," he says, "what it would feel like to have after my name the title 'journalist, author and world traveler.' Now I know. It means sleeping in many strange beds and scratching instinctively. I have won more battles the last few months along the Riviera with giant mosquitoes and saber-toothed flies than the Phœnicians ever fought. I have seen so much and heard so much that it ought to fill a book—so I've written one, and had so much left over that I've also written a play."

Before returning to New York, Parker will visit Jerusalem, Bethlehem, Alexandria, Constantinople, Roumania, Sicily, Portugal and the Azores. After that, he warns, American scenario editors had better put on extra readers.

A CHARLES CHAPLIN: PLAYWRIGHT

AN early production slated to appear on the boards in London is "Twelve Just Men," which was written by Charles Spencer Chaplin as a vaudeville sketch in the days before his rise to fame and fortune, and which has now been expanded into a full-length play by Ernst Lotinga, the comedian who bought it. The Savoy Theatre will house the production, which, if successful, we presume is likely to find its way to these shores.

E. A. DUPONT HERE

A. DUPONT, director of "Variety," and who recently finished "Love Me and the World Is Mine" for Universal, was scheduled to arrive in New York on Thursday and to depart for Germany on Saturday on a business trip. Universal has announced its intention of holding him to his contract, although there have been rumors that he would form his own producing firm. According to the announcement made at the time of the Universal contract, Ufa still has him on call for one picture.

VALENTINO'S START

THE story of Rudolph Valentino's first appearance before a motion picture camera was revealed this week by Emmett Flynn, the director who gave the late star his first opportunity to appear for the films and a short time later his initial role of importance.

"Rudy faced a camera for the first time in a production titled 'Virtuous Sinners,'" Flynn stated. "I leased space to make it as an independent state rights film at Universal City. Norman Kerry, one of Valentino's closest friends, as one of the stars, and because we both had known Rudy in New York we gave him a bit in the picture.

"His ability was so clearly marked that in the next production I made, 'The Married Virgin,' I selected Rudolph as the leading man. Then his talents were recognized by Bob Leonard, who cast him opposite Mae Murray in 'The Delicious Little Devil,' and not long after Universal featured him opposite Carmel Myers.

"Valentino's wardrobe from his dancing engagements in New York was unusually varied, and helped much in his gaining a start and an opportunity to display his inborn talents as an actor."

Valentino was visited by Flynn, who recently returned from Europe, at the Ambassador Hotel in New York the night before he was taken ill, and at that time, according to the director, Rudolph took keen pleasure in presenting the megaphone man to everyone they met as the man who had given the star his first opportunity to break into motion pictures.

CENSORSHIP PAYS—FINANCIALLY

FROM a recent cable dispatch it is learned that censorship of moving pictures in Japan pays—at least financially. The motion picture inspection office in the Department of Home Affairs announces a profit of $20,000 for the last fiscal year. Sixty thousand films were censored during the year. Each company is charged a certain fee for the work of the censorship board which seems, in a sense, to be rubbing it in. Two million admissions a month to the moving picture theatres of the Flowery Kingdom are estimated by the director of the government office.

One of the most interesting sights of a morning on Hollywood Boulevard is "Big Boy," the noted comedian, speeding to work in his imported European speedster, 1928 model

HEADED FOR HOLLYWOOD

PETER MILNE, author, scenarist and erstwhile film trade-paper man, has departed for Hollywood, where he will congregate with various and sundry producers concerning scenario contracts and two original screen stories. He recently sold "Fast and Furious" to Universal for Reginald Denny.

BLUE DUE

MONTÉ BLUE, Warner Bros. star, is en route East for a very brief vacation, and is expected in New York City this week. He has just finished some rather strenuous work in "Across the Pacific," and is scheduled to start shortly on another Warner release, so his stay will necessarily be a short one.

HOW THEY'VE SHRUNK

THE smallest 24-sheet we have yet seen has been received in the office this week. Printed in two colors, it bears the wording: "A 24-Sheet Announcing J. Harry Hayward, Manager, Grand Opera House, Wilmington, Del." The over-all dimensions of the 24-sheet, we find, are three-fourths of an inch by two and three-fourths.

AL ROCKETT LEAVING

A. L. ROCKETT, whose productions for First National have all been made in the East, has finished his work here and leaves on Saturday for the West Coast, where he will take up his duties at the Burbank plant. His pictures here have included "Puppets," now going strong, "Subway Sadie," which opens on Sunday on the New York Strand, and which he will miss by just one day, and "The Charleston Kid," just finished. Rockett's next picture on the Coast is veiled in some little necessary secrecy at the moment, but we may say that it will be a special of no little magnitude, and advance preparations will probably keep Rockett busy until about the first of December, when production will start.

'RAY FOR RAY!

A LLENE RAY, known as "the queen of serials," has announced her intention of entering into competition for the $25,000 prize offered by Wm. K. Wrigley, chewing gum magnate, for anyone swimming from San Diego to Catalina Island. She has already notified officials of her entry and hopes to make the try by the end of October, after finishing work on "The House Without a Key." She is widely known on the Coast as a swimmer, and has represented various aquatic clubs at numerous swimming meets in Long Beach, San Diego and other West Coast beach resorts.

T PINNING THE ASTERISKS

TWO features and five short subjects were found worthy of asterisk award by the National Board of Review. Both features were Paramount releases, "Beau Geste" and "Tin Gods." "Alice the Fire Fighter," an F. B. O. release, gathered in one of the medals pinned on short subjects, while the other four went to Pathe Review, Nos. 39, 40, 41 and 42.

The biggest and littlest members of the canine supporting cast appearing with Gene Tunney in "The Fighting Marine," a Patheserial. Ilak is an Alaskan wolf dog and weighs 195 pounds. Spider has no fancy pedigree, but she brings the weight of the team up to 200

REQUIESCAT, HUGHIE

TO the outside world, which pauses at the passing of a Valentino, it will mean little to learn that Hugh Gray died suddenly on Tuesday morning of this week, at the age of three-score and ten. But to the thousands who have, at one time and another, regularly entered the portals of the Famous Players Eastern studio, the news of the passing of "Hughie" Gray, its doorman for more than fifteen years, will come with a shock and a sense of personal loss.

Back at the beginning of this century, Hughie was employed by D. W. Griffith at the old Biograph studio on Fourteenth Street. Here he guarded the doors behind which worked the group of youngsters who were carving out the future basis of the infant industry.

Later, when the first Famous Players studio was opened on East Twenty-sixth Street, Hughie was made doorman, and when larger quarters were sought on West Fifty-sixth Street, and later at Astoria, L.I., he remained with the organization. The list of stars and directors to whom he was a familiar and beloved figure is endless, for nearly all of the leaders have been at one time or another with Biograph or Famous Players—Mary Pickford, Lillian Gish, John Barrymore, Gloria Swanson, Marguerite Clark, Thomas Meighan, Richard Dix, the late Rudolph Valentino, Adolphe Menjou, D. W. Griffith, Bebe Daniels, Alice Joyce, Herbert Brenon, Lois Wilson, Betty Bronson and countless others.

Hughie was stern but just in the administration of his important office. His keen eye was quick to detect the impostor and to recognize the legitimate visitor. He had an unerring instinct for sorting out those who had a right to admittance and those who were to be excluded. Through all the years he retained his cheerful friendliness and unfailing courtesy, to leading star of lowly extra alike. He was just a humble doorman, but thousands will remember him with affection and respect. What better epitaph?

BOASBERG TO WED

THE wedding-next Sunday of Al Boasberg, former F. B. O. executive and now a gag-man for Keaton, to Miss Rosabel Staderker, of Chicago, is announced. The ceremony will take place at the Chicago Beach Hotel, after which the couple will proceed to New York and sail for Europe on a short trip.

LYA LIKES US

LYA DE PUTTI, German screen actress, who scored a personal triumph in "Variety," and who is now under a three-year contract to Famous Players-Lasky, is now appearing in her third picture in this country, "God Gave Me 20 Cents," the other two being "The Sorrows of Satan" and "The Prince of Tempters," and has some interesting comments to make on film conditions in the two countries.

There have been frequent claims among the intelligentsia here that European players and directors come to America and are utterly ruined—that they are never given an opportunity here to display their real talents. In refreshing contrast to this is Miss De Putti's comment. She says:

"I much prefer my work here to that in Germany. I am able to obtain better parts here—parts that give me a real chance. In Germany I could appear in but a few pictures, and the roles given me were rarely what I felt I could do best. Here it is different, and I am more than happy to be here. My present part in 'God Gave Me 20 Cents,' which has only three principals, is tremendously interesting, and I hope to do my best work in it.

"My work has been made somewhat difficult here by my limited knowledge of English, and I have been kept so busy in the studio that I have had little time to learn. As rapidly as possible, however, I am learning English, which will make it much easier, both for the director and myself.

"At first, I was very discouraged here. The change in climate, the complete newness of my surroundings, the difficulty of the language, and my homesickness, made me want to return—but I didn't want to go back to Germany and admit that I was a failure, so I forced myself to stay and fight it out. Now I am very happy here."

Miss De Putti reports having received word that Emil Jannings will come to America about the middle of September, which is somewhat earlier than previously reported.

SINGING BY MOVIE PATRONS

THERE is a great deal of human interest in watching and listening to the typical moving-picture audience when the organist or some other leader starts a song which he wishes the patrons to sing. The first verse and the chorus are thrown on the screen, often accompanied by drawings, with the request that the audience join in singing on the repetition of the music. And this is not, as might be supposed, in some neighborhood theatre or in the towns west of the water tower, but in the first-run theatres on Broadway. It proves that the whole world—American, at least—is more or less akin. Practically every person likes to sing; most of us hide the thought that we feel we can. It is an explanation of masculine close-harmony when the usual inhibitions have been synthetically removed and "Sweet Adeline" or something else that lends itself to glee-singing is on the breeze.

Lewis H. Moomaw, director of "Flames," an Associated special which will be released in September, and which bears out the promise shown in his first picture, "The Chechahcoe." Moomaw has just returned West after bringing a print of "Flames" to New York

In the moving-picture theatres there is always at first a curious but understandable diffidence about appearing conspicuous. The first repetition of the verse and chorus, after the request to sing has been flashed on the screen, is scattered and lacking in volume. But discovering that here and there in the auditorium under cover of the semi-darkness your neighbors are hesitantly raising their voices the number is added to by recruits everywhere. Soon the entire theatre, having acquired the necessary courage, is swelling the choral group and a stranger from some other land coming in might think he was at a German Saengerbund and not a moving-picture presentation.

There is good psychology in this, childish as it may seem. It creates a community-interest feeling that does not fail to make the singers more receptive to the picture which is to follow and less captious to its faults, if it has any. Of course, the latter condition can hardly be said to exist from the producer or director's point of view, but there is harmony, just the same, due to the community singing on the program.

FILMS IN EDERLE TRIBUTE

PATHE NEWS shared in the tribute paid Gertrude Ederle, the first woman athlete to better man's record in any outstanding athletic trial, at the Mayor of New York's official reception to Miss Ederle at the Hotel Commodore, when nine hundred distinguished guests were present. One thousand feet of Pathe News Film, the complete pictorial record of Miss Ederle's epochal swim across the treacherous Channel waters, and the receptions in Europe and America that followed, was screened amid enthusiastic applause.

"Decorum of Affair at the Commodore Vanishes as Screen Shows Ederle's Swim" was the headline carried in the New York Morning World.

Grover Whalen, Chairman of the Mayor's Reception Committee to Distinguished Guests, announced at the dinner before the screen presentation that this event was made possible through the courtesy of the Pathe News, while Pathe was lauded by Thomas Collins, official announcer of Station WNYC, who described minutely and graphically to thousands of radio fans the screen episodes, reading the Pathe News titles as they appeared.

"SANDRA" AUTHOR SCORES

PEARL DOLES BELL, author of "Sandra" and other successful novels, has been singularly fortunate in the sale of screen rights. Ever since her first photoplay sale, "Her Elephant Man," which grew out of her experiences as a guest of Ringling Bros. Circus, she has disposed of the screen rights to her entire output, in addition to several original screen stories. Her latest is the sale to David Hartford Productions, together with Miss Billie Shaw, of "Little Lady, Incorporated."

GLORIA AT THE SESQUI

GLORIA SWANSON journeyed to Philadelphia last Saturday morning to be sponsor, with the wife of Mayor Kendrick, of the opening day of the National Air Races, held this year under the auspices of the Sesqui-Centennial Exposition. She was met at the station by a military escort and representatives of the City of Philadelphia, the National Air Races and the Stanley Company of America.

She was conducted to the City Hall, where Mayor Freeland Kendrick tendered her the key to the city, after which Mayor and Mrs. Kendrick presided at a luncheon at the Ritz-Carlton in her honor. A short visit to the Sesqui grounds followed, the star being particularly interested in the Jules E. Mastbaum collection of Rodins displayed there.

She arrived at the Model Farms Field at 2:30, where she formally opened the National Air Races. Later in the day she and her husband, the Marquis de la Falais, left for Virginia, where they will spend a few days vacationing before the star returns to New York to commence work on "Eyes of Youth."

NEXT RAY ROCKETT TO START

NEXT Monday will see the Ray Rockett unit at work on "Not Herbert," after painstaking preparations and unusually careful casting. Rockett is leaving no stone unturned to make "Not Herbert" something unusual, and the cast which he has assembled includes Ben Lyon, Pauline Starke, Virginia Lee Corbin, Sam Hardy and Lloyd Whitlock. Howard Higgin will preside at the megaphone.

MISS LAEMMLE ILL

ROSABELLE LAEMMLE, daughter of Carl Laemmle, has been stricken with appendicitis in Laupheim, Germany, but has successfully been operated upon at Frankfort and is doing nicely. This leaves no appendices in the Laemmle family, Mr. Laemmle having been recently operated upon and Carl, Jr., having lost his less than a year ago.

CHARLES ROSHER IN TRANSIT

CHARLES ROSHER, the cameraman selected by F. W. Murnau, German director, for his first Fox Films production, is on the last lap of a 6,000-mile journey to Hollywood. Rosher, who was recalled from Germany especially for the Murnau production, arrived in New York on Labor Day and after only twenty-four hours in the city boarded the Twentieth Century for the West Coast.

WHEN PUBLICITY MEN AND PHRASEOLOGY

WHEN Joseph Jefferson O'Neill left the New York World, which he and Donald Clark, now long in the publicity department of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, had ornamented as two of the brightest of Park Row's cub reporters it was supposedly because they not only wrote well but possessed that other indispensable quality of a good reporter, tact. As the right bower of Will Hays, Joe ever displayed that quality and it made things easier for him and his boss because he was a sort of buffer innumerable times for the latter. But—other times other customs—graduating from the Hays organization to enter the publicity department of F. B. O. the otherwise Chesterfieldian O'Neill sends out his invitations to pre-showings addressed to "Friends and Reviewers." Surely, those who comment on the company's product are fair and invariably complimentary to the corporations for which Joseph seeks—and gets—publicity. Why the invidious distinction? His former little playmate in the Metro organization does not thus consciously, or otherwise, separate the favoring sheep from the critically disapproving goats. And both had the same training and, potentially, the same lustre on Park Row.

RECOGNITION AT LAST

AFTER many years of academic disdain, or toleration at best, motion pictures will come into their own in halls of learning this fall when the New York School for Social Research, 465 West 23rd Street, New York City opens Course No. 22—"The Motion Picture," under the professorship of none other than Terry Ramsaye, author of "The Million and One Nights." The course is described as "an analytical discussion and revelation of many phases of the motion picture which have been held mysteries to the public, including special ethnic and racial aspects of the growth of the industry, international relations and propaganda affairs, the inward significance of the position of Will Hays, the basis of the censorship movement and kindred topics." The school feels that the motion picture has become such an essential part of the social fabric that it warrants this scholarly consideration, and it is hoped that it will aid in forming a new attitude toward the screen.

GOING AFTER EMIL

GEORGE WITTE, secretary to Erich Pommer, sailed this week for Germany to bring back with him Emil Jannings who is now expected to arrive here early in October. Plans for his first American picture have not been announced, but it is considered likely that it will be produced under the supervision of Pommer, who guided his destinies through a considerable number of Ufa pictures.

May Abolish Canadian Ticket Tax

Premier Ferguson of Toronto Assures Exhibitors Levy on Popular Priced Admissions Will Be Stopped When Legislature Meets

EXHIBITORS of Ontario were given the assurance by Premier Howard Ferguson at a general rally of theatre proprietors in Toronto on September 2 under the auspices of the Motion Picture Distributors and Exhibitors of Canada, that the Ontario government would abolish the amusement tax on popular-priced tickets when the Legislature would meet next February. He declared that the Provincial Government could not "do it all at once" in wiping out the whole tax but he was of the opinion that the Government financing would improve to the point where the ticket tax could be abolished entirely while the Conservative Government was still in power.

Motion picture men of Ontario to the number of 100 gathered for the convention, the chairman of which was Col. John A. Cooper of Toronto, president of the Motion Picture Distributors association. In addition to the business sessions at the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, the delegates were entertained at luncheon by the film distributors and to a dinner which was under the joint auspices of Famous Players Canadian Corporation and the Canadian Division of the M.P.T.O. The exhibitors also took in the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, being the guests of the big fair for a grandstand performance.

The resolution denouncing the Ontario amusement tax as a war expedient which had outlived its usefulness and which had become a "nuisance tax" was moved by J. M. Franklin, manager of B. F. Keith's Theatre, Ottawa. The motion declared that the amusement tax was non-democratic and

Plan Referendum on Sunday Law in Baltimore

ANOTHER fight over having motion pictures shown on Sunday in Baltimore will come up before the Maryland State Legislature when it convenes again, if Ambrose J. Kennedy, Democratic candidate for the nomination for the State Senate in the Second District is elected.

Mr. Kennedy has, as part of his platform, plans to have an act introduced in the Legislature authorizing a referendum in Baltimore on the question, and putting it on the ballot for the elections in Baltimore next spring.

He says he is in favor of Sunday movies and is going to fight to the last ditch if elected, to give the people in Baltimore the right to decide for themselves whether they want Sunday movies or not.

During the present City Administration Mr. Kennedy has been a City Councilman and formerly was a member of the old City Council which was done away with.

It was pointed out that Great Britain, the United States, Australia and New Zealand had all abolished the ticket tax on low-priced theatre admissions. This was the theme of the plea which was placed before Premier Ferguson and Hon. W. H. Preece, K. C., Provincial treasurer, later in the day at the Ontario Parliament buildings.

The speakers before the Premier included Mayor Arthur Bugg of Midland, owner of the Model Theatre, Midland, J. M. Franklin of Ottawa, Harry Nathanson of Toronto, and several members of the Ontario Legislature.

At the convention, the exhibitors endorsed a recommendation by Jack Arthur, director of presentations for Famous Players Canadian Corp., Toronto, that an amendment to the Canadian Copyright Act of 1921 be sought to prevent any outside society or corporation or its Canadian representatives from collecting a royalty or tax on all Canadian theatres, hotels, broadcasting stations, bands and exhibitions using British or foreign copyrighted music. Mr. Arthur urged that English and French music copyrighted since 1912 be taken out of the libraries of theatre owners and not used.

Col. Cooper announced that the Canadian Authors Association had reconsidered its attitude of the year before and was now solidly in support of the theatre owners. He said that the action contemplated by British and foreign music publishers in regard to the collection of a royalty might cost the theatres of Canada a million dollars in the next ten years.

Arthur Cohen, vice-president of the Famous Players Canadian Corporation, Toronto, declared that the music of moving picture theatres was something thrown in and that the theatres could do without it if necessary. Mr. Cohen's resolution carried unanimously.

F. & R.-Saxe Deal is Again Rumored

Conferences Admitted in Minneapolis and Milwaukee; World Chain Up 118 Houses; F. & R.-United Artists House Also Hinted

BY the carefully guarded responses of representatives of both companies it becomes quite clear that there is a deal on between Finkelstein & Ruben's Northwest Theatres, Inc., and Saxe Amusement Enterprises.

The report has been current in Minneapolis all week that the deal had gone through.

It is admitted both in Minneapolis and Milwaukee that there have been conferences, but neither organization seemed prepared to make any announcement.

The formation of one of the largest chains of theatres in the country would be the result of a merger for Northwest Theatres, Inc., controls many theatres in Minnesota and the Dakotas and Saxe enterprises which formerly dominated Minneapolis has long conducted a large string in Wisconsin.

I. H. Ruben is quoted as saying that negotiations are on and have been on for a long time, but he says they are no nearer completion than they were a year ago.

From Thomas Saxe, Milwaukee, comes

Sunday Movies in Colorado Springs Continue

TWO weeks ago four theatres in Colorado Springs opened on Sunday without charging admission but accepting contributions against the law which forbids "amusements for pay" on the Sabbath. They were brought to Court and fined $200.00 and costs and an appeal to the County Court was taken.

The theatres again opened last Sunday but not even contributions were accepted thereby doing away with any technical violation of the law.

the statement that he cannot say anything about the conferences with William Hamm and Mr. Finkelstein.

The result would be a chain of at least 118 houses, many of them not only big but elaborate, key-city first-run theatres.

Saxe Amusement Enterprises formerly owned the First National franchise for Minneapolis now in the hands of the Finkelstein & Ruben interests.

It was learned that a conference was held by John and Thomas Saxe and Oscar Braehman, representing the Saxe Co.; M. L. Finkelstein of Finkelstein & Ruben, who control the Northwest Theatre Co.; Fred Hamm, millionaire Minneapolis brewer, who is said to have more than $8,000,000 invested in theatrical enterprises, and Robert Lieber, New York, representing First National pictures.

United Artists is said to be sounding out Finkelstein & Ruben on a proposal for the biggest theatre in Minnesota to be built by the two in Minneapolis on the same plan as that of the distributor and the Stanley circuit in Philadelphia. No announcement has been forthcoming so far as to the F. & R. attitude. Joseph M. Schenck could not be reached for a statement in New York City.

Interesting Sidelights on "Red" Grange

How Famous Football Star Became Movie Celebrity Overnight Told In First-Hand Story

By PAUL THOMPSON

Ex-Sporting Editor The New York Evening Sun

PROBABLY there is no person in or out of moving pictures as much in the public eye today as Harold "Red" Grange, the famous University of Illinois football player. It is not only because of his career in college but because he is more responsible than any one man or group of men for professional football being on the footing it is today in this country. Were this not enough, the great success achieved by Grange on his first venture into moving pictures has aroused the country in regard to the personal side of this widely exploited young man. The fact that his initial picture was so good and his own acting so satisfying that two more have been contracted for, only one of these in his favorite role of gridiron hero, makes him of especial interest to not only picture fans but to the general public.

Personally I have always had a curiosity in regard to Grange ever since his name commenced to dominate the sporting pages, long before C. C. Pyle dreamed, or least breathed to the public his dream, of capitalizing "Red's" reputation in professional football. Then when Shallenberger saw the moving picture possibilities in the widely publicized young iceman, possibilities realized through his arrangement with Joseph P. Kennedy, that excellent showman of the Film Booking Offices, this curiosity became even greater. Moreover with all the reams of matter written and published about the football star with the Mercury-winged feet I had never encountered a story or article that gave me any real idea of the individual. My sought-for opportunity came when with his invasion of the moving picture world and the inevitable "personal appearance" with the picture in which he is starred "One Minute to Play" from the fragmentary moments in which he came before the curtain at the Colony Theatre on Broadway one gathered at least this: Here was a typical young American, clean cut, physically as well as mentally and morally, who had succeeded in the most difficult of tasks, particularly at his age, accepting the plaudits of the crowd at their real worth. Realizing that he was benefiting by the reputation which he had founded but which the newspapers of the country had really made, and because of that not taking himself or his position on a pedestal too seriously. His curtain speeches, obviously not studied or rehearsed but entirely extemporaneous and no two alike, predisposed one in his favor.

"Red" Has No Illusions

Personal contact but confirmed the impression gained in the theatre. He is a boy who has enjoyed amazing success financially and socially and at an age where such success, merited or not, would turn the head of the average American youth college bred or not. He still cannot entirely grasp it all and credits to the men with whom he has been associated rather than to himself, the results achieved. He realizes also that "uneasy lies the head"

Exhibitors: Here's a New Trade Paper Service

WITH a view to helping exhibitors furnish their newspapers live copy on pictures, MOTION PICTURE NEWS is presenting a series of personality and other types of stories. Here is the first—and it is about "Red" Grange and his initial picture, "One Minute to Play."

This story is written by a member of the NEWS staff. It is designed to be out of the beaten path and contains stuff that, we believe, newspapers will print in whole or in part. Exhibitors are invited to use it in connection with the exploitation of the picture. Go to your newspaper, ahead of your showing of "One Minute to Play," with a copy of this story.

Proofs are being sent to representative newspapers throughout the country and they are free to use it, the only condition being that proper credit be given MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

Additional copies of this article will be gladly furnished to exhibitors or newspapers upon request.

Other articles in the series will be announced later.

and that once a man has been raised above the level of his fellow-men there exists the perfectly human impulse to discover the clay feet of their idol and because of this defect, real or imagined, to dethrone the celebrity. Of no people on earth is it more true than of the American public that for choral singing of that dirge or anthem "The King Is Dead, Long Live the (New) King" you will find closer harmony and a better and greater glee in the land between the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans and the Canadian and Mexican borders than any where else on this footstool we call the earth.

At the Hotel Astor Harold—rechristened by his associates at the University of Illinois "Red" with no seeming justification because his hair is decidedly black with no suspicion of a Titian tint or being hennaed—was giving a mighty good imitation of a soubrette. The engagement made the afternoon before at the theatre was for eleven o'clock the following morning. He was not yet up despite the fact that it was nearer twelve than eleven. Six personal appearances at the theatre, one at midnight not in the schedule, had somewhat fatigued the whilom and sporadic iceman of Wheaton. However the soubrette imitation was limited to the late rising hour for he did not insist upon breakfast being served in bed by a colored maid but in a comparatively few moments (in which time no woman living could have gotten ready for inspection) the football-moving picture star put in appearance coatless, tieless and with his hair presumably gone over with his fingers in the most perfunctory manner. That will give some slight inkling of the realness of the youngster, and his utter lack of swank, that most eloquent word which we have borrowed from our English cousins.

Grange's history, as far as the greater public is concerned, dates back to Urbana, Ill., in November, 1925. It was after the game with Ohio State that his announced intention of capitalizing his football fame in a professional way was made. Prior to that his skill and ability were so great that of course he was best known to that limited circle that followed the football fortunes of the university and college teams of the Big Ten Conference—that close corporation of the Middle West,—and so outstanding was his ability that sporting editors all over the country had made his name known to their readers because of his remarkable skill in getting down the field no matter what the underfoot conditions might be. His fame became more than sectional when he played with his college mates on the muddy field at Philadelphia against the University of Pennsylvania. But his establishing the almost unheard of precedent of leaving college before he had completed his four years and endeavoring to capitalize his fame with the fans of the country was what brought front page stories. Other men had done it but none of the calibre of Grange. Coaches of other teams after graduation, yes, that was alright, but this heresy of making money out of a college reputation by exploiting the thing that had brought fame, that was unforgivable from the viewpoint of all or most college men, players, deans, presidents or freshmen book-worms.

Still Wants His Diploma

"Red" was not ashamed then nor is he now of his decision. The president of Illinois, the dean, Coach "Bob" Zuppke, all tried to dissuade him but he was not to be swerved from his course. If the opportunity occurs in the next few years the ungraduated senior plans to return to complete the one semester necessary to get a diploma. Even this early in life he realizes that in many ways that the sheepskin is not so all important as many think it is. Probably he figures it will have to be framed in an expensive wood for him to be able to realize anything on it should the at-present unnecessary expedient be employed by hypotheating this with a more-or-less benevolent avuncular relative with Three Golden Balls on his coat of arms. Grange would like to be a real graduate of the University of Illinois and some day will be. In the meantime he is following the advice of the Latin writer who said "Carpe Diem"—translated into perfectly good Broadway-ese, "Get it while the getting is good." And he is.

Harold Grange's intensive training, so called, for his football career was that of practically every American school boy. He learned to play the game at the Wheaton High School and had the polishing off part done by Zuppke at the University of Illinois. Incidentally he has a younger brother named Garland who, "Red" thinks, will more than follow in his footsteps or whatever those marks are that denote his cyclonic dashes down a football field. He also goes to the University of Illinois and the Grange tradition should be carried on there for the next three years unless he also is kidnapped by Charles C. Pyle. He like "Red" is a backfield player and naturally not only Zuppke's eyes, the collective optics of the Illinois University, but the entire country will be focussed on Garland to discover if that Wheaton family is giving two gridiron celebrities to the world.

For the Grange irruption into the picture world he had no such course of training or preparation as for his entering the football arena of the college or professional brand. He was catapulted into Hollywood with Messrs. Shallenberger, Pyle and Kennedy, the latter head of F.B.O., producers of the picture, supplying the motive power and checks signed on the dotted line as the incentive. He had never been guilty even as so many college men or school boys have, of playing parts in undergraduate dramatic entertainments. He entered the movies "cold." He was seared stiff by his own confession. Sam Wood, his director, did much to remove this fear by telling him to be natural, a most difficult thing anyone will confess, when facing a battalion of cameras and having your every move carefully scrutinized and criticized by a group of thirty or forty professional directors, actors, camera men, etc., on and off stage.

How the Picture Was Made

First Grange was initiated into the art of make-up by Sam Wood. Then he was posed before the camera doing inconsequential ordinary things such as walking and talking to someone else, etc. These tests proved one invaluable thing; he was lacking in self-consciousness and was at all times perfectly natural. This was borne out in the taking of the actual picture "One Minute to Play." It is so much in evidence that it seems almost impossible to believe that this marks "Red's" debut in the films. Music on the first day which it was thought might help him to find the right tempo was discarded. The orchestral players were shifted to some other lot to a more temperamental star.

"After the first two days," as the football and now new movie luminary explained it, "I went out and did what I wanted to do but under Sam's direction, of course. I felt as though I had been in pictures for a long time."

"If the picture goes over, and people like it, it is because I am I and not acting in one sense of the word but being natural. The best tribute that has been paid to me is in my being asked to do two other pictures and one of them with no football

Valentino Body Interred at Hollywood Cemetery

FUNERAL services were held in Hollywood on Tuesday of this week for Rudolph Valentino from the Church of the Good Shepherd. Interment was at Hollywood Cemetery. Active pallbearers were: Charles Chaplin, John Considine, Jr., Mario Carillo, Norman Kerry, George Fitzmaurice, Emmet Flynn, Count Gradenigo and Tullio Carminati.

Honorary pallbearers included Cecil B. De Mille, Douglas Fairbanks, Samuel Goldwyn, Jesse L. Lasky, William S. Hart, Mack Sennett, Louis B. Mayer, Hal E. Roach, Manuel Reach, Douglas Gerard, James Cruze, Marshall Neilan, Charles M. Christie, Harold Lloyd, Harry Langdon, Robert Vignola, Sid Grauman, M. C. Levee, John McCormick, Henry McCrae, Reginald Barker, Col. William M. Selig, Charles F. Eyton, Eric von Stroheim, Winfield R. Sheehan, James R. Quirk, George B. Van Cleve, Sol Wintzel and P. A. Powers.

sequence whatsoever, just a regular dramatic plot with no head guards, cleated shoes, sweaters or mystic "77" numbers on the back. That is a real tribute and of course, I am mighty glad.

"Some newspaper man quoted me as not liking the people of Hollywood; that is absurd and as far from the truth as can possibly be. They were all bully and treated me in the finest sort of manner. I liked them and I feel that they did me. It was strenuous work, almost more so than football, because you were working practically all the time. There was little time for playing around. I think I got to the dances at Cocoanut Grove just twice. Acting before the Kleig lights is too arduous to leave you physically or mentally fit for any protracted dancing or other amusements."

Ice Wagon Not Publicity

Returning to the ice and coal wagon of Wheaton, which has been more publicized than almost any common carrier in history unless we except the famous one-horse shay of song and story, is not, according to the man who should know, based on any publicity-seeking. This twenty-three-year-old football star—he celebrated that birthday last June—knows the necessity for keeping in physical trim. He has found nothing that will keep him as fit as handling ice (evidently Wheaton measure is greater than that of New York and environs) and shoveling coal. He has a man on the coal wagon with him who keeps him busy handling his, the receiving end, and manipulating the shovel. His first day back in Wheaton this summer "Red" lost ten pounds. All this taking the kinks out of his system is to be fit for the coming football season and not for the movies. His one hundred and seventy-five habitual pounds are so well placed and distributed that the casual observer would never guess that his tweed suit was covering that amount of weight. He looks and of course is as physically fit as a man can be.

"Mash notes from moving-picture fans or fair admirers of my football playing? Yes, of course, lots of them, how many I do not know for I make it a point not to see them or answer them. They write to me as they would to any person prominent for the moment and I value them accordingly. If answers are written, they are composed and signed by a secretary. But kids' letters asking for a picture or some word, yes these I delight to receive and answer; it is the least I can do because after all they for the most part love the game which I do and which has brought me the temporary fame and the, I hope, not so temporal money.

"It is a darned good game and the more youngsters who learn to play it the better for them, their schools and colleges, and for the country."

"Perhaps some of them will grow up to play in the line or backfield at Illinois and on the pro teams which 'Big Bill' Edwards is representing before the American public. I might find a few of them, if I last long enough, opening up holes for me to get through an opposing line or boxing tackles to make possible end runs or forward passes. Who can tell?"

At breakfast in the suite at the Astor, interrupted by various telephone calls and physical visitations by reporters et al, Grange showed some of the football and movie aggressiveness that has brought him fame and dollars. He was hungrier evidently than his entrepreneur, Charles C. Pyle, was, for finishing his own grapefruit and bacon and eggs he appropriated part of the breakfast of his manager and side-partner. The latter acquiesced I thought rather gracefully, feeling that this good-looking, healthy protégé of his should not be starved, if he was to play the kind of football this fall expected of him. His, Pyle's, solicitude for the welfare of Grange is not entirely unaltruistic. This he proved a bit later when "Red" and Sam Woods were perched in the window watching that plucky but unsuccessful channel aspirant, Clara Belle Barrett, motoring down Times Square.

"Be careful, Red," he shouted, ignoring Woods' equal danger, "don't lean out too far and lose your balance; you know you haven't endorsed that 'steen million dollar insurance policy over to me yet."

Woods' was the consoling note. "Never mind, young fellow, if you and I should fall and you were responsible, my wife would probably erect a monument to you at Hollywood or elsewhere for being the cause of the demise." Just a bit far fetched when matched up with the director's enthusiasm for this self-same wife and the children born to him by her and his impatience to be on his way back to them on the Pacific coast.

What the future may hold in store for Harold "Red" Grange in the movies only the gods who preside over the destinies of the silver screen and its satellites can tell, but surely no more auspicious beginning could be asked for. His first day's receipts were greater than Harold Lloyd's in that earlier football play, "The Freshman," and he has been re-engaged, as said before, for two more pictures, on his acting ability, and not football prestige, the only excuse for this first picture.

Grange's mother has been dead ever since he was five so his memory of her is rather dim and hazy, but I know that he would give a great deal were she alive to share the honors which have been showered on her son. His father and brother, Garland, naturally are not exactly ashamed of being relatives of the football meteor. To them also has come the reflected glory of his moving picture success.

Fox Theatres in Twenty-five Cities

Financing Plans Completed for $8,000,000 House in Brooklyn; Horwitz Expanding Circuit in Texas; Other Deals Reported

CHIEF among the theatre deals reported for the week is the announcement from the Fox Film Corporation of its intention to erect or acquire a theatre for presentation purposes in twenty-five cities throughout the United States. The first of the chain, a twelve-story office and theatre building, is to be built at the junction of Flatbush Avenue, Nevins and Livingston streets, Brooklyn, at a total cost of eight million dollars. Removal of the buildings at present on the site is to begin at once. The house is to seat forty-five hundred.

S. W. Straus & Co. have underwritten an issue of $6,000,000, first mortgage fee 6½ per cent, fifteen year, sinking fund gold bonds of the owning corporation, headed by William Fox. The bonds are secured by the land, which has a frontage of 656 feet along Flatbush Avenue, Nevins and Livingston streets, and the twelve-story theatre, store and office building project, which has been leased to the Fox Theatres Corporation for 30 years.

The grand lobby will be 55 feet high and magnificently furnished. One of the features of the seating arrangement will be an intermediate balcony of reserved loges, with a capacity of 800 persons. There will be a specially designed pipe organ and the house will be artificially cooled in summer by a refrigerating plant having a capacity of 500 tons.

In a transaction involving $500,000, it is announced, the Stanley Company of America, has obtained control of the Hamilton and Capitol theatres, in Lancaster, Pa., from Mr. and Mrs. George M. Krupa, who for a number of years have operated photography houses in that city.

The deal consists of the outright sale of the Capitol, obtaining a thirty-year lease on the Hamilton, and an option on the Pennsylvania Hotel. The transaction was negotiated by Mr. and Mrs. Krupa, owners of the two theatres, and Solis Cohen, representing the real estate department of Mastbaum Brothers, of Philadelphia, owners of the Stanley Company.

The new interests will assume control on October 18. Already the Stanley Company controlled one theatre in Lancaster, The Grand.

Will Horwitz announces that he has acquired the Old Mill and the Capitol theatres, located in Dallas, Tex. Both theatres were under the management of the Texas Amusement Company. The Capitol, until several months ago, was operated by the Universal Film Corporation. Horwitz, aside from his Dallas holdings, owns the Texan, Isis, Liberty, Iris and Ritz theatres there. He has added five theatres to his original string, Texan and Iris, in the past three months. Both Dallas theatres are first run houses and will be under the management of Al Lever, former manager of the Isis and Liberty theatres.

Advices from Kankakee, Ill., are that a deal has been completed whereby the Great States Theatres, Inc., and the Victoria Amusement Company take over the Majestic, Rialto and La Petite theatres, in Kankakee and the Lyric in Streator, Ill. The Great States Company is also building a new $750,000 theatre in Kankakee.

Deadlock in Chicago Musicians' Strike

Three Thousand Orchestra Members Walk Out—Theatres Operate Without Music

(Special Dispatch to Motion Picture News)

Chicago, Sept. 8.

WITH three thousand theatre musicians out on strike since Labor Day and the owners of three hundred Chicago theatres, which employ musicians, solidly behind the officials of the Exhibitors' Association of Chicago, the situation was deadlocked Wednesday and the only hope for settlement was the expected arrival in Chicago of John C. Gamble, an official of the International Musicians Union who was to go into conference with President Jimmy Petrillo, of the local, after which they were to meet with Judge Barrett and Business Manager Jack Miller, of the Exhibitors' Association.

In the meantime the theatres were operating without music and reports from all parts of the city were that attendance was normal and patrons seemed to enjoy the novelty. On the other hand, musicians were losing approximately $300,000 in wages weekly.

A feature of this controversy of decided interest to all familiar with Chicago conditions, was the unanimity of the exhibitors in supporting the action of their officials. The powerful circuits, such as Balaban & Katz, Lubliner & Trinz, Ascher Brothers, Gumbiner Brothers, stood shoulder to shoulder with the small exhibitor in their determination to win.

The strike was called after several conferences between the exhibitors' committee, headed by Jack Miller and including Jack Cooney, Louis Newhafer, John Balaban, Louis Marks, Andrew Karzas, Robert Gumbiner, I. Spitz, Emil Stern, Earle Johnson, V. T. Lynch, Julius Goodman, Morton Singer, Norman Fields, A. Saperstein, James Coston and Ludwig Siegel; and the committee from the Musicians' Union, headed by Jimmy Petrillo.

Offers of arbitration on the part of the Exhibitors' Association had been refused, as well as any concession on the part of the musicians. It is understood that the committees were not far apart on the wage demands, which were for an increase of $4.50 a week and $4.00 for rehearsals instead of $2.00, but the break came over the demand of the union that nineteen smaller theatres, which could not afford to employ orchestras, continue to use the present number of musicians. These theatres, it was pointed out, were entitled to relief under the arbitration clause of the contract in effect since September, 1925, which has another year to run, but which the executives of the union, it was said, refused to carry out and demanded that the employment of musicians be continued during 1926-27.

The only break in the ranks of the exhibitors was that of Aaron Jones, who signed up for the Rialto Theatre. He was compelled to do this through facing a heavy financial loss as lessee of the Woods Theatre, which was playing a musical comedy, the musicians threatening to call out the Woods orchestra unless Mr. Jones signed for the Rialto.

A general strike of musicians, stage hands and operators in San Francisco was settled early this week following an all-night conference in which telephone conferences with New York were held.

The settlement was a compromise. The exhibitors recognized the principle of the six-day week, six-hour working day and met half of the demands for wage increases. The strike was in progress five days.

Monta Bell

BELL TO DIRECT CIRCUS FILM; Preparing for Paramount Production

MONTA BELL has signed with Paramount to direct its special production of circus life, "The Greatest Show on Earth," which will feature the colorful personality of P. T. Barnum. He is now on his way to New York with Benjamin Glazer, scenarist, where he will be joined by Monte Katterjohn who conceived the idea of the Barnum picture. The trio will work together in preparing the story for the screen. They plan to visit the haunts of Barnum and interview old circus people and other friends of the old showman. Bell intends going to Europe to arrange for the use of some specially trained animals and also will visit Buckingham Palace in London in accordance with arrangements made with Lord Astor. Bell wants a view of the room where Tom Thumb, probably the best known midget, was introduced to Queen Elizabeth.

Most of the filming will be done in Hollywood but scenes will be taken in Connecticut and Indiana.

Advisory Committee for Iowa Exhib. Troubles

The Iowa Theatre Owners Association has appointed a committee to act as advisory to exhibitors whose cases come up before the Des Moines Film Board of Trade. The committee meets the day before the Film Board does and in many cases is able to settle the difficulty without the case coming before the Board.

In a letter to the exhibitors the association states:

"This advisory committee is going to make it their business to see that cases are decided on merit and not technicalities. We would advise the exhibitor to be present when his case is up before the arbitration board. But the fact that he is not there to represent himself will not mean that he is to get an adverse decision. This committee, representing the association, will act as attorney for the theatre."

E. P. Smith is editor of a bulletin put out by the association which records the interesting things brought into discussion at the monthly Round Table meetings held for the exhibitors of the state.

New York Corporations Receive Charters

The past week brought the incorporation of the following motion picture companies in New York State, the name of the company, the incorporators and the amount of capitalization, where such is specified in the papers filed, being given: H. A. B. Theatre Corporation, with Simon Gross, Paul Siegel, Jacques J. Benjamin, New York City; Laurence Schwab and Frank Mandel, Inc., with Laurence L. Cassidy, Myrtle M. Marvin and Harold F. Garrahan, New York City; Cinephonetic Company of the Dominion Republic and Haiti, Inc., with Felix A. Dalmás, Ernesto Martin, Gumersindo Diaz, New York City.

European-Phoenix Features Corporation, with Harry B. Davis, William M. Stevens, Raymond Gorman, New York City; Winthrop Amusement Corporation, $100,000, Elsa Alper, Matilda Baskind, Louis Rubin, Brooklyn; Syracuse Aeme Theatre, Inc., Syracuse, $50,000, August F. Robert J., and William J. Metzger, Syracuse; Premier Pictures Corporation, $5,000, Jules K. Chapman, Joseph Joel, Frank Wyckoff, New York City; State Film Delivery, Inc., $5,000, Sigmund Wiltsehek, Morris Lane, New York City; Gertrude Ranbach, Brooklyn; Oriental Nite, Inc., $2,000, Hadji Tahar, Rose Gilmore, Theodore Kushell, New York City.

Schine Bros. Get Two More Houses in Ogdensburg

The Schine brothers are adding to their holdings in northern New York, and have taken over the Strand and Star theatres in Ogdensburg and the Strand in Malone, all of which have been run by Bob Landry. The village board in Lowville, by a vote of 5 to 1, refused last week to lease the village theatre to the Schines.

Audrey Ferris Added to Educational Beauty Cast

Audrey Ferris, who has been dancing at the Ambassador Hotel, Los Angeles, has been signed by Educational for its beauty contingent. She will make her debut in a Cameo comedy with George Davis and "Toy" Gallagher.

In and Out of Town

MAX ALEXANDER, technical manager for the Stern Film Corporation, makers of Stern Bros. comedies, arrived in New York this week from a vacation spent in Europe and left immediately for Hollywood.

BUDD ROGERS, vice-president of Lumas and Gotham, left this week for his second transcontinental trip in the interest of Gotham and William Fairbanks productions.

"Free Amusement Parlors" Stopped in Winnipeg

The abolishment of the "free amusement parlors" has been effected in Winnipeg, Manitoba, after an agitation of many years by local exhibitors through the decision of the Civic Committee on Health adopting a resolution absolutely prohibiting the operation of these amusement shops. A previous by-law prohibiting the free amusement parlors, adopted some time ago, failed to operate because a police magistrate found no satisfactory definition of an "amusement parlor" in the civic legislation. This has since been remedied.

Another important piece of legislation at Winnipeg, which was also adopted, prohibits the use of temporary amusement buildings in parks in summer. This will prevent carnivals from operating in park properties in Winnipeg, but they will still be able to make use of private grounds. Carnivals in public parks had also become a nuisance locally.

Moving Pictures Are Censored in Peru

A permit from the Board of Censors of Cinematograph Films, created by an official decree of June 11, 1926, is required for all films shown in Peru, according to advices to the Department of Commerce from Commercial Attache L. W. James, Lima. A charge of five soles is made for each film reviewed by the Board and fines for infringement of the regulations are collected.

United Artists and Stanley Interests to Build 5,000-Seat House in Philadelphia

UNITED ARTISTS THEATRE CIRCUIT and the Stanley Company of America plan the building of a 5,000 seat theatre in Philadelphia as a result of negotiations just concluded between Joseph M. Schenck and Jules E. Mastbaum. This will be the only house of the twenty planned by the film company of which it will not have complete control, although it will be used exclusively for the showing of United Artists pictures.

The site for the house has not yet been determined. The house is to be erected as quickly as possible with Mastbaum handling building details.

John A. Guerra, assistant to Gustav Mohme, general manager of United Artists office in Peru, has arrived at the United Artists home office in accordance with Hiram Abrams "one man convention" custom. Senor Guerra brought with him and is submitting to Mr. Schenck plans for construction in Peru of a number of modern theatres which would be built in conjunction with local interests.

United Artists Chooses English Film

THE House of Marney," an English production now being produced under direction of Cecil M. Hepworth, has been chosen by United Artists through its London Company, Allied Artists Corporation, as the finest English possibility and of quality sufficiently high to warrant release by United Artists.

Arrangements have been made with Archibald Nettefold of England by United Artists to distribute the film in all foreign exchanges associated with the company, and negotiations are now being carried on with a view to releasing the picture in the United States.

New York's Famous "69th" in "Private Izzy Murphy"

The famous Sixty-ninth regiment of New York will be seen in the Warner Bros. production "Private Izzy Murphy," in which George Jessel is starred. This Irish regiment, famed since the Civil War, Spanish-American and the late World War, is seen in its home-coming from the late unpleasantness. Also in this sequence is seen Al Smith, Governor of New York, ex-Mayor Hylan, Mayor Jimmy Walker and William Randolph Hearst.

The picture will be released October 18.

Warner Bros. Name Two New Exchange Managers

Sam. E. Morris, general manager of distribution of Warner Bros. this week announced two changes in the executive staff of his field forces.

Warners' 6XBR to Lead Parade

Portable Station Wins Honor Place in Radio World's Fair in New York

STATION 6XBR, Warner Bros. portable broadcasting station, just arrived in New York after a trancontinental trip, has been selected to head the gigantic parade which will usher in the Radio World's Fair, to be held in New Madison Square Garden, New York City, starting September 13 and continuing for one week.

Experts and merchandisers from all over the world are expected to attend the fair and the various numbers on the program will be broadcast by twenty stations; notable artists, men and women in politics, and representatives of the theatre and business life will appear before the microphone.

6XBR will follow immediately behind a police motorcycle escort that will head the parade and at City Hall Mayor Walker will review the procession and greet visiting manufacturers and guests of honor.

A program will be broadcast by the 6XBR and re-transmitted by WFBH, the Hotel Majestic station. During the entire week of the fair the 6XBR will be on exhibition outside of New Madison Square Garden. The station will leave those headquarters only to broadcast programs in Brooklyn and the Bronx. On Thursday, September 16, the 6XBR will be officially received in Brooklyn by Borough President Joseph A. Guider, and a program will be broadcast under the auspices of the Brooklyn Standard Union. On September 21, a similar ceremony will take place in the Bronx under the auspices of the Bronx Home News.

Following its stay in New York the 6XBR will visit many of the cities in the east and south before continuing on its tour of the world.

Fox to Produce Three in East

"Music Master," "The Auctioneer" and "Bertha" Ready for Filming Shortly

WITHIN the next few weeks three Fox producing units will be working at the New York studio filming Broadway plays into Fox pictures. Allan Dwan will direct "The Music Master," Alfred E. Green will handle the megaphone on "The Auctioneer," two Belasco plays and Irving Cummings will make "Bertha, the Sewing Machine Girl," an Al Woods melodrama.

Dwan is improving his time learning all about symphony orchestras in order to bring to the screen the complete life of the "Music Master." George Sidney will play the title role in "The Auctioneer," Green's first directorial assignment for Fox. The picture will be a modernized version of the play by Charles Klein and Leo Arthur. The locale will be the Bronx and Riverside Drive.

Paul Nicholson has been chosen for the supporting cast surrounding Madge Bellamy in "Bertha, the Sewing Machine Girl." Director Cummings is at present in New York preparing for the filming of exteriors.

James Dent, Eastern studio manager, is mapping out his plans to take care of the busy filming schedule laid out for the studio on Tenth Avenue.

Steerage Immigrants See Films

Service Rendered by M. P. P. & D. Co. operating with New York Film Board

PATRIOTIC and historical motion pictures are to be shown in the steerage of the trans-Atlantic steamships bringing immigrants to this country, Carl E. Milliken, secretary of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, told members of the International Lyceum and Chautauqua Association in Philadelphia Monday.

Plans have already been perfected for first showings on the United States lines at an early date and additional lines will be provided with films as soon as practical arrangement can be made for their exhibition, Mr. Milliken said.

"The films will be furnished free of charge to those lines using the service and they will be specially selected pictures which will give to these future citizens their first lessons in American citizenship," Mr. Milliken said:

"The service," said Mr. Milliken, "will be rendered by the members of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America with the co-operation of the New York Film Board of Trade."

Exteriors for the First National production "The Blonde Saint" are being shot at Emerald Bay not far from Laguna, Calif. Svend Gade is directing a cast headed by Lewis Stone and Doris Kenyon. Two weeks will be consumed in filming these exteriors and the company will then return to the studio at Burbank.

Montana Exhib. Charged With "Bicycling"

The Montana Film Board of Trade, through Harry Meyer, attorney and secretary, filed charges of "bicycling" this week against Carl and Marcus Anderson and R. D. McDaniels, exhibitors who control the Liberty and Orpheum theatres, Kailispell, Mont.

The charges, filed directly by Assistant United States Attorney Francis Silver in Helena specify that the defendants rented six different films from producers and sublet them for showing at Big Fork, this year.

Although the practice of "bicycling," sub-renting of a picture by an exhibitor without contract or written authority from the owners, has existed for many years, this is probably the first time that an exhibitor has been brought to a Federal Court for alleged violation of the copyright law.

"Vagabond Lover" Barrymore Film for U. A.

P. D. C. Production Units Busy

Great Interest in De Mille Picture;
Filming of Many Features Under Way

BOTH the Metropolitan and De Mille studios are working at top speed on the productions scheduled for release through Producers' Distributing Corporation. Perhaps the greatest intensity is evidenced at the De Mille plant where filming of "The King of Kings" is under way under the personal direction of Cecil B. De Mille.

Dr. George Reid Andrews, chairman of the Film and Drama Committee of the Federated Churches in America, and Bruce Barton, author of "The Man Nobody Knows," are acting in an advisory capacity on the De Mille spectacle. Latest additions to the cast include Theodore Kosloff, Alan Brooks, Lionel Belmore, Bryant Washburn, Josephine Norman and Baby Muriel McCormack.

Paul Sloane has completed direction of "Corporal Kate" and is now editing and cutting the film. James Horn is directing Rod La Rocque in "The Cruise of the Jasper B," an adaptation of the Don Marquis story. Mildred Harris appears opposite La Rocque.

"The Yankee Clipper" company, headed by Director Rupert Julian, have returned from a cruise, during which the sea scenes were filmed of the original story by Denison Clift, William Boyd and Elinor Faure are featured. Alan Hale and Frank Condon are at work on the treatment of "Rubber Tires."

Leatrice Joy starts very soon on "Nobody's Widow," an adaptation of the Avery Hopwood farce. Clara Beranger is making the adaptation and William De Mille will direct. The cast is not yet selected.

Jetta Goudal's new starring picture, "A Fighting Love," due to go into production shortly, will mark the American debut of the celebrated Swedish director, Nils Olaf Chrisander. Victor Varconi will be the leading man in this picture. The story is by Rosita Forbes, adapted by Beulah Marie Dix, and the supervisor will be Bertram Millhauser.

At the Metropolitan studios, Director George B. Seitz is shooting the final scenes of "Pals in Paradise," Will Ritchey's screen version of the Peter B. Kyne story of a modern gold rush. In the cast are John Bowers, Marguerite de la Motte, Rudolph Schildkraut, May Robson and Alan Brooks.

Marie Prevost, after a few days' rest upon the completion of "For Wives Only," which Victor Heerman directed, has started work on "Man Bait," an original by Norman Houston. Donald Crisp is directing, and the cast includes, in addition to Miss Prevost, Edmund Burns, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Eddie Gribbon, Betty Francisco and Louis Natheaux.

Priscilla Dean's next starring picture will be "Jewels of Desire," from an original story by Agnes Parsons. Paul Powell will direct and Arnold Gray will be the leading man.

Director Scott Sidney is preparing "No Control," one of the yarns Frank Condon wrote. The featured players will be Harrison Ford and Phyllis Haver.

G. D. Gould News Director on Coast for Asso. Exhib.

George D. Gould, former newspaperman and managing editor of MOTION PICTURE NEWS has been appointed news director for West Coast productions of Associated Exhibitors by David O. Selznick.

The news of the various independent units releasing through Associated will be centralized under Mr. Gould's direction. He will handle the news of Lester F. Scott Productions, Van Pelt, and the Bill Cody series produced by Myron Selznick; the "Confession" series, and a group of sea stories to be made by Harry Revier.

Asso. Ex. Gets London Stories

Lefty Flynn Starred, and Marjorie Daw Featured in Series of Four

ALBERT I. SMITH PRODUCTIONS have secured the rights to Jack London's novels and a series of four sea stories will be produced from these stories for release on the Associated Exhibitors program for 1926-27.

Lefty Flynn has been signed to play the leading male role in this series and Marjorie Daw will appear in the chief feminine role. Harry Revier will direct and the entire filming will be under the personal supervision of David O. Selznick.

Production plans are now being arranged and the company will leave for the heart of the Pacific Ocean in a large schooner, where storm sequences will be filmed. Action will be the keynote of the series, say the producers.

In addition to the leading actors, each picture will be cast with popular players. Treatments of several of London's stories are now under way and the first title will be made known shortly.

Columbia Lists Two for Sept.

"False Alarm" and "Sweet Rosie O'Grady" Scheduled for Release

"THE FALSE ALARM" and "Sweet Rosie O'Grady," two productions just finished by Columbia Pictures, are scheduled for release during September. The first, as the title implies, is a story of fire-fighting but, it is said by Columbia officials, has a stronger romantic element than most stories of this type.

Ralph Lewis, Mary Carr and Dorothy Revier are featured and the supporting cast includes Johnnie Harron, George O'Hara, Maurice Costello, Priscilla Bonner, Arthur Hoyt, Lillian Leighton and William Franey. Leah Baird wrote the story and Frank O'Connor directed.

The second release is a film version of the old song written by Maude Nugent. Shirley Mason is starred and Cullen Landis has the chief male role. Lester Bernard, E. Alyn Warren, Otto Lederer and William Conklin are in the supporting cast.

Harry O. Hoyt wrote the scenario and Frank R. Strayer directed the production.

~ THE CHECK-UP ~

Weekly Edition of Exhibitors' Box Office Reports

Productions listed are new pictures on which reports were not available previously.

KEY—The first column following the name of the feature represents the number of managers that have reported the picture as "Poor." The second column gives the number who considered it "Fair"; the third the number who considered it "Good"; and the fourth column, those who considered it "Big."

The fifth column is a percentage giving the average rating on that feature, obtained by the following method: A report of "Poor" is rated at 20%; one of "Fair," 40%; "Good," 70%; and "Big," 100%. The percentage rating of all of these reports on one picture are then added together and divided by the number of reports, giving the average percentage—a figure which represents the consensus of opinion on that picture. In this way exceptional cases, reports which might be taken alone, and such individual differences of opinion are averaged up.

For ratings on current and older releases see MOTION PICTURE NEWS—first issue of each month.

Studio Briefs

Walter Goss, Paramount Picture School graduate, has been chosen to appear in Herbert Brenon's next Paramount production, "God Gave Me Twenty Cents," on which work was started at the Long Island studio on August 27.

Production on "College Days," a Tiffany picture, is almost complete says a wire to the home office from M. H. Hoffman in Hollywood. It is being made with a special cast.

"The Popular Sin," a Paramount picture written by Monta Bell, adapted by James Ashmore Creelman, directed by Malcolm St. Clair, and starring Florence Vidor, went into production at the Paramount Long Island studio this week. It is another version of the "eternal triangle." Oliver Marsh, cameraman, has been given a new long-term contract by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. He is at present filming "Annie Laurie," in which Lillian Gish is starred.

Edward Martindel has been awarded one of the acting "plums" of the year says the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer office. He will play "Don Julian" in "The Great Galeoto," which John M. Stahl is directing, with Ramon Novarro and Alice Terry in the leading roles.

The Russian contingent appearing in the Russian sequence of "The Mysterious Island" had been augmented by the addition of Valentina Zimina, who has been signed to play the part of the maid in this Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production which Benjamin Christianson is directing.

PROLOGUE FOR "THE VISION"

The photos above show the three episodes presented as a stage prelude to the Educational Technicolor production, "The Vision," at the Mosque Theatre, Newark, N.J. The presentation opened with a reproduction of the castle, painted on a scrim drop. This faded into an interior scene with a soprano dressed as a bride singing "Oh, Promise Me." The final episode is shown at the left. The production was staged by A. Gordon Reid, whose lighting effects and color scheme were an effective feature of the offering

Johnson Uses Newspapers to Sell "Old Loves and New"

For the run of "Old Loves and New" the Coliseum, Seattle, Manager Leroy B. Johnson used a total of 178 inches of display space of which 123 inches were used for advance. The opening announcement appeared in the Seattle "Times," Tuesday, with a one column nine-inch ad, Wednesday the "Star" carried the same size space, Wednesday the "Times" carried a one column twelve, Thursday the "Times" carried a two column twelve and the "Star" a one column nine. Friday, one day prior to the opening, the "Times" carried a three column fourteen, and the "Star," a two column fifteen. On Saturday, the opening day, the "Star" carried a two column thirteen; Sunday the "Times" carried a two column thirteen.

The next large space was a one column seven in the "Times" on Wednesday in the middle of the showing, which was to act as a booster. A series of one column two-inch box ads were used in the "Post Intelligencer" for the entire run of this attraction.

Nursery Is New Feature at New York Hippodrome

When the New York Hippodrome reopened on Monday, August 30, "Toytown," the midget city with its small animals and little inhabitants, introduced an innovation which mothers will appreciate. This is a nursery in charge of matron and nurses who will undertake to check and entertain children while the parents see the performance.

Excellent Response to Mail Campaign for "Mantrap"

Sending out 500 letters on "Mantrap" to a selective mailing list, Manager Ralph Noble reports the response about 65 per cent, when that picture played at the Palace Theatre, McAlester, Okla.

In order to ascertain the value of the mailing list, Manager Noble states that he stood at the entrance almost all of the time and checked up his patrons as they passed in.

Newark Theatre Exploitation Features Showing of "The Blue Boy"

SPLENDID exploitation and tie-ups were perfected by J. E. Firnkoes, publicity director of the Mosque Theatre, Newark, N.J., for the showing at that playhouse of "The Blue Boy," second Romance Production released by Educational Film Exchanges, Inc. This engagement, which opened Saturday, September 4, was the premiere showing of the two-reel Short Feature in the Metropolitan area.

A shadow box display for "The Blue Boy" was used in the Mosque Theatre lobby, showing the kidnaped "blue boy" in the gypsy camp scene from the photoplay. Six hand-colored reproductions of the Gainsborough painting, "The Blue Boy," 22 by 28 inches in size, were framed and used in the lobby. This display was supplemented in the lobby with colored stills and black and white stills showing scenes from the motion picture.

Five excellent tie-ups were arranged with art stores, picture dealers and department stores to show in their windows special displays of prints of Gainsborough's masterpiece. Many different sized prints were employed in these displays. One of the biggest tie-ups was arranged with the L. Bamberger & Co. store, which is one of the largest in the city.

As in the case of "The Vision," the Mosque Theatre staged a prologue for "The Blue Boy." A mammoth picture frame was constructed on the stage, the scene inside this being that shown in Gainsborough's masterpiece. A boy in blue appearing in this scene played the violin.

Reproduction of special poster which the Kellogg company is supplying to dealers to tie-up window displays featuring "Pep" in connection with local showings of First National's "It Must Be Love." The tie-up was arranged by E. H. Rathbun of Los Angeles

"Night Cry" Ballyhooed by Boy and Trained Dog

One of the most effective ballyhoos ever attempted by Manager F. J. Miller was used when Rin-Tin-Tin in "The Night Cry," showed at the Rialto Theatre, Augusta, Ga.

A young boy with a sign on his back advertising the picture paraded the streets of the city, accompanied by a German police dog. The boy would stop at different places and have the dog do tricks, such as sitting up, chasing rubber balls, etc.

Lynchburg Theatre Stages Fashion Show for Buyers

A fashion show, with mannequins from New York and Philadelphia, was given at the Auditorium Theatre, Lynchburg, Va., during "Buyers' Week," when 600 merchants from Southern states visited that city. Managers of the various moving picture theatres co-operated with the business organizations in having passes issued to the guests.

“Quick Turnovers”

A salesman who knew his business, representing a well known commodity with years of advertising behind it, called to see a merchant who had always refused to stock the line.

“So you want $4 a dozen for this article?” said the merchant. “Nothing doing. I am buying so and so’s for $3 a dozen. I get the same price for them I’d get for yours, so I’m making a dollar a dozen more.”

“Know Bill Smith over on K Street?” asked the salesman. “Bill Smith used to say the same thing. He too bought a ‘similar article’ for $3 a dozen, and sold 150 dozen a year. Three years ago he put in our article. Today he’s selling 1,000 dozen without as much trouble as he used to have in selling the 150 dozen. He’s making $2,000 a year on the article where he used to make $450. Which is the best business?”

The merchandising principles of business are basically the same however much they may differ in detail.

Too often the empty seats represent the overhead of a theatre. How to fill them is the first consideration of the successful exhibitor.

The more quality, the more draw in the pictures you show, the better they are known and the more they are wanted, there's just so much the less chance for the empty seat. "Quick Turnovers" mean just as much to a theatre as to a store.

There are lots of different kinds of short comedies. You get just what you pay for, just as the merchant did who was buying the article at $3 a dozen.

The exhibitor who wins in the long run as well as in the short, is the man who shows a Mack Sennett comedy every show, whether it's a Ben Turpin or an Alice Day or a Mack Sennett or one of The Smith Series.

The best is always the best buy.

Spokane's Bigger and Better Season

Theatre Owners of City Co-operate 100% in Great Drive for Greater Movie Campaign that Registers Signal Success

THE theatre owners and managers of Spokane again co-operated 100% in the second Greater Movie Season drive. Last year we put over a very successful campaign, but the one this year was "bigger and better" for the reason that the theatre owners and managers realized, through the results of last year, that they could not find a better stimulant for business than this Greater Movie Season Campaign.

The writer was appointed Managing Director for the city of Spokane and, with the aid of able assistants, endeavored to put over a clean, impartial campaign, neither showing nor taking any favors.

One week in advance an eight-page colored section was put out by our leading evening newspaper, the Spokane Chronicle, that would be a credit to a city like New York or Chicago.

Our theatres were all beautifully decorated with pennants, illuminated signs and everything pertaining to Greater Movie Season. All advertising and decorating were done a week in advance, and the whole campaign went over like a million dollars.

The Spokane Advertising Club gave the theatre managers a full meeting, at which Attorney Claude D. Randall made a talk on Greater Movie Season. Our street car company donated car fenders to advertise the campaign, and our billboard company, the Hayward-Larkin Company, donated billboard space.

As director of the campaign, we wish to give the following credit for their hearty co-operation and assistance: Our esteemed first-run competitor, Mr. W. L. Doudlah of the Clemmer Theatre and his publicity man, Mr. H. J. Royster; Mr. "Nick" Pierong, manager, and Mr. Cecil B. Miller, publicity man, Pantages Theatre; Mr. Will Starkey, manager of Starkey Theatres, Inc.; and of our own staff, Mr. Frank J. Zeorlin, general manager; Mr. L. H. Keeler, director of publicity; Mr. L. A. Todd, Liberty Theatre manager; Mr. Harry Culbert, manager Casino and Egyptian theatres, and last but not least, Mr. G. W. Gonyea, our lobby and sign expert, who worked day and night making displays for the campaign.

Personally, we can not understand why the managers in large cities do not get together on this yearly drive, as they have so much better an opportunity to put on a mammoth campaign.

We feel that we would like the trade to know of the success of our Spokane effort and believe that the best way to inform them is through the Motion Picture News and we are more than grateful for the opportunity which has been accorded us to do this.

Horoscope on Cards Herald "Thief of Bagdad"

Among a number of novelty ideas employed to exploit the showing of "The Thief of Bagdad" in Rio de Janeiro, a card featuring a horoscope for the day proved the most effective of the billing stunts devised by Enrique Daez, United Artists representative who took charge of the campaign.

The horoscope was printed on cheap stock with a date in red and word matter in black. The copy read: "St. Procopio—Full Moon at 9 p.m. Thursday—Motion Picture Day—Inauguration of the exhibitions of 'The Thief of Bagdad.' The whole of Rio de Janeiro will go on this date to the Cinema Gloria to see Douglas Fairbanks."

Cleveland Theatre's Beauty Contest Scores

Alfred Price, manager of the New Broadway Theatre, Cleveland, has inaugurated a Bathing Beauty Contest, that has taken a great hold on the neighborhood.

A gun, a detachment of soldiers and a banner-covered auto escorted the film of "The Flaming Frontier" (Universal) from the railroad depot at Charleston to the Kearse Theatre, where the picture played a special engagement

WORLD'S PREMIERE

THE STAR IN PERSON

"One Minute to Play" Opens on Broadway

Red Grange is Feature of Campaign Advancing World Premiere of Picture at Colony Theatre—Star Makes Personal Appearance

RED GRANGE, sensational star of the gridiron, made his debut as a star of the screen under no less auspicious circumstances than a gala Broadway premiere can confer upon the notables of the theatre last Sunday night, when "One Minute to Play" opened an extended engagement at the Colony Theatre, New York City. The opening performance was a "world's premiere," and with a lively campaign to stir up the enthusiasm of screen fans and all those whose interest in a much publicized personality made them receptive to the lure of seeing Red Grange in person and on the screen, the first night of "One Minute to Play" took on all the color and glamor of a festive event in the activities along Broadway.

Though the weather was far from propitious—a damp and dripping week end reaching its moisty climax on Sunday night—the crowds turned out to see "Red" as the hero of a gridiron romance and "in the flesh" as well.

Personal Appearance Attraction

Probably the advertised fact that Grange would appear in person accounted for the mobs which formed outside the Colony—just to get a glimpse of the "gridiron ghost" as he stepped from an automobile and made his way to a seat in the auditorium. It is less problematical that the numbers which formed lines at the box office were the harvest, so to speak, of a spirited publicity and exploitation campaign conducted by F. B. O. and the management of the Colony Theatre.

The opening of "One Minute to Play" was heralded through all the avenues of publicity and advertising afforded the showman. Newspaper ads played up the event under forceable headlines to the effect that "Red is here." This newspaper campaign recalled to the collective mind of the public the sensational events connected with the thrilling career of Red Grange as a football star. The background which made Grange one of the most popular athletes of all time was vividly reconstructed in the minds of the fans by means of these striking advertisements.

Pennants suspended from the Colony across Broadway added to the display effects used to exploit the premiere of the F.B.O. feature starring Grange Supplementing the newspaper displays colorful posters on prominent stands throughout the city. The advance work along these lines was started a week before the opening of the picture at the Colony.

The theatre was gallantly rigged out in football garnishings, with huge cut-outs of Grange, little dangling footballs, pennants and illumination adding attraction value to the college "atmosphere" of the production which would introduce Red Grange to the screen as a star of the photoplay.

The giant sign over the front of the Colony fairly shouted the name of Red Grange and the title of his picture, color and illumination adding attraction value to the huge letters and painting of the star in action.

Results of Campaign

The effect of the campaign in focusing the interest which the public has in Red Grange upon the picture which reveals him as the hero of a football romance on the screen had its convincing testimony in the lines which formed outside the Colony at the premiere last Sunday night, when fans, exhibiting that indifference to inconvenience and even hardship for the sake of seeing the stars and the films on which their hearts are set, braved the inclemencies of a rainy evening to take their places in the lines at the box office and awaited their turn to enter the portals of the theatre where Red Grange in his first motion picture was on display.

Short Subjects and Serials

Comical highlights in the Pathe two-reeler, "When a Man's a Prince"

Pathe Starts New Chapter-Play

"The House Without a Key" Title of Serial with Allene Ray and W. Miller

PATHE has placed a new serial in production with Allene Ray and Walter Miller in the featured roles, the title of which is "The House Without a Key," an adaptation by Frank Leon Smith, of Earl Derr Biggers Saturday Evening Post story. Spencer Bennett will direct. This Patheserial will probably follow "The Fighting Marine" on the Pathe release schedule.

Miss Ray has been vacationing since completing the last-named serial and Miller has just completed a prominent role in support of Gene Tunney in "The Fighting Marine," a Patheserial, due for release on September 12th.

Frank Lackteen, who has earned a "mean reputation" as a villain in Patheserials, again will cross the path of the hero and heroine. Harry Semels, last seen in "Into the Net," returns to the Pathe banner. Three players who appeared prominently in "Snowed In," Charles West, John Dillon and Natalie Warfield, have been re-signed for the new production.

Other well-known players in the cast, as announced, are William Bailey and E. H. Calvert, both well known for feature appearances; George Knwa, oriental character actor; Jack Pratt and Betty Caldwell. In addition to the principals large numbers of sailors, swimmers and Hawaiians will be used in spectacular scenes.

Gillstrom Finishes "Blisters Under the Skin"

Arvid Gillstrom has finished direction of "Blisters Under the Skin," his seventh two-reel comedy for F.B.O. release. He will begin direction of the next and last of the "Bill Grimm's Progress" series after a few days' vacation. Kit Guard, Margaret Norris and Albert Cook are featured in these comedies.

"Carrie of the Chorus" opened up at the Plaza Theatre, and went big way. Peggy Shaw, out, is a star

All Sennett Units Producing New Pathe Comedies

Production at the Mack Sennett studios is at peak with practically all units either finishing up or starting new Pathe releases. Camera work on four new comedies has been completed and they are now in the cutting rooms. Alf Goulding is directing a new "Smith Family" comedy and Del Lord, assisted by Glen DeVol is handling the megaphone on an all-star Sennett brand.

Harry Edwards and Ray McCarey are directing Ben Turpin in a new fun film in which the star is supported by Alma Bennett and Vernon Dent. Earl Rodney is making a new Sennett bathing beauty comedy assisted by Lonnie Dorsa.

Gerhart Hauptman to Write Titles for "Faust"

Gerhart Hauptman, celebrated German poet, dramatist and novelist, has agreed to title "Faust," the Ufa production to be released in America by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayor in the near future. This is the latest F. W. Murnau production and Emil Jannings, Gosta Ekman and Camilla Horn appear in the cast along with Yvette Guilbert, French diseuse.

Buys "Polish Blood" for Picturization

Carl Laemmle, now recuperating in Carlsbad, has purchased screen rights to the Viennese musical farce, "Polish Blood," by Oskar Nedbal, which has been shown for the three hundredth time in Vienna.

Several Czechoslovakian artists will leave for America soon to design costumes for the film version. It is understood that Wenig, noted painter of Prague, will arrive first.

"Our Gang" Aggregation Has New Colored Player

"Farina" of the "Our Gang" Pathe fun-makers will have the support of her baby sister, just past two years of age, in her future comedies. The new actress was initiated into the ranks this week and "Aroma" has been chosen as her stage name, credit for this cognomen going to H. M. "Beanie" Walker, former Hearst sports writer and now an executive of the Roach studios.

Ralph J. Graves to Play "Heavy" in Mermaids

Ralph J. Graves has been engaged to play villain roles in Educational-Mermaid Comedies. His initial appearance will be in "The Jelly Fish," with Frank Pangborn. Following this he will appear in a circus picture with Al St. John.

Pathe Schedules Week's Films

Sennett and Roach Two Reel Comedies and Chapter of Tunney Serial Listed

PROMINENT among the Pathe releases for the week of September 9 is a two-reel comedy from Hal Roach and another from Mack Sennett. The Roach fun-film stars Charley Chase and is labeled "Bromo and Juliet"; the Sennett contribution is one of the "Smith Family" series titled "Smith's Landlord."

Other releases for the week include the second chapter of the Pathe-serial, "The Fighting Marine," with Gene Tunney, contender for the world's heavyweight championship; "Bull's-Eye," a new Grantland Rice Sportlight; "The Charleston Queen," one of Aesop's Film Fables; Topics of the Day No. 38; Pathe Review No. 38 and issues Nos. 78 and 79 of Pathe News.

"Bromo and Juliet," directed by Leo McCarey, under the supervision of F. Richard Jones, numbers in the supporting cast, William Orlamond, Oliver Hardy and L. J. O'Connor.

"Smith's Landlord" has Raymond McKee, Ruth Hiatt and Mary Ann Jackson supported by Joe Young, Thelma Parr and "Cap," the canine, under the direction of Eddie Cline.

"The Second Attack" is the title of Chapter 2 of "The Fighting Marine," the new Patheserial starring Gene Tunney. Frank Leon Smith prepared the scenario of this vehicle and Spencer Bennet directed. Tunney's supporting cast includes, Walter Miller, Marjorie Gay, Virginia Vance, Sherman Ross, Mike Donlin, Wally Oettel, Jack Anthony and Anna May Walthall.

"Bull's-Eye," the latest Grantland Rice sportlight, unfolds the fact that America is a nation of marksmen—and of markswomen, too. Mr. Rice here shows some of the amazing skill that makes the scoring of bull's-eyes an everyday occurrence.

Pathe Review No. 38 contains, "Feet-her's and His'n," a novelette bound in leather; "The Lost Empire of Africa," an account of the expedition led by Count Byron Khun de Prorok; and a remarkable variety of European scenic views in Pathecolor complete this entertaining number.

"The Charleston Queen" is the latest of the Paul Terry creations of the Aesop's Film Fables Series. Topics of the Day No. 38 offers the latest wit and humor from the press of the world, and Pathe News issues Nos. 38 and 39 cover latest news events.

Stern Bros. List 1927-28 Films

Product Consists of Four Series of Thirteen Two-reels and One of Twelve

STERN BROS. product for the 1927-28 season, released through Universal, will consist of four series of thirteen two-reelers each and one series of twelve, the latter the Buster Brown comedies which are now elevated to the rank of Junior Jewels. The other four will be known as "The Newlyweds and Their Baby," "Let George Do It," "What Happened to Jane?" and "The Excuse Maker" brand.

Stories for these comedies will be provided from popular newspaper cartoon strips to which Stern Bros. have secured an extension of screen rights. George McManus' cartoons will provide inspiration for two series and the others, as usual, will be made from specially written stories.

Jed Dooley, Ethlyn Clair and a baby, two years old, enact the chief roles in "The Newlyweds and Their Baby" series, "Let George Do It" has Sid Saylor in the title role, Charles King, Constance Darling and Blanche Payson are the trio who will be seen in "The Excuse Maker?" series, which deals with the romances of a soda-water sheik. Wanda Wiley appears in "What Happened to Jane" series, a series revolving around the love affairs of a girl with an irascible father.

In addition to Gus Meins, who directed the first series of "Buster Brown" comedies, and later guided the "Newlyweds" comedies, Stern Bros. have secured Francis Corby, Charles Lamont, Scott Pembroke and Sam Newfield to wield the megaphone on the new product.

Most of the product for the 1926-27 season is already in the Universal exchanges, leaving ample time for the preparation of the next year's pictures, which policy will avoid changes in release dates or delays in delivery, say the Stern Bros.

Former Roach Actor Now Scenario Writer

Frank Butler, alias "Mr. Tewksbury Spat," formerly of the Spat Family series of Pathe comedies is back at the Hal Roach studios as a scenarist. Butler, an Oxford graduate, had been writing for several periodicals, but gave it up temporarily to gain new ideas, and drifted into the acting profession.

Production Finished on Five Fox Comedies

George E. Marshall, supervisor of the Fox two-reel comedy unit, has finished production of five two-reel comedies. They are "Society Architect," a Van Bibber story, "The Marry Month of May," from an O. Henry story, "Napoleon, Jr.," a new Animal comedy, "Light Wines and Bearded Ladies," an Imperial Comedy and "Golfing Widows," another Imperial.

Sea Scenes Feature of New Educational Release

The greater part of the scenes for a forthcoming Mermaid comedy will be filmed at sea, along the coast between Los Angeles and San Francisco. Stephen Roberts is directing a cast comprised of Al St. John, Estelle Bradley, Lucille Hutton, Clem Beauchamp, Phil Dunham and Wallace Lupino.

"Bud" Duncan Appearing in Educational Comedies

"Bud" Dunecan, formerly of the film comedy team of "Ham and Bud," the former being the present Lloyd Hamilton, who is appearing in Educational comedy releases, will also be seen in Educational-Cameo Comedies in the near future. "Bud's" productions will be made on the same lot Hamilton is working on.

"Loud Speakin' Papa" Now "The Radio Bug"

The title of the Cameo Comedy for Educational release has been changed from "Loud Speakin' Papa" to "The Radio Bug," it was announced this week. Phil Dunham and "Toy" Gallagher are featured.

"The Law of the North"

(Universal-Mustang—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Edw. G. Johnston)

FRED GILMAN and Maybelle Perry carry the main load in this Mustang two-reel Western and they, with capable support from the rest of the cast, furnish some real good entertainment. In fact, there's as much story and action in these two reels as will be found in the average feature Western.

It's all about a gang of desperadoes who attempt to do away with a menace in the person of Kerry Clay, a forest ranger who is seriously interfering with the gang's plans to rob stage coaches, etc. Clay comes within lassoing distance one day — is caught and hurled over a cliff. The robbers leave him for dead. Seeking refuge in a neighboring ranch house where Letty and Will Marvin live, Clay finds that Will Marvin is involved in a recent robbery. Marvin eludes arrest, Clay pursues him to the gang's headquarters where he is again captured. He escapes with Marvin as his ally and arrives at the ranch in time to save the money and effect the arrest of the desperadoes. Needless to say Clay wins over Letty's affection.

Summary—Exceptionally good two-reeler of the Western type with plenty of fast riding, satisfactory story and acting.

Diverting incidents in "Her Actor Friend," a Pathe release

"Beauty A La Mud"

(Educational-Christie—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Paul Thompson)

HERE the realm of Lina Cavalieri, the once-famed operatic beauty, and the perennially youthful Edna Wallace Hopper, are invaded for a plot and for the setting. A modern beauty parlor is the scene of the adventures of Jimmie Adams in trying to pay court to his beloved in spite of the opposition of her father, the proprietor of the shop in which women are facially made over. There is justification in Jimmie's masquerading as an expert because it makes it possible for him to be near Charlotte Merriam, the daughter of "Madame Louise" (Billy Engle) the owner. There is plausibility also, because a noted French face-landscape artist, named Edouard Brillantine (Eddie Lambert), is due and it is he for whom Billy Engle intends the hand of the fair Charlotte (Charlotte on and off the screen).

Start with the premise that the comedian lover, Jimmie Adams, does not know any more about facial massages for women than the majority of us know about Latin and Greek and you can partly imagine what happens when a wealthy, adipose female comes in to have her face made over. And then the arrival of the real French authority on female renovation. Even with all these ingredients the piece is rather stupid.

The Cast: Jimmie Adams (starred), Charlotte Merriam, Billy Engle, Eddie Lambert, William Irving and Blanche Payson. Director, Harold Beaudine.

Note: This is the first 1926-27 release of this series.

"Nobody Loves Me"

(Universal-Bluebird—One Reel)

CHARLES PUFFY'S single reels are generally a very satisfactory brand of comedy, and this latest effort is well up to standard. All that Puffy ever lacked was a little more directorial aid and this time Director Smith has put little touches here and there which are particularly noteworthy.

The picture gets away with Puffy seemingly being pursued by a policeman, but in reality, both are racing to aid a young miss who is clinging to an overturned boat. Puffy effects the rescue and proposes marriage. This, however, is for a time forestalled by the girl's aunt, who stipulates that Puffy must first find a husband for her. After many disappointments Puffy's perseverance finally wins a mate for Aunt. —EDW. G. JOHNSTON.

"Cathedral of St. Paul's"

(Cranfield & Clarke—One Reel)

ONLY through the courtesy of the Preservation Fund, which is restoring St. Paul's Cathedral in London, was it possible to film this reel, which shows every feature of the famous edifice. The myriad architectural beauties of the exterior and interior have been photographed, and Sunlight arcs taken into the very crypt leave nothing unportrayed. Particularly interesting are the tombs and memorials of Admiral Lord Nelson, Lord Wellington, the Iron Duke, Sir Arthur Sullivan, George Cruikshank, Sir Christopher Wren, the architect of the cathedral, and many others. In view of the lighting difficulties involved, the general photography is commendable. —L. C. MOEN.

"The Whirlwind Driver"

(Universal-Mustang—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Edw. G. Johnston)

SOME mighty good shots of racing stage coaches, an attempt to prevent the hero from winning, and a pretty fair fight, will certainly go a long way toward putting this two-reel Western over in theatres catering to this type of show.

Curley Witzel and Dolores Brinkman are the featured players and all the action hinges around the villain's wager of $20,000 cash against the ranch of Colonel Rayfield that the former's team will win the stage coach classic. Of course the villain wants to get the Colonel in his power and marry his attractive daughter. Over a half-a-dozen mint juleps, the two make the deal and the race is on. One of the villain's henchmen, astride a fast horse, attempts to head Curley off and a struggle ensues atop Curley's coach while his team plunges madly on. Curley finally wins, knocks out the villain and receives a kiss from his fair one.

Summary—Good, lively two-reel Western.

"The Modern Venus"

(Cranfield & Clarke—One Reel)

THIS Julian Ollendorf Sketchograp an interesting combination of draftsmanship and photography around the idea of the bathing beauty contests which come along at this season of the year. Beginning with a pen-and-ink presentation of the original beauty contest in which Paris was called in to judge of the respective pulchritude of Juno, Venus and Minerva, it proceeds through cave-man days down to the present, showing the evolution of the one-piece bathing suit, changing fashions in figures, a modern beauty pageant, winners of this year's Miss Greater New York contest, and a considerable collection of related sketches and scenes. Many of the drawings are attractive, and the general tone of the reel is breezy and refreshing. —L. C. MOEN.

"Grabbing Grabbers"

(Cranfield & Clarke—Two Reels)

MICKEY BENNETT is the star of this offering, which deals with the efforts of him and his pal to capture a desperado, for whom a $1,000 reward is offered. They raise the necessary $10 to purchase an antique flivver, and start on the trail. The crook steals a bag containing the pet dog of a child movie star, which is transposed by mistake with another bag containing $5,000 in bills. The diminutive comedy queen goes to a low dive to meet the crook and ransom her dog. Mickey and his pal follow, seeking to recover the $5,000 and save the pup. A general fight follows, with the boys outwitting the crooks and rescuing girl, dog and money. Not so very funny, but the youngsters will probably enjoy watching it. —L. C. MOEN.

"The Cat's Meow"

(Cranfield & Clarke—Two Reels)

DEALING with the efforts of the hero to recover the heroine's pet kitten, which has wandered off, this comedy presents a series of gags of dubious humor. The hero crawls on all fours, hangs from the side of a runaway bus, upsets things generally, sideswipes numerous individuals in the chase, and finally captures the wrong kitten, but wins the heroine, anyway, for his good intentions. There is action aplenty, but the gags and titles fail to qualify noticeably, either for newness of funniness. —L. C. MOEN.

"The Jelly Fish"

(Educational-Mermaid—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Paul Thompson)

HERE were possibilities that were largely missed and not so much through the carrying out of the main idea as the stupidity that characterized the exposition. Think for yourself what might have been done. A bashful youth, who is so diffident that he is afraid to propose for the hand of the girl he loves, is defended by his aunt as coming from a race of brave, heroic, daring men, one of them a famous pirate. As she tells the story the picture on the screen is of this blood-thirsty ancestor and his exploits. It is a quite delightful burlesque of Douglas Fairbanks in "The Black Pirate." That is alright; it is well taken, interesting and amusing, but your interest in the hero, Frank Pangborn, who, of course, plays the piratical ancestor as well as his descendant in modern evening clothes, is so slight that you really don't care whether he wins out in his various affairs or not.

He does such perfectly moronic things in the drawing room where his aunt comes to his defense that you feel he belongs in an asylum for the feeble-minded rather than being permitted to be at large. And this with an understanding that the intellectuality of the modern drawing room on or off the stage is nothing to shout aloud about. It seems a shame for so excellent an idea to go to waste. Pangborn makes anything but an auspicious debut as an Educational comedy star, having just closed in a legitimate attraction at Los Angeles.

The Cast: Frank Pangborn (starred), Estelle Bradley, Louise Carver, Robert Graves, Melbourne MacDowell. Directors, Stephen Roberts and John Adolff. Supervisor, Jack White.

Comment: A good idea that almost goes wrong, yet entertaining. Interesting to find so celebrated an actor as Melbourne MacDowell in small role.

"Felix in Gim Gems"

(Educational-Cartoon—One Reel)

FELIX the Cat, who would make a great little playmate for Don Marquis' famed feline "Mehitabel," invades the squared circle this week. Or, if not the actual prize ring, at least the training quarters of a pugilist, where he serves most successfully as a sparring partner, and an invaluable first-aid in helping the over-weight pug to reduce his waistline. Not that Felix' help is appreciated, for it is not, and the knight of the padded mit is always booting the cat out of the training quarters. In retaliation Felix devises effective means of reprisal, such as substituting a wasps' nest for the regular punching bag. And for a fitting finale he brings a mule, equipped with boxing gloves up to the side of the tent in which the heavyweight is shadow boxing. When the more or less patient ass is hit he becomes an impatient ass and delivers the knock-out blow. Felix is joyously counting the fatal ten when the shutter closes for the last time. It is a timely and amusing cartoon and will enhance the reputation of Pat Sullivan and Educational.—PAUL THOMPSON.

"Churchyards of Old America"

(Red Seal—One Reel)

A NOVEL idea for a one-reel subject is incorporated in this production, which is simply a screen record of some of the most humorous and queer epitaphs on gravestones found in old American churchyards. While the majority seem to be authentic a number of them appear to be culled from Gus Miller's well-known sure-fire jokes. While the humor contained in some of the epitaphs will cause mirth, it seems to this reviewer that exploitation of graveyards is in poor taste, to say the least.—HAROLD FLAVIN.

Scenes from "Buster Helps Dad," the twelfth and last release in the first series of Universal's Buster Brown comedies

"Oh, Monkey Be Good"

(Bray-Sunkist—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Edw. G. Johnston)

ALTHOUGH all jumbled up with scarcely any evidence of continuity and with resort to most everything that's ever been used in comedy-making, the fan will probably find enough amusement in this one to suffice for the time given to rounding up the considerable aggregation of players, fish, animals, etc.

It's all about a young swain, desperately in love, whose life is made miserable by the pranks of a mischievous monk. Bathing girls, an inebriate, a fishing stunt and what-not are brought into play.

Summary:—It will do well enough in the average house.

"Ko-Ko in The Fadeaway"

(Red Seal—One Reel)

MAX FLEISCHER deserves a good deal of praise for his ability in devising new schemes and stunts for his pen and ink creation, Ko-Ko. He manages to incorporate a goodly number of laughs in each of this series, no two of which bear the slightest similarity. In the current issue, he conceives the idea of mixing vanishing powder with the ink so that everything Ko-Ko touches evaporates. However, the idea proves a boomerang as Ko-Ko retaliates by sprinkling Fleischer with the powder, causing Max considerable discomfiture, but in the end Max wins the powder battle. This should amuse any and everybody.—HAROLD FLAVIN.

"The Fighting Fool"

(Bray-Fistical Culture—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Edw. G. Johnston)

WITH the amount of space the newspapers are giving to boxing these days, any "fight picture" is bound to go over in houses where they like that sort of stuff—and this one will get by about as well as any of them. But, in this case, it seems a pity that with the wealth of material on hand, a little more care wasn't given to keep out some of the impossible situations, such as millionaire's daughters frequenting tough gyms and training quarters—and furthermore, no boxing man would ever suffer the amount of insults paid this particular one, even though he had promised his mother a la Benny Leonard, never to fight again. However, the insults finally come so fast and furious that the mother relents and her son licks four or five dozen or so of his antagonists—regains his honor and wins the girl.

Summary:—Any exhibitor whose patrons like fight pictures can get by with this.

"A Minute to Go"

(Cranfield & Clarke—Two Reels)

THIS release is one of the Speed Cop series and combines melodrama and comedy in about equal proportions. The hero is a motorcycle cop, the heroine is a newspaper writer and the juvenile lead is a cub reporter. The plot deals with the theft of a string of pearls, the framing up of the cub reporter to fasten the crime on him, the kidnaping of the heroine and her airplane rescue by the reporter and the cop. The situations and the acting are conventional, and the titles do little to redeem them. The Speed Cop idea has possibilities, but little has been done with them here.—L. C. MOEN.

"Shadowland"

(Cranfield & Clarke—One Reel)

SCENIC beauty is the theme of this subject, which is one of the Roxy Radio series. Roxy and his Gang are shown broadcasting from the Canadian wilds, interspersed with scenic views, many of them of rare loveliness, and shots of two girls listening in on a loud speaker. Poetic quotations, illustrations of them, water scenes, broadcasting scenes and the like are assembled without much thought of continuity or coherence, but the photographic beauty of the Canadian scenes fully justifies the making of the subject. With proper musical accompaniment, this should be an attractive reel.—L. C. MOEN.

Johnny Arthur to Appear in Stage Play

Johnny Arthur, Educational-Tuxedo comedy star, has made arrangements whereby he will star in a legitimate stage production, "The Butter and Egg Man," which opens soon in a downtown Los Angeles theatre.

Paul Gerard Smith to Write "Whatnots" Titles

Paul Gerard Smith has been signed by Walter Futter to write the titles for his forthcoming series of Curiosities release to be known as "Whatnots" which will be released through Educational.

William Goodrich to Direct Lloyd Hamilton

William Goodrich has been selected to direct Lloyd Hamilton's next comedy for Educational release. Goodrich directed Hamilton in "The Movies" last year.

"The Texas Streak" is a Universal Western production starring Hoot Gibson

Hold That Lion

MacLean Has Had Better Ones

(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

HERE is a four-reeler stretched out to approximately seven reels—which is too much, considering the scant idea behind it. One cannot call it other than an inconsequential affair which tries awfully hard to be amusing. Let it be said for the star and the director that they do succeed in measuring out a fair amount of humor. It is when the man behind the megaphone strives to hammer home his points that the piece loses its sparkle.

The story is one of those romantic pursuits in which a susceptible youth undertakes a globe-trotting tour in order to catch up with a girl who bowled him over with her charm. The chase and the obstacles thrown in the way take up the first part of the film—the latter sequences having to do with the lion hunt. Yes, the girl had gone to East Africa or some out of the way place to capture or kill the big cats. The hero gets his lion and wins the lady. She happens to be Constance Howard (Sam Goldwyn's sister-in-law) and she is an attractive blonde with screen personality. As for MacLean, he gets everything possible out of the story. He deserves bigger game.

The Cast: Douglas MacLean, Walter Hiers, Constance Howard, Cyril Chadwick, Wade Boteler, George Pearce, Director, William Beaudine.

THEME: Romantic comedy of love-stricken youth who pursues girl to wilds of Africa, where he gets involved in a lion hunt. Captures a lion and wins the girl.

PRODUCTION HIGHLIGHTS: The chase of the girl. The pursuit of star by lion. The atmosphere and color of the African sequences. The titles. The speed of action at the finish. The appeal of Constance Howard. The spirited acting by star.

EXPLOITATION ANGLES: Title should be used for a teaser campaign. Bill as typical MacLean film. Play up his new leading woman, Constance Howard.

DRAWING POWER: O.K. for all types of houses. Should please star's public.

Produced and distributed by Famous Players. Length, six reels. Released September, 1926.

The Strong Man

A Top-Notch Comedy—Amusing All the Way

(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

ONE has to hand it to Harry Langdon again. He has succeeded in coming through with another clever comedy to keep company with "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp." By the way he is going he'll soon be in the Lloyd class. His artful pantomime is a delight to watch—which proves that he is a master of all the technique which goes under the head of comedy.

The piece is a series of strung-together gags—all of which have a place in the Langdon scheme of things.

The episodes aren't tied together very snugly, but no one will pay attention to its flaws, so sure is its comedy. Probably the most hilarious piece of funny business has to do with Langdon protecting his virtue. He believes Gertrude Astor is trying to undress him when she is merely trying to extract a roll of bills from his pocket. The star makes the most of his expressive pantomime here. He is also in his element in the bus scene, in which he treats a cold which has fastened itself on him.

That's "The Strong Man" for you—a comic film which entertains all the way. It should prove a riot wherever shown.

The Cast: Harry Langdon, Priscilla Bonner, Gertrude Astor, William V. Mong, Robert McKim, Arthur Thalasso. Director, Frank Capra.

THEME: Comedy revolving around soldier who becomes partner of strong man in vaudeville act. Hunts for girl and finds her after amusing episodes.

PRODUCTION HIGHLIGHTS: The army gags. The scenes with strong man. The hunt for the heroine. The episode where vamp tries to take his roll away. The bad cold episode. The romantic scenes. The splendid acting by star.

EXPLOITATION ANGLES: Play up Langdon and go the limit on advertising. The star is surely over and turns them away nowadays. Bill as top-notch.

DRAWING POWER: Should pack them in everywhere. Fans are demanding Langdon comedies.

Produced and distributed by First National. Length, six reels. Released September, 1926.

The Texas Streak

Hoot Gibson Gets His Start in the Movies.

(Reviewed by Paul Thompson)

PRINCIPALLY interesting as showing the metamorphosis of Hoot Gibson from a "double" in a movie company to the role of star is this latest Universal-Jewel. Hoot, Jack Curtis and George Summerville are given a lift from location on the property man's motor truck because they have lost their last cent of wages as extras shooting craps. Unfortunately their seat on the truck is so uncertain that a bump throws them off and leaves them stranded with some of the company props in the comparative desert. Utilizing these props, Hoot establishes a reputation as a heroic figure and as such is hired to baffle the villains who are trying to prevent a party of surveyors putting through their work.

Using nothing but blank cartridges Hoot not only cows a vast army of opponents but shows up the villain as double-crossing the heroine's father whose interests he is supposedly guarding. After that there is nothing to it. A small army of villains are bound together and turned over en masse to the sheriff, Hoot thereby winning not only father's gratitude and daughter's hand but also a position as star in westerns for the Universal company. This is an interesting moving picture genesis of Gibson's arrival in the saddle for the company which now lists him as one of its most successful stars.

THEME: Converting a movie extra into a star.

PRODUCTION HIGHLIGHTS: A movie company breaking up; Hoot's round-up of villains with blank cartridges.

EXPLOITATION ANGLES: Gibson's "Western" fame; Blanche Mehaffey's attractiveness. Sidelight on the movies.

DRAWING POWER: Good, ingenious twist to plot.

Produced and distributed by Universal Pictures Corp. Released September 26, 1926. Length, 6,259 feet.

Highlights of Harry Langdon's latest First National comedy, "The Strong Man"

The Flying Mail

Al Wilson Starred Doing Some Aerial Stunts

(Reviewed by Paul Thompson)

DRAMA and comedy are supposedly blended in this latest Associated Exhibitors release, but the drama is more successful than the comedy. This probably as it should be. In this aerial age when football players such as "Red" Grange fly rather than run or lope it is quite consistent that air-mail planes should be held up rather than lumbering stage coaches no matter how madly if skillfully the driver handles his reins over the backs of his sweating foam-flecked horses. So here we have the hero held up by the air-mail robbers so that it appears he is working in cahoots with them. As tho' that were not enough for one young rising aviation hero to contend with, a woman turns up with a phony marriage certificate to gum-up the courtship with the heroine.

It sure does look pretty bad for Al Wilson, but any man who has the nerve to do the circus stunts in the air that he has isn't going to be beaten in that fashion. He trails the gang even though the papers are carrying a reward for his own apprehension. When they leave the ground with the stolen plane and bonds he jumps on the nearest motor-cycle and by swinging from this to a ladder suspended from a plane that is pursuing the villains in their machine, he obtains a vantage point for really thwarting them. From this point on he does his stuff.

In treatment, "The Flying Mail" suggests a serial with thrills following each other in rapid suggestion.

The Cast: Al Wilson (Starred), Joseph J. Girard, Kathleen Myers, Carmelita Geraghty, Harry von Meter, Eddie Gribbon and Frank Tomick. Director, Mason Noel. Author, Frank Howard Clark.

THEME: Wilson's aerial stunts preventing air-mail robbery.

PRODUCTION HIGHLIGHTS: Airplane shots.

Produced by A. Carlos for Al Wilson Productions. Released through Associated Exhibitors.

Released September 10, 1926. Length, 4,500 feet.

EXPLOITATION ANGLES: Wilson's reputation as a dare-devil and pictures showing this.

DRAWING POWER: Fairly good.

H. K. Buchanan, vice-president and sales manager of Home State Film Exchange, came up from Dallas the first of last week to help get the local exchange here going well under the enlarged plan of distributing the Progress product. As a result of Progress turning over its product to the Home State Exchange for sales and distribution in Texas, Oklahoma, and Arkansas, the Oklahoma, City Home State Exchange moved into the Progress offices. The office force of Home State was kept intact and C. M. Jagers, former manager for Progress, retained for the present.

L. W. Brophy, who sold out his theatre holdings last spring and who has been touring Europe this summer with his wife and daughter, writes that he expects to get back home the middle of this month. Brophy has been studying the motion picture theatres in the foreign countries he has visited, Ireland, England, Holland, Germany, Italy, Switzerland, and France. Mr. Brophy formerly owned the Yale Theatre at Muskogee, the Yale and Palace at Claremore, and the Yale and Lyric at Vinita.

The new Blaine Theatre opened at Henryetta last Wednesday evening to a large audience. 1,200 leather upholstered chairs, heavy velvet curtains, beautifully decorated and illuminated lobby and foyer were features of the New Blaine. The physical presentation of the pictures was especially fine and the crowded house were appreciative of the splendid theatre.

H. O. Davis, local distributor of Acme Portable Motion Picture Machines, has received word that he has won the third prize in the national contest the Acme has been staging for sales increase for the month of August. There are 33 distributors, and only nine of these made their quota during the contest. Mr. Davis's award is a handsome gold watch engraved with his name.

The new Ritz Theatre at Duncan, Okla., is scheduled to open next Wednesday evening. R. F. Wilbern, the manager has two other theatres at Duncan. Although the new theatre seats only 500 the equipment is so complete and the theatre so attractive itself that it will be one of the very best smaller houses in the state.

C. R. Zears, secretary of the Film Board of Trade, has returned from Colorado and is hard at work after his vacation. The F. B. T. office has been closed for three weeks for the usual summer vacation.

Des Moines

CEDAR FALLS held a big celebration when the Regent Theatre had its reopening on August 13. The theatre has been closed for redecorating and for carpeting anew. The color scheme is now blue and ivory and the theatre throughout is one of the prettiest in the state.

The Lineville Movie Company have bought the equipment for their theatre at Lineville, which is located in the new hotel building. The building cost over $25,000. The entire theatre equipment was bought from the Exhibitors Supply Company. J. F. Craney will have charge of the Lineville Theatre. Mr. Craney is a newcomer to the theatre game.

The theatre at Newton, which is in the new Hotel Maytag building, is now under construction. The theatre will seat about a thousand. A. H. Blank has contracted to take the management of the Newton house.

W. R. Liebman, branch manager for the Des Moines office of Pathe, has been promoted to the Minneapolis office. Mr. Liebman will be followed by H. A. Kauffman, who comes from the home office of Pathe. Mr. Kauffman has been with Pathe for a good many years. He was inspector booker for a length of time and in this capacity served at practically every branch in the country. He was most recently transferred to the home office for special work before being sent to the Des Moines office.

Among the new cars in Movie Row is the Dodge now being sported by R. C. McCollough, salesman for F. B. O. in the southern part of the state.

R. B. Reingold will have charge of the new Fox office opening in Des Moines on September 15. The Fox exchange will occupy a new brick building constructed for their use by the heirs of the Hubbell estate at Eleventh and High. Mr. Reingold, who will take the management of the Des Moines office has been with Fox in Omaha for the past two years. He was formerly located in Des Moines and has handled Iowa territory for some time.

As one of the series of Exhibitors Round Tables being held at different times in Des Moines under the auspices of the Iowa Theatre Owners Association was a meeting held last week which was attended by a representative number of film men of the state. The meeting was held at Hotel Savery on August 31 and was the final roundup in a membership drive being made with the purpose of lining up every exhibitor of Iowa with the state organization. On September 15 every Iowa film man will have been visited by an active member of the association to line up his membership.

John Hayes, formerly assistant booker for Famous Players, is now out in the territory. He is covering the section for which W. E. Barker was formerly salesman. Mr. Barker has been transferred to the Omaha office.

Fair time brought in a lot of exhibitors who also visited Movie Row. Among these were Walter Carroll of the Star Theatre at Colfax, John Waller of the Lyric at Osceola, Mr. Vance of North English, Furver of the Broadway at Brookland, Pierce of the Atlantic at Atlantic, E. P. Smith of the Strand at Newton, Mr. and Mrs. Byron Watson of the Grand at Knoxville, W. F. Wolcott of the Gem at Eldora, E. J. Morris of the Princess at Eagle Grove, W. P. Symphony Orchestra, and who has, since joining the Stanley directorial staff, been serving as guest conductor at various houses in Philadelphia and Atlantic City, has been appointed permanent director of the Stanley Theatre Orchestra, succeeding Sidney Lowenstein, who has been transferred to the Aldine.

The William Penn Theatre, which was purchased early last spring by the Stanley Company from Miller Brothers, for approximately $250,000, will, after extensive improvements are made, reopen on October 1st with Mae Desmond and her players as the initial repertoire company.

Baltimore

THE Embassy Theatre, 415 East Baltimore Street, Baltimore, Md., reopened to the public Labor Day, September 6, and played to large crowds. This house, which was operated by the Independent Theatres Corporation, Philadelphia, last year, is being operated now by the American Theatres Corporation, a Maryland company organized by Philadelphia interests.

Frank Hammerman is president and managing director of the company, J. W. Rossheim is treasurer, Sam Baron, lately associated with the Rivoli and Rialto theatres, New York, is manager, and Harold Paresky is his assistant.

The Grand Theatre, Highlandtown, Baltimore, Md., was scheduled to reopen to the public, Saturday afternoon at 1.30 o'clock, September 11.

This house with 1500 seats will be run as a straight moving picture theatre during this season. It is a residential theatre in the eastern section of the city.

About $20,000 was spent on alterations, it is said, which included remodeling the foyer and lobby, building a new entrance to the balcony, repainting and redecorating the interior and exterior and installing new lighting fixtures.

C. B. Councilman resigned as manager shortly after the playhouse closed the early part of the summer and Frank H. Durkee is now president and managing director of the company operating the playhouse. Mr. Durkee also operates the Palace, Belnord and Forest theatres. Charles E. Nolte, manager of the Belnord, will be house manager of the Grand.

CONSTRUCTION of Al Bartelt's new theatre on 8th Avenue and Oklahoma is progressing rapidly. It is estimated another two months will see its opening.

M. Stuck has taken over the Lorraine Theatre on Fond du Lac Avenue and opened it after extensive redecorating, on September 4th. The house has been given a new face brick front which gives it the appearance of a new building. It has a capacity of about 450.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer exchange is looking for new and larger quarters as also is the Fox office. It is intimated that the two may share a building if a suitable one can be found.

The Wausau Theatre at Wausau, was re-opened under the management of Saxe Amusement Enterprises on September 4th with a special program. It was formerly known as the Stuart Theatre. H. J. Fitzgerald, general manager of the Saxe organization; E. J. Weisfeldt, formerly production manager, and William Cuddy, director of publicity, were present at the opening. Bert Jordan is retained as manager under the new ownership. The Wausau has undergone extensive renovation and new equipment has been installed throughout, and is now one of the finest theatres in the northwest. It is much the same type of house as the Majestic of Beloit, which Saxe Amusement Enterprises have taken over and after complete redecoration, reopened on August 14th under the same name. Harry Ellis continues as manager.

Elmer Saiter and George Cohn have been added to the F. B. O. sales force, traveling northern Michigan and central Wisconsin respectively. Mr. Cohn was formerly associated with United Artists in Chicago.

Work on the new theatre on Kinnickinnic and Potter avenues, commenced sometime ago and then abandoned, is now being revived. The foundation is in and work on the walls and floor is going ahead with a rapidity that indicates a progressive and purposeful owner.

Joe Schneider, M-G-M salesman tells this one. His new Buick, just three weeks old, was nearing Escanaba when it unaccountably (according to Joe) veered into the ditch, doing considerable damage to itself and less to the driver. After a few hours' wait in Escanaba, Joe decided to phone the garage for a verdict on his car. The telephone fell and hit him on the head. When he came to he discovered that his watch and a pair of valuable binoculars were missing. With these few unimportant exceptions, all went well for Joe until he was leaving Escanaba. His new and even more newly overhauled car was met head on by a farmer speedster and reduced to minute particles. All Joe was able to save were a number of contracts. Mr. Schneider wishes to announce that he is now driving a new Buick, and that in the future when he walks, it will be in the middle of the street to avoid falling buildings.

The Opera House, Wittenberg, under management of Walter Kersten, was threatened by fire recently, when the building in which it is located was partially burned.

Arthur Richter has taken over the Paris Theatre which was formerly managed by Jacob Wolf. Mr. Richter for the past few months has been managing the Pastime Theatre in the absence of Leo Behring, who has just returned from a trip abroad.

Ralph Masiman, of the Rex Theatre of Oshkosh, spent a few hours in local exchanges recently.

J. Heft, manager of the Pastime Theatre at Horicon, was in Milwaukee for the Fair and incidentally called on his friends along Film Row.

R. W. J. Bettis has joined the Fox sales staff and has been assigned to central Wisconsin territory.

William Roob, of the Grand Theatre, Port Washington, spent a few hours in local exchanges during the last week.

Frank Sutter has sold his interests in the Lincoln Theatre, Milwaukee, to Stephen Blum.

E. G. Bregger, manager of the Gem, is building a new house in Crystal Falls, Mich.

Saxe's Savoy, closed for a few days for alterations, has re-opened as one of Milwaukee's finest outlying theatres. Among the changes are an enlarged stage to permit more elaborate presentations, change in the lighting system from direct to indirect, a new organ of latest type, rugs in the aisles, and a new scheme of interior decoration.

A 7-piece orchestra has been added. Henry Perlewitz is manager and part owner.

Miss Grant, office manager of M-G-M, Milwaukee branch, has returned from her vacation, full of pep; she says she had a good rest and a good time.

A. L. Merritt, Holland, Mich., manager of the Princess Theatre at Oconto, combined a little business with the pleasure of attending the Fair for he was seen in various exchanges. Mr. Merritt finds time between his flying trips across the Bay to drop an occasional fly into his favorite trout streams and reports great success in the closing week of the season.

J. C. Flynn, vice-president of Producers Distributing Corporation, is expected in Milwaukee very soon. He is making a 35-day trip visiting the exchanges throughout the country.

A. B. Huff, of Port Washington, dropped in at the local exchanges for a visit. His new theatre now under construction is progressing satisfactorily, and he expects to open about the 1st of December. The contest he is conducting in Port Washington by which he will choose a name for his house, is now reaching a point of great interest, and suggestions are fairly flooding him.

Paul Conley, manager of the Majestic Theatre, Reedsburg, was among out-of-town exhibitors in the city.

H. B. Ironfield, formerly statistician in Fox's New York offices, is now booker for Fox's Milwaukee exchange.

Albany

PAUL SMITH, formerly of the local Pathe office, but now of New Haven, was in town during the week on his way to Montreal, where he is spending a portion of his vacation.

Ed Hochstim is now handling the Associated Exhibitors' product out of Albany, but without being assigned to any particular territory.

W. A. V. Mack, midwestern division sales manager for Pathe, was in town during the week.

Uly S. Hill, manager of the Strand houses in Troy and Schenectady, is a Tunney fan and an autographed picture of the fighter adorns Mr. Hill's desk.

Bob Yates, manager of the Arcade in Lake George Village, will be in town some day this week, and plans to go on the road with a vaudeville attraction later on.

Several Universal officials were in town during the past week, including Earl Kramer, eastern division sales director, and Julius Singer, from the home office. E. D. Leishman, of New York, was also in town for a day, inspecting the new quarters which Universal is occupying.

Mrs. Dennis Regan, of the Star, in Greenwich, was in town during the week. She reports business as having been good during the summer, although operating on a three-day-a-week basis.

Betty Donnelly, billing clerk at the Pathe Exchange, is enjoying a vacation by auto and steamer, that includes Montreal and Buffalo.

Gardner Hall, in Troy, reopened last week after having been closed for three or four weeks to permit of renovation and redecoration.

Bert Gibbons, local manager for Bond, is not a bit superstitious, as is evidenced in the fact that the exchange moved last Friday into its new headquarters in the Exchange Building.

Frank X. Shay, of Schenectady, former president of the common council in that city, and for ten years manager of the Pearl Theatre there, has become a business partner of Morris Silverman, and will be associated with him in all of his enterprises.

James R. Grainger, general sales manager for Fox, paid a flying visit to Albany during the past week.

Tony Veiller has received a letter from Will Hays complimenting him on the address which he recently made before the Albany Rotary Club.

The young son of C. H. Buckley is back from a summer camp, bringing with him a medal testifying to the effect that he won the 75-pound boxing championship of the camp.

Isaiah Perkins, of Speculator, along Film Row during the past week, could talk of little other than Gene Tunney, who has been doing his training in the Adirondack town. Mr. Perkins hopes to be at the ringside on September 23.

Dick Melvin has joined the local Fox sales forces. Isador Schmertz, local manager for Fox, was on a business trip last week through the Catskills, and met many of his friends.

Proctor's Theatre in Troy, is scheduled to reopen about Sept. 13. A new $30,000 organ has been installed and the house has been redecorated throughout.

J. H. MacIntyre, who recently resigned as manager of Famous Players Exchange here, was in town last week on his way to Detroit, where he expects to locate. The week also brought to town

Bert Moran, of Pittsburgh, Pa., one-time manager of the Pathe Exchange here, who had been spending his vacation in Vermont.

Miss Jane Halloran, secretary of the Albany Film Board of Trade, is back at her desk after a vacation spent at Lake George. The Board met this week for the first time in several weeks and now will function on its regular schedule.

Joe Miller, representing Renown, of Buffalo, was in Albany during the week, calling on various exhibitors.

Harry Rose, of the King, in Troy, is back on the job, following a trip to Pennsylvania, where he officiated as best man at the wedding of his former college roommate.

Al V. Bothner, now of Mohawk, where he is handling Smalley interests, and who was one time a resident of Troy, proved himself a hero a week or so ago when he rescued a couple of children near Iliion. Mr. Bothner, after effecting the rescue, walked away without divulging his identity. Parents of the children, however, after considerable search, located Mr. Bothner and showered him with their thanks.

Kansas City

A NEAR calamity was narrowly averted Saturday night in the Globe Theatre, first-run downtown house of Kansas City, when a fire in the projection booth filled the auditorium with smoke. The damage was only slight and the diplomatic work of girl ushers calmed the crowd, which left the theatre in order.

With a new cooling system installed, the Globe Theatre, first-run house of Kansas City, managed by N. F. and William Flynn, has been doing a big business since its reopening last week. There actually have been complaints on the part of patrons concerning the violent change in temperature from the street to the theatre, according to William Flynn.

Defying ultra hot weather, the Empress Theatre, Kansas City, flung open its doors Saturday for the winter season and the first two days saw a good attendance.

Among the out-of-town exhibitors in the Kansas City market this week were: C. M. Pattee, Pattee Theatre, Lawrence, Kas.; C. L. McVey, Dreamland, Herington, Kas.; J. J. Newcomb, Newk's Theatre, Burlington, Kas.; "Doc" Miller, Miller theatres, Wichita, Kas.; Frank Whittam, Bonner Theatre, Bonner Springs, Kas.; Walter Wallace, Orpheum, Leavenworth, Kas.

Work on Universal Joplin-Egypt ian Theatre at Joplin, Mo., will start soon. Contracts between L. P. Larson, art director of United Studios of Chicago; Fred D. Jacobs, architect, and A. J. Olson, construction engineer. The theatre, which will seat 2,000, will cost $52,000 and will be domed to carry out the impression of an open air theatre.

If early indications are to be relied upon, Kansas City theatres are due for a prosperous winter season, both motion picture and legitimate. The Orpheum and Shubert theatres played to exceptionally good attendances their opening weeks, last week, despite hot weather.

J. J. Newcomb of Newk's Theatre, Burlington, Kas., has issued fair warning:

"I've just purchased a 'powerful six' and it's going to be mighty difficult for film salesmen to find me 'in' from now on," was his "proclamation."

The new Bonner Theatre, of Bonner Springs, Kas., managed by Frank Whittam, opened its doors Thursday. The house seats 700.

C. Claire Woods, manager of the Waldo Theatre, suburban house, of Kansas City, is confined to his bed as a result of blood poisoning in his left foot.

Here's an idea not so bad for other exchange managers to follow. Girl employees—and they're a lot of good looking ones—have agreed to give one kiss each to the winning salesman in the present play date drive. Ralph Heft, of that exchange, arrived for work an hour early the morning after the agreement was reached.

M. B. Shanberg and Herbert Woolf, of the Midland Theatre and Realty Company, of Kansas City, and R. C. LiBeau, Paramount district manager, attended the opening of the new Ambassador Theatre in St. Louis last week. Mr. Shanberg will be managing director of Loew's $4,000,000 theatre in Kansas City when that theatre is completed.

Samuel Harding, president of Capitol Enterprises, Kansas City, returned home from New York Saturday after an extended business trip in New York.

Gus Solomon, assistant general sales manager of the Red Seal Pictures Corp., of New York was a Kansas City visitor this week.

Another visitor was L. J. Allison, head booker at the First National branch in Des Moines, Ia.

One feature picture will be released each week by Midwest Film Distributors, Inc., according to the schedule announced by E. C. Rhoden, Kansas City manager.

Cecil Parkhurst, P.D.C. booker, was away from his desk several days last week, due to the death of a grandfather.

Miss H. Thomas is "pinch hitting" for Russell Borg in the booking department of Educational during the vacation of the latter.

E. L. Dyson, of Pathe, is another vacationist, as is A. A. Renfro, of the same company.

Stanley Mayer, of Fox, is being congratulated on winning one of the $100 prizes in the "Jimmie Granger Month" drive recently.

K. G. Howe, formerly with Paramount, has joined the Fox sales force.

Harry Taylor, Universal branch manager, is spending a vacation in Colorado while his chair at the office is being filled temporarily by Art Gebaur.

Charles Rogers, Associated Exhibitors official, was a Kansas City visitor.

G. L. Hickman, Pathe salesman, suffered bruises and lacerations about the face when his automobile collided with another car near Lewisburg, Kas.

Friday night H. W. McCarthy, Pathe salesman, "hit the road" this week after completing a vacation.

C. A. Schultz, P.D.C. branch manager, closed up his desk and hurried out into the territory in search of more contracts.

Joe Silverman, president of Independent Film Corp., Kansas City, returned from New York, this week.

New England

MRS. ALICE A. DADMUN, for some years associated with her husband, Leon E. Dadmun, in theatrical enterprises in suburban Boston, died Friday at her home in Harvard, Mass. She was for many years a resident of Somerville, Mass.

Miss Beth Donnelly, biller at Warner Bros., Boston, has returned from a vacation passed at Onset.

Miss Sadie Gotz, formerly with Franklin Films, Inc., Boston, has resigned her position with the Tiffany Exchange, Boston.

Paramount's new exchange building in Arlington Square, Boston, is rapidly nearing completion and preparations are started to move into the new building within a month.

Mrs. Nellie Riva, owner of the Pastime Theatre at Tilton, N.H., was a visitor to Boston's Film Row during the week.

Houston

RED MARKERT, former publicity and advertising man for Metro-Goldwyn, in Hollywood, has been appointed director of publicity and advertising for the Wm. Horwitz five theatres. Markert has also been identified with Los Angeles theatres.

The Liberty Theatre will play first run pictures in the future.

This announcement was made several days ago after a fling and first and second run pictures for the past year.

Abe Silverberg, manager of the Crown, Folly and Olympia, has returned from a business trip to Dallas.

Frank O. Starz, director of publicity for the Interstate Amusement Co., is in town with a new bag of tricks. Starz and Eddie Breamer, local Interstate managers, are making a big drive for fall business.

A large pipe organ is being installed in the Royal Theatre and will be used to play pictures exclusively. The pipes and the console will be in the balcony. It is a Wurlitzer orchestra type organ.

Al Lever, former manager of the Isis and Liberty theatres, has returned from the New Orleans office of the Saenger Amusement Co., where he attended a general convention of Saenger managers.

Denver

THE Fox and Educational exchanges have moved their branch offices in Denver to 2140 and 2144 Champa Street, respectively. The new location is in a new, high class and specially constructed building, near the present Film Building, located at Broadway and Stout streets. Every employee, from the manager on down, has been working night and day for the last two days carefully arranging their offices and fixtures in the new building. Mr. A. P. Archer, Educational manager, and Mel Wilson, Fox manager, both claim to have the best equipped and best fire-proof exchange in the city.

The Parco Theatre of Pareo, Wyo., operated by Frank Emery, of the Overland Hotels Co., will close its doors on September 6th. Lack of business is given as the reason for the closing, which will be for an indefinite period.

Tom Love, owner and operator of theatres in Hanna and MeGeath, Wyo., arrived in Denver last Monday for a combined business and pleasure trip. Mr. Love looks forward to an exceptionally good theatre season this year.

G. E. Rosenwald, Universal manager, is making an extensive sales trip in the Wyoming territory. He will return to Denver the latter part of the first week in September.

Jean Cox, special auditor for Universal, arrived in Denver Monday for a visit with the local Universal branch office.

S. B. Rahn, Pathe manager, and

Eugene Gerbase, manager of Associated Exhibitors, spent the week out on sales trips to Greeley, Ft. Collins and other points in that district.

William Delahoyd, manager of the Whiting Theatre, Thermopolis, Wyo., made one of his rare trips to Denver this week. He spent several days visiting exchanges arranging bookings for the coming winter months.

Jim Lynch, of Laramie, was another Wyoming exhibitor visitor this week. Mr. Lynch is president of the Wyoming Theatre Managers Association.

Burt New, representative of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, was a visitor in the city for a day this week. Mr. New is vacationing in the west, visiting friends at various points.

The Aladdin Theatre, which promises to be Denver's most elegant suburban first-run house, is rapidly nearing completion. Workmen are now spending their time on the exterior of the building. The grand opening is expected to take place in the latter part of September. Mr. H. E. Huffman, owner of the Bluebird and Bidawee theatres and president of the M.P.T.O. of Colorado, is the promoter of the enterprise.

The first-run Curtis Street theatres of Denver, are now enjoying the usual good business experienced at this time of year. All theatres are standing them out nearly every night and good attendance is reported at the matinee shows.

Minneapolis

EPH ROSEN, former manager of Minneapolis branch, F. B. O., has become manager for Associated Exhibitors succeeding Louis Hummell, who resigned last week.

Every exhibitor in Iowa will be bombarded with requests to join the Motion Picture Theatre Owners Association of Iowa, that organization decided last week when it named September 15 as Drive Day.

Work is to begin on a new house at Galva, Wis., it is announced with opening expected before Christmas.

The Door Theatre at Sturgeon Bay, Wis., has installed a new organ.

The World Theatre, Sioux City, Ia., has reopened after being remodeled, according to Nathan Dax, manager.

Ed Weisner, on his vacation from First National's Milwaukee branch, is supervising changes in his Classic Theatre at Watertown, Wis.

The Michaelson Amusement Company, operating two theatres at Madison, Wis., has bought the Magee at Evansville, Wis., from George Magee.

Phelps, Wis., will have a community theatre. The Northern Lakes Company has been formed there to build it.

George Bergem Post, American Legion, has just reopened its theatre at Underwood, Minn., after closing for a few months.

Finkelstein & Ruben have reopened the Rex at Virginia, Minn., after closing for the summer.

F. A. Peterson reports that work on the new Aberdeen, S.D. theatre of Walker Amusement Company is being rushed.

D. W. Buckley has just opened the New Topic Theatre at Fairfax, Minn., owned by Fairfax Realty Company. He is the son of Ed Buckley, Olivia, Minn., exhibitor.

Universal Chain Theatre enterprises will begin construction next week on the new $600,000 theatre at Kenosha, Wis.

A. M. Van Dyke has resigned from the Fox sales force in Minneapolis and is returning to New York.

George Turner has transferred from Universal to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Minneapolis sales staff.

A. Ziehl, of the Liberty Theatre, Austin, Wis., has reopened his house after summer closing and announced he will build a new building to seat 800.

Detroit

CONSTRUCTION has begun on the new Fox Theatre which is to be located on Woodward Ave., between Montcalm and Columbia avenues. The old buildings are being razed and excavating will start in a few weeks.

The seventh annual convention of the M.P.T.O. of Michigan will be held October 5th and 6th at the Post Tavern Hotel in Battle Creek, Mich. Manager H. M. Richey has been busy lining out a lively program, which will include a golf tournament on the 4th of October. During the past year the membership has been greatly increased, therefore this year's jubilee should top them all.

F. V. Nichols has taken over the State Theatre in Grand Rapids from George Spaeth, who will continue operating the Temple.

Ray Moon, Detroit branch manager of Universal, is attending the Pittsburgh conference.

James R. Grainger, general sales manager for Fox Film Corp., has paid the local exchange a short visit last week.

Jack Daly is now connected with A.B.C. as booker, after being away from the film business for over a year. He succeeds S. K. Decker who is now with P.D.C.

Robert E. Cotton, district manager for Producers Distributing Corporation, was recently taken ill on the train while on his way to Detroit. Mr. Cotton was taken to the Statler Hotel and although under the care of a doctor, it did not keep him from carrying on with his work, as the sales force assisted him.

The Irving Theatre at Brightmoor opened Wednesday evening with a number of film men present. The Irving is the latest and newest theatre of the Henry S. Koppin Circuit. The lobby was decorated with flowers which were sent by different film people, wishing Mr. Koppin success.

They are two expert hand ball players in the Film Exchange Bldg. One is Frank Howard, city salesman for P.D.C. and the other is Lou Cohen, of the Colonial Theatre. Frank had beaten Lou two games the other day. They both are looking for challengers, but it seems as there are no other hand ball lovers in the building as yet.

St. Louis

TENTATIVE plans for the St. Louis Film Board of Trade dinner to managers, assistant managers, office managers, bookers and salesmen, to be held on Monday evening, September 13, have been prepared by a special committee, composed of Harry Weiss, chairman; James Harris, George McKean, and Jack O'Toole.

It is probable that the dinner will be given at Sappington Inn, in St. Louis and about 150 guests are expected.

Branch operation methods will be discussed at the gathering. The elimination of bicycling, the unscrupulous salesman and other undesirable conditions in the film business will be taken up.

Out-of-town exhibitors seen along Picture Row during the past week were Charley Goodnight, De Soto, Mo.; Herman Ferguson, Malden, Mo.; Theodore Coleman, Mount Carmel, Ill.; Verne Coffman, Moweaqua, Ill.; Jim Reilly, Alton, Ill.; Tom Reed, Duquoin, Ill., and C. E. Brady, Cape Girardeau, Mo.

Ned E. Depinet, sales manager for First National, was a recent visitor. He was loud in his praises of Skouras Brothers' Ambassador Theatre, which will be the St. Louis first-run house for First National Pictures.

The office building section of the Ambassador Theatre Building will be opened on October 1, according to M. Turley, local manager for Isaac T. Cook & Company.

Music Chief Support To Picture Entertainment

AN INTERVIEW WITH MAJOR EDWARD M. BOWES

By L. C. Moen

PLANNING the elaborate weekly programs of the Capitol Theatre in New York City, plus the weekly radio broadcasting program of the "Capitol Family," makes Major Edward M. Bowes, managing director, one of the busiest executives along Broadway, although he never permits the pressure of affairs to alter his unruffled calm and sincere courtesy.

We mention this matter of personality because it has an important bearing on the conduct of the Capitol Theatre entertainment corps. The phrase "Capitol Family," used in connection with the broadcast program, is no idle idle one. Some rehearsals in other theatres are a series of sham battles, marked by personal recriminations and noisy friction. Such is never the case at the Capitol. Rehearsals go off quietly and smoothly, and no voice is ever raised above a conversational tone. Major Bowes sits at a small desk, halfway down the centre aisle, with a microphone before him which connects with speakers in various quarters, which eliminates shouting and noise.

The Capitol harmony, however, is more than a matter of mechanical apparatus. It is a reflection of the personality of its director, Major Bowes, who remains unhurried, patient and pleasant in the midst of the most trying situations. This, naturally enough, is reflected in the personnel around him.

Preparations at the Capitol Theatre on a particularly important picture may go on for weeks in advance. The Capitol probably uses more specially written and orchestrated music than any picture house in America, and this demands time.

The work of program preparation goes on smoothly and steadily from week to week on a regular schedule. On Monday, work begins on the program for the following week. The orchestra, the vocalists, the ballet corps, the stage staff, each prepares and rehearses and perfects its portion of the program. Toward the end of the week, these rehearsals become more finished and more exacting. Then comes a rehearsal of the orchestra with the feature, a dress rehearsal of the stage acts. Lighting effects are worked out. On Saturday night, after the stage has been cleared, the new scenery is hung and a full, complete rehearsal for lights, costume and music held. This rehearsal is important, for the Capitol demands just as good a performance on Sunday afternoon as at the last show on Saturday night.

On Friday night the Capitol staff makes its selection of news weekly shots for the Capitol Events reel. Accidents, disasters, wrecks and the like find scant favor at the Capitol. Subjects are selected for human interest, for novelty or for timeliness, but never for sensationalism.

The news shots selected are then assembled into a reel, building up a definite continuity for smoothness and contrast. The effort is made to open with something intriguing and to close with a scene which lends itself to a stirring musical finale.

Major Bowes believes that music will play an even greater role in picture theatres the coming year than ever before.

"The Capitol Grand Orchestra unquestionably has been a powerful factor in the building up of our regular clientele," says Major Bowes, "and is a tremendous feature of our programs. There have always been an enormous number of patrons who have paid particular attention to this portion of the entertainment and we have increasing evidence, day by day, that this number is growing and that the artistic taste and appreciation of audiences are improving as well.

"We have proved this conclusively by a chart which we keep, on which is rated my estimation of the popularity of various overtures and important ballet numbers. On this chart, each selection is given a percentage corresponding to its popular appeal. We have found that overtures which

Equipment Worthwhile

—By P. M. ABBOTT—

WE have been preparing an article on motion picture equipment for publication in the Annals of the American Academy of Political and Social Science. At first, we thought that such an article would require few words if equipment was reviewed only in a general way. However, we have found our first conclusion to be entirely wrong; many are needed for this brief summary.

Furthermore, we have had brought home to us, most forcibly, the variety of types of apparatus which comprise the broad field covered by the term "motion picture equipment," which begins with the manufacture of raw stock and goes on through the studio, laboratory, exchange and theatre.

But, even more remarkable than the variety of this equipment is its ability for doing precision work, for the machinery and methods employed are always governed by the task of producing a product which, when magnified some 180 diameters, or 30,000 times in area and presented at a tremendous speed, will be free of any obvious blemishes.

Taken all in all, our equipment is deserving of more attention than has been paid it. Especially is it deserving of greater consideration from those branches of the industry that have little direct connection with it but derive greatest returns. We refer to producing companies.

For example, a few dollars spent by these companies in support of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers would be an excellent investment. These engineers have been working diligently and unselfishly for the betterment of pictures for ten years.

With equipment playing such an important part in the success of pictures and with the remarkable developments which are accredited to this phase of the business, it can only be hoped that more of the resources of the industry will be utilized to aid this work in the future.

Music As Box Office Factor in Picture Theatres

were not popular and rated during the early part of last year as too obscure for motion picture audiences, have moved up by the end of the year from a rating of 65 per cent to 85 per cent. Similarly overtures and ballets which were rated at 85 per cent in popularity have moved up to the 100 per cent class and some of those sure-fire overtures which were originally 100 per cent, have passed entirely out of the list as having become too ordinary and hackneyed for our audiences."

Permanent Ballet Corps

Similar artistic emphasis is placed by Major Bowes on the ballet performances at the Capitol. It was his desire to make of the Capitol Ballet a permanent feature, resembling in organization the Metropolitan Ballet, which would be sufficiently flexible and adaptable to meet the diversified requirements of the programs each week. With this objective in mind, Major Bowes conceived the idea of establishing a ballet school, in which young dancers of outstanding talent could be trained in the sound principles of the ballet and developed along the special lines required in the ballets from week to week.

Chester Hale, a young American, who has himself achieved distinction as a dancer and director of ballets both in this country and Europe, is in charge of the school. There is no tuition fee and recruits have come from every part of the country. The results, according to Major Bowes, have been entirely gratifying.

Dances an Attraction

"Our ballet corps," he says, "is now an integral part of the institution. Practising and rehearsing together day after day has given it a unity and precision which could not possibly have been achieved in any other way. With this corps of dancers, constantly in training, we are able to present ballets of an elaborate nature and scope which would have been impossible otherwise. In fact, when one considers that each week's ballet is performed with only a few days of actual rehearsal, and that its first performance on Sunday afternoon must be perfect in every detail, we may take pardonable pride in the fact that this portion of our entertainment has been ranked in importance with that of the big revue."

With the regular ballet corps as a background, freshness is given to each week's performances by the engagement of prominent dancers as guest artists.

New Price Scale in Force at Newman Theatre

A change in price scale has been adopted at the Newman Theatre, Paramount leased house of Kansas City. Prior to 1 o'clock on Saturdays, Sundays and Holidays, admittance will be 40 cents for adults and 20 cents for children, instead of 25 and 15 cents as previously.

Price Increase at Grand Forks

Admission prices have been raised at Grand Forks, N.D. Benny Berger and his three theatres and F. & R. with one will charge more hereafter.

ADVERTISING COSTS AT A GLANCE

The chart shown above was designed by C. L. McVey, manager of the Dreamland Theatre, Herington, Kans., and which he states he has used for a number of years to keep a record of his advertising costs on features and short subjects. The forms are blue-printed at a cost of 6 cents each. Each form covers a month's transactions. The advertising accessories ordered from the exchanges are entered on the blank under headings provided for specific items. These are checked against the invoice. Any shortage is noted in the adjoining space under the heading of the item concerned and a circle drawn around it. A check mark is made if the invoice agrees with the order record on the handy desk chart—which provides a convenient means and a reliable system for showing the pictures played and the money spent for advertising material.

Palace Theatre, Windsor, Opens With New Policy

The Palace Theatre, Windsor, Ontario, recently acquired by Famous Players Canadian Corp., Toronto, along with the Capitol Theatre, Windsor, has re-opened under the personal management of Ed. Gilmore, after having been closed for two months for extensive alterations. The Palace will have a six-day policy, programs starting Saturdays. The first feature was "Nell Gwyn." The Palace Gang of Broadway Collegians provides special musical entertainment.

Alhambra Bills Stage Acts as "Allied Entertainment"

The Alhambra Theatre, Milwaukee, last week presented a strong stage bill in conjunction with the featured film "So This is Paris." The house advertising bills the stage number as "Allied Entertainment." The program last week was headed by Tanagra and Yonquino, Apache dancers, in an act titled "A Night in Paris." Don Sebastian, tenor, was the starred vocalist of the performance.

St. Louis Public Parking Space Open at Night

Skouras Brothers' $5,500,000 Ambassador Theatre has already made its presence felt in the night life of St. Louis, Mo., and as a result City Comptroller Louis Nolte plans to throw open the garage section of $1,000,000 Union Market Building at nights to accommodate persons seeking parking space downtown.

Heretofore the city's garage has been open only from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m., but since the new show house was opened finding space for parking of automobiles east of Twelfth Boulevard after 7 p.m. is almost as difficult as prior to 6 p.m.

So large are the crowds coming downtown at night to attend the Ambassador and also the Loew Theatre, that motorists are often forced to drive about the streets for half an hour seeking a parking space.

Loew's Metropolitan Opens in Cleveland

Loew's Metropolitan Theatre, Euclid Avenue and East 46th Street, Cleveland, opened last Sunday. The policy, to start with, will include a feature picture and three acts of vaudeville, and will be open evenings. Matinees are confined to Saturday and Sunday. Admission price is 30c for adults and 10c for children. George H. Dumond is managing the house. The Metropolitan will be operated as a second-run theatre.

Stage Acts to Be Tried Out at Albany Strand

New stage settings, as well as a new setting for the orchestra, has been installed in the Mark Strand in Albany, workmen being on the job all of Saturday night and throughout Sunday. Presentation acts will be given a try-out later on.

Inaugurate Split Week Policies

B. F. Keith Theatres at Portland, Me., and Lowell, Mass., have adopted a split week policy in keeping with other Keith houses in New England. Programs change Mondays and Thursdays.

The Maximum Emotional Effect

THE GENERAL USE of Panchromatic Negative in motion picture production means much in the way of improvement in the art.

USED WITHOUT A FILTER it helps the picture— with a filter, the color corrections are positively sensational. As one user has put it: “The use of ‘Pan’ gives the maximum emotional effect on the screen.”

EASTMAN PANCHROMATIC NEGATIVE is now the same price as ordinary negative. It keeps as well as ordinary negative and, except for the lighting in the darkroom, is developed in the same manner as ordinary negative.

Yet Eastman Panchromatic is an extraordinary product.

Publix Shows Open at Des Moines Capitol

First Program Under New Policy Scores at A. H. Blank Theatre

A. H. BLANK'S Capitol Theatre in Des Moines became one of the Publix Theatres last week, when the first program under the new policy for the theatre was introduced to capacity houses. The new presentations regime, following an effective advance campaign of advertising and exploitation, drew large crowds to the Capitol and the program registered very favorably with Des Moines theatregoers. Applause was generous at all performances.

The new bills open Saturdays at the Capitol. On Sundays five stage shows were presented: at 1.30, 3.00, 7.00 and 9.00 p.m.

The first program, which opened on Saturday, August 29, offered Colleen Moore in "It Must Be Love," as the screen feature, and Frank Cambria's stage production, "Love's Enchantment," was the stage attraction. An organ solo, "Birds of a Feather," played by L. Carlos Meier, was one of the musical features. The screen program also included a Fox news reel and a two-reel comedy, "Shore Shy," starring Billy Dooley.

The Des Moines, the other Blank house in that city, continues its usual policy of first-run photoplays with a stage number as an added attraction. Last week "The Son of the Sheik" was the photoplay offering and the stage program was headed by Rinehart and Duff in an act called "Songs of Today and Yesterday."

New Presentation Policy Starts at Garrick

The Garrick Theatre, operated in Duluth by Finkelstein and Ruben, last week inaugurated a new policy of more elaborate presentations in conjunction with first-run screen productions. The opening program offered "The Amateur Gentleman," Richard Barthelmess' new vehicle, as the feature picture. George Lyons, harp virtuoso, was the star of the stage show. The Garrick Entertainers, a permanent orchestra, under the direction of Miska, and Leonard M. Leigh, organist, are two of the regular features of the Garrick.

Lopez Star at Allen, Cleveland

Vincent Lopez and his orchestra is the star of the current bill at the Allen Theatre, Cleveland.

ATTEND SUMMER SCHOOL

The photo above shows the managers of the Saenger Theatres, Inc., houses who attended a course of lectures on Theatre Management conducted in New Orleans by John F. Barry, director of the Publix Theatre Managers Training School. The lectures constituted an intensive course designed for experienced managers and covered the subjects of sanitation, public safety and civic relations. The course given by Mr. Barry was arranged by E. V. Richards, Jr., vice-president and general manager of the Saenger Company.

DeCourville Revue Popular Success in Cleveland

"Zig Zag Revue," the first big presentation number put on at the Allen Theatre, Cleveland, last week, was the most pretentious affair ever locally attempted and caused the ropes to be in constant use to keep patrons in line waiting for seats. Staged by Albert DeCourville in eleven scenes, and featuring Cunningham and Clements, Billy Green and Miss Irby, it offered forty minutes of the best singing and dancing talent available. Several very attractive chorus numbers were presented.

Beban and Happiness Boys Shea's Buffalo Stars

The Happiness Boys (Billy Jones and Ernest Hare) radio headliners, were the star stage attraction at Shea's Buffalo, Buffalo, last week on a special program which offered George Beban in "The Loves of Ricardo" on the screen and stage. The Happiness Boys' appearance was advertised as their only personal appearance outside New York City this season.

Angelo's Syncopaters Now Feature at Loew's Park

Angelo Vitale has come up in the world. As musical director at Loew's Park Theatre, Cleveland, he has always been confined to the orchestral pit. Now he has a small band, called Angelo's Syncopaters, and they are putting on acts every week on the stage. This week their act is called "Angelo's Syncopaters in Hawaii." As the title infers, there was Hawaiian scenery, costumes and music.

Jack Arthur Presentations at Toronto Uptown

Famous Players Canadian Corp., Toronto, under the direction of N. L. Nathanson, managing director, opened its sixth season of "Capitol Entertainment" in Canada on September 4, a feature being the opening of the Uptown Theatre, Toronto, formerly controlled by Marcens Loew, as the home theatre of the chain of 100 Paramount houses in the Dominion, the film attraction being "Mantrap."

Special features arranged by Jack Arthur, director of presentations for the Uptown, for this opening included Aee Brigode and his 14 Virginians, Miss Leatrice Wood, former ingenue prima donna of "The Student Prince"; Jack Russell, feature dancer with Eddie Leonard in New York, and Jack Arthur and His Gang, the permanent orchestra of the Uptown.

Comedy Instrumentalist Is Stage Star at Capitol

Joe Termini, comedy instrumentalist, was one of the featured performers on the stage program offered at the Capitol, St. Paul, last week. Feature honors were shared by Bernard Ferguson, baritone. The Capitol's screen attraction was "It Must Be Love." A comedy and news reel completed the picture program.

Joe Rae Orchestra Regular Feature at Embassy

A new presentation idea for Baltimore was established recently at the Embassy Theatre, where Joe Rae and His Night-hawks have been retained as a regular feature. The jazz organization has become the regular orchestra of the house and each week appears on the stage in a different act with singers and dancers filling in.

Rubinoff to Tour Loew's Presentation Houses

David Rubinoff has left the directorship of the Allen Theatre in Cleveland to make a tour of the Loew presentation houses throughout the country. Myron Roman is wielding the baton at the Allen until late in September, when Philip Spitalny will return as resident conductor.

"Stars of Tomorrow" at Rialto

The Rialto Theatre, Omaha, presented the act "Stars of Tomorrow," in which Birdie Dean and the DeMarr twins are featured in a program of dances, as the stage attraction last week.

There are excellent reasons why you should know the Ⓜ Major System better. The facts and estimates are yours upon request.

The Greatest Lighting Control For Theatres

The Ⓜ Major System was the first real departure from the crude forty-year-old methods of light control in use ten years ago. Its success was due to correct basic principles and a continuous development keeps it far in the lead. Hundreds and hundreds of theatres, among them all of the largest and finest playhouses in this country, have Ⓜ Major Systems.

It is easy to see why. It pays at the box-office.

The Ⓜ Major System provides safe, flexible, trouble-proof and errorless lighting effects. It will set up any desired number of scenes in advance, changeable upon cue by the action of only one switch. It can be varied in size to fit any theatre and any type of performance. Considering its many advantages not obtainable in any other and its high quality, it is the least expensive stage switchboard built.

Detroit's New Michigan Theatre Opens

Many Unusual Features Incorporated in Latest Picture Palace Erected by the Kunsy-Balaban & Katz Interests

FROM all reports, as the huge sign on the John H. Kunsy-Balaban & Katz Michigan Theatre flashed into action with its message to Detroiters, that city took its place among the leaders in the theatre world. The new house, which represents the combined resources and experience of the Kunsy and B. & K. interests, opened its doors to Detroit's public at noon Monday, August 23.

It took nearly two years to build the Michigan Theatre, which is located on Bagley Avenue off Grand Circus Park. It represents the fulfillment of the first unit of a $75,000,000 development program by a syndicate of leading Detroit financiers, who expect to anchor Detroit's business district which has "floated" from Cadillac Square, to a half dozen locations.

Rapp & Rapp, architects for all of Balaban & Katz theatres, have probably given their finest work here. There are no "mistakes" in the theatre, either in construction, color scheme, decoration or anywhere.

The main lobby, nearly a block long and five stories high, is of French-Italian renaissance period. Thousands of French mirrors give the creators, held theatre goers for hours before and after they enter the theatre. In the theatre, concealed cove lighting in dozens of color circuits turn plaster into beautiful lace; "hanging ceilings" become rich sunsets, niches and retreats are romantic, inviting spots for your imagination to play in.

A balcony with 2,000 seats, a mezzanine with 900, and the main floor, with the rest of the 5,000 seats, all "closeups" and exactly the same as to comfort and commanding view of the show and beauty of theatre, gives the reason for the one-price-for-any-seat policy.

The stage, modern in every respect, with every mechanical device anyone has ever heard of, is big enough to present a full-sized circus if necessary. The orchestra platform is of the disappearing type, and the organ console also. At the conductor's stand, telephone, house telephone, individual signals for each musician, warning signals, and other devices help the conductor to keep control of the show. The organ, built by Wurlitzer, was perfect on the opening performance, and the object of much comment because of its five double-touch manuals and its great instrumental resources, it being asserted that it is the equivalent of a 200-piece orchestra.

Ample retiring and dressing rooms for orchestra and performers are modern and lavishly outfitted with all comforts.

On the opening day, notable visitors included Harold Franklin, general manager of Publix theatres; Eugene Zukor, vice-president of Publix; Herbert L. Stern, president of Balaban & Katz; Lawrence Stern, of the Lawrence Stern Investment Company, all members of the Balaban & Katz firm as well as executive heads.

Following are the unusual features, which, the owners claim, will focus the eyes of the theatre world upon the new Michigan Theatre:

It cost nearly $5,000,000 to complete, with 5,000 seats, largest electric signs in Middle West; latest type cooling plant; $200,000 collection of paintings, sculptures, antiques, etc.

As the Michigan Theatre appeared on the night of its premiere, Aug. 23. Note the huge sign atop the new playhouse and the equally attractive one above the marquee

It is the first theatre in the world to use "resonators" under each musician in orchestra, to increase music volume 50%.

Balaban & Katz service and policy of operation brought to fine degree of perfection by Captain John T. Knight, West Point graduate and World War hero, who is now general theatre supervisor for Balaban & Katz, and who originated the plan. Walter Immerman, former manager of "The Chicago," is manager of "The Michigan," with Richard Davis, former assistant at "Tivoli," next in command.

Italian-French Renaissance architecture, giving theatre lobby best points from Tivoli and Chicago theatres in Chicago. Wall of French mirrors gives illusion of immense depth and height.

Largest stage switchboard in the world, which controls the "symphony of light" that synchronizes music and picture.

Publix theatres stage attractions, augmented by an additional stage event produced in Chicago by Frank C. Cambria.

Perfect acoustics, obtained by nearly three score separate feats of acoustical engineering, which include for first time in history of stage, music, or modern construction "tuning girders"; porous cement wall-surfaces; art-plaster carved figures; special draperies; special contrast in auditorium lines; sound-chambers, and the adoption of a radio principle which "grounds" extraneous noises.

A campaign of newspaper, street, screen and air publicity, planned and executed by Benj. Serkovich, of the Balaban & Katz organization, in conjunction with William K. Hollander of the same firm, and Howard O. Pierce, for the Kunsy Enterprises. This campaign proved to be the most astonishing Detroit has ever had, in point of newspaper space, and public attention, directed towards the "selling" of each individual feature of the theatre, mode of operation, contents and programs.

Theatre construction, luxury, convenience, operation, and shows that represent the combined resources and experience of John H. Kunsy and Balaban & Katz organizations at their zenith.

Leach Outlines Plans for New Miami House

W. A. Leach, a director of Paramount Enterprises, Inc., Miami, Fla.; has announced that excavation work for the $750,000 Valencia Theatre to be erected on Washington Avenue at 13th Street, will start during the early part of September, 1926.

According to plans the Valencia will outrival the Miami Olympia in size and beauty and will have a seating capacity of approximately 2,000. Eight stores will be included in the building on either side of the arched entrance and an ornamental tower will surmount the structure.

First run offerings will be featured on the program; however, a large stage, designed to accommodate legitimate productions as well as vaudeville has been provided so that the bill may be varied during the winter season.

The Valencia will be the fourth theatre for Miami Beach and eighth in the chain of Paramount Enterprises, Inc. The holdings include the new Fotosho, under construction on E. Flagler Street, the Community, Strand and Biscayne-Plaza, Miami Beach; the latter nearing completion; the Olympia, Paramount, Fotosho, Hippodrome and Fairfax theatres in Miami and the Coral Gables Theatre, Coral Gables.

John Eberson, Chicago architect, who drew the plans for the Olympia Theatre and office building, designed the Valencia. Mr. Leach plans to have the new playhouse open before the end of Winter.

St. Jo House Rebuilt and Renamed "Revere"

The Sun Amusement Company's newest motion picture theatre in St. Joseph, Mo., is the entirely rebuilt Penn Theatre. It has been renamed the Revere and is located at Twenty-sixth and Penn streets. The remodeling, which has included new heating and cooling plants and a rearrangement of seats, has made the new Revere a strictly up-to-the-minute playhouse.

The Sun Amusement and Realty Company, of which Edward J. Peskay is president; Barney Dubinsky, vice-president, and Fred Greenburg, secretary-treasurer, owns and controls the Rivoli, the Frederick Avenue house and the Rialto, now under construction, in St. Joseph.

Chattanooga House Gets $40,000 Overhaul

One of the largest building permits recently granted in Chattanooga, Tenn., has to do with the remodeling of the American Theatre in that city and owned by the Independent Theatre Corp. The house will be closed for two months during the summer during which time over $40,000 will be spent on enlargement of the stage and the erection of a suitable balcony. The entire building will also be redecorated and modernized.

Another for Crawfordsville, Ind.

Arthur Jackson, owner and operator of the Strand and Arc theatres of Crawfordsville, Ind., and another house in Noblesville, Ind., has announced plans for the construction of a third theatre for Crawfordsville. According to report the new house will be one of the largest in Western Indiana.

Announce New Model Camera

Bell & Howell Latest Instrument "Puts the Neighborhood in the Movies"

THERE is probably no man in the motion picture industry who is called upon to face more trying or hazardous situations than the News Cinematographer. These men are constantly at their posts, many of them stationed in sleeping quarters equipped with police and fire-alarm bells. Consequently, when big news breaks, they are on the spot as quickly as the police, firemen, reporters and others who are indispensable at the "big scenes."

The paramount requirement at such a moment is speed, speed and more speed. To this requirement the seven-pound automatic Eyemo professional camera has been manufactured. It eliminates the tripod, burdensome carrying cases and luggage which were associated with the heavier types of standard motion picture cameras.

The problem of portability solved, the next objective has been to give the firing-line boys all the photographic flexibility which they had learned to expect from the larger cameras. Once on the job and "ready to shoot," it is up to the camera in use to produce any or all effects which may enhance the news or commercial value of the film.

Bell & Howell Company, who gave the profession the Eyemo Camera out of their vast experience in making professional machines, now announce a new feature which will slow the motion down one-half when film is projected at normal speed.

With this new mechanism the Eyemo operator can take pictures at the rate of 32 per second to gain the slow motion effect, or simply by shifting a lever, photograph at the normal speed of 16 exposures per second.

This range of adjustment is a very valuable supplement to the former Eyemo speed range of 16 to 8 exposures per second, or from normal to half normal. The newer speed mechanism can be fitted to any Eyemo Camera now in use, or if preferable, can be obtained in a camera of the same design.

With these two mechanisms the Eyemo is ready to cover practically any assignment in which a portable automatic camera would be used in preference to the larger cameras.

The most recent activity of Eyemo is "putting the neighborhood in the movies"—the new idea which local exhibitors are rapidly taking up. And in all these activities the value of Eyemo will be greatly enhanced by the new speed feature which gives it a thoroughly professional range.

That it has many fields of usefulness, is proven by its records already made in various fields. For example, Eyemo is used by many of leading producers to scoop news reel pictures.

Others use it for getting stunt shots, special effects and testing locations in professional productions.

Among the epoch-making exploring expeditions which were Eyemo equipped are: Byrd Polar, Amundsen-Ellsworth Polar, Speerjax, Behring Sea, Third Asiatic, Smithsonian-Chrysler to Africa, African and Mongolian of the American Museum of Natural History, and the U. S. Dept. of Interior Geological Survey.

Particulars may be had by addressing the editor, or the Bell & Howell Co., 1801 Larchmont Avenue, Chicago.

With this new portable camera, the operator can take pictures at the rate of 32 per second to gain the slow motion effect. By a shift of a lever, it photographs at the rate of 16 exposures per second

Inquiries and Comments

The Good and the Bad

ITHIN the short space of four years, the mirror are has become firmly established in the field of picture projection and has all but displaced the old type employing condensers.

The cream, at least, has been skimmed from the top, so that the rate of change from the old are to the mirror type can be expected to diminish until the resistance of the die-hards is finally overcome.

It hardly seems likely that the older vertical carbon type will ever be entirely eliminated, since it possesses certain peculiar advantages not to be found in the other.

Film Buckling

Chief among these is its lower operating temperature. By this is meant the temperature of the film, since it is now generally agreed that the reflector are possesses a serious disadvantage in that it raises the temperature of the film to such a point that, even while moving rapidly, the film tends to buckle and curl.

It is to be expected, of course, that an increase in operating efficiency (increased screen illumination) is also accompanied by an increase in the heat radiation passing through the aperture. A similar case is that of the incandescent lamp, which raised the same hullabaloo when its appearance on the market was made general.

In this case, however, the heat, while greater than that found in the old type of are system, was not great enough to cause the bad effects now claimed for the reflector are.

The increased heat energy passing through the aperture, in the case of the incandescent lamp, however, was largely due to the nature of the source itself in combination with the extreme angle of the light cone issuing from the condenser and intercepted by the objective lens.

In other words, it was due to a combination of increased operating efficiency and a relatively greater proportion of heat rays to light emitted by the source.

The mirror are, on the other hand, particularly the types employing a mirror without a condensing lens, derives its increased heating effect from an increased operating efficiency (large angle of light through aperture) in combination with a low heat loss between the are and the aperture.

In other words, the lack of glass (acting as a heat absorber) between the crater and the aperture, via the mirror, only serves to aggravate a situation which already is bad because of pushing the are to the limit.

Burning Up the Screen

In this connection, the attitude of the average exhibitor toward the mirror are question can be expressed as follows: "We get so much for so little that it seems foolish to use 12 or 15 amperes when, by using 20 to 25 we can get a brilliantly lighted screen.

Without stopping to dispute the logic, or rather illogic, of such a position, we can pass on to one of the immediate results of such uncalled for overcrowding of the are in the average theatre.

Complaints are being received that mirror are projection is accompanied by a lack of definition in the picture on the screen. Indeed, reports have been received of a number of cases where the reflector are has been replaced with its predecessor, the vertical are with condensers.

The cause, as explained by one projectionist, lies in the buckling, or warping, of the film to such an extent that the projection lens cannot focus all points on the film, with the result that the screen picture lacks perfect definition over its entire area.

Worse with Short E. F. Lenses

Furthermore, it appears that on short throws, or where objective lenses having a small E. F. are likely to be used, the inability of the lenses to focus the buckled film is quite apparent, whereas, with lenses having a long E. F. it is not so bad.

This is not surprising in view of the fact that a short focal length lens (or mirror) is more sensitive to misadjustment than one having a relatively long focal length.

The reason for this variation in sensitivity with change in focal length is due simply to the percentage difference between the adjustment errors under the different conditions.

As an example, in which the conditions are exaggerated, suppose we consider the case of a 4 in. E. F. projection lens projecting a film which has certain points on its area .01 in. out of the focal plane. The error, expressed as a percentage would be .01

$$- \times 100 = 0.25 \text{ of } 1 \text{ per cent.}$$

Now consider an 8 in. E. F. lens projecting the same film under the same conditions. .01

$$\text{The error would be } - \times 100 = 0.125 \text{ of one}$$ per cent, or just half of that of the 4 in. lens.

It is not surprising, therefore, that under some conditions slight film warping would not show up under a long E. F. lens, whereas, it would be noticeable with a short focal length lens.

That Living Wage

We hear that on the first of this month, unless an agreement is reached, the motion picture projectionists of Detroit will (or have) exercise their prerogatives and go on strike for higher wages.

The local's contract with Detroit exhibitors expires August 31, and in anticipation of this event, a new wage scale has been drafted by the officers of the local, which is claimed to be more equitable under the present conditions.

Detroit exhibitors apparently are in little sympathy with the proposed wage scale, and so far, have offered no acceptance of the provisions embraced by it.

How the Union Feels About It

As is usual in such cases, there are two sides to be heard from and in response to a statement by H. M. Richey, general manager of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners' Association of Michigan, in which the exhibitor's position is explained, J. A. McDonald, business manager of the local, has the following to say:

"The union's contract with the exhibitors in Detroit expires August 31, and we are asking for an increase in wages for operators.

"The average salary for operators now is only $46.29 a week, and not $60.00, as Mr. Richey reported. We are asking for an average wage of $65.80. The increase we ask for, according to our wage scale, will vary in different theatres from $5.00 to $30.00 a week per man, bringing the minimum wage to $45.00 and the maximum to $100.00. However, there will be only three moving picture houses in the city affected by the $30.00 increase."

Theatres to Close

Mr. Richey made the statement that there are 155 theatres in Detroit, and 125 had signed an agreement to close their doors September 1, as a means of combating the strike which projectionists threaten the first of the month if their increase is not granted.

This statement Mr. McDonald denies, saying that there are 166 theatres in greater Detroit and that 87 have already signed up with the union to increase the wage scale. The H. S. Koppin enterprises, which employs more projectionists than any other interest in the city, are reported to be in agreement with the union's wage demands.

Out of 89 theatres visited by the union's representatives, 87 are claimed to have signed the agreement, one refused, and one was undecided.

According to Mr. McDonald, the demands of the union would mean an increase of $175,760 a year and not $250,000 as claimed by the exhibitors.

Claim Leo Moore Has Most Attractive Small Theatre in Iowa

LEO MOORE, exhibitor at Centerville, Iowa, has the prettiest 500-seat house in the state in the opinion of those who have visited his new theatre, the Ritz, which will soon be ready for its opening. The theatre is a remodelled house but it is hard to believe that it is anything but a brand new house.

Moore visited theatres at Kansas City, St. Louis, Chicago and Des Moines to get ideas for the construction of the Ritz before he started building. And the result is something unusually attractive in theatre construction for houses of that size. Those who made estimates on the cost of construction say they wouldn't be surprised if Moore had spent $25,000 on the Ritz. The building used was a two-story construction and the second story was used to form a balcony.

The theatre was redecorated inside and out and a stage added. The indirect lighting system and the panelled effect of the side walls is very effectively used. The drapes are some sort of foreign materials picked up by Mr. Moore in Kansas City. And they are not usual. A ticket office on the outside was built in the lobby, glass enclosed, the floor tiled and French doors used across the entrance to the lobby. All equipment was purchased through the Des Moines office of the Exhibitor's Supply Company.

It is thought that Mr. Moore will open the Ritz Theatre on September 1. He bought the theatre building five months ago from a Centerville business man. Mr. Moore is also owner of the Majestic Theatre at Centerville.

Arctic Nu-Air Holds Sales Convention

The Arctic Nu-Air Corporation held its national sales convention at Des Moines and Boone, Iowa (where the company's factory is located), on September 3 to 8 inclusive, nine district managers and fifty-five salesmen being in attendance.

A. S. Feinberg, treasurer and general manager of the company, presided. President George Feinberg was also on hand.

The highlights of Mr. Feinberg's address to the salesmen were: That fifteen hundred Arctic Nu-Air installations have been made in the past eight months; that the company has some new features to offer to theatre men, a system of control ventilators, reversible exhaust fans and variable speed pulleys, attachable to Arctic Nu-Air machines now in use.

Mr. Feinberg also announced that an additional factory building had been secured at Boone.

The new article which Arctic Nu-Air is to put on the market is the Arctic Nu-Air, Jr., a portable fan for offices, stores, etc.

Let Contract at Owensmouth, Cal.

The Van Nuys Theatre Corporation has let the contract for a new motion picture theatre to be built at Owensmouth, Cal. Construction plans call for an outlay of approximately $20,000, while the finished theatre will cost $35,000.

Newspaper Opinions on New Pictures

"The Marriage Clause"—Universal, Forum, Los Angeles

Examiner: "The Marriage Clause" builds and builds until it reaches a tremendous climax. The production is well executed. The titles are above average and the splendid photography and direction are deserving of the warmest praise. The picture achieves a real degree of excellence."

Times: "Those who attended the premiere carried away a vivid impression of Miss Weber's genius. The picture was given commendable treatment."

Express: "Miss Weber hits the bull's-eye in her latest release. It has one of the strongest finales ever seen in a picture. It is a great drama."

Record: "Lois Weber, the only feminine director, does remarkable work. The little bits of life are reproduced with a deft directorial hand."

Times: "The characters are well drawn and the situations are quite pat. Miss Weber has been unusually successful."

Herald: "The picture is not only interestingly delineated but gives that added touch of which Miss Weber made herself famous."

"The Bells"—Chadwick, Newark, N.J.

Newark Call: "This department recommends without reserve the photoplay program being presented at the Fox Terminal Theatre. Lionel Barrymore is featured in 'The Bells,' the screen version of the Erckmann-Chatrian stage play, in which Sir Henry Irving made such a success while portraying the role of Mathias. It is a difficult characterization, this etching of the complex Mathias. It is a role that carries with it the temptation to over-act. Barrymore behaves with admirable restraint. Parry-more receives excellent support from Caroline Frances Cooke, Gustave von Seyfertitz, Lorimer Johnston, Lola Todd, Edward Phillips, Otto Lederer, Boris Karloff, Laura Lavarine and Fred Warren."

Newark Star: "Lionel Barrymore is on the bill at the Terminal this week, and that is justification for any performance. Barrymore does a commendable job, and one that adds another success to his long list of histrionic achievements. He is assisted by a splendid cast—Otto Lederer, Gustav von Seyfertitz, Lola Todd, Boris Karloff and Laura Lavarine."

VOICE OF THE SILENT DRAMA

Co-Stars

NO matter how large or how small your theatre may be, there is a Kilgen to suit its needs and fit your purse. Your request will bring full details of the Kilgen and "The Voice of the Silent Drama."

IN scores of theatres where Corinne Griffith stars, she does not star alone . . . To each of her moods, this co-star responds, giving added charm to her bewitching manner. In these theatres, Kilgen Organ tones help Corinne Griffith to laugh and be merry or grieve and despair . . . Give your feature pictures added power by installing the Kilgen Co-Star.

A Sound, Logical Medium

TWICE a year we publish a supplement to MOTION PICTURE NEWS called THE BOOKING GUIDE.

It's high time New York awakened to the importance of this little book. There's no scandal in it for New York consumption; no trade controversies, politics, etc., BUT——

Out in the field, from the uttermost fringe of houses right up to the first-run, big city house, the theatre manager is waiting for it. If he doesn't get it we hear from him; if he loses his copy we are quickly called upon for another.

Such is the difference between New York and its customers.

THE BOOKING GUIDE is one of the best pieces of service we have ever given the exhibitor. 1200 letters last year say so

* * *

If I were an advertising manager I would say to the sales manager:

"Here's the best medium in which to advertise all our past releases now booking.

"It lies on the exhibitor's desk the year round. It is referred to every day and page by page.

"It is read by the large theatre for quick reference to the file of MOTION PICTURE NEWS: and for the small house it is invaluable in itself.

"With all your scramble for the several thousand accounts, all your feverish competition over them, all your sales expenditures for them I would certainly advertise freely in this theatre standby.

"I'd list all salable product, tell about its performance, supplement in every way possible the service which THE BOOKING GUIDE itself gives on the picture.

"Here's sound, logical advertising in a sound, logical medium."

N. B. Due to the requests from so many exhibitors we have gone back, with this forthcoming issue—out in October—to the old, small and handy pocket size of THE BOOKING GUIDE.

Wm A Johnston

26 WARNER WINNERS

THE BRUTE

Monte Blue, in a virile story of the jungle. Story by W. Douglas Newton. Directed by Herman Raymaker.

MY OFFICIAL WIFE

With Irene Rich, Conway Tearle and Stuart Holmes. Famous story by A. C. Gunter. Directed by Paul L. Stein, noted European director.

THE COLLEGE WIDOW

Featuring Dolores Costello, the screen find of a generation! Adapted from George Ade's well known stage success.

HILLS OF KENTUCKY

With Rin-Tin-Tin, "the wonder dog of the screen." Directed by Herman Raymaker. Better than "The Night Cry."

MAMMA KISS PAPA

With George Sidney, Louise Fazenda, Vera

Gordon, Nat Carr and Helene Costello. Story by E. Phillips Oppenheim. Directed by Herman Raymaker. A billion dollars worth of fun.

WHAT HAPPENED TO FATHER

With Patsy Ruth Miller. Story by Mary Roberts Rinehart. Directed by Lewis Milestone. Glorifying "Dear Old Dad."

IRISH HEARTS

With Dolores Costello, "the girl of your dreams." By Walter Morosco. A haunting romance of modern Ireland.

THE CLIMBERS

With Irene Rich. Adapted from the stage play by Clyde Fitch. Directed by Paul L. Stein. A powerful drama of the upper ranks of society.

WOLF'S CLOTHING

An intriguing story, by Arthur Somers Roche. Stars, Monte Blue, Patsy Ruth Miller. Mr.

Roche needs no introduction to the American public.

BITTER APPLES

With Monte Blue. Story by Harold MacGrath. Directed by James Flood. Colorful drama that shifts from New York to the tropics.

DEARIE

With Louise Fazenda, the screen's funniest character actress. Story by Carolyn Wells. Laughs and Thrills.

WHAT EVERY GIRL SHOULD KNOW

An all-star cast. Story by James Wagner. Directed by James Flood. The age of jazz receives a jolt.

ACROSS THE PACIFIC

With Monte Blue as star. Adapted from Charles E. Blaney's melodramatic sensation. One of the year's biggest! Directed by Roy Del Ruth.

Gentlemen:

The audience of the Strand Theatre on Thursday Evening, Aug. 19th, 1926, previewed your first short story of "The Collegians" series.

Judging from the applause, laughter and enthusiasm which was shown by an audience type, I would say that in "The Collegians" you have one of the greatest two-reel series ever

3 BAD MEN

a huge winner as reported by exhibitors who have run it

READ! BOOK! PROFIT!

Three Bad Men premier opened tonight to capacity audience. Proclaimed the biggest, most astounding picture of the year. Most critical audience of Los Angeles, including press were very enthusiastic and marvelled at its magnitude. Positively greatest opening in history of California premiers. Three Bad Men characters portrayed excellently. William Fox is to be congratulated for this most triumphant production.

Fred A. Miller
Figueroa Theatre.
Los Angeles, Calif.

We were right. The extraordinary opening accorded Three Bad Men yesterday displayed the confidence of the public in our advance statements. After the throngs saw it the consensus of opinion was that it would require vastly more than a page of newspaper comment to properly describe the value of this winner. Some of our patrons declared that the dictionary meanings of all the superlatives could be truthfully applied to your production.

Eddie Diamond
Pantages Theater
Salt Lake City, Utah.

Three Bad Men opened at Majestic yesterday. I am of opinion that Three Bad Men is equal if not greater than The Iron Horse. Audience enthusiastic in praise of picture. Their comments one hundred per cent. Stood them in line all day yesterday and all day again today. Newspaper critics gave picture wonderful reviews. I predict longer run and bigger business on Three Bad Men than we did on Iron Horse.

Harry Langdon in "The Strong Man" at the Mark Strand

HARRY LANGDON, the quaint little man who stepped competently from short comedies to long ones a few weeks ago, thereby reaching in one bound the pinnacle occupied by Chaplin, Keaton, Griffith and the rest, appears to have established himself comfortably in his perch, with furtive glances ever and anon at the difficult places higher up.

N.Y. POST

N.Y. SUN

At any rate, it is an excellent entertainment, brimful of golden laughter, and as for Harry Langdon—he is the greatest of the figures which have arisen of late in the movies. The Mark Strand is the movie house to be visited this week.

DAILY MIRROR

If you want to revel in an hour and 15 minutes of priceless merriment, don't miss "The Strong Man." Harry Langdon is divine. He could do a celluloid solo and be just as effective as he is surrounded by the excellent cast he has in his current offering.

The story is a gem and the "gags" knockouts. In his previous picture, "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp," Langdon scored in a sleepy drunk scene. In his current flicker, he scores in a heavy cold scene that will have you weeping with joy.

N.Y. AMERICAN

"Tramp, Tramp, Tramp" marched Harry Langdon into the front ranks of comedy. Even the organist remembered that as he sounded a few reminiscent bars for the first showing of "The Strong Man." This new picture, with its star just a bit more pitiful, more ridiculous, makes his place secure. Only a blind man could keep from laughing at Harry Langdon's birdlike gestures, and even he probably would chime in with the delighted audience about him.

HARRY LANGDON. Taking a firm stand, this department rises to go on record as saying that Harry Langdon is its favorite comedian. Langdon, with his saucer-like eyes, his sad shy smile and his whimsically pathetic expression of a perfect understanding of pantomime. As "The Strong Man" at the Mark Strand he's a riot.

N.Y. TELEGRAPH

"The Strong Man" is a cracking good comedy and should make many strong friends for the new comic that has been developed for First National. A strong comedy a strong star, with a cast in

THE STRONG MAN, with Harry Langdon, Priscilla Bonner, Gertrude Astor, William V. Daks; male quartet, Eddie Allen, "The Six English Tivoli Girls" and others; "Around the World in Ten Minutes," a Fox short subject. At the Mark Strand.

Harry Langdon's latest comedy, "The Strong Man," leaps from gag to gag, always giving the protagonist ample opportunity to show his talent as a screen farceur. These interludes of fun, which are like short sketches, have precious little bearing on a coherent narrative. Nevertheless they serve their purpose in stirring up gales of laughter, the audiences being immensely tickled Dictionaries are incomplete. They won't be complete until Langdon leads the list of synonyms for laughter. My enthusiasm for this little moon-faced comedian is unbounded. If there is any fault to be found with "The Strong Man" somebody else will have to find it. While watching the picture I couldn't see its faults for laughing. And the picture will be a hit, no doubt of that. As I left the Mark Strand yesterday afternoon it was difficult to get through the crowds waiting to get in.

Actual Reciprocity

J. D. WILLIAMS and his British National Pictures occupy the opening and editorial pages of all the British trade-papers received this week. All four papers seem to be of one mind over the controversy in the lay press between Mr. Williams and Sir Oswald Stoll, a prominent producer-distributor in Great Britain—that the latter's attitude may be summed up as "sour grapes."

And there can be scarcely two minds about it.

* * *

The contract for American distribution made between J. D. Williams and Famous Players-Lasky reflects much credit upon the principals engaged, namely, Messrs. Williams, Zukor and Kent. In all the two years' discussion of British pictures and their market over here it is—to our mind—the one practical, hopeful, answer to what is a large and serious problem—to Great Britain, the United States and the film industry.

* * *

J. D. Williams, with his characteristic vision, optimism, and courageous industry went to England and came back with a British picture that not only secured a niche in our distribution structure, but went forth and unquestionably pleased the American public. He then built up-to-date studios, laid out further product along lines which will appeal to most any showman and on his next trip over here made a contract for the marketing of three more through Famous Players.

Thus, it would seem to any observer, the clouds of misunderstanding that have always enveloped the British-American film situation are parted by an actual and practical business accomplishment; and we can now see some sunshine on that which every far-seeing film man wants, and that is satisfactory reciprocal relations between producing Europe and producing America, so that we will have films of international scope.

I repeat that Messrs. Williams, Zukor and Kent deserve great credit and the sincere thanks of the international industry.

* * *

Any question as to whether British pictures are truly British because people from this country are helping make them strikes us as just picayunish. If there is any virtue in such narrowness then a lot of all American pictures is truly foreign. Hollywood today is about as truly cosmopolitan a production centre as exists in the broad world of manufacture.

* * *

Certainly we will never get international films, nor an international film industry, nor get very far at all, if we are going to put ahead of the quality of the film the matter of simon-pure provincialism.

Speaking Editorially

ONE of the most important statements ever made by a representative of the press with regard to the motion picture industry was recently delivered by Jackson E. Elliott, assistant general manager of the Associated Press, at a convention in Buffalo.

This is what he said:

"The motion picture industry has furnished excellent examples of good and bad press agenting. Until a few years ago, every unusual yarn, no matter how logical, was likely to arouse the editor's suspicion. He had been fooled more than once by enterprising press agents. Stories he had accepted with zest and cleverly boxed as first page features too often were followed with moving picture advertising, proving he had been hoaxed by a movie stunt. The Associated Press was victimized, too, and every time this happened it jarred our vaunted accuracy.

* * *

"NEVERTHELESS," Mr. Elliott continued, "the Associated Press felt that it should have news from the motion picture industry just as it has had news concerning the legitimate stage. It was not happy that it had to ignore the silent drama because it had been victimized by untrustworthy press agents.

"Accordingly, we conferred with Will Hays, czar of moviedom, and explained to him that we would be eager for constructive news of photofilm enterprises if the Associated Press were not again made the victim of press agent fabrications.

"Thereupon, Hays did the best job of housecleaning we have ever known. He pledged all of the companies with which he is associated not to attempt any publicity fakes with us. Only once since then have we had cause to complain. We furnished him the facts in this particular case and the faker's employers kept faith with Mr. Hays, thus enabling him to make good with us.

"Moving picture activities now rank high as news."

* * *

MR. ELLIOTT'S statement is important in many ways. It is an official pronouncement by the Associated Press, great news-gathering organization, that the door is wide open for real picture news. It reflects, of course, the tremendous public interest in the screen, its people and its activities. And it just as clearly lays down the law against press agent faking, for which there is no excuse now or ever.

We are glad to see this public acknowledgment of the work done by Mr. Hays against publicity fakes—a most thorough job. Certainly, he has achieved a very constructive thing in making it possible for real film news to be welcomed for transmission along the great arteries of the A. P.

* * *

MR. ELLIOTT, speaking as the trained newspaperman, declares that motion picture activities rank high as news. He knows, because the great organization he represents serves many types of papers, and serves them in splendid fashion. The young men in this industry, whose business it is to supply genuine news for public consumption, have a great responsibility and an equally great opportunity. The Associated Press has assigned one of its own staff to "cover" the industry in New York. We cannot urge too strongly that he be given every co-operation in the obtaining of real news—which the public unquestionably is glad, and will continue to be glad, to get.

* * *

IN this connection we point out that MOTION PICTURE NEWS is printing a series of personality articles, written by a member of our staff, and designed for newspaper use. The first, on "Red" Grange, appeared last week. In this week's issue, the entry of Fielding H. Yost, famous Michigan football coach, into pictures, is covered.

This service, we confidently believe, will be of real use to exhibitors and newspapers.

AN EDITOR ON BROADWAY

The Week in Review By William A. Johnston

J. D. Williams

AN American film executive writes me from Europe that there is much to the European film situation that isn't common knowledge over here. Which, undoubtedly, is true. A few men may know the underlying facts, but, in that case, they are keeping their knowledge to themselves.

And then comes a letter from one up to date and practical film man to another—a German buyer to an American seller. He refers to the market in Germany, Austria and Central Europe in general. This, in brief, is what he says:

The European public got considerably fed up with the ordinary run of American feature pictures. So they turned, naturally, to the home product. The German studios responded with a vim and are still at it. Pictures are being turned out so fast that studios—to quote literally—"are at the breaking point."

* * *

BUT, apparently, this production regime has been one of quantity and certainly not of quality, for now the same public is fed up with its home product and has turned for relief back to American pictures.

Will America, now, grasp its opportunity? The writer asks the question and points a way.

* * *

HE says, positively, that pictures of "liebe und schmerz" — meaning "love and sorrow"—are not wanted. He points to an American special of this pronounced type which has just been released in Europe and which has fallen rather flat; and then he refers to the tremendous vogue in Germany and Austria of "The Sea Beast," which he regards as an outstanding picture of rugged adventure and with love as a minor interest.

The European public, he asserts, want pictures in which action predominates—preferably rugged action. He catalogues such pictures in this way: Sea pictures, adventure, sensational, detective, and Wild West pictures. And in the list he puts the detective picture first in probable popularity.

HERE'S something to think about—for, quite evidently, the American public is also keen right here for the adventure type of picture. We need only to refer to "The Covered Wagon," "The Sea Hawk," "The Lost World," "The Vanishing American," "The Iron Horse," "The Sea Beast," "The Pony Express," and several other pictures that hit the high points in the box-office check-up, not to mention "Beau Geste," which has started off so well.

In the opening of the New York legitimate season, Owen Davis' "The Donovan Affair," a mystery melodrama of so pronounced a type that it borders on the ludicrous, caught on with the click that indicates great public eagerness for this type of entertainment.

* * *

IT would appear that the love-tragedy type of pictures, or the sex melodrama in general—if that term may be used—has been so greatly overdone that people have turned for relief to the action story—be it sea or land, detective or what not, in which the rugged, a mystery or action drama overshadows, even to a large degree, the love angle.

At any rate, it will be well to study the adventure type of picture and it might not be amiss to consider the detective type of story. The Wild West picture is, of course, always with us. Probably its continued strength is due to the fact that we have such an overabundance of the triangle picture.

* * *

THERE is, incidentally, a virtual epidemic of mystery comedies, or comedy thrillers, on Broadway, opened and in rehearsal. Probably we shall see a reflection of this on the screen within a year, since, as Joe Brandt points out, picture fashions follow stage changes pretty definitely. This will place Universal in an advantageous position with its "Cat and the Canary" coming along, right at the head of the procession.

* * *

MANAGERS up and down Broadway are beaming this week as ticket machines click busily and standees crowd the rear of houses. Last week, with two holidays, was exceptional but this week is running it a close second. Brilliant weather bit matinee business slightly this week, but practically every house along Broadway has been packing them in at night, showing that summer is over and show business is booming.

"One Minute to Play" at the Colony continues to do exceptionally well, with no paper in the house and capacity at night. This week will not equal the remarkable record of last week, when nearly $40,000 was taken in at this house with the "Red" Grange picture, but it will chalk up a more than satisfactory gross and a third week is definitely assured. Film Booking Offices has faced a definite handicap on Broadway in the past, owing to the attitude of the New York reviewers and the unfamiliarity of its stars to Broadwayites, but that handicap is rapidly being removed, and the fact that "One Minute to Play" can pile up such business in New York indicates that it has what makes box-offices happy.

* * *

AT the Capitol, "Mare Nostrum" in its second week is selling standing room at night, with the free list virtually suspended. The second week of a picture at the Capitol is usually materially below the first week, owing to the large number of regular, weekly patrons which this house has and which do not attend a repeat bill, but "Mare Nostrum" is trailing close on the heels of last week's figures, when it did nearly fifty per cent. over the weekly house average of a little over fifty thousand.

Week after next, incidentally, will see "The Four Horsemen" brought back to the Capitol. This is the third time in the history of the house that a picture has played a return engagement, the other two being "The Birth of a Nation" and "Passion." "The Four Horsemen" should do phenomenal business.

"Don Juan" and Vitaphone continue to do absolute sell-out business at Warners, which means close to $30,000 on the week.

* * *

"Diplomacy" opened big on Sunday at the Rivoli and was holding up well when this was written. Douglas MacLean in "Hold That Lion" had a good week at the Rivoli last, but "Diplomacy" will set a figure probably not far behind.

* * *

"Variety" at the Rialto goes into the 12th and last week of its sensational run with business brisk. A gross of about $25,000 on the week may be looked for, and although this is about $5,000 below last week's unusual figure it is materially ahead of some previous weeks.

THE Mark Strand, with "Subway Sadie," got off to a good start with prospects of a sizeable figure for the week. The remainder of last week bore out the promise of the opening days, Langdon in "The Strong Man" going well over the $40,000 mark.

* * *

The tiny Cameo is doing very well with "So This Is Paris," now playing its fifth and last week. Business this week continued splendid, although hardly equal to that of last week.

* * *

THE real sensation at the box-office continues to be "Beau Geste," which is giving the Criterion the best business in its history as a film house. Standing room is being sold at every performance, and the house is making money—something which it rarely does, owing to the high overhead and limited capacity. Not since "The Covered Wagon" has the Criterion seen such activity at the ticket window, and the picture has "caught on" with a vengeance.

The same picture at the Aldine in Philadelphia, by the way, got over $22,000 on the first week. This is about $6,000 over the New York figure, made possible by the larger capacity.

The roadshow department of Famous, recently organized, is convinced that it has a "natural" in "Beau Geste," and is preparing to route it through all the important cities of the country this fall and winter.

* * *

The Hippodrome is playing Universal's "Poker Faces" this week, the P.D.C. program being insufficient to care for 52 weeks' bookings. The newspapers gave "Poker Faces" a wonderful hand, getting the picture off to a nice start.

* * *

WE were shown the other morning, by Ray Smallwood, a series of preliminary tests of the new "Handschiegl Process," invented by Max Handschiegl, which is highly interesting and promises some unusual developments. It is, briefly, a method for combining shots of actors photographed before a plain background with stock scenes, miniatures, drawings, paintings or stills. In other words, the actor can be photographed in a studio in New York or Hollywood, and the action introduced into a Tokio street scene or a Parisian cabaret.

This, we are well aware, is no novelty. The Williams method, and others, have made it possible to do this for years with varying degrees of success, but a persistent "halo" about the figures, and the absence of shadows, made the actors appear to float through the scenes rather than become part of them.

All of this has been eliminated, so far as close scrutiny of these tests reveals, in the Handschiegl process. The identical shot of an actress is carried through a series of backgrounds, some of them library shots and others stills. In one instance, one background is dissolved into another without disturbing the action of the girl.

Two negatives are made in the same camera in the Handschiegl method, color selectivity being the basis of the process, and the remaining work is done in an optical printer. The finished picture is gotten on one negative, the other negative serving for masking purposes only, so that there is no duping or multiple printing. The possibilities of this method, with the major defects now removed, seem to us enormous.

AN interesting and comprehensive survey of technical progress in Germany during the past year is presented in the Kinotechnisches Jahrbuch, 1925-26, recently published by the Verlag Guido Hackebell A. G., of Berlin. This year-book, somewhat different from anything published in this country, confines itself solely to the technical phases of motion picture making and exhibition. New patents of the year are covered in full, as well as all new technical processes, such as the positive film without silver. New lighting equipment is illustrated, with photos and working drawings, and projection illumination is also covered, both arc and incandescent. The testing of lenses, new cameras, the Trier-gon talking picture method, and many similar articles make it a compendium of highly valuable information.

The book is well printed, on good paper, and is attractively bound in blue cloth with gold lettering. The technical worker with even a slight knowledge of German should find it highly interesting in view of the many important developments in the art being made in Germany.

WHAT is one of the most complete yearbooks of motion picture activities published anywhere in the world, the Annuaire General de la Cinematographie, published in Paris each year by Les Publications Jean-Pascal, has been received. The volume for 1926 is more comprehensive than ever, consisting of a 969-page book, about seven by ten inches in size.

While it relates principally to France and its possessions, the information is worldwide in scope. The various lists of addresses include all firms making, distributing or dealing in pictures, as well as companies handling products in any way related to the industry. A studio directory of all important players, with photos and biographies; addresses of all producers, directors and cinematographers; full data on all theatres in France or its colonies; a summary of French production for the year, picture by picture; general summaries of production in all other countries; extensive lists of addresses in countries outside of France; copious advertising on current productions of all nations; these are some of the many features which make this annual unique among such publications. The general arrangement is convenient, and the book is well indexed.

QUIETLY, year in and year out, the Research Laboratories of the Eastman Kodak Company go on with their highly important work, studying, analyzing and experimenting, laying the foundation for new methods and new devices, removing imperfections from the old and standardizing processes generally. We are reminded of this by the receipt of the ninth volume of the Abridged Scientific Publications put out by this branch of Eastman.

Since it is the desire of the company to have this information broadcast as widely and directly as possible, all articles are first published in technical, scientific and trade journals in those fields where they will be of most interest. Then, in abridged form, they are gathered once a year in this volume. The manual now at hand contains a striking variety of research data, some of it highly theoretical and of no immediate practical application, so far as the general worker is concerned, while other studies centre about such vital matters as static, rack markings, aspherical lens systems, incandescent lighting in the color studio, and the like.

The publications issued by Eastman cover every phase of photographic activity, and the worker who does not avail himself of them is overlooking a valuable aid which costs him little or nothing. Where no publication has been issued covering the information desired, the research staff is always ready and willing to supply the wanted data. This is a genuine service to the industry, which, if not spectacular, is none the less vital.

* * *

WHY do producers not maintain the logical tempo of human beings in their plays? This does not refer to slow action reels in sports or athletics where it is of unquestioned interest to the spectator to follow the movements of a man or an animal in a manner impossible if put on the screen with the actual speed of either. But in other instances where the speed is accentuated, especially in farce comedies, does the picture gain in humor or appealing quality by accentuating the tempo? It is a moot question. No matter how utterly ridiculous the situation it would seem to gain if the characters were reproduced on the screen at the same speed at which they were actually photographed.

This seems a radical suggestion but it is worth considering. In few, if any, pictures would this humanizing the film detract, but rather add to the value of the situation

* * *

A SERVICE innovation in the presentation of short subjects is being made by Educational in connection with the Robert C. Bruce scenic novelties. This consists of a chart giving the exact footage, type of picture and projection timing, for twenty-seven subjects. The exhibitor is thus enabled to build them into his show with accuracy and effect. Musical synopses are also furnished, and there are presentation and prologue suggestions for each picture.

This is a fine idea. We do not recall that it has ever been done before in connection with short subjects. A real service, and a decided help toward creating the diversified program, which the progressive theatre must have these days.

PICTURES AND PEOPLE

TENNIS CHAMPS

METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER now holds the tennis championship of the picture industry, Dietz and Beecher having defeated Malles and Bockus of Hirlagraph last Friday, 1—6, 6—2, 6—3, in a smashing, three-set struggle. This match decided the honors for the Grantland Rice Sportlight trophy. Other outstanding players of the season, although they did not reach the finals, were Gallup, United Artists; Carlin, Warner Bros.; Simonson, Fox Films; Johnson and Parsons, Pathe. The final standings were: M-G-M, .934; Hirlagraph, .764; Pathe, .730; Fox Films, .466; First National, .266; United Artists, .263; Famous Players, .250; Warner Bros., .153.

A STARLESS WEEK

THE hard-hearted National Board of Review failed to find any pictures, long or short, this week which it considered worthy of an asterisk denoting special merit. Oh, well—better luck next time!

VEIDT SIGNED

NEWs of importance to every lover of great screen acting is contained in the announcement that Conrad Veidt has been engaged for the role of Louis XI in "Francois Villon," John Barrymore's first picture for United Artists. Veidt is not so well known here as some of the other German actors, but he ranks in Europe as one of the greatest of all artists. While he is of an altogether different type from Jannings, lacking the robust vitality of that actor, his character portrayals are unforgettably vivid. He has been seen here in "Dr. Caligari" and "The Three Waxworks," playing the Sleepwalker in the one and Ivan the Terrible in the other.

Joseph I. Schnitzer, the senior vice-president of Filming Booking Offices, a vital factor in the progress and expansion of that corporation

Charles Rosher, American cameraman who has returned here from Germany to be F. W. Murnau's cinematographer on "Sunrise," to be made for Fox Films

Myrna Loy, one of the most exotic figures to cross the silver sheet in some time, plays a half-caste girl with striking effect in "Across the Pacific" (Warners)

Fretty soft for these movie stars! Here is Sandow, canine player for Associated Exhibitors, in the lap of luxury. His first, "Code of the Northwest," is followed by "Call of the Wilderness."

A scene from Ben Burbridge's "The Gorilla Hunt," showing the 450-pound male gorilla which charges directly into the lens of the camera

Views of the part played by 6XBR, Warner Bros. 'round-the-world broadcasting station, in the parade which marked the opening of the New York Radio Show, when 6XBR was taken down to the city hall and presented to city officials: left, Betty Warner, daughter of H. M. Warner, after whom the portable station was named; centre, the ceremony at city hall; right, Monte Blue, Warner Bros. star, broadcasts a message to radio fans

Barrymore's courage in engaging Veidt for his supporting cast is worthy of comment, for it would not be lese majeste to say that Veidt is just as great an actor, in his field, as Barrymore. On this score Barrymore is quoted as saying:

"I want the best we can get. I have been warned that Veidt is so good he will 'steal the picture.' All right, if I can't keep my head above water with the rest of the cast, that's my hard luck. The public will see a real picture, anyhow."

May the best man win!

JOHN McCORMICKS TO VISIT US

JOHN McCORMICK, general manager of West Coast production for First National, and his wife, Colleen Moore, will leave for New York about September 16. While in the metropolis McCormick will look over the new plays with a view to obtaining desirable screen material, and will confer with Eastern executives, while Miss Moore will film exteriors for her next picture, "Orchids and Ermine," from a story by Carey Wilson.

SAMUEL GOLDWYN, JR.

THE latest important addition to the Hollywood film colony is Samuel Goldwyn, Jr., who arrived at the Good Samaritan Hospital in Los Angeles on September 7, weighing seven and one-half pounds. Mrs. Goldwyn, who was Frances Howard prior to her marriage, and the baby are reported doing very well.

FADMAN RETURNS

EDWIN MILES FADMAN, president of Red Star Pictures Corporation, has just returned from six months in Europe in the interests of the interchange of product across the water, and in two weeks will again journey to London and Paris. Fadman has organized his company on a genuinely international basis, with French, English and German capital interested and a directorate which includes M. Biraban, D. Frank, P. Weill, R. Maeder and Mr. Fadman. His plans are unusually interesting, embracing, as they do, a combination of American business methods with sound counsel from men intimately familiar with their sections of Europe.

MONTE A FIGHT FAN

MONTE BLUE, who is in New York for a brief vacation, has decided to remain for the Dempsey-Tunney fight, after which he will dash back to the Coast for his next picture. He is particularly enthusiastic, his press agent asserts, over "Beyond the Pacific," his most recent vehicle.

PAULINE STARKE ARRIVES

PAULINE STARKE, who has been forging ahead as a dramatic actress of genuine ability, has arrived in New York to play the leading feminine role in "Not Herbert," Ray Rockett's production, under the direction of Howard Higgin. Production was started at the 175th Street plant this week.

MITCHELL'S NEW BOOK

LEBBEUS H. MITCHELL, director of advertising and publicity for Sterling, and one of the most popular publicity men along the Rialto, is the author of a new book which has just been published by the Century company, "One Boy Too Many." It is an absorbing story, intended for children of from seven to twelve years of age. The same company previously published Mitchell's "Here, Tricks, Here!" Mitchell is also the author of two other books, "The Circus Comes to Town," and "Bobby in Search of a Birthday."

THE OLD HOME TOWN

THE Vaughn sisters, Alberta and Adamae, star and starlet on the F.B.O. roster, are on their way with their mother, Mrs. Bruce Preston, to brighten Ashland, Ky., by a ten-day visit to their grandparents in the town which they left behind three years ago. During their stay Alberta will also look after her real estate interests, including the recently acquired Alberta and Adamae apartments. The girls must be back in Hollywood on September 23 to resume work on the F.B.O. lot.

Johnny Hines and Mary Brian surrounded by members of the studio staff at the completion of their final scenes for the comedian's newest First National picture, "Stepping Along"

FOX HILLS DEDICATED

THIRTY THOUSAND visitors went through the gates of the Fox Hills Studio on Sunday afternoon, August 29, when the Moorish portals of the new $300,000 Spanish wall along the Santa Monica Boulevard front of the 150-acre studio were thrown open to the public.

The formal opening of the gates was set for 3 o'clock, but the first motor party arrived with a caravan of seven cars at 11:30 and lined up before the gates to make certain of being the first to enter. Space for the parking of 2,000 machines had been arranged within the studio grounds, but following the arrival of the first seven cars a continuous stream of visitors came by motor and electric trains so that by 2 o'clock the entire parking space was filled and thousands of other machines formed a solid two-and-a-half mile parking line from the City of Beverly Hills to the City of Sawtelle.

Norman Dawn, director and producer, Eva Novak, star, and Stuart F. Doyle, managing director, Australasian Films, Ltd., interested in the production of "For the Term of His Natural Life," now being filmed in Australia as a Union Master World Picture, to be released by Australasian

NEWSPAPERS AUSTRALASIAN ENTERPRISE

NEWSPAPERS just to hand feature with news-page prominence the first serious step in Australia's determination to compete in the world's film-producing market. "For the Term of His Natural Life" is the title of the first picture, for which our own Eva Novak signed the dotted line to a contract. Australasian Films, Ltd., are behind the latest endeavor. The story, by Marcus Clarke, has been wisely chosen. It has been translated into twelve languages, and in the country of its origin it will feed the box-office through a big public already sold to a story familiar in every home.

The studio is located at Bondi Junction, Sydney, where for many months activities have been centered on the construction of the huge sets necessary for the filming. Technical experts in other branches were also sought from America, as accompanying Miss Novak to Australia were Norman Dawn, director and producer; Len H. Roos, cameraman; William Reid, also camera; Katherina Dawn, to play special role; George Fisher, an English character actor to lead opposite Miss Novak, and Steve Murphy ("Broken-nose Murphy") to play the role of tough. Also trailing it across the Pacific with them were Miss Novak's mother, Mrs. Norman Dawn, and Mrs. Len Roos. The company hit Sydney on Saturday, August 7th, and Eva landed a reception and hospitality that should breed another good booster for the country that called her across to show 'em how.

Eva's car ran its way perilously through the streets thronged with crowds who turned out to say "How do," and "Welcome" to her smilin gacknowledgment. Stuart F. Doyle and W. A. Gibson, O.B.E., managing directors of Australasian Films, Ltd., with other prominent personalities in the film industry kidnapped the public's idol and held her to a sumptuous celebration at the Hotel Australia on the evening following her arrival.

A COSMOPOLITAN HOUSE

A. C. (CHARLEY) HAYMAN, president of the Cataract Theatre corporation, operating the Strand, Cataract and Amendola Theatres in Niagara Falls, and generally recognized as the Beau Brummel of New York State motion picture theatre owners, lays claim to a unique distinction. Inasmuch as both of his theatres are first-run houses and located in the heart of the business section of the city and also because of the fact that Niagara Falls is the Mecca of the American tourist, Mr. Hayman proudly boasts that he plays to the most cosmopolitan audiences in the world.

"They come from all over the world," says Mr. Hayman. "From June to November, Niagara Falls entertains hundreds of thousands of tourists. The automobile brings many thousands and the auto camps are congested from early summer until late autumn. These auto tourists remain from two days to two weeks and most of them spend their evenings at the motion picture theatres. Cars from every state in the Union and every Province in Canada will be seen in the camps. I've personally seen cars from twenty states parked in the vicinity of my theatres in one evening."

A SLANT ON FLORIDA

C H A R L E S P. L E S T E R assistant manager of Universal's exchange in Jacksonville, Fla., arrived in New York recently for a conference with home office executives and for a vacation in his former home city.

Lester is an enthusiast on the subject of picture prosperity in the Jacksonville territory which he says has maintained an unusually high average this summer and which promises to reach new heights this fall.

"Universal and Publix are the strongest producer-exhibitor concerns in that territory now, but the coming winter is liable to see the beginning of a big battle in that section," he says, "I firmly believe that Florida will be the future battle ground of theatre interests, just as the middle-west is today. One of the reasons for this is the fact that Florida's winter population may be likened to an assemblage of selected patrons called in for a preview. They go back to their homes and boost the pictures they have seen in the Florida houses, thus making the state a key state as regards disseminating word-of-mouth publicity on screen successes."

BUXBAUM COPS THE CUP

H A R R Y B U X B A U M, manager of Fox Films' New York exchange, and handball expert par excellence of Film Row, added to his athletic laurels this week when he won the President's Cup at the Lawrence Country Club tournament, Lawrence, L.I., with a score of 71. The affair took place on Sunday, and on Tuesday evening Mr. Buxbaum received the handsome trophy, done in the shape of a golf bag, at the hands of Thomas A. McWhinney, president of the club.

Athletic activities are becoming so prominent in the film colony that all that remains now is for some executive vacationing abroad to swim the English channel in, say, seven or eight hours.

CAPTAIN BATE'S OPUS

H E N R Y C L A Y B A T E, publicity purveyor of Universal, whose modesty is out of proportion to his size, is, we are reliably informed by our spies, co-author of a stage piece which bids fair shortly to rock Broadway with thrills and laughter. The name of the piece is "The Monkey Wrench" (this mention should be good for a pair of ducats, at least), the other half of the authorial team is E. A. Vosseler, a New York lawyer and Captain Bate's buddy in the army. The play was given a tryout by a stock company in Portland, Ore., with gratifying results, and we are informed that negotiations now under way will probably bring the piece to Broadway shortly.

UEBERSETZUNG

L Y A D E P U T T I, whose appreciation of America was voiced in these columns last week, informs us that in translating her remarks from German into English we rendered them in such a manner that she might be misconstrued on one point. She does not wish to give the impression that she does not appreciate the value of her training in German studios, where, she says, she learned everything that she knows of the art. It is rather that she feels that she is given a wider field for her talents here. Not, in other words, that she likes Germany less, but that she likes America more.

SILTON TO COAST

E D D I E S I L T O N, one of New York's busiest and most popular managerial representatives, of the firm of Rebecca and Sifton, leaves on Sunday for the West Coast to supervise and produce a series of 13 pictures. Charles Walton, himself an experienced casting agent, has been placed in charge of the casting department. Miss Rebecca and Mr. Uhr of the R. & S. office will divide their time between New York and California.

PANTAGES LAUDS "FIG LEAVES"

A L E X A N D E R P A N T A G E S, veteran vaudeville magnate, has broken his long silence and for the first time endorsed a picture, following the highly successful engagement of "Fig Leaves" at the 26th Anniversary week of his Los Angeles house recently. On this occasion Pantages wrote to William Fox congratulating him on the picture and expressing the hope that future Fox Films productions would be up to the high standard set by it.

ROACH'S DUDE RANCH

H A L R O A C H has purchased a large ranch near Las Vegas, Nev., which he will convert into a "dude ranch" de luxe. Roach, who states that the ranch is a veritable hunters' and fishermen's paradise, will further enhance the attractions by providing golf courses, swimming pools, airplane landing field and such features. Here, we may expect, film executives will vacation when conditions do not warrant their making a survey of European film conditions.

$5,000,000 Equipment Merger Set; Affects 35 Dealers

Corporation President Dutton Says Alliance is Distribution Economy Move; Country Zoned With Vice-President Directors

CONSUMMATION of a consolidation of 35 motion picture equipment dealers and supply houses into a newly formed $5,000,000 corporation known as the National Theatre Supply Company, was announced this week by H. A. R. Dutton, president of the new organization. While the news of the consolidation does not come as a surprise, the announcement is of unusual significance since it sets at rest a long line of rumors which have kept manufacturing and distribution circles in a quandary for the past six months.

In addition to Mr. Dutton, the officers of the new company are: C. D. Struble, secretary; H. Stanley McLeod, treasurer; G. A. Lincoln, vice-president; George DeKruif, vice-president; L. G. Dolliver, vice-president; Oscar Oldknow, vice-president; Joe Hornstein, vice-president; and W. E. Green, vice-president.

The supply houses which have been taken over by the National Theatre Supply Company are as follows:

Amusement Supply Company, Detroit, Michigan.

Theatre Equipment Company, Detroit, Michigan.

Theatre Supply Company, Cleveland, Ohio, two stores.

Dwyer Brothers & Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Hollis-Smith-Morton Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., two stores.

Becker Theatre Supply Co., Buffalo, N.Y.

N. C. Haelele & Co., Baltimore, Md.

Washington Theatre Supply Co., Washington, D.C.

Philadelphia Theatre Equipment Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

Howell's Cine Equipment Co., New York, N.Y.

Independent Movie Supply Co., New York, N.Y.

United Theatre Equipment Co., Boston, Mass.

Exhibitors Supply Co., Boston, Mass.

Eastern Theatre Equipment Co., Boston, Mass.

Exhibitors Supply Co. of Ind., Indianapolis, Ind.

Yale Theatre Supply Co., Kansas City, Mo., two stores.

Cole Theatre Supply Co., Kansas City, Mo.

Western Theatre Supply Co., Omaha, Neb., two stores.

Denver Theatre Supply Co., Denver, Colo.

Salt Lake Theatre Supply Co., Salt Lake City, Utah.

Utah Theatre Supply Co., Salt Lake City, Utah.

Pacific Amusement Supply Co., Los Angeles, Cal.

California M. P. Equip. Co., Los Angeles, Cal.

Theatre Equipment & Supply Co., San Francisco, Cal.

Western Theatre Supply Co., San Francisco, Cal.

B. F. Shearer, Inc., Seattle, Wash., two stores.

Theatre Supply Co., Seattle, Wash.

Service Film & Supply Co., Portland, Ore.

Southern Theatre Equipment Co., Atlanta, Ga., seven stores.

Southern Theatre Equipment Co., New Orleans, La.

Southern Theatre Equipment Co., Dallas, Texas.

Southern Theatre Equipment Co., Oklahoma City, Okla.

Southern Theatre Equipment Co., Charlotte, N.C.

Theatre Equipment Supply Co., Atlanta, Ga.

Simplex Theatre Supply Co., Dallas, Texas.

Capital Merchandise Co., Chicago, Ill.

Exhibitors Supply Co., Chicago, Ill., four stores.

Exhibitors Supply Co., Cleveland, Ohio.

Exhibitors Supply Co., Denver, Colo.

Amusement Supply Co., Chicago, Ill.

A total of thirty-five corporations and fifty stores, doing business in twenty-six states. The National Theatre Supply Company will operate in the following cities: Boston, Mass., Albany, N.Y., Buffalo, N.Y., New York, N.Y., Philadelphia, Pa., Baltimore, Md., Washington, D.C., Pittsburgh, Pa., Cleveland, Ohio, Cincinnati, Ohio, Indianapolis, Ind., Detroit, Mich., St. Louis, Mo., Chicago, Ill., Milwaukee, Wis., Minneapolis, Minn., Des Moines, Iowa, Omaha, Nebr., Kansas City, Mo., Denver, Colo., Salt Lake City, Utah, Seattle, Wash., Portland, Ore., San Francisco, Cal., Los Angeles, Cal., Oklahoma City, Okla., Dallas, Texas, Memphis, Tenn., Charlotte, N.C., Jacksonville, Fla., New Orleans, La., Atlanta, Ga.

The consolidation is pictured as a step toward greater economy and the elimination of waste in distribution, in a statement issued by President Dutton in which he declares that the move is in keeping with the present day trend of successful business practice.

Operating plans for the organization as revealed in the announcement, provide for the division of the country into various territories in charge of regional directors who are vice-presidents. The general office will be located in Chicago, and from there will be directed the entire operations of the company.

The Pacific Coast Division, which will comprise branches in San Francisco, Seattle, Salt Lake City and Portland will be in charge of L. G. Dolliver, formerly of the Western Theatre Supply Company. Mr. Dolliver is well known on the Western Coast and is particularly adapted to his position through years of association with the equipment field in his territory.

H. E. Van Dwyne, formerly president of the Pacific Amusement Supply Co., and

G. A. Lincoln, a vice-president of the new National Theatre Supply Company

H. A. R. Dutton, president of the $5,000,000 National Theatre Supply merger

Joe Hornstein, vice-president of the National Theatre Supply, in charge of the Eastern Division with headquarters in New York well known for his success in the business, will be located at Los Angeles, California.

The Southern Division will be in charge of Osear Oldknow. This division will have its headquarters in Atlanta, with branches in Charlotte, N.C., New Orleans, La., Dallas, Texas, Oklahoma City, Okla., Jacksonville, Fla., and Memphis, Ten. Mr. Oldknow is a veteran in point of service in the equipment industry, having been associated with his father, William Oldknow, in the Southern Theatre Equipment Company for many years.

The Eastern Division, with headquarters in New York City, will be in charge of Joe Hornstein. Little need be said about Mr. Hornstein, as he is known from Coast to Coast, if not all over the world, through his various activities in the Howell's Cine Equipment Company, and in the export business. The Eastern Division will have branches in Boston, New York City, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Albany and Buffalo.

The Central West Division, which will be handled from the General Offices in Chicago, will take care of branches in Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Detroit, Chicago, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, St. Louis, Des Moines, Omaha, Kansas City and Denver.

Details of the conditions under which the various supply houses were taken over are not revealed, but it is understood that those absorbed were paid in cash.

President Dutton, in a statement issued in connection with the announcement of the merger said: "In forming the National Theatre Supply Company we are simply following the nation-wide trend toward economy. A consolidation such as ours is especially equipped to do a greater volume of business with a consequent lower overhead. It makes it possible to operate on a lower profit per unit, but with a higher profit per year.

"Theatre owners want to buy the better equipment and supplies on a basis of real value without having to pay the penalty of un-economic practices.

"We are convinced that through effecting economies in the distribution of the many manufactured articles we handle, adding others to our line, and through added volume, we can cater to the demand of the theatre owners to their entire satisfaction, and with profit to them as well as to ourselves.

"There have been many factors and practices in the distribution of equipment and supplies during the past which have contributed to waste. We are becoming a part of the great national movement to eliminate waste. Simple business prudence demands that the business of distribution be organized to eliminate any practices which have proven to be unessential and economically wasteful.

"We do not wish or pretend to convey the idea that we will effect a mysterious transformation in the business in which we have been engaged. We know, however, that unified effort and better service and at fair prices is recognized by business men generally as a forward step in any industry.

"There is no doubt, when sufficient time has elapsed to enable us to get thoroughly organized, that by building volume of sales, by purchasing to better advantage, by gathering together the brains and ideas of the entire industry, and by placing the entire business of distribution of equipment and supplies on one definite plan, the National Theatre Supply Company will offer to the theatre owner greater advantages in merchandise and service than he has ever enjoyed before.

"We are maintaining sales and service branches in 32 cities in the country located, we believe, to the best advantage."

Who's Who in Big Merger

From a small theatre slide advertising business, eleven years ago, to head of the largest distribution system of theatre equipment and supplies in the country, is the achievement of H. A. R. Dutton, whose ascension to the president of the National Theatre Supply Company climaxes an active career in the theatre equipment field in which he has been a leading figure for many years. Of Mr. Dutton it is said that he has learned the basic principles of business management through "getting out into deep water and swimming to shore."

The slide business which he started eleven years ago grew in gradual steps into a thriving equipment business which up to the time of the merger comprised eight branches, located in Middle West cities. Under his direction the business of Exhibitors Supply Company has prospered. Effecting of economies in distribution through efficient operation has long been an objective of Mr. Dutton's and it is said to have been his desire for further developing this principle in the theatre equipment field which made him one of the leading spirits in carrying out his ideas through the medium of the new national organization just announced.

C. D. Struble, secretary of the National Theatre Supply Company, was formerly president of the Yale Theatre Supply Company of Kansas City. For the past year he has held the office of president of the Equipment Dealers Association. Mr. Struble has had many years experience in the theatre equipment business and has taken an active part in its affairs. He has completed a course in law and has other qualifications which make him ideally fitted for his new position as secretary of the National Theatre Supply Company.

George De Kruif, vice-president of the National Theatre Supply Company, in charge of advertising and sales promotion

H. Stanley McLeod, who will occupy the position of treasurer of the National Theatre Supply Company, was for a period of years auditor of Exhibitors Supply Company. He later became associated with Bob Gumm in the operation of Exhibitors Supply Company of Indiana. At one time Mr. McLeod was auditor for the Fox Film Corporation in Europe.

G. A. Lincoln, formerly secretary and treasurer of Exhibitors Supply Company, will be vice-president in charge of purchases of the National Theatre Supply Company. Mr. Lincoln's wide experience in an executive capacity with Exhibitors Supply Company has brought him into active contact with manufacturers all over the country and has given him a thorough knowledge of equipment and supplies.

George DeKruif, a veteran in the field of advertising and sales promotion, will have charge of the sales promotion and advertising activities of the National Theatre Supply Company. Mr. DeKruif has handled the advertising of Exhibitors Supply Company for the past five years and his intimate knowledge of advertising and theatre equipment has won for him an enviable reputation.

Others who will be important factors in the new organization are vice-presidents, L. G. Dolliver, Osear Oldknow, Joe Hornstein and W. E. Green.

Casanave Progressing With Assoc. Theatres of Ohio

Charles L. Casanave is making headway with his plan to organize the Cleveland exhibitor into a single buying unit. Casanave has opened an office in 401 Film Exchange Building. He has formed the Associated Theatres for Ohio, and is said to have lined up in the neighborhood of fifteen theatres as a beginning. Two local circuits are said to have signed up with Casanave, and several independent theatre owners as well. This organization has nothing whatever to do with the Cleveland Motion Picture Exhibitors Association.

Fielding H. Yost Invades the Movies

Famous Coach Puts Together Two Expert Teams and Gives the Screen Real Football Stuff for Dramatic Picture

BY PAUL THOMPSON

Ex-Sporting Editor, The New York Evening Sun

FOR the first time in the history of films, a famous football coach has been engaged to put gridiron realism into a dramatic production. Fielding H. ("Hurry-Up") Yost, for a quarter of a century the justly-famed mentor of the University of Michigan, is the pioneer in this department of pictures. He was working for several weeks this Summer at the Famous Players studio in New York, directing the football sequences for Richard Dix in "The Quarterback."

He had an amazing squad to work with; most of the men have national reputations for pigskin prowess, two or three being of All-America calibre.

And the famous coach confided to me the other day, just before he went back to Ann Arbor to begin his season out there, that "Colton" will defeat "State College" this Fall by the score of 14 to 10. He trained both teams, paradoxical as that may sound, and has fixed it so that not only is the outcome of the game certain, but even what the score will be and that the winning play is to come in the last quarter.

Not many people know that Fielding Yost has invaded the movies. The reason for this is more or less self-evident. Striving more and more for realism and that quality of sincerity which is so easily detected, not only by people conversant with a certain phase of activity pictured, but by the greater mass of people becoming more and more educated up to demanding and receiving that which is real rather than just make-believe, it was inevitable that Yost should find his way onto the movie lot. He knows as much about the gridiron game as any man coaching for the past quarter of a century and with his national reputation there could be no question but that the football caught by the moving picture cameras would be the real thing if he were standing along-side of the man with the megaphone to shout his own "Hurry-up" slogan at the players. No haberdashery or dry goods counter graduates to carry out his orders but honest-to-god football players who know the game and how to play it. Most of them graduated with big reputations on which they are cashing in on the pro teams that have held forth for the past year or two and will again this Fall and Winter.

A Bunch of Football Stars

Glance over these names and you will know that under the guidance of the physical instructor of the University of Michigan football is being photographed that surely will ring true when transferred to the screen: Carney of Annapolis, Garvey of Notre Dame, McBride of Syracuse, Keefer, who spent a year under Yost at Michigan and then went to Brown, Voss of Syracuse, Jim Williams of Lafayette, Bomar of Vanderbilt (a Walter Camp all-America selection), Forgone of Syracuse, Reynolds of Georgetown (all* Southern and all-

Exhibitors: Here's the Second Article in New Service

AS announced last week, MOTION PICTURE NEWS is printing a series of specially-written articles, designed for newspaper use. The first, on "Red" Grange, was published last week.

Here is the second—a personality story, written by a member of the NEWS staff, who is also a football expert—about Fielding H. ("Hurry-Up") Yost, the famous coach of the University of Michigan.

He worked this Summer for several weeks at the Famous Players studio, directing the football sequences for Richard Dix in "The Quarterback."

The article has many human interest angles that should appeal to newspapers. Exhibitors who will play the picture should show this article to their newspapers.

American player), Rollins of Rutgers, Weis of St. John's, Coburn of Amherst, Flaherty of Georgetown and Sheey of New York University. Imagine having that bunch to pick from for university team? No wonder Fielding becomes contemplative and reflective when he looks them over and is curious in regard to wholesale railroad rates to Ann Arbor whether by cattle car or Pullman.

How he happened to be in the east since early in August is an interesting story in itself. He left recently for Michigan to continue his work of coaching his own men to beat again, if possible, Chicago, Illinois, Northwestern, Wisconsin, Minnesota, and the other long-time rivals among the colleges and universities of the Middle West and uphold the traditions of Yost and the University he has long been identified with. But he left with the satisfaction that he has given to the moving-picture fans of this country real football of the brand he has been teaching since Mark Sullivan's "Turn of the Century." He has been coaching the two football teams in Richard Dix's next starring vehicle, "The Quarterback," because Ralph Block is a University of Michigan graduate and, being in charge of the Famous Players-Lasky scenario department at Astoria, Long Island, he remembered, as what alumnus would not, the coach of his undergraduate days and determined to try to inveigle him east. In this purpose he was strengthened by Paul Dickey, another Ann Arborite who had played football under Yost. Dickey was not too busy writing his own scripts for other Famous stars and wearing gracefully the new mantle of director draped around his broad shoulders by Adolph Zukor and Jesse Lasky to co-operate with Block in getting "Hurry-Up" to drop, not the plow on his Michigan Sabine Farm, but the work of teaching summer school physical directors and come east.

"No posing in the movies himself, just telling the players what to do and how to do it," he stipulated, and on this condition he, with the accelerating cry of "Hurry-Up," came to New York and Astoria. It has been a thrilling experience and he has gotten a world of enjoyment out of it, as he explained to me at length at the Hotel Shelton and at the St. Paul's School football field at Garden City. It is fair to assume the monetary reward has been in proportion, but I feel he would have done it no matter whether the pay was adequate or not because Ralph Block and Paul Dickey asked him to do it and because he loves the game itself so unreservedly.

In the latter respect he makes me think of Foster Sanford, the famous Yale player who for so many years taught Rutgers and put that New Jersey team on the football map even as he had years before done for Columbia. My own debt of gratitude will always persist for his having taught me all the football I ever knew.

Long before Yost arrived in the east it had been all fixed that Richard Dix's team, "Colton," would have to win the game. Anyone even slightly familiar with the moving pictures could have told "Hurry-Up" that the hero must be on a winning team and the villain on the losing end. Michigan's football mentor didn't quite like that, but became partly reconciled because Dix showed unusual football ability and developed into a rattling good quarterback who might, even under ordinary circumstances, have done what the scenario writer and director had mapped out for him to do. It helped some, too, that Dix didn't come into the game at the very last moment to save the day for "old Colton" but started the fourth quarter, or possibly it was right after the kickoff for the second half. Anyway, he does come in and win the game through his own brilliant playing, backed up by that bunch of "All-America" college rough-necks listed above. So the tip is out, back "Colton" off the board to win the annual game with "State" by the score of 14-10 this fall and winter and spring, for Astoria and 485 Fifth Avenue logically hopes the game will still be played, despite any seasonal objections. And it probably will be.

Fire Hoses and Cigarettes

Additional handicaps which Yost has had to face or ignore include cigarette smoking. While two fire hoses were playing on the St. Paul gridiron to make the surface nice and boggy and the players were resting for the moment on the sidelines the great majority of these players were busy fracturing training rules by lighting and smoking cigarettes. Half a dozen times Yost was on the point of yelling to the men to "throw them away" or stopped, puzzled for the moment, midway on his march to their side to grab the taboo cigarette out of their mouths. Members of a football squad under his direction smoking between halves with the game still unfinished? Unheard of; he wouldn't stand for it; "no sir; if they couldn't obey his training rules he would make up a team of scrubs and play them instead." And then came the realization that these were the mythical "Colton" and "State University" teams and not his own University of Michigan gridiron players.

Another handicap which Yost has had to face has been coaching two teams playing against each other, one of which must win. The impulse naturally in planning a play and trying to make it go is to devise a defence for the other side which will successfully stop that very play from being successful a second time. It is somewhat akin to playing a game of chess or checkers with yourself. No one yet has succeeded in so orientating himself as to think as two different men would and do, even granting the Jekyll-Hyde premise and that we are all made up of entirely different and opposite personalities. It is a well-nigh impossible task to coach two football teams and not have a stalemate unless there is a director with a megaphone to see to it that the hero does his stuff and his team wins out. By hook and crook, such as getting the officials to close their eyes, "Colton" holds onto the ball and because of this unfair handicap, of course, must and does win the game.

To make things more complicated the scenario, or Yost himself, calls for the game to be played on a wet field. Just why I will not know until the completed picture is shown. As a result, two fire hoses play all day long on the playing field when picture taking is temporarily halted. The result is that after every scrimmage the twenty-two men arise (or emerge) with their football suits, stockings, shoes and head-pieces covered with mud and their faces begrimed, as well. And if there is the slightest disposition to slow up because of the footing there is Fielding H. megaphoning with his cupped hands to "put some life into it and speed it up." Not a chance in the world to soldier on the job. "Life is real and life is earnest" for those football players and it is a good thing that in college and since graduation they have been accustomed to it. Even as it is, Yost wore out a lot of players and recruits who were always being relayed to Garden City to take the places of those fallen by the wayside and the sidelines.

Dix Plays a Good Game

In a prologue the game as played in 1899 is shown in about four plays and that kind of mass-play football so widely divergent from the brand of 1925 and '26, Yost, as well as Dad, also knows. For these short scenes New York University and High School boys were used. One of the things for which Yost is very grateful is that Richard Dix needs very little doubling for him in the football sequences. The star played football in his prep school days in St. Paul, Minnesota, and also during his first year at the University of Minnesota and that has helped a lot. Not that he ever will imperil the reputations of Walter Eckersall, "Red" Grange, et al, but Dix plays better football than one would expect. He is fast on his feet, alert,

K. O. Club Idea Praised in Salesmen's Messages

TELEGRAMS and other messages received from branch managers and salesmen all over the country convey the pledges of the senders to do their utmost to prove worthy of membership in the K. O. Club recently started by the sales cabinet of First National Pictures.

The first ten men to be elected to membership will receive their K. O. buttons January 1, 1927. Besides substantial cash awards it is the intention of the company to make promotions from the membership.

quick to see an opening and take advantage of it and decidedly malleable in Yost's hands in being molded into a mighty good and convincing quarterback, even from a football player's viewpoint.

He is as fast as the majority of halfbacks in American colleges today, from Yost's viewpoint and that is some tribute. He and Butler are great pals in the picture and it is their team work that brings the ultimate success to their college. Butler is a corking 200-pound fullback and often Yost looks at him wistfully and meditates what he could do with him out at Ann Arbor. Most of the football played, including the winning play, are logically the kind taught at Michigan. Yost is fortunate in another respect, in that he has for a director in the football sequences Fred Newmeyer, who directed all the football in Harold Lloyd's "The Freshman," which the star himself did not direct. The result is that the Yost-Dix-Newmeyer trinity is one hard to beat as the villain, "Captain Craig," and his "State College" eleven discover when this season's championship game with "Colton" is staged.

Despite the training rules infractions, such as the cigarette-smoking right under the coach's nose, the players were all in good physical condition and mentally fit as well. While Dix is starred Yost feels he has turned out a mighty good, well-rounded team. Were it possible to delay his return to Ann Arbor he would like to pit his proteges against any team headed by Harold Lloyd, George Walsh, "Red" Grange, "Lefty" Flynn or any other silent drama eleven that ever wasted moving-picture footage before the cameras of Hollywood or all points east. And in the matter of using up films Yost is no piker, because the play must be right, it must be football, not moving picture "London-Bridge-is-falling-down" action, before he will agree with the director that they can go on to the next bit of football action.

Yost Not on Screen

It is a shame that Fielding is not to be shown on the screen himself but he is not. He would not stand for it. He is a technical director only. The football coach in the play has not been in evidence since the first day of shooting football scenes, as his presence was not needed. You may bank on his having a mighty good understudy in the Michigan mentor.

Questioned in regard to the comparative merits of the football played today and yester-year on the screen Fielding said he thought the Famous and other teams of today have it all over the elevens of the old S. A. Biograph and Vitagraph days. That is partly prejudice, for he much prefers the game as it has been opened up today before the camera as opposed to the mass plays of the Mauve Decade. Then camera work was rendered difficult because of the heterogenous piles of twenty-two men and only typical German close-ups of clinched hands meeting a nose or bloody eyes showing where the play had gone were possible. The camera game of 1926 is technically much more effective and thrilling and because of the open play and fast shutters the game can be seen almost as well from the lowest price seats in a Broadway or other moving picture house as from the sidelines in the company of the usual symphonic orchestras.

It is a question if Yost has ever coached a team under such unusual conditions. In the first place, he was logically delighted to discover he had real football players to work with. "Big Dave" Butler with his two hundred pounds, Dix's sidekick in the play, and Keefer, are his favorites, I think, because both, but especially Keefer, who learned the game at Michigan before he migrated to the top of the Hill at Providence to play for Brown, satisfy his yearning for reality. Yet they make good actors too. Keefer did a certain amount of doubling for the star, Dix, but not very much and set a dizzy pace for Richard to follow when he himself wore the moleskins, cleats, head-gear, etc.

All about the field were derricks that suggest oil fields of a new strike. On the top of each of these were two or more moving picture operators getting every angle of the football game. Not content with this a Ford truck was brought into use on a sort of narrow gauge railroad that ran along the sidelines on the western side of the playing field. On top of this was a superstructure that extended far beyond the sides of the Ford so that on the football field side the outer edge practically overlapped the sideline by several feet. From that vantage point two operators took close-ups. That they and their cameras might not upset the platform and the truck, surplus football players, preferably those of most tonnage on the squad who were not playing for the moment, were used as ballast. This truck followed the plays up and down the field while the cameras ground, ground, ground, until the director and Yost were satisfied they got what they wanted. The careless spectator, unless he watched his step, might fall into some pit dug to house a movie camera on a level with the earth's surface to get close-up snaps a la Lubitsch or Dupont.

Yost, with a slouch hat, football trousers and an earnestness that has always been a characteristic, has taken this new work of coaching a moving picture football squad very seriously and as a result, put out of commission a lot of men who started the season with him but could not stand the pace.

One difficulty in interviewing Yost about Famous Players football is that he is always reverting to Michigan and the things that have been done and are being done there. For a matter of fact, his Eastern visit marks merely a continuation of his athletic work at Ann Arbor. There it is not merely football but general athletic work, for he is more than coach; he is athletic instructor and a member of the faculty. This is, incidentally, true of the majority of men, he told me, who are coaching in the west, middle west and south. No longer are they merely hired professionals secured to turn out championship elevens, but men with education who are, in ninety-nine per cent. of the cases, just as much faculty members as the men who are teaching Greek, Latin, Economics, etc., etc. The last quarter of a century has absolutely changed their status socially and otherwise.

Against College Men as Pros

Yost absolutely deprecates a college man going into any professional sport after graduation. This means not merely football in capitalizing a reputation made in the undergraduate days but also baseball. His reasoning is that in the years between, say twenty-two, when the average man graduates, and possibly thirty when he should be laying the foundation for his real life, he becomes spoiled through earning money out of all proportion to what he will have to accept when he leaves athletics and takes up his real life work. Baseball or football may pay a man several hundred dollars a week if he has a national reputation but the life is not conducive to contentment afterward, when confronted with the necessity of giving up sport and doing what his classmates have been doing ever since graduation, learning a profession through an eight or twelve-hour day at minimum wages, but building all the time, a firm foundation for the future.

There are all too few Sislers or Mathewsons in baseball or Granges in football and when the majority of college athletic stars are through playing professional baseball or football they are just so many years behind their classmates in making the start for the real work of life. Everything about professional sports; the comparatively easy money, the short hours of doing what they for the most part love to do, playing the game they like and can play well, the environment; all these things tend to spoil the average college graduate and in his most impressionable years.

Fielding Yost's stay in New York has

Universal Enjoins Dupont Advisers in Dispute

THE latest development in the disagreement over the contractual status of E. A. Dupont, German director, came last Saturday, just prior to Dupont's sailing for Germany, when Universal obtained a temporary injunction restraining C. R. Seeley and Hans Winter from interfering with the completion by Dupont of his contract with that company.

Universal's attorneys, Willard S. McKay and Granville W. Byrne, appeared in the Supreme Court of New York State on Monday morning to argue on a motion to make the injunction permanent, but action was postponed until next Monday at the request of Seeley's attorney.

Stories were published during the week that Universal had filed suit for $100,000 against Seeley and Winter, but no word on this was forthcoming from the legal department. R. H. Cochrane maintains that Universal has a valid contract with Dupont, which still has at least a year to run.

not been all work even if the work is the sort he loves, for socially he has been fettered to more than his heart's content. He discovered, if he did not know it already, that New York shelters several of his most famous pupils, men who helped to make Michigan football history. They have, for the most part, profited by the coaching of "Hurry-Up" and bucked the business and financial lines also most successfully since leaving Ann Arbor. James Baird, captain of the '95 team, is head of the Baird Construction Company, having directed the destinies of the George H. Fuller Company most successfully for years. Curiously, as head of that latter world famous organization, Baird was succeeded by another Michigan football star, Hugh White, captain of the famous Michigan team in 1901 that scored 550 points to their opponents' 0. Not such a bad record, considering the sort of opposition the Conference teams usually present.

Walter Bennett, captain of the '98 team, is also a New Yorker. That was the year when Chicago was beaten, 12 to 11, because Woodman made one of those typical moving-picture 65-yard dashes against the famous Hershberger's team in the closing moments of play to dash the hopes of Alonzo Stagg and his Chicago cohorts. It was the sort of thing I remember the Poes and DeWitts or Sam Whites more or less specialized in, for Princeton against Yale when I was an undergraduate and my wordly all was safely (theoretically) banked on the ability and prowess of Yale teams. A typical "Red" Grange performance, or the sort of football stuff of which movies, dreams or fiction college athletic stories are made.

"Brute"—curious how college nicknames will cling to a man in after years—Pontius, who now holds down a big job with the National City Bank with his eagle eye focussed on "openings" in the South American banking lines for a plunge through, is another Michigan alumnus who has made Yost's New York stay worth while. He was doing tackle plunges for the Michigan football coach back in 1911-12 and '13.

Harry Hammond, possibly better known to the sport-loving fraternity for his New York Athletic Club affiliation, his interest in the Madison Square Garden company and in hockey than for his position with the Pressed Car Steel Company, has done his bit for the "Hurry-Up" person by staging a dinner or two for him at the Cherry Valley Club. There over the coffee and cigars he and his other guests were more than repaid by listening to the mole-skin oracle reminisce about the game he loves so well and has so ornamented with his high, unswerving standards of fair play, albeit the play at times might be a trifle rough. But then it has never been nor will be a game which can very easily or satisfactorily be substituted for ping-pong, tiddly-winks, or checkers.

Publix Not to Use Radio in Theatres

Trials in Four Houses Convince Officials Broadcasting Has No Value as Direct Box Office Asset—Experiments Checked

AS a result of tests made in four theatres of the circuit some time ago.

Publix will not employ radio broadcasting in any houses under its jurisdiction. The trials in which broadcasting was done from four representative houses served to convince Publix executives that this form of advertising was productive of widespread publicity but that it failed to produce directly at the box office results commensurate with the cost of its operation. Therefore, tentative plans to install radio in several of the Publix theatres should the trials prove it worth while have been abandoned and radio, so far as this company is concerned, is regarded as having been tried and found wanting, in its present form at least, as an asset of the picture theatre box office.

The radio trials were conducted at the Stratford Theatre, Poughkeepsie; Broadway Theatre, Newburgh; Carolina Theatre, Greenville, and Rex Theatre, Spartanburg. The method in each case was to install on the stage a regular Government-licensed station, from which special numbers and the regular theatre music was broadcast in view of the audience. This added feature was offered for a week in each of the four theatres. In each case there is said to have resulted a great amount of publicity, while the box office registered a lower figure than the normal set for the show with which it was tried out. The check-up on the experiments seemed to indicate that people were highly interested in the feature, but that they were remaining at home to listen in on the programs, and that the broadcasting instead of increasing box office receipts was actually inducing the public to remain away from the theatre.

The case parallels that of the Mark Strand in New York. After a trial of several months, Joseph Plunkett, managing director, discontinued broadcasting as injurious to the theatre's box office. The programs were broadcast from the Strand once a week and included orchestra music from the auditorium during the performance and special "studio" numbers arranged by Mr. Plunkett, who did the announcing. With the discontinuance of the radio broadcasting the Strand introduced the elaborate presentations staged under Plunkett's direction and over a period of several months showed a gain of several thousands of dollars per week at the box office.

The Publix trials were made under an arrangement with a broadcasting service company. The stations installed at the theatres had a radius of about 1,000 miles.

Fox Net Profits for First Half of 1926 $1,400,743; $1,000,000 in Dividends

ACCORDING to the consolidated balance sheet just issued by Fox Film Corporation for the first six months of 1926, the company earned a net profit of $1,400,743, giving the corporation a surplus of $12,189,892; disclosed assets of $25,505,777 as of June 26. Of this total $1,285,430 represents cash.

$591,684 is the balance due the corporation from theatre owners in film rentals. During the period covered by the statement the company paid dividends of $1,000,000 in two installments of $500,000 each.

Fox Theatres Corporation, backed by the resources of the parent corporation, is steadily going ahead with its theatre building program. Theatre sites for Brooklyn and Newark have been announced, construction has been started in Washington, D. C., and in San Francisco; a site is being cleared in Detroit and construction will start on the St. Louis theatre in October.

More New England Houses Open

Construction Finished on Theatres in Cambridge, Woonsocket and Boston

OPENING dates for some of the new New England theatres which have been under construction during the summer months, have been set.

One of the most important of these is the new University Theatre in Harvard Square, Cambridge, under the owner-management of Stanley Sumner of the Newton Community and other theatres. This will open Oct. 2. For some years various theatrical interests have tried to obtain locations in Harvard Square but were unsuccessful. It is one of the best locations in Greater Boston and is directly opposite the Elevated rapid transit terminal. It will be one of the largest of the suburban houses.

The new Morton Street Theatre in the Dorchester District of Boston is receiving the finishing touches and will be formally opened Oct. 3, according to present plans. It is one of Jake Laurie's chain.

The new Paramount house, the Stadium

Theatre, in Woonsocket, R.I., will be ready for its formal opening Sept. 20, according to present plans. It will seat about 2,500. The manager for the new house has not yet been announced.

Theatres which have been closed during the summer and which are reopening include the Keith-Albee St. James Theatre in Boston and the Broadway Theatre in Chelsea, which reopened this week; the Coliseum Theatre in Gardiner, Me., which opened September 16, with a new owner-manager, F. B. McKeown; the Comique Theatre, Lynn, Mass., all with a policy of pictures and vaudeville.

The Somerville Theatre, in Somerville, Mass., which adopted a picture policy last winter, reopened this week with a resumption of stock after extensive improvements in the theatre, and the Modern Theatre, Providence, was reopened with stock.

New Companies Incorporate in New York State

Motion picture companies incorporating in New York state during the past week, included the following: Peggy Company, Inc., capitalization not specified, with Meyer M. Brown, David Seheinker and Samuel R. Kurzman, New York City; Doral Amusement Corporation, $5,000, Louis Chazen, Isaae M. Sachs, Anna Chasen, New York City; Peroff Pictures, Inc., capitalization not specified, Orson Kilborn, Robert T. Woodruff, Leighton T. Wade, New York City; Colester Amusement Corporation, $20,000, Michael Fruhling, New York City; Isaae Steinhaus, Brooklyn; Pauline Rosenblatt, Bronx; Sterni Film and Theatrical Co., Inc., $100,000, Giuseppe Sterni, Paul Cremonesi, Alfredo Rosi, New York City.

Fire Causes Heavy Damage to Hamilton Grand

Heavy damage was caused at the Grand Theatre, Hamilton, Ont., one of the oldest amusement centres in the city, on September 11 when flames destroyed the stage, the fire being discovered at 5:35 A. M. The auditorium of the theatre was saved by the asbestos curtain and by the excellent work of the firemen.

The stage section was completely gutted, the loss is estimated at $38,000, the amount being covered by insurance. A feature of the fire was the use of the fire department's new motor pumps for the first time.

Lasky President of Association of Producers

Jesse L. Lasky was elected president of the Association of Motion Picture Producers at the semi-annual meeting of that organization held in Los Angeles this week. He succeeds Charles Christie, retiring president. Other new officers elected are Irving C. Thalberg, first vice-president, and M. C. Levey, second vice-president.

The Association voted to take immediate steps toward the improvement of working conditions for classes of labor in the film studios of Southern California.

Universal Profits $725,843 for Six Months Ending May 8th, 1926

UNIVERSAL PICTURES net profits totaled $725,843 for the six months ending May 8, 1926, after Federal taxes and charges had been deducted, equivalent after dividends on eight per cent first preferred and seven per cent second preferred to $2.16 per share earned on 250,000 shares of no par common. For the same period last year the profit was $1,248,754 or $4.23 per share. The gross income of this year is greater than that of 1925—the figures being $14,733,535 as compared with $11,395,045. Preferred dividends are $183,544 and $190,000, 1926 and 1925, respectively. The surplus for 1926 amounted to $542,299 and for 1925, $1,058,754.

The net profit for the quarter ending May 8 amounted to $274,828 or 73 cents per share on common after preferred dividends. During the first six months of the current fiscal year an additional $113,200 of eight per cent preferred was retired, reducing amount outstanding to $2,768,600. Universal declares the decline is due to the enlarged production schedule. The entire cost of films is charged off at the time of release, thus giving the charge the appearance of one quarter's operations.

British Press Hails Williams Deal

Trade Journals Feel It Marks Constructive Step Forward, And Take to Task Detractors of American Release Tie-up

FOLLOWING the announcement by J. D. Williams in England that he had closed arrangements with Famous Players-Lasky for world distribution of three pictures to be made by British National Pictures, has come an avalanche of comment in the British daily and trade press which is of considerable interest.

Particularly striking is the fact that the press has been solidly for Williams and against those who sought to detract from the measure of his achievement. There have been critics, naturally, among those who have tried for years to find an entering wedge into the American market and failed, but these have found scant support. Sir Oswald Stoll, the producer, who at one time opened distributing offices in America, denounced the Williams-Famous deal as placing control of the British industry still further in the hands of America. This, however, was commented on by the press as "sour grapes," it being intimated that had Mr. Stoll been the one to close the deal his attitude would have been quite different.

The consensus of press opinions has been that, while the deal is not ideal or final, it marks a definite and vital step forward; that the British producing industry must walk before it can run, and that Williams has shown the way to other firms.

Kinematograph Weekly, commenting on the Stoll letter, says editorially:

"In fact, Sir Oswald Stoll's real objection to the British National deal is, it seems to us, that it was not made by Sir Oswald Stoll.

"It is an undoubted weakness of the Williams-Zukor contract that, while it provides production with the most valuable tonic it has had since the War, it does nothing to stimulate independent distribution here.

"From the point of view of the producer, this is an advantage rather than a weakness. It saves him a big investment of capital. From the point of view of general trade interests it is a weakness because ultimately the chief safeguard against monopoly in this country must be the independent distributor. One would like to see any general revival of production associated with the extension of distribution in indisputably British hands.

"But we are taking a very, very big step forward indeed if we get production re-started in this country on the basis of American distribution, and it is in that aspect that the Williams-Zukor deal seems to us a service of the very first importance to British production.

"Anyone who gives us British films, made on the scale which America demands, up to a standard which guarantees exhibition in all parts of the world, removes the biggest obstacle to the revival everyone desires by proving that British production is a commercial proposition.

"Once that is proved, there is no reason why capital should not revise its attitude to the many projects for British production which come before it, and there is no reason why independent British distribution should not figure in such schemes."

Commenting, in its previous issue, on the deal itself, "Kinematograph" said:

"In brief, it seems to us that J. D. Williams, an American, has shown British producers how the business problem of production should be handled. He has secured the best distribution contract on record because he has shown the Americans that he can make films which they can sell.

"And by getting Zukor's name on a contract of that type, he has half won the battle for American distribution for every British producer worthy of his salt, for if there is one thing more certain than another it is that American distributors in general follow where Zukor leads.

"There are half a dozen other 'big' American concerns who will readily listen to just such a proposition as J. D. has sold to Adolph. Are there any other British concerns capable of seizing the opportunity?"

The "Bioscope" had this to say of the deal:

"It has always been the contention of this journal that there was only one way in which British films could gain an entry not only to the American market, but to the markets of the world. This is the way of 'Good British Films.' When British producers make films which are good—that is, equal to or better than those of competing countries—there is nothing to stop them going to and being welcomed in any market. It is therefore a pleasure to find our repeatedly expressed opinions being corroborated in the securing by Famous Players of the world's rights of the three subjects being made by British National Pictures in London. It is true these pictures have not yet been seen, but the action of Famous Players in securing them places the producer and the producing company on the same level as competing companies and producers in the States. The anticipated pictures are judged by past performance, and the result expected is classed as being dependable to the extent of warranting the pictures being secured even without being seen."

The "Cinema," another leading trade organ, commented on the political aspects of the deal as regards reciprocity, stating in part:

"When J. C. Graham, of Famous-Lasky, was asked how it came about that a firm so particular in its output permitted itself to blind-buy three pictures, he remarked, 'You ought to be able to figure that out for yourself.'

"The suggestion was made that the trade might regard it as lending foundation to the charge—levelled when reciprocity was discussed—that America was willing to pay £50,000 to gag those who were urging the more-British-product policy.

"Mr. Graham emphatically denied that any such charge would be justified.

"Reciprocity was my idea," he asserted. "Those who say we wanted to use it as a gag read into it something that was never dreamed of in America. It was a perfectly genuine plan, suggested in all good faith to ensure a reasonable output of British films into America—an output which would naturally have grown as more worth-while British films were made. My firm never lent itself, and would never lend itself, to any under-the-surface policy of the type suggested. The reciprocity plan was dismissed over here before we had had time fully to consider it in America. After the Joint Trade Committee had dismissed it, we naturally ceased to give it any attention."

Barelays Bank, in London, is reported to have entered into an agreement to finance British National Pictures, Ltd., through the efforts of J. D. Williams. This is said to mark one of the few times in British film history that a producer has received the support of a banking institution.

Major H. C. S. Thomson, formerly managing director of F. B. O., is now interested in financing British and Continental production.

In an interview Thomson said he believes that films will settle in two classes; those made for national distribution and others for international sale. He pointed out that America's big advantage, apart from her start, is that 75 per cent. of her income is from her own country and therefore American companies can afford to sell reasonably in the foreign market.

England must make pictures a trifle better than those of America in order to secure a market in the United States, Thomson declared. American producers will buy pictures which are better than their own, he asserted, pointing out that they are far more interested in theatres they operate than they are in their own films.

Iowa Sunday Shows Animosity Far from Waning

One application for injunction has been asked to prevent the Armory Theatre Company from opening on Sunday, even though the people of Clarinda, Ia., voted for the Sunday shows.

Another application for injunction was denied, Judge Moffitt of Tipton, Ia., declining to restrain the exhibitor from operating, but consenting to restrict him from using loud music which would disturb church-goers and preventing him from displaying signs or glaring lights beyond the west line of his building. The exhibitor is Jacob Lewis, manager of the Latonia Theatre.

Ziehm Founds Distributing Organization in Germany

A distributing organization in Germany operating through seven branches and handling pictures of a high calibre has been founded in Germany by Arthur Ziehm, organizer and salesmanager of the foreign department of the former Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan Distributing Corporation. Three productions have already been completed and a fourth which is planned as a "super" will have Werner Kraus, Conrad Veidt, Maly Delschaft and Harry Liedtke.

Musicians' Strike in Chicago Settled

Three Year Contract Signed Giving Players $2.50 Increase Weekly; Boston, Kansas City, Mo., and Houston Factions Settle

THE musicians' strike in Chicago, which commenced Labor Day, when three thousand players left the pit, has been settled with one remaining point of difference, the settlement terms indicating a victory for the theatre owners. A three-year contract has been signed giving the musicians a flat raise of $2.50 weekly, and a $2.00 increase for one rehearsal weekly.

The one difference of opinion existing, that of four-piece orchestras in smaller theatres of the city, has been submitted to an arbitration board of five members, composed of two men from each faction and the fifth, Dr. Karl Meyer, Chief of the Cook County Hospital, who will also be chairman of the board.

Musicians have lost approximately $200,000 in wages during the strike. The theatres, backed by public sympathy, reported business relatively good for the strike period. No attempt was made to hire non-union players, the managers providing radio and phonograph music.

Other cities throughout the country have also been waging battle with the musicians' and projectionists' unions over wage and working hour differences.

In Boston a new wage scale has been adopted by agreement of the Allied Theatres of Massachusetts and the Boston Musicians' Protective Association, and which became effective on Monday of this week. Under the new scale musicians in vaudeville and picture houses playing 14 performances per week will receive $72 per week; houses playing feature pictures and legitimate, $94 per week; burlesque houses, 12 performances a week, $60; musical shows, eight performances a week, $64.

Following the increases granted theatre musicians, a two-year contract was signed Monday, September 13, between the Allied Theatre Managers' Association and the Moving Picture Operatives' Protective Union in Boston, whereby increases are granted projection operators. The agreement is retroactive to September 1.

Under the agreement operators in first-class theatres who were paid $75 a week are advanced to $83 per week, and the chief operator to $125 per week. Second-class houses operating six days, where the old scale called for $51 per week, the new scale is $62 per week and $13 additional, or an increase of 50 cents for Sundays. In third-class theatres where the old scale was $51 and $12.20 for Sundays, the new scale is $57 and $13 or a total of $70 for a seven-day week. Operators in film exchanges are advanced in similar proportion.

The strike of theatre musicians, motion picture operators and stage hands, which was declared Saturday night in Kansas City, Mo., in sympathy with the West Coast strike, was called off Sunday morning at 8 o'clock before it had affected any of the theatres. Advice that the unions of the West Coast had settled their dispute ended the strike in Kansas City.

Managers Jack Quinlan, Earl T. S. Cook and Lawrence Lehman, of the Mainstreet,

Moe Mark May Build House on Upper 5th Ave.

PURCHASE by Moe Mark of the North Star Theatre property on Fifth Avenue between 106th and 107th streets, New York City, from George H. Earle, Jr., of Philadelphia, was announced this week.

Mr. Mark stated that the property had been purchased by him as a personal investment, and that he had already received two excellent offers for the property, either one of which he might accept.

If not, he said, he would construct a 2,800 seat house on the property, to cost about $800,000. This would presumably become a link in the Stanley Mark Strand chain, of which the Stanley Company of America is the parent corporation.

Pantages and Orpheum, respectively, had obtained substitute musicians, stage hands and operators for emergency use. The first two houses are first-run motion picture theatres, as well as vaudeville. Attendance was larger than usual, the managers reported, due to the curiosity of patrons to see how the theatres would meet the threatened strike.

The wage controversy between motion picture operators and exhibitors has been settled for two years, at least. The scale agreed upon this week consists of an increase of 6 per cent the first year and an additional 4 per cent increase the second year. The agreement was reached at a conference of committees representing the M. P. T. O., Kansas-Missouri and the operators' union.

The new scale: Class C Houses: $35 night, $5 for matinees, under 500 seats. Class D Houses: $36 nights, $5 for matinees, 501 to 800 seats. Class E Houses: $42.50 night, $5.50 matinees, 801 to 1,200 seats. Class F Houses: $49 nights, $6 matinees, more than 1,200 seats.

The strike of union motion picture machine operators and musicians in three Waterloo theatres was strengthened this week by a sympathetic strike by corresponding employees of two Cedar Rapids theatres, the Strand and the Palace, which, with the Strand, Crystal and Palace at Waterloo, are members of the A. J. Diebold chain.

The Cedar Rapids men are under a two-year contract which has one year yet to run. They are making no demands of their own, but with the musicians are supporting the demand of the operators for an increase of $4.70 a week.

The Crystal Theatre at Waterloo is closed, the other two are continuing operation with non-union operators and phonographic music.

A style show slated for the Strand early this week was called off when a local merchant refused garments to sixteen imported girl models. Other theatres which have granted the increase, are unaffected.

The Northwest dodged serious consequences in the recent epidemic of strikes among operators, musicians and stage hands only the Seventh Street and Hennepin-Orpheum theatres being affected in Minneapolis since Pantages has not yet reopened.

The Palace in St. Paul and other Orpheum houses in Des Moines, Davenport, Cedar Rapids, Waterloo and Sioux City were affected.

Two other houses were hit in Waterloo, the Crystal closing and the Strand and Palace using non-union operators and phonograph music.

Twin City exhibitors have a contract that still has another year to run.

Houston theatres have been in the grip of an operators' strike and twelve theatres were closed for two days. Settlement was reached through a series of conferences between representatives of the operators and Will Horwitz, representing the theatre interests.

The owners agreed to pay the scale demanded and the operators agreed to the classification insisted upon by the owners. The following scale of pay will prevail, according to the new agreement:

For the Metropolitan, Loew, Majestic and Kirby, $57.50 per week. These theatres, with the exception of the Majestic, are in process of construction.

For the Isis, Capitol and Queen, $55 per week.

For the Texan and Royal, $53.75 per week.

For the Liberty, Ritz, Iris and Rialto, $52.50 per week.

The Strand, Best, Folly, Olympic, Houston and Crown will pay $46.25 for the first six months and $47.50 for the next six months, it was stated.

The threatened strike of some eighty musicians, stage hands and operators employed by the St. Louis, Grand Opera House and Orpheum theatres, St. Louis, Mo., which was set for midnight on Saturday, September 4, proved a mere gesture by the unions as all of the workers reported for the Sunday morning rehearsals as usual. They stated that the internationals had called off the strike.

The strike move was in sympathy with the strikers in San Francisco and Oakland, Calif. including Orpheum Circuit workers.

The St. Louis workers had absolutely no grievance against the local theatres. A month ago the musicians signed a contract for one year at an increased scale, while only two weeks ago the stage hands entered into a two-years' agreement with the theatres, also receiving a salary increase.

These contracts, which are binding on the craftsmen as well as the theatres, stipulate that two weeks' notice be given before resignation which is part of the contract.

The theatres were prepared to operate without members of unions if forced to so protect the $5,000,000 investment in Orpheum houses.

Germans Favor Original Film Music

Prominent Composers Turn Talents Toward Composition of Screen Scores; Rapee an Important Factor in Berlin Affairs

**By Harry Knopf*

(Hamburg Film Journal)

WE are, today, in Germany, in an era of film music, with a growing tendency toward the composition of special motion picture music. To each picture, we realize, belongs a companion musical score, which carries out the theme of the picture—the soul or spirit of each scene—and it is unfortunate when the music is not in complete harmony with the picture. We are well on the way to good film music today, with leading conductors and composers arranging musical scores for pictures, but this is not enough. Motion pictures must eventually have their own music, composed for that special purpose.

Any really important film demands special music, and it is not possible to find existing numbers which will exactly fit its needs. Naturally, there are many technical difficulties in this task. The music must fit the picture as regards changing moods, length and tempo. In Germany, for many years, prominent composers have written special film music scores with great success. Particularly well known is the creator of the music for "Fridericus Rex" ("Frederick the Great"), Dr. Marc Roland, who wrote the music after the picture was finished, projecting the picture slowly many times and composing music to fit each individual scene. Roland, who is thoroughly experienced at this work, works only with the author of the manuscript, making suggestions concerning changes in the continuity and cutting which would offer chances for effective musical scoring.

Another well-known film composer is Gottfried Huppertz, who wrote the score for Fritz Lang's "Nibelungen" films. Huppertz was an operatic singer, and appeared in concert, until he encountered Lang, who, like himself, was born on the Rhine. Lang suggested that he write the music for "Siegfried." This score was markedly successful. Huppertz is now working on Fritz Lang and Thea von Harbou's "Metropolis," the fantastic idea of which has inspired him to create some highly unusual motifs, working daily in close association with the authoress.

"The Last Laugh," which enjoyed a considerable success in New York, had its own score of original film music written by Dr. Giuseppe Becce. Dr. Becce is one of the leading composers and conductors of Berlin. He has been engaged in scoring motion pictures for years. At first he faced many difficulties, but he is now recognized as one of the outstanding men in the field, and his score for "Tartuffe," with Emil Jannings, compiled from existing music but ingeniously treated, was very well received by the critics of the Berlin press.

Hans May and Edmund Meisel are also well known through their score for a Russian picture, and many other prominent pictures. Their film music is selected with care and excellent taste, which has made them popular in this field. Their musical score, for example, was hailed as more thrilling than the picture itself. With three large drums and other powerful instruments they produced the noises of the machinery, engines and propellers, which play such a prominent part in the picture, with great success.

Schmidt-Gentner, conductor of the Capitol Theatre, Berlin, is another of this group, and his scores have met the most difficult picture demands. His companion score to "His People" will be long remembered, because it fitted so perfectly the theme of the picture. The atmosphere and locale of the picture is entirely Jewish, and although Schmidt-Gentner is not of this race he succeeded in pleasing the most critical with his tasteful use of Hebrew melodies.

We must not, however, forget one man who has perhaps done more than any other man in Berlin. A year ago there came to Berlin from New York a man who, so long as he was in Berlin, was the centre of film musical affairs—Erno Rapee, a musician of wide experience and education. At the Ufa-Palast he showed the people of Berlin the real possibilities of film music.

The members of his orchestra fairly worshipped him, and the people of Berlin gave him generous credit for the musical scores which he prepared for such pictures as Ufa's "Variety" and "Manon Lescaut," and the American film, "The Lost World," to name only a few of the many which he scored, and which made him known as the "King of Film Musical Conductors" in Berlin. For the film, "Ways to Strength and Beauty," he composed original music, which was just as successful as his arrangements, which showed the hand of the artist. There were those who sought to detract from his work, but he went steadily ahead without regard for them.

His method was one which led to popular

West Coast Theatres Gross Increases

Los Angeles "Times" Estimates $15,000,000 Business for Current Year; Company's Capital Stock Shares May be $8.50

EARL S. CROWE, writing in the Los Angeles "Times," estimates the gross business of West Coast Theatres Company in excess of $15,000,000 for the current year. This circuit, which numbers 165 theatres, grossed $13,000,000 in 1925. The box office receipts for 1926 will have increased by two-thirds over that for 1924, when, Crowe says, the company business totaled $9,500,000.

For the first six months the net earnings of the company approximated $850,000, or an annual rate of $1,700,000, says the "Times" article. Earnings available for the capital stock on this basis will be around $8.50 a share though earnings are figured before depreciation because the government has not yet approved the company's method of figuring depreciation as it affects the income tax.

The Crowe story is a discussion of market activity as it relates to film stocks and says that the activity in Class A stock of Fox Films is due, in large part, to the company's ownership of 40 per cent. of the stock of West Coast Theatres. The Fox statement, issued recently, shows a net income of $1,400,743 for the corporation and its affiliated companies for the first six months in 1926.

"West Coast has about 200,000 shares outstanding, paying $1.20 annually. Of this amount, Fox owns about 80,000 shares, on which it receives dividends of approximately $96,000 annually, or the equivalent to 24 cents on the number of Fox Film Class 'A' shares outstanding," Crowe's article states. "At the rate West Coast earnings are running, there is the possibility of a dividend increase on which to speculate, which, if it materializes, would materially improve the financial position of the Fox 'A' stock.

"Aside from the possibilities of additional revenue from its West Coast investment through the payment of higher dividends, the Fox Film Corp. always has the expectation of realizing on its entire investment of a considerable point. If Fox is not the ultimate buyer of majority control in West Coast Theatres, the probabilities are that some other motion picture group will eventually offer a price for all the stock that will be accepted. It is understood that several banking groups have appraised the properties, although the West Coast management has persistently denied any intention of selling.

"In the opinion of those close to the theatre industry, the future of West Coast theatres lies in the direction of consolidation, rather than in further expansion. The system now has about 165 theatres in this State, all of which are reported to show steady improvement in earnings. In the possession of any of the large independent picture combinations, this string would represent a valuable asset, both as an outlet for pictures and as a revenue producer. As far as the Fox Film Corp. is concerned it will benefit no matter which way the tide turns."

Stanley-Rowland-Clark Offers New Bond Issue; Stanley Earnings $1,142,567

FIRST mortgage 6 per cent sinking fund gold bonds to the extent of $4,000,000 were offered this week by the Stanley-Rowland-Clark Corporation. The additional capitalization of the company, formed to acquire and operate the 22 Rowland & Clark theatres in Pittsburgh and vicinity, includes $3,000,000 in 7 per cent preferred stock and 4,000 shares of common, no par value.

The Stanley Company of America guarantees the payment of principal and interest. The present market value of the outstanding capital stock of the Stanley Company is set forth as in excess of $45,000,000, and earnings are given as follows:

1923, $970,833.24; 1924, $882,909.63; 1925, $1,584,271.27; 1926 (26 weeks), $1,122,569.91; a yearly average for the three and one-half year period of $1,142,656.87.

Industry Co-operates With Navy

Film Boards of Trade to Handle Two One-Reelers of Navy Life Free to Theatres

THE United States Navy will receive the utmost co-operation from the motion picture industry in showing the people of the United States just what the Navy and the Merchant Marine are and what they are doing for the country.

Two single-reel films depicting the activities of the two great nautical departments will be distributed free of charge to theatres through the various Film Boards of Trade. The two pictures, "Don't Give Up the Ship," and "It's the Navy Way," will be ready for exhibitors on October 24th and will be featured in the Navy's celebration on Navy Day, October 27th, the birthday of the late Theodore Roosevelt.

Full co-operation to the United States Navy has been pledged by the producing and distributing companies belonging to the Film Boards of Trade, the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc., and hundreds of theatre owners. The Eastman Kodak Company has contributed 200,000 feet of film for the pictures and the Consolidated Film Industries, Inc., are making the prints at no cost to the Navy. The national distributing companies, besides paying for the negative, are also dividing the work necessary for the distribution to theatres. One exchange in each exchange city will handle the prints assigned to that territory; the Film Boards of Trade cooperating in booking and handling the prints.

The Navy will furnish posters free and in the 265 cities where recruiting stations are had the recruiting forces will be placed at the disposal of exhibitors to help in exploiting the pictures. As on Navy Day there will be U.S. ships in every harbor special ceremonies participated in by these ships can be linked with the exploitation. Sailors, bands and display material will be available in many cities. M. H. Lewis, of Famous Players-Lasky and Jerome Beatty of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc., comprise the committee appointed by the national distributing companies to assume charge of the distribution details of the two films.

These Navy pictures are in no way recruiting pictures and contain no propaganda. They will show people just what the Navy is and what it is doing. They have real entertainment value and include many shots never before shown.

Germans Favor Original Film Music Score

success, and he introduced jazz in conjunction with film music. One week at the Ufa-Palast, during Comedy Week, he placed a jazz band on the stage, playing the newest hits from America, with 14 men, as an overture to the picture. This was his first experience in conducting a jazz orchestra, but his success was overwhelming. Rapee was himself astonished at the welcome given this music, and the encores demanded by the great applause. After the overture, the same jazz band was used during the film, in connection with the grand orchestra. Shortly after, he composed a jazz number, "Oh, You!", which became a hit over-night. Everyone was singing and playing the song.

But he went ahead with other plans. Classical music he arranged as jazz. Liszt's "Second Hungarian Rhapsody" was arranged in jazz style, and the public was equally enthusiastic, an encore being demanded in no uncertain terms. So Rapee became famous over-night as a composer of jazz. At dances everywhere Rapee music was heard, and he was the outstanding musical figure of Berlin.

He realized that the time had come when jazz was an important factor in film music, and he used it in connection with classical music. Realizing its importance, his every effort was for the advancement of film music. He built up, at the Ufa-Palast, a film music library for Ufa of 5,000 pieces, and of enormous value. Now that Rapee has left, his loss is felt keenly.

The position of film music today is of increasing importance. It is, as we say in Berlin, "in children's shoes," but greater value is being placed on the special score, with the growing realization that the greatest future of our modern composers lies in the direction of original film music.

Greater Rivalry Anticipated from Innovation in Fall Film Golf Tournament

AN innovation has been decided upon by the committee for the Fall Film Golf Tournament which takes place this year at the Sound View Golf Club, Great Neck, Long Island, on Sept. 29. The idea is to have two opposing forces named, appropriately, the "Cohens" and the "Kellys."

Each member of both teams will carry prominent identification so that there will be no confusion. The captain and lieutenant of each team will receive a silver cup and each member will receive a prize.

This departure from the usual rules will not affect the long standing prizes. To date the following organizations and individuals have announced awards: Low Net Runner-Up, Pathe exchange; Low Gross, Warner Bros.; Low Gross Runner-Up, Motion Picture News; Class A, Arthur Stebbins; Class B, Watterson R. Rothacker; Class C, Jack Cosman; Putting Trophy, Carl Laemmle.

The committee consists of Elmer Pearson, Pathe; William A. Johnston, Motion Picture News; Felix Feist, M-G-M; G. Bruce Gallup, United Artists; Arthur W. Stebbins, 1540 B'way and Jack Alicote, "The Film Daily."

In a two-day drive for entries the Committee lined up 120 golfers, who will be on hand Wednesday, September 29.

The committee asks those who have not sent in their entries to do so immediately.

F. B. O.-Ideal Release Deal Set

Kennedy Concludes Negotiations for Distribution in Great Britain

JOSEPH P. KENNEDY, president of Film Booking Offices, announced this week in a cablegram from London, that he had concluded negotiations whereby all pictures made by his company will be distributed throughout the United Kingdom by Ideal Films, Ltd., of England, one of the oldest and most important distribution agencies in Great Britain.

Five weeks ago Mr. Kennedy sent Colvin W. Brown, vice-president in charge of distribution for F.B.O., to England to open the conferences and two weeks later embarked for England and, with Mr. Brown, took up the distribution matter with the principals of the English company, which led to a successful conclusion.

Ideal Films, Ltd., has fifteen branches in England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales, and furnishes films to all the leading theatres in the United Kingdom. Film Booking Offices will have a permanent outlet for its product in this field through the new alliance.

Mr. Kennedy and his associates feel that this new deal is an important step in the cementing of friendly relations between the motion picture industry in America and in Great Britain. News of the successful termination of conferences looking toward the new deal was received with pleasure by all branches of the industry in England, says F.B.O.

Gold Bonds and Special Productions Coming Through Under King's Supervision

THOSE units filming Gold Bond productions and those filming specials for Film Booking Offices are busily engaged at present, under the supervision of Edwin C. King, vice-president in charge of production. Production has been completed on some and others are in the cutting and titling stage.

"Kosher Kitty Kelly," featuring Viola Dana, Vera Gordon, and Natt Carr, has been previewed at the New York offices of the company and is scheduled for an early Broadway release. "Breed of the Sea," a melodrama of the sea, is in the final stage of cutting and titling and will be ready shortly. Ralph Ince directed and played a dual role in this production and the supporting cast includes Dorothy Dunbar, Margaret Livingston, Shannon Day and Pat Harmon.

Filming of "Rose of the Tenements," an adaptation of the novel, "The Stumbling Herd," by John Moroso, is well advanced under direction of Phil Rosen. Shirley Mason and Johnny Harron are featured in this story of the Cherry Hill district of New York City. Sidney Franklin, Evelyn Selbie, James Gordon, Valentina Zimina, Lolita Lee and Kalla Pasha are in the supporting cast. These are two Gold Bond pictures.

Fred Thomson is now making "A Regular Scout." Exteriors are being shot on Mount Whitney, where Thomson is encamped with a company numbering a hundred. This production is being made with the endorsement and co-operation of the Boy Scout organization of which Thomson was once a member. Olive Hasbrouck has the chief feminine role and Silver King, Thomson's horse, has an important part. It will be known as a Fred Thomson special.

Viola Dana is at work on the first of six starring productions titled "They're Off." Eddie Dillon is directing. "Hi! Taxi!" is the title of the George O'Hara feature length picture which Del Andrews is directing. James Hogan is filming a story with Ranger, the dog star, in the stellar role.

Bob Delacy is directing Tom Tyler in a new Western, "The Kid's Last Fight," with little Frankie Darro as chief support. "Sherman Was Right," Alberta Vaughn's first feature length production, has just been finished.

New Offices in New York for P. D. C.

Producers Distributing Corporation has changed its New York City headquarters location. The company is now lodged in new offices at 1560 Broadway, at the corner of 46th Street. Telephone numbers now are Bryant 4220, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9.

New Gotham Exchanges for Cleveland and Cincinnati

Sam Sax this week added two exchanges to his national list when he opened his Cleveland and Cincinnati branches with M. C. Howard placed in charge as general manager of both with headquarters in Cleveland. For the past two years Howard has been connected with the Standard Film Service of Cleveland.

The only territory yet to be settled by Gotham is Denver. Budd Rogers, vice-president of Lumas, is now in the West and it is expected that contracts for the remaining territory will be signed immediately.

Promotions in First National Canadian Sales Force

R. S. Bell, manager of the First National Exchange in Winnipeg, has been promoted sales manager of the western part of the Dominion, with headquarters at Winnipeg. He was selected to aid W. A. Bach, Canadian district manager, in the furthering of the First National interests in the West.

M. J. Isman, salesman under Bell for the past year, has been promoted to the position of manager of the Winnipeg Exchange.

RABBI JOINS FIRST NATIONAL Dr. Trattner Assistant to M. C. Levee

REVEREND ERNEST R. TRATTNER, leader of the Temple Emanu-El in Los Angeles, has given up his title to become confidential assistant to M. C. Levee, general executive manager of First National production at the Burbank studio.

Rabbi Trattner, twenty-eight years of age, was born in Denver and educated in Chicago and Cincinnati. He came to California about seven years ago and established himself at San Diego. A couple of years later he was called to the Emanu-El congregation then numbering thirty worshippers and now under his leadership exceeds six hundred people.

He is noted as an orator and has been interested in many non-sectarian organizations as an active member.

F.&R. Add 120th House to Chain

Takes Over Oxford Theatre, St. Paul; Wm. Smalley to Build Ten Theatres in N. Y.

PROMINENT in the news of theatre acquisition and construction this week is the report that Northwest Theatres, the Finklestein and Ruben interests, has acquired its 120th house, the Oxford, St. Paul.

A deal closed this week is said to have placed the theatre in its hands. It was bought from William Schaefer and possession will be given September 27.

The Oxford is known as one of the most profitable and one of the finest neighborhood theatres in the Twin Cities. It brings the F. & R. theatres in St. Paul to 18, twelve of which are neighborhood houses.

The battle raging between Fiseher-Paramount and the Saxe Enterprises is focusing at Oshkosh just now with the former company breaking ground for a new theatre and the latter announcing that work on their new house is being rushed.

Another skirmish is reported from Madison, where Saxe is building in opposition to the Fiseher interests. The recent purchase by Universal of 11 houses from Silliman-Grauman, Milwaukee, and the building of houses at Racine and Kenosha by Universal makes the fight a three-cornered one.

Blank Enterprises, backed by Paramount, and another large chain are said to be bidding for the new theatre at Waterloo, Ia., planned by the Badger Building Company, Milwaukee.

William Smalley plans to build ten new theatres in New York State in the near future, each house to be of a type similar to his Cooperstown Theatre. He has organized a financing company.

George Nicholas, managing director of United Amusements, Limited, Montreal, operating a chain of high class moving picture theatres in Montreal, has announced that his company has acquired control of two more houses, making ten in all now in actual operation with an eleventh theatre in course of construction.

The latest theatres to be acquired are the new Amherst, at St. Catherine and Amherst streets, in which the Allens of Toronto have a part interest, and the Westmount Theatre at Sherbrooke Street West and Grey Avenue. The Westmount was formerly controlled by the Allens. The new Rivoli Theatre, which is being built by the company at St. Denis and Belanger streets, will be opened early in October, it is announced. The Westmount Theatre has been redecorated, but the Amherst is entirely new, having been opened last winter.

Daring Taxi Driver Averts Theatre Receipts Theft

The robbery of $8,000 from Harry Gittleston, treasurer and manager of the Colony Theatre, New York City, on Tuesday night was averted by the presence of mind of a taxi driver.

Gittleston was on his way to the bank with the money in the taxi, the usual police escort being absent due to primary elections, when two men jumped on the running boards and told the driver to turn into a quiet side street. Instead of obeying, the taxi driver drove full speed toward the nearest police officer, crying "Police!" The bandits escaped in the crowd, but the theatre receipts reached the bank safely.

Stanley Advertising Co. Absorbs Roycroft Pictures

Negotiated by A. Pam Blumenthal, president of the Stanley Advertising Company, and Ernest Maas, representing Roycroft Pictures, Inc., a deal was consummated this week as a result of which the latter company is absorbed and acquired by Stanley Advertising in affiliation with the parent company. A number of similar business deals are under way whereby Stanley will increase its scope and effectiveness, it is said.

Stanley Advertising have completed four films of contrary types. They deal with a large savings bank, the science of face rejuvenation, a civic record covering the history of Brooklyn for the past fifty years, and a film for a philanthropic welfare association.

Rausch, Well Known Optical Man, Dies Suddenly

George R. Bauseh, aged 55 years, member of the well-known firm of Bauseh & Lomb, of Rochester, N.Y., died suddenly in the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, from an attack of angina pectoris. Bauseh, with a party of friends, had just returned from a fishing trip to French River, in Northern Ontario, and had stopped over in Toronto on their way home.

Troy Operator's Chief Up for Re-election

Harry Brooks, president of the motion picture machine operators union in Troy, has announced that he is a candidate for re-election to the Assembly of the New York State Legislature. His associates plan to give him their active support from now until election day.

M. P. T. O. Wisconsin Secretary Renominated

Henry Staab, secretary of Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Wisconsin, is particularly pleased at the outcome of recent primaries for he was re-nominated for the assembly by a gratifying majority. He was also recently reappointed member of the Motion Picture Commission of Milwaukee of which he has been a member for six years.

Hays Organization to Launch Nation-Wide Offensive Against "Bicyclers"

THE campaign against "bicyclers," launched at Helena, Mont., by the Film Board of Trade, which has succeeded in obtaining Federal warrants for the arrest of three Kalispell, Montana, theatre owners, is to be extended to every territory in the United States infested with the practice, is the declaration made by Gabriel L. Hess, Hays organization counsel, who says the distributors are determined to end the "bicycling" practice and will prosecute vigorously all alleged offenders.

Conservatively estimated, he said, distributors are robbed of $1,000,000 yearly by "bicyclers," and in future will seek from the Government the protection which Hess says is guaranteed by copyright laws. Conviction on the charge, he says, carries a penalty of one year's imprisonment or a fine of from $100 to $1,000 or both.

M-G-M Plans Traveling Theatre

Circus Style with Tent Seating 600;
Week Stands and Daily Program Change

METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER has adopted an idea conceived by F. W. Moredock, theatre manager, who plans a traveling movie palace with all the accessories of a road circus which will make one week stands, and show a daily change of program. Moredock figures on an outfit to include six trucks, a tent seating approximately six hundred people, and an equipment comprising 110-volt motors with speed control, three-power projectors and a number of special lenses.

Some of M-G-M's best productions of the past year will be shown with "The Merry Widow" and "Mare Nostrum" topping the list. An admission charge of $1.50 will be made. The tour will cover the Southern part of this country.

In addition to the large tent there will be others housing a special lobby display, a travel exhibit on the way M-G-M films are made, a large publicity display of the company's stars, featured players and directors, and a dressing-room tent for the use of the traveling complement.

The show will get under way at Shelbyville, Tenn., where the initial week will be spent, the next towns on the route being Columbia, Sept. 27; Murfreesboro, Oct. 4; and Lebanon, Oct. 11. All these towns are in Tennessee. If the trip meets with the success that seems likely, a full winter program will be mapped out covering several Southern states.

Company Name for U.A. Houses

Each of Twenty to be Known as "United Artists Theatre," Says Schenck

JOSEPH M. SCHENCK, chairman of the Board of Directors of United Artists Theatre Circuit, this week announced that each of the twenty theatres to be built by his company will be known as the "United Artists Theatre."

Mr. Schenck also stated that plans are now being considered for the New York, Boston, Detroit, and Chicago houses and that activities would begin immediately in other cities. These, however, says Mr. Schenck, are not planned as 5,000-seat houses as is the Philadelphia Theatre, but will have an approximate seating capacity of 2,000. Each house will have a distinctive type of architecture.

Plans for the theatre in Boston have already been submitted and construction will be started as soon as the site for the theatre has been definitely settled.

Mr. Schenck said that he had talked with Douglas Fairbanks upon the latter's recent return from Europe and that the two of them were negotiating with Cert. the famous Paris architect, hoping to induce him to come to America and design the distinctive theatres.

Crozier Assistant Production Editor Famous L. I. Studio

Emmet Crozier, a member of the scenario staff for Thomas Meighan, has been appointed assistant to Ralph Block, production editor at the Paramount Long Island studio. Crozier, besides assisting in the production of several of Meighan's stories is an ex-newspaper man. Before he joined the publicity department of Paramount two years ago, he was associated as a feature writer with the New York "Sun," the Kansas City "Star" and other papers for a period of about twelve years. During the World War a large newspaper syndicate placed him in London as foreign correspondent. Two years ago the publishing house of G. P. Putnam Sons and Company published a book of which Crozier is the author. The book is titled "The Life of Willie Hoppe."

Additions to Cast of "Love 'Em and Leave 'Em"

Among those added to the cast of "Love 'Em and Leave 'Em," Frank Tuttle's new Paramount production, are Osgood Perkins, the stage player and dramatist; Marcia Harris, who appeared in D. W. Griffith's "The Sorrows of Satan," and with W. C. Fields in "So's Your Old Man," Vera Sisson, former screen star, and Elsie Cavanna, erstwhile member of the Follies and "The Comic Supplement."

Featured players in the cast of "Love 'Em and Leave 'Em" are Evelyn Brent, Lawrence Gray and Louise Brooks. The picture has just been put into production.

Cleveland Leading in Lieber Month Drive

THE second week of the Lieber month campaign of First National for an increase of gross billings witnesses Cleveland, of the Southern territory, in the lead with the other contestants for first place being Milwaukee, Western territory; New Jersey, Eastern territory, and Montreal, Canada.

It is likely that of the four victorious divisions, the division making the best showing will receive special recognition of some sort, although the nature of that recognition has not been determined upon as yet.

President Lieber has declared himself as well pleased with the results of the first week. Divisional sales managers Ned Marin, A. W. Smith, Jr. and Ned Depinet are planning flying trips through their territories to cooperate with the local sales force in putting the campaign over.

"Garden of Allah," Rex Ingram's Next Film

ABOUT the end of October, Rex Ingram, director for Metro-Goldwyn, will commence production on "The Garden of Allah," a screen picturization of the novel and play of the same name by Robert Hichens. Ingram will leave in the near future for his studio at Nice, France, and will take his company to Northern Africa for the exterior sequences, filming the interiors at his studio in Nice. To date Alice Terry is the only player slated for the film.

Hichens was at one time music critic of the New York World and is the author of many novels of which "The Garden of Allah" has proven the most popular. He dramatized it in 1911 and it was produced by George C. Tyler with Mary Anderson in the leading feminine role. In 1920, nine years after its original production, it was revived in England.

Raymond Keane Cast for Chadwick's "April Fool"

Raymond Keane has been signed to do the leading juvenile role in "April Fool," a Chadwick production in which Baby Peggy will also appear for the first time following her temporary retirement. The cast also includes Alexander Carr, star; Mary Alden, Snitz Edwards, Duane Thompson, Edward Phillips, Nat Carr and Leon Holmes. Nat Ross is directing.

Monta Bell in New York for Conference With Kattejohn

Monta Bell arrived in New York this week from the Coast for the purpose of conferring with Monte Kattejohn on the script for "The Greatest Show on Earth," which he will direct for Paramount. It will be a roadshow picture with Wallace Beery portraying P. T. Barnum.

"Mama Kiss Papa" New Title of Warner Bros. Picture

"Mama Kiss Papa" has been chosen as the title of the E. Phillips Oppenheim story now in production at the Warner Bros. studio under the title "Inevitable Millionaires." Louis Fazenda and George Sydney head the cast. Camera work is expected to be finished in two or three weeks.

Edna Williams Resigns As Foreign Manager for F.B.O.

After nine years association with the Company she founded, Miss Williams resigns her post as foreign manager of Film Booking Offices of America.

Her future plans will be ready for announcement shortly.

Louise Fazenda and J. T. Murray in Warner Picture

Louise Fazenda and John T. Murray, legitimate and vaudeville headliner, are at present working in a new Warner Bros. picture based on a mystery story by Arthur Somers Roche, the title of which has not as yet been divulged.

Players Selected for "Love 'Em and Leave 'Em"

In "Love 'Em and Leave 'Em" which Frank Tuttle is directing at the Long Island studio of Paramount, three of the principal roles will be in the hands of Esther Ralston, Louise Brooks and Lawrence Gray. Townsend Martin did the adaptation of the stage play of the same name by George Abbott and John V. A. Weaver.

George Webber is the chief photographer and Russell Mathews, assistant to the director.

Leon Abrams to Direct "His New York Wife"

J. G. Baehmann, producer of Preferred Pictures, has engaged Leon Abrams to direct "His New York Wife," a comedy drama based on a story by Fanny Heaslip Lea and adapted to the screen by Frederie and Fanny Hatton. Alice Day has been borrowed from Mack Sennett to portray the leading role. Ethel Clayton has the second lead with Theodore Von Eltz and Erin La Bissoniere in supporting roles.

Vilma Banky Playing Two Roles in "Barbara Worth"

In Sam Goldwyn's production, "The Winning of Barbara Worth," which Henry King is directing, two roles, those of mother and daughter, are portrayed by Vilma Banky. During the early course of the picture she appears as the young mother of Barbara and the rest of the film as Barbara Worth, the object of the attentions of Ronald Colman and Gary Cooper.

"Michael Strogoff" British Premiere at Albert Hall

THE European Motion Picture Company of London, distributors of Universal productions in Great Britain and Ireland, have arranged for an early premiere of "Michael Strogoff," the Universal Film de France production, at Albert Hall, London, England's largest place of entertainment, which seats 10,000.

Every presentation novelty will be on a scale commensurate with the quality and immensity of the film and auditorium. It is likely that players participating in the film will be on hand for the event and will appear in the atmosphere prologue preceding the showing. It has not been determined upon thus far whether Ivan Mosjoukine, the star, will be on hand for the opening. Since M. Sapene, publisher of the Parisian daily, Le Matin, is associated with Societe des Cineromans, the presentation at Albert Hall assumes an international bearing. French and diplomatic representatives will take part in the occasion and the event is declared likely to develop into a greater affair than the "Les Misérables" premiere in London.

As the New York premiere of "Michael Strogoff" is scheduled for the middle of October, in all probability the production will reach the English screen first, the tentative date set for Albert Hall being October 6.

6XBR Honored in Radio Parade

Warner's Portable Broadcast Station
Welcomed in New York World's Fair

THE Warner Bros. portable radio station, 6XBR, which has broadcast programs from the stage of theatres in all the principal cities of the United States during its trip to New York from Hollywood, arrived here on Monday of this week and was accorded the honor place in a parade which ushered in the Radio World's Fair in this city. The station was welcomed to New York by Joseph E. McKee, president of the Board of Aldermen of New York, who officiated in the enforced absence of Mayor James J. Walker.

A special dance program, played at the City Hall steps, was relayed through the Warner station and picked up by Station

WFBH in New York City. Following this a series of addresses were made over the microphone with Monte Blue, Warner Bros. star, as the principal speaker. Addresses were also made by Sam and Jack Warner and the two children of H. M. Warner, Betty and Jack.

After the ceremonies at the City Hall were concluded the monster parade started its march up to the New Madison Square Garden where the World's Fair is housed. Thousands of people lined the sidewalks as the procession, numbering approximately one hundred special cars and floats, passed in review, with a motorcycle police escort and additional details of police scattered along the route to take care of the crowds.

M-G-M "Week" in Los Angeles

Period Launched at Luncheon Tendered
Louis B. Mayer; Many Notables Present

METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER Week in Los Angeles was launched at a luncheon tendered Louis B. Mayer at which the Mayor of Los Angeles, prominent citizens of the city and M-G-M stars and featured players were present. Mayor George E. Creyer officially opened the celebration with the signing of a proclamation expressing appreciation of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayers' contribution to the progress of the city.

After the official act the Mayor paid high tribute to the film company in an enthusiastic address and Mr. Mayer replied with an acknowledgment of the Mayor's praise and a brief resume of the company's achievements since its inception; the M-G-M vice-president paid high tribute to his associates in production, Irving G. Thalberg, Harry Rapf and Hunt Stromberg as well as other executives and actors and actresses.

Homer B. Wright, managing director of Loew's State Theatre, Los Angeles, stated that 150 theatres in Southern California were co-operating in M-G-M Week. After the speeches a huge cake was presented to Mayor Creyer and Mr. Mayer and the guests "cut themselves a piece of cake."

Trailers, lobby cards, electric light signs, extensive billing (already posted), and the personal appearance of the M-G-M stars in leading theatres will advertise M-G-M Week throughout the seven days. On Sunday, Sept. 12, aeroplanes will fly over the popular beaches of California showering carnations among the crowds. Attached to the carnations will be novelty throwaways with an announcement of M-G-M Week. Newspapers have been particularly generous in publicizing the week on the West Coast, and the entire Pacific seaboard is aware that the M-G-M celebration is under way.

M-G-M to Screen Browning Story for Chaney

In a forthcoming starring vehicle, "Alonzo, the Armless," an original story by Tod Browning, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's versatile star, Lon Chaney, will appear without arms. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has just purchased the Browning story for Chaney's use, thus bringing together once again these two who have been associated in many pictures in the past. Chaney, it is announced, has already begun an intensive training course in the manipulation of his feet, as his role requires great dexterity in the handling of pencils, knives, forks and revolvers with those limbs. "Alonzo the Armless" will probably be filmed upon the completion of "The Ordeal."

Changes in Pathe Field Forces Made by Scott

General Sales Manager Harry Scott, of Pathe Exchange, Inc., announced this week the transfer of A. W. Plues, formerly Branch Manager at Indianapolis, to the managership of the New Orleans office, to succeed H. L. Knappen, who resigned his position because of the ill health of Mrs. Knappen.

The Indianapolis Branch will be in charge of Assistant Central Division Sales Manager R. S. Shrader until a new manager is appointed. The changes become effective August 30th.

Ted Shane Joins Writing Staff of Famous Players

A contract has been signed by Ted Shane whereby he becomes a member of the Famous Players-Lasky writing staff. He makes the fifth writer to be added to the staff within the last six weeks. The others being Max Martin, playwright; P. G. Wodehouse, fiction writer; Rube Goldberg, cartoonist, and Hermann Mankiewicz, dramatic critic.

Shane began his literary career as part-time staff writer for "Life" and was for some time motion picture critic on "The New Yorker."

Wide Response to Film Fun-Educat. Contest

CONTEST replies estimated close to two thousand are the result of the Film Fun-ny Girl Contest announced in August to select a lead-in lady for Billy Dooley in his Educational comedies. The photographs submitted include small snapshots, though the larger portrait types predominate. Contestants rank in age from six to sixty years of age and are made up of amateurs and semi-professionals. Every section of the United States and Canada was represented, California being one of the most popular states to enter the aspirants. One Brooklyn girl sent in six portraits done by a New York artist of some repute. Scrapbooks pertaining to dramatic careers were received as well as pictures with elaborate folders.

The November and December issues of Film Fun will contain five pages of contestants. The winner of the contest is to be given a trip to the Christie Studio, where she will appear with Billy Dooley comedies for four weeks at a salary of $100 per week. She also has the opportunity of becoming a star.

Daredevil Airman Wins Role in Paramount's "Wings"

R. Carl Oelze, veteran pilot and daring flyer who risked his life in testing "Wings," Harry D. Donceett's safety parachute, which will float an airplane to the earth—was this week awarded a contract by Paramount to play the part of a German air captain in "Wings," Lucien Hubbard's production of the part played by the air service in the World War.

Oelze will also be in charge of the use of the safety device which minimizes the dangers of the air battle sequences. He intends flying to the Texas location in the same plane used in the famous test. This craft will be available for the use of the general staff, which includes other competent flying men in the persons of William Wellman, the director, John Monk Saunders, author, Robert Nichol, technical advisor, and Norman McCloud, comedy constructor.

Bessie Love Feminine Lead in "Rubber Tires"

Bessie Love, who has just completed a featured role in "Young April," Donald Crisp's latest production from the De Mille Studio, has been signed to portray the principal feminine role in "Rubber Tires," a story of the auto camps, which Alan Hale will direct. The story is being adapted by Alan Hale and Frank Condon. Production is scheduled to get under way at an early date.

Warner Oland and Jane Winton in "Beware of Widows"

Millard Webb directing Universal's Jewel production, "Beware of Widows," has added Warner Oland and Jane Winton to the cast, which features Laura La Plante. "Beware of Widows," an adaptation of the Owen Davis stage success, is a Universal Greater Movie offering and will reach the public next spring.

First "Collegian" To Be Released October 18th

"THE COLLEGIANS," the ten two-reel comedies of college life written by Carl Laemmle, Jr., and according to that company their most ambitious to date, will be issued to exhibitors beginning October 18. Lou B. Metzger, Universal general sales manager, who made the announcement, stated one will be released every two weeks.

Bullwinkle Manager First National Albany Branch

Jack Bullwinkle, New Haven exchange salesman of First National, has been appointed to the managership of the Albany office to replace A. J. Herman, who has resigned. A. W. Smith, Jr., sales manager of the Eastern Division, accompanied the new exchange manager from New Haven to his present headquarters where he was officially installed. Branch managers of New Haven tendered Bullwinkle a farewell luncheon preparatory to his leaving for the new post. They presented him with a handsome briefcase as a token of their esteem.

"Anna Karenina" M-G-M Vehicle for Lillian Gish

Count Leo Tolstoi's masterpiece, "Anna Karenina," will be made into a screen production with Lillian Gish as the star, according to Irving Thalberg, executive of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. The Tolstoi novel will be adapted to the needs of the cinema by Mme. Fred de Gressac, scenarist for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "La Boheme."

"Anna Karenina" will follow the completion of "Annie Laurie," which the actress is now making, and "The Wind," which Clarence Brown will direct, shortly.

Famous Plans 'Barbed Wire' as Pola Negri Vehicle

A story called "Barbed Wire," based on "The Woman of Knockalee," Hall Caine's tale of the war, will be put into production September 19th, with Rowland V. Lee directing Pola Negri as the featured player. Lajos Biro, Hungarian playwright and author of "Hotel Imperial," Miss Negri's current production, and Jules Furthman are adapting "Barbed Wire" to the screen. The Caine story will follow "Hotel Imperial" and will be followed by "Camille."

Grey Still Business Manager for D. W. Griffith

That all confusion may be set aside as to his position with D. W. Griffith, A. Griffith Grey has stated that although he has taken over the general management of the Famous Players-Lasky road show department he still continues as vice-president and general manager of the Griffith corporation. He also continues as Griffith's representative in all business matters pertaining to the latter's productions.

Three Comedy Units Working at Sennett Studio

Three two-reel comedy units are in the midst of production at present on the Mack Sennett lot in Hollywood preparing comedies for Pathe release. Alf Goulding is directing one of the "Smith Family" fun-films with Raymond McKee, Ruth Hiatt, and Mary Ann Jackson heading the cast.

Del Lord is working on a comedy based on the action in a sanitarium. Madeline Hurlock, Billy Bevan, Thelma Hill, and Vernon Dent are prominent in the cast. Alice Day is starred in a new comedy directed by Earl Rodney. Danny O'Shea, Barney Hellum and Jerry Zier are in the supporting cast.

Frances Agnew Titles Fox Films' "Summer Bachelors"

The editing and titling of "Summer Bachelors," the Warner Fabian story which Allan Dwan directed for Fox Films, is in the hands of Frances Agnew. As the screen version of the story had, up to this time, been in the hands of men it was thought worthwhile to let Miss Agnew handle it in order to inject the feminine viewpoint into its comedy and drama.

Cast Chosen for Fox Films Production "Sunrise"

F. W. Murnau, who is here to direct "Sunrise" for Fox Films, has chosen Janet Gaynor for the pivotal role in this picture. George O'Brien will play the male lead and Margaret Livingston will play "the other woman." "Sunrise," formerly known as "A Song of Two Humans," is based on an idea suggested by Herman Suderman's novel, "A Trip to Tilsit."

Lotta Woods Signs M-G-M Contract as Title Writer

Lotta Woods, erstwhile editorial chief of the Pickford-Fairbanks studio, has signed a long-term contract as title writer with the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Company. Announcement has not been made as to her first assignment under her new contract. She has just finished the titles for "The Fire Brigade," the William Nigh directed vehicle and fire spectacle.

M-G to Re-Issue "The Four Horsemen"

"THE Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," the Metro-Goldwyn picture which nine years ago established the names of Rudolph Valentino, Alice Terry and Rex Ingram before the movie public, will be re-issued, due to the urgent requests of exhibitors throughout the country. The old Metro Company made the picture in 1919. It created a box office record for receipts for a first metropolitan run, its gross of more than one million dollars being equalled only by "The Big Parade," now running at the Astor.

Studio Briefs

Ted McNamara, whose work in "Shore Leave," with Richard Barthelmess attracted attention, has been placed under a long term contract by Fox Films, it was announced this week by Winfield R. Sheehan, vice-president of Fox. McNamara also appeared in "Upstream," directed by John Griffith Wray. He received a real opportunity when Raoul Walsh cast him as a comedy provate in "What Price Glory?" His first assignment under his new contract will be in "The Monkey Talks," which Walsh will direct.

Hank Mann, the first comedian to have appeared on the Fox lot, this week stepped into the cast of "Going Crooked," the film version of the play produced under the direction of George Melford for Fox Films. The leads are Bessie Love and Oscar Shaw and the supporting players Gustav Con Seyffertitz, Leslie Fenton, Degar Kennedy, Lydia Knott, William Worthington and Bernard Siegel.

The celebrated animal impersonator, Jacques Lerner, arrived in New York this week aboard the French liner La Savoie. He stayed but two days in the metropolis and then proceeded on his way to Hollywood, where he will portray the part of the talking monkey in "The Monkey Talks," a forthcoming Fox Films release.

F. B. O. has signed Charley Bowers to a five year contract because of the success of his novelty mechanical "Whirlwind" comedies. The comedian is at present engaged upon two additions to the series. "The Non-Skid Bananna" and "The Unsquirttable Pickle."

Having arrived in Los Angeles, "Gunboat" Smith will make his second appearance under his long-term Paramount contract when he works under William Wellman's direction in "Wings."

Simmons Pictures Gets Bray Foreign Rights

NEGOTIATIONS which had been going on for some time were finally culminated this week when the Simmons Pictures Corporation acquired this week the complete foreign rights (outside of the United States and Canada) to eighty-eight releases, the Bray Studio product for the season of 1926-27. The Bray Studio, in consequence of this transaction with Simmons Pictures, will now devote its exclusive efforts in the future to production and the distribution of product in the United States and Canada. Information requested from the Bray offices with regard to the foreign rights of the Bray product will be referred to the Simmons Pictures Corporation.

Prints of eleven Bray subjects have been forwarded to the Simmons Company. They will be shown in the course of the next few days to resident foreign buyers and agents for the foreign market.

Associated Holds Second Meet in Chicago

BETWEEN the dates of September 11th and September 14th, the Drake Hotel in Chicago was the scene of the second of the regional conventions of Associated Exhibitors at which twelve exchanges were represented under the supervision of E. J. Smith, general manager in charge of distribution. The men became acquainted with the new policies of Associated Exhibitors and the schedule mapped out for the 1926-27 season. With regard to the exhibitor, Smith stated in his address: "We are successful only insofar as the exhibitor is successful. His welfare must be our primary concern. Without him we fail, with him the sky's the limit."

Two more regional conventions will be conducted by Smith, one in the South and the other on the West Coast.

Included in the cast of Herbert Brenon's current production for Paramount, "God Gave Me Twenty Cents," are three of the Paramount junior stars, Thelma Todd, Walter Goss and Jeanne Morgan. Goss is also a member of the cast of "The Popular Sin."

"Sunshine of Paradise Alley," Chadwick First Division picture, goes into production next week under the personal supervision of I. E. Chadwick, president of Chadwick Pictures Corporation. Josephine Quirk adapted the story for screen purposes from the stage play of the same name by Denman Thompson, author of "The Old Homestead." Chadwick is now selecting the cast which, will be made known next week.

Among the players engaged for important parts in "Dangerous Friends," the Banner production to be released through Sterling Pictures Distributing Corporation, are Finis Fox, T. Roy Barnes, Marjorie Gale, Gertrude Short and Arthur Hoyt. Samuel J. Briskin, producer of the picture, has chosen Finis Fox to direct "Dangerous Friends," from the scenario by Charles Logue.

With the selection of André De Beranger the cast of the principals for "The Popular Sin," Florence Vidor's new Paramount starring vehicle which Malcolm St. Clair is directing at the Long Island Studio of Paramount, is completed. The other featured players are Clive Brook, Greta Nissen and Philip Sterling. Dorothy Hughes, who was discovered by D. W. Griffith and given an important part in "The Sorrows of Satan," has been allotted a conspicuous role.

Editing on "The Masked Woman," the June Mathis production for First National, is nearing completion under the guidance of Miss Mathis, and a print is scheduled to be shipped East very shortly. Anna Q. Nilsson, who has the featured role, is now visiting her parents in Sweden. She is expected back in the latter part of September.

"Mama Kiss Papa," Raymond Shroek's story for Warner Bros., suggested by the E. Phillips Oppenheim novel, "The Inevitable Millionaires," is expected to be completed within another week as the interiors are now being filmed at the Warner studio in Hollywood. The entire company spent a great deal of last week filming exteriors under Herman Raymaker's direction at the Hillcrest Country Club and the Belair Riding Academy.

Having shot the night battle scenes in "Forever After," the B. P. Fineman production for First National, the picture is now being titled. The battle scenes were delayed because of studio moving and the fact that Lloyd Hughes was not available for the picture because of his working in "Ladies at Play."

Formerly casting director for Universal at Universal City, Fred Schuessler is now carrying on in the same capacity at Warner Bros. Hollywood Studio. He replaces Fred Beers, recently resigned.

China Producing Films With Native Casts

THE awakening of China to interest in motion pictures on an important scale is pointed out by William H. Jansen, of the Red Seal Film Company, Shanghai, who has been visiting New York. This company is a subsidiary of the British-American Tobacco Company, which is interested extensively in the production, distribution and exhibition of pictures in China.

Mr. Jansen brought to America a number of novel features and short subjects produced in China with Chinese casts. Among the features are "The Legend of the Willow Pattern Plate," which, it is expected, will be booked for showing at the Cameo Theatre, New York; "The Three Talismans," and "Filial Piety," each being seven reels in length. The short subjects, also of a decidedly novel nature, include topicals and scenics.

The British-American Company owns the Odeon, the largest theatre in Shanghai, and also some fifty other houses throughout China.

As an evidence of the growing importance of motion pictures in China, Mr. Jansen said that 85 producing companies were registered last year, of which about twenty are in operation now.

British-American has recently been sending traveling shows, with complete equipment, into the interior, bringing pictures to many Chinese who never before had seen them. This work will be extended. American pictures are popular in China, he declared, in pointing out that that country is one of the biggest potential fields for the industry.

Art in Lobby Treatments on Broadway

Flamboyance Omitted from Decorative Schemes Achieved for Presentations of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Productions at Long-Run Theatres

FROM the time when motion picture lobbies chiefly were handy spots in which to hang a giddy canvas to flap in the wind, or to dangle like a tired dish towel, down to the present era of truly artistic decorative effects, has been a long—and a significant—leap.

Major Edward Bowes, Managing-Director of the Capitol Theatre, who has supervised the presentation of all of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's Broadway successes, beginning with "The Big Parade," still making history at the Astor Theatre; "Ben-Hur," still at the Embassy; "The Scarlet Letter," in its third week at the Central, and "The Merry Widow," "La Boheme" and Rex Ingram's "Mare Nostrum"—all of which last three had long Broadway runs—has prescribed for his staff a definite character which should feature all theatre effects, notably lobby displays.

Add Beauty to Theatre

Those of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer who present pictures have always worked on the idea that, in these "special" presentations, the big picture should stand alone, without prologue and without incidental entertainment. However, they have insisted always that the musical score should be as near harmonious perfection as possible, that the theatre itself should be made as attractive as possible, and that no expense should be spared in making the lobby a delight to even the most critical artistic eye.

The accompanying photographs of the lobbies of the Central, the Astor and the intimate Embassy theatres may give some idea of the methods by which unusual picture plays have been given a beautiful setting from the point of view of the entrances.

It may be noted that there is nothing of flamboyancy. Everything that has been done to enhance the attractiveness of the lobbies is the result of securing the services of the most talented artists and the best materials available.

In the instance of the Central Theatre, where "The Scarlet Letter" opened on August 9, a remarkable effect was gained by covering the ceiling with yards of red silk, draped artistically, and sprinkling it with incandescent bulbs. In this theatre, too, a painting of Miss Gish in colors is employed, and two imaginative sketches based on the theme of the film.

Lobby for "The Big Parade"

During the sensational run of "The Big Parade" the lobby and exterior of the Astor Theatre has been one of the outstanding spots in the vicinity of Times Square. The great electric sign over the theatre has been one of the beacon lights of Broadway.

Striking features of the Astor lobby are the artificial sky in which airplanes hover, and the frieze of marching doughboys.

The sumptuous and refined atmosphere of the Embassy lobby, where "Ben-Hur" is continuing the success it achieved at the George M. Cohan Theatre, has done much to establish a kind of film "clientele" for this house. The decorative effects here are extremely arresting and artistic. A beautiful Persian rug, glittering candelabra overhead, a row of Louis XV chairs and a finely conceived wall display of scenes from the photoplay usher the visitor into one of the most exclusive and inviting of cinema houses.

The romantic and marine atmosphere of "Mare Nostrum" was suggested with striking artistic effect in the lobby display at the Criterion Theatre, where the picture played its extended Broadway engagement. The walls and ceiling of the Criterion lobby were treated with a silver metallic paint, which also was used on doors and casements. This luminous background proved an effective support for the pictorial map and the marine molding border.

Large oil paintings reproducing scenes from "Ben-Hur" and set in heavy gilt frames decorate the walls of the Embassy, New York, for the current engagement of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer spectacle

When Four of a Kind Equals

If you were playing poker, and held four of a kind, with a big pot at stake—

And after being called they told you that in that game four of a kind was no better than a single pair—

You'd want to know just what kind of a darn fool game that was, wouldn't you?

The producer of the best two reel comedies is sitting in just that sort of a game today.

Because the comedies are best they cost more. You can't make a silk purse out of a sow's ear. There's more than thirty cents' worth of gold in a gold dollar.

Yet—

Many exhibitors who wouldn't dream of getting a knockout box-office feature for the price of a program feature—

Refuse to pay a nickel more for the very best two reel comedies than they do for the worst.

Apparently a two reel comedy is damned because it's in two reels rather than six.

a Pair

The first class producer of short comedies is wondering just what sort of a darnfool game this is.

A lot of men in this world know what justice is, but when it comes to applying it they're glad to let George do it.

It's as plain as a pikestaff that it's good business sense to be willing to pay for a picture on its entertainment value, not on its length. Any other course is apt to strangle the goose that's laying the golden eggs.

You need all the golden eggs you can get.

The exhibitor playing the Mack Sennett two reel comedies, the Ben Turpins, Alice Days, Mack Sennetts and The Smith Series is getting them.

The public knows the difference between four of a kind and a single pair.

Sustain Drive for "One Minute to Play"

Liberal Newspaper Space Used During Second Week's Run

THE intensive campaign methods employed to launch "One Minute to Play," the "Red" Grange starring vehicle, at the Colony Theatre in New York are being continued throughout this, the second week of an indefinite run on Broadway, and the picture-goers continue to respond to the message broadcast through various publicity avenues.

The liberal amount of advertising space in the daily newspapers was continued throughout the second week. Besides, 100,000 "Red" Grange heralds were distributed in hotels, railroad stations and at newsstands. Half-sheet window cards were planted in all schools and colleges to catch the incoming students, for just at this time of the year every educational institution has its own football team and the boys and girls are filled with interest in the players and the game.

Special attention was paid in New York to the matter of interesting the sports writers of the daily newspapers. Personal letters brought a large number of sports writers to a special preview of "One Minute to Play," before it opened at the Colony and then two days after the opening the same group, with added members, attended a luncheon given to Grange. The result were articles in the sports columns of not only the New York papers but outside as well.

Five Shows on Sunday for Kansas City House

So large have the Sunday crowds been at the Newman theatre, Kansas City, that that house will adopt a new policy of five shown on Sundays, beginning this week, according to Bruce Fowler, manager. The doors will open at 11:30 A. M.

The Gem Theatre, Oelwein, Iowa, depended on marquee billing to shout the message that "The Live Wire" (First National) was being offered as the feature

Find Sporting Pages Good Outlet for Publicity on Gene Tunney Serial

THE results being obtained by the Pathe publicity and exploitation department in a newspaper publicity campaign based on sporting element of the serial in which Gene Tunney is starred as "The Fighting Marine," serves to remind once more that the theatre or motion picture press agent often has material better suited to development as a subject of news or feature stories for sporting pages than for the dramatic or photoplay columns of the newspaper.

With the release on September 12th of "The Fighting Marine," Pathe turned its publicity guns on the sport pages. Tunney, as an established star of sportdom, naturally claimed his greatest following from the ranks of the sports fans. His impending challenge bout for the championship of the world has made him a sporting news feature about whom so much reading matter was in demand that there was plenty of space for articles on his past, his present and his future. And his experience as a movie star, making his first appearance before the cameras at a Hollywood studio, therefore, had a place among his most recent experiences and not by any means the least important of his professional activities. A special campaign, designed for the sports magazines and daily newspapers, was started in July, with a weekly service being maintained steadily since. The stories are based on Tunney's comment on production, his accomplishments as a fighter which led to his contract to star in pictures, his training methods, etc., and supplementing the stories are a number of photographs of interest to sport fans.

In addition to the sporting angle of the picture, Pathe's publicity department as well has exploited "The Fighting Marine" along other lines. One of the most important of the tie-ups affected is that in which the Marine Corps is interested.

By an arrangement with Major Joseph C. Fegan, U. S. M. C. officer in charge of recruiting at Washington, D.C., orders have been sent to every Marine recruiting station in the United States instructing the officer in charge to give full cooperation to Pathe and the theatres showing "The Fighting Marine," and to provide men for appearance at such theatres who will deliver a brief address telling about Gene Tunney's record as a Fighting Marine.

Chattanooga's Red Grange displayed the co-operative spirit—thereby displaying good business sense as well—when the Fox production "Siberia" played the Rialto Theatre there. The photo above shows the ballyhoo resulting from a tie-up affected by Manager W. S. Perutz

Short Subjects and Serials

Sennett's Bathing Mermaids Featured in Pathecomedy

The Mack Sennett Bathing Beauties will again step into the limelight, according to the plans of Sennett, who has featured them in a new two-reeler as yet untitled. Presented in the cast are Mildred June, Thelma Hill, Mary Maberry, Matty Kemp, Barney Hellum, Dave Morris and J. Cooper. Earl Rodney and Lonnie Dorsa directed and B. Williams took care of the camera. The "Smith Family" is working on another of their domestic comedies under the direction of Alf Goulding and Harry Connott. An all-star unit consisting of Billy Bevan, Madeline Hurlock, Ruth Taylor and William Stanley Blystone are busily engrossed in the filming of a two-reel comedy under the direction of Eddie Cline and Joe Bordeaux. Ray McCarey and Harry Edwards are directing Ben Turpin in a film wherein he has the assistance of Alma Bennett, Bud Jamison, William McCall and Irving Bacon.

Educational Finishes Johnny Arthur's "The Humdinger"

Shorts Gain More Recognition

Appreciation Creates Enthusiasm at Studios, Says Hammons of Educational

THE increasing recognition accorded to the short feature by exhibitors and critics is reflected most noticeably in an increased enthusiasm at the short subject producing studios, according to Mr. E. W. Hammons, President of Educational Film Exchanges, Inc., who returned to New York a few days ago after his usual summer visit to the studios in Los Angeles producing for the Educational program.

"In spite of the inroads of vaudeville which have taken up much time in some picture theatres," said Mr. Hammons, "the general tendency of exhibitors everywhere has been to use their best short subjects to better advantage, giving them better presentation and better exploitation, and the observers of the press have unquestionably adopted a new attitude toward these brief pictures, as is reflected in a larger number of editorial comments and reviews appearing in the press everywhere.

"The effect of this on the producing forces all the way from studio men and senior directors to extras is almost amazing. The final result, as far as production is concerned, is certain to be a still greater increase in the quality and box-office value of short features during the season just beginning.

"The Educational Studios and the Christie Studios with their recent improvements rank with the largest and best of the production plants on the West Coast. On my visit I found both these great studios going at full blast with bigger staffs at work than they have ever employed heretofore. New stars are being added to the leading comedy performers at both studios and at the Educational Studios the directorial staff has just been increased by the addition of two men who rank among the finest directors in the comedy field. Bigger sets are being used, more money is being spent generally on production and there is an air of activity and enthusiasm that surpasses anything that I have ever found there before."

Stern Bros. Have New Studio

New Plant Has Three Large Stages; Comedy Units Start Production Soon

STERN BROS., producers of comedies, released through Universal, who suffered the loss of their studio several weeks ago, are about ready to resume production, having acquired a new plant almost adjacent to the old lot. Four comedy units will be ready to start shooting within ten days, says Beno Rubel, secretary of the company.

The new studio has three large stages, a large water tank and is equipped with every modern appurtenance for the making of pictures. An assortment of costumes is being assembled at the new plant.

The companies to start work in the near future are the "Newlyweds and Their Baby," "Let George Do It," "What Happened to Jane," and "The Excuse Maker" unit, each of which is making a series for the Universal program for the current season. Julius and Abe Stern, president and vice-president, are at present in Europe, gathering costumes and properties to be used for future Stern releases.

FOX NEWS, VOL. 7, NO. 99: San Pedro—U. S. ## "A Dippy Tar"

(Educational-Christie—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Paul Thompson)

BILLY DOOLEY, possibly more familiar to Western vaudeville addicts because of his appearance for many years on the Orpheum Circuit, than to Eastern fans, has come into his own in moving picture comedies. After closing his vaudeville tour he returned to Hollywood, where he had been seen and engaged by the Christies for their comedies. As a reward for his work as a sort of apprentice he is now elevated to stardom in these pieces as a sailor of the salty seas. James Duffy and Molly Malone, two other well-known comedians of the same company, are used advantageously in Dooley's support.

Elected as a dinner guest ashore Dooley finds himself in an apartment, the owner of which is a dabbler in hypnotism. To please the daughter of the household the tar pretends to be under her father's influence and does the various things asked of him. He becomes a cat, a fireman, and plays various other roles, all of which naturally, or otherwise, result in much property destruction as well as noise, confusion and any and all things that may be gathered under the generic name, "Rough house." One playful little expedient employed to bring the man out of his hypnotic state is sticking a pin into the rear of every sailor encountered, under the impression that this particular bluejacket is the hypnotized Dippy Dooley. Add innumerable Hollywood policemen and stir well before mixing and you can vaguely imagine how much action the piece provides. The cast includes Billy Dooley, Jack Duffy, as the hypnotist, and Molly Malone as his daughter. Directed by William Watson.

"Which Is Which?"

(Universal-Stern Bros.—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Paul Thompson)

THIS is the second of the "The Excuse Maker" two-reel Stern Brothers comedies. Charles King is the featured player, under the direction of Samuel Newfield. The title may give you an inkling that it is really the Two Dromios idea from Shakespeare's comedy. In other words, two men whose resemblance is so striking in every respect but the moral—for, one is a quite reputable business man, father of the girl the hero is trying to win, and the other a crook. With that premise you can really go on with the story yourself, but I will help out a bit by sketching it briefly. Charles King, naturally broke and unable to pay his rent, discovers that pawnable objects are thrown at the creator of unwelcome music, whether the author be a cat, or a—by courtesy only so designated—a human saxophone jazz player. These things are hocked and the rent paid.

Helping to arrest a man, supposedly stealing from a bank, King is really instigating the apprehension of his father-in-law-to-be. This mistake he discovers when he calls at the home of the girl. Then ensues the usual rough and tumble race through innumerable doors in pursuit of the crooked double who conveniently (for the plot), has decided to call on the same house. The exact resemblance of the two men naturally leads to King's constantly jumping on and assaulting the innocent father. It ends as it should. Evil is punished and virtue rewarded. Next week or soon thereafter, Charles will win the girl again after any number of difficulties have been put in his way. It must help, while undergoing all the tribulations a hero does, to know he must win out always at the finish. Released October 11th.

"Non-Stop Bride"

(Fox-Imperial Comedy—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Paul Thompson)

A "Western" with a bathing beauty tag is the newest Fox comedy. To be a bit more explicit an over-weight blonde beauty is disturbed by the intrusion on her private swimming hole by Gene Cameron. He is catapulted, through an automobile accident, into the setting and appropriates her clothing, which was not hanging on a hickory limb. Thus, an excuse for masquerading as a girl and being made love to by all the men in the picture until the denouement. Gene and his pal, Arthur Houseman, are making a non-stop trans-Continental auto trip when the accident occurs, so here, if you are interested in the genesis of an idea, is where the title for the comedy comes from.

Add to these ingredients a few such details as the mis-appropriation of a horse, so that there is a more or less legitimate excuse for pursuing the hero and trying to hang him as a horse thief. Of course, we in the audience know that he isn't and for the heroine's sake (she has established one of those record falling-in love movie affairs) he is proved to be guilty of everything except being a sap when the end comes. There is plenty of action and slap-stick situations enough to hold a paying clientele for exhibitor and theatre manager. So what more can be asked? Echo answers nothing.

Story and scenario by Messrs. Andrew Bennison and Murray Roth. Directed by Jess Robbins. Supervised by George E. Marshall.

THE CAST

Reata Hoyt and Gene Cameron (leads), Arthur Houseman, Fred O'Beck and Madalynne Field.

"The Radio Bug"

(Educational-Cameo—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Paul Thompson)

NOTHING like selecting a topical subject in which almost everyone is interested for the basis of a moving picture comedy. Hence "The Radio Bug." It is all the title implies, but everyone concerned in the piece is worthy of inclusion in the "bug" designation. In the utilization of trap doors and other mechanical devices it recalls the Hanlons of "Superba" and "Fantasma" and with the coach that fell into a thousand pieces. Were the installation of a radio set accompanied by the disasters that signalize the introduction and inspection of the particular set in this comedy I think it is fair to assume that the radio corporations would not be paying the stock dividends they are today.

Before the fan, the man from the store who installs the set and the man who theoretically inspects and passes on the equipment are through, the house is a complete loss. To start things right a side of the cottage is saved in half to permit the admission of the packing case containing the set. Then the roof is pierced to admit the wiring. When a storm breaks, the house is flooded. Does that discourage the fans? It does not; the set works and that is all that is necessary for their happiness, even if Jupiter Pluvius is supplying the static. Stephen Roberts, in his role of director, manipulates Phil Dunham, "Toy" Gallagher, Clem Beauchamps, Jack Lloyd and Bert Young in the piece, as though they were chess men pawns. It probably will amuse radio fans and they are numerically strong enough to make a paying clientele.

"The Prodigal Bridegroom"

(Pathe-Mack Sennett—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Paul Thompson)

HE of the crossed eye essays matrimony in this comedy but escapes because he is not certain which girl he wishes to marry. Thus he ends by losing both. The picture opens with Ben and his fiancée, Thelma Hill, doing a spring dance a la the Morgan dancers, which supposedly puts one into the spirit of the comedy, love and laughter. Returning from the city the impressionable one falls for a city vamp and decides to side-track Thelma for the new charmer. While he is trying to get out of his engagement the vampish Madeline Hurlock decides father is better game than son Ben, so turns the battery of her eyes and wiles on the former. Ben returns to find he has lost out on both counts, as Thelma has married the hired man and the adventuress is already married to the handsome-looking guy she is riding with on the train when both spot the comedian counting his money. There should be a moral to all this, as to Aesop's Fables, but it is hard to figure out just what it is. Possibly that the Ben Turpin type of rolling stone gathers no matrimonial moss. One of the amusing episodes is when Ben is explaining to the assembled wedding guests why it is impossible for him to go through with the marriage. He pictures in a cut-back the finding of the poor little city waif (the Theda Bara type of vamp as played by Madeline Hurlock) and how he must marry her to make an honest woman out of her because, innocent as they both are, the situation in which they are found necessitates his doing the honorable thing. It is good Turpin fun, far fetched of course, but provocative of laughs.

THE CAST

Ben Turpin, Star; Thelma Hill, William McCall, Irving Bacon, Louise Carver, Andy Clyde, Marvin Lobach, Madeline Hurlock and Dave Morris. Director, Lloyd Bacon.

"Abraham the Patriarch"

(Pathe-Palestine Series—One Reel)

THIS marks the first release on this series of religious subjects which have created such favorable comment everywhere. This one reel takes the travelers and the spectators from Ur down the river Euphrates to Jerusalem. It is the journey taken by the patriarch himself and inasmuch as Mesopotamia has changed as little as any section of this small world of ours it is as tho' we were accompanying the famous biblical character and his associates thousands of years ago. It is interesting on that score and needs no biblical lore or creed of any kind to hold the spectator.—PAUL THOMPSON.

Teaching Table Manners Via Films

(Red Seal—One Reel)

FOR adults, possibly beyond the age where Gellett Burgess' well-known goops are supposed to teach manners, this film and its series are recommended. After watching the two charming ladies at luncheon and seeing how the one who never had the advantage of the right bringing-up and the one who had or who was a close student of manners, no movie patron will have any excuse for not doing the right thing at the right time.

For contrast in the same film are views of East Side's push cart markets, their merchants, customers and wares.—PAUL THOMPSON.

"When Bonita Rode"

(Universal-Mustang—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Paul Thompson)

IS there such a thing as an honest foreman on a moving picture ranch? I doubt it. They seem by birthright or environment or something to be a race apart, a sort of Ishmael clan in the wilderness, with all men's hands raised against them. Always the foreman, who is a crook, is secretly plotting to do the ranch-owner, his boss, out of his property, including hard-riding daughter. Daughter, on the other hand, never is in love with the foreman but falls like a Halley comet for the stranger, the hero, who until the fade-out is suspected of being a cattle-rustler or some sort of a low-down. Why not for novelty's sake reverse the role? Let the hero be a foreman, there is nothing in the rules of the game that makes that impossible, is there? Then he can prove the father is not exactly half-witted in having faith in the integrity of his employee. Curiously gullible crowd, for the most part, these ranch owners, when it comes to placing credence in anything told them by the villain and disbelieving the most obvious truth retailed by son-in-law-to-be or daughter.

In this Mustang Comedy Curley Witzel rescues Alma Rayford from a waterhole into which she has, for plot-purposes, fallen. Good introduction. The foreman attempts to drive Curley and his side-partner off because they are squatters. They turn the tables and round him and his gang up. The water-hole and surrounding territory, it seems, is on no-man's land and to get the claim papers filed first, we have a race between the foreman and the girl. Put your bets down now before the release day of the picture, October 15, she wins the race, hence the title. Curley curls Alma up in his arms with a wedding dot of the papers giving possession of the disputed land. Lew Collins directed.

"Wife Shy"

(Educational-Christie—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Paul Thompson)

MOST men are, whether they confess it or not, girl—and even more, wife—shy, whether it is the one who ultimately captures the shrinking male or the one who belongs legally and technically to some other man. And there is justification for this trepidation, I think, without my being accused of undue cynicism in regard to things marital and feminine. Bobby Vernon is no exception to the rule, but when he sees how happy his newly-married pal is (they always are when newly-married) he decides to adopt the other's technique and on the highways or in the byways, get for himself a help-mate. Unfortunately for himself he picks out the wife of this self-same friend. Always he is being arrested and bailed out by the man whose wife is the innocent cause of it all. No matter what he does or where he goes Bobby encounters his feminine Nemesis. That is the real humor of the piece and he and his associates do realize its possibilities. There are some amusing touches. For example, when he arrives at the police station by himself, thinking he is escaping into an empty store, he marches up to the desk and asks for the key to his old cell and escorts himself there to resume a game of solitaire which each release on bail interrupts. The premise of the farce is amusing and logical as are the sequences. William Watson, the director, Al Martin, who does the subtitles, and Vernon, the star, and his supporting company, do good team work to provide a quite amusing, if light and inconsequential entertainment.

"Missing Links"

(Educational-Life Cartoons—One Reel)

IF Robert Sherwood, that erudite editor and movie critic of Life, is enlisted to edit these animated cartoons from the pencil of their staff art, why shouldn't that robust Irish wit and satirist, George Bernard Shaw, be hired to supervise the Mack Sennett comedies?

In this week's comedy—which naturally will not be shown in Tennessee while the Scopes trial is still fresh in memory—as "Missing Links" would be heretical and not at all according to Hoyle or the Fundamentalist doctrine—Mike is running a butcher shop. You had guessed that from the title? Well, you are right. Mike, the high-hat villain, runs a fish market. Thus, they compete for trade as well as for fickle Myrtle's affections. For revenge Mike substitutes a trained eel for the frankfurters sold to Myrtle by Mike. But that merely a temporary handicap to their love-making, for Mike triumphs over the seeming practical joke and carries the heroine away to the minister. They will, however, be divorced or separated by next week and the pursuit of the two for the fair maiden will be started all over again.—PAUL THOMPSON.

"The Perils of Petersboro"

(Pathe-Mack Sennett—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Paul Thompson)

DOWN a country lane leading a cow and swinging her sun-bonnet is Alice Day. Along comes an automobile driven by a black, curly-haired chap you just know will prove to be the hero. He is and does. He makes a quite natural mistake seeing the fair maiden from the rear and thinks she is a boy. (In confidence he didn't need to play a country lane to make such a mistake; any city with its boyish-bobbed feminines and their knickers and other appropriations of hitherto masculine prerogatives would cause and does the same error.) Discovering she is a girl and a decidedly personable girl he starts painting her and the cow. He was a bad artist judging by the photographed canvas, but that had nothing to do with his being an acceptable lover. Alice is exiled to the city to the care of her aunt because her father does not favor the city feller's suit. By one of those curious coincidences Alice's cousin is posing for her boy friend whom she hopes to marry. Enter Alice—for purposes of contrast, supposedly to the advantage of the cousin. But—the artist, Eddie Quillan, belies the philandering reputation all artists possess and is loyal to his little country girl. They escape from his studio, leaving the girl's father and her brother floundering in a swimming pool which is there for comedy purposes only and the chagrined aunt and her daughter holding the center of the stage. We feel that "object matrimony" is why Eddie and the beauteous Alice, who are featured in the comedy, have left the front of the camera and the screen. They make a handsome couple.

THE CAST

Alice Day and Eddie Quillan, featured; Danny O'Shea, Joseph Young, Barbara Tennant and Thelma Parr. Director, Earle Rodney.

"Daybreak"

(Pathe-Serial—Ninth Chapter)

NEARER and nearer comes the end to this serial. This is the next to the last when all the various complications will have been straightened out to everybody's satisfaction except that of the villains of the piece and they seem to be legion. In the last before this chapter of "Snowed In" Allene Ray, the heroine, and one of the villains were left suspended from the beams of the ceiling after their weight had crashed the plaster. Allene is, of course, rescued but this particular villain dies of heart failure. One down, several more to play. The boy rescues the pouch with the papers to clear Allene's brother. The rest of the villains discover this and are ready to break in the door when help comes in the shape of Walter Miller, the forest ranger, and his allies of the airplane forces. Also on the scene is the wounded bandit who gets out of bed, shaves and confronts his own pals, who do not recognize him. Moreover, one of the prowlers is recognized by Walter Miller, the co-star, but the anxious reader and reviewer must wait until September to find out who he is and just how the gang is finally rounded up and Allene's brother cleared. Good photography and a never-ending series of exciting episodes are the characteristics of Frank Leon Smith's story, directed by Spencer Bennett.—PAUL THOMPSON.

"Hitting the Bull's-Eye"

(Pathe-Spotlight—One Reel)

GRANTLAND RICE in this release of his popular sports pictures has selected the bull's-eye for his subject. This is to show how essential it is in practically every sport to hit the centre of the object aimed at. Archery is one of the best illustrations of this. To make the point clear the annual tournament of the American followers of Robin Hood—in using a bow and arrow, not in robbery, for this has nothing to do with real estate sharks or Wall Street margin brokers—is selected. The men are shown drawing their bows and then the arrival of their arrows on the targets. Baseball is another illustration of how pitchers must hit the bull's eye as typified by the catcher's glove directly behind the home plate. Then, too, big gun target practice on our battleships. As usual, a careful selection of the right sort of pictures and titles to amplify still further the point is made by that always sane and interesting writer on sporting subjects, Grantland Rice.—PAUL THOMPSON.

"Watered Stock"

(Pathe Fables—One Reel)

NO, gentle reader, this does not deal with Wall Street. Of course in these days of General Motors and other such "good buys" there is no water in Wall Street even if the street of streets does end in the East River. "Watered Stock" in this instance applies mostly to another milk scandal. Farmer Al's horse detaches himself from the milk wagon. He helps his boss out by filling the milk bottles at the hydrant. Down the road when a halt is made for a delivery, all the cats in the neighborhood proceed to rob the wagon of its freight and hold high jinks behind a board fence. There is such a supply that some even emulate the late Anna Held and indulge in fact what she did only in the imagination of her press agent—bathe in the lacteal fluid. Then to add to the significance of the title, every character at some period in the reel becomes lachrymose. It makes one think of charming Claiborne Foster's oft-repeated line in "The Patsy," her comedy success—"There is no use crying, there is enough water in all the spilled milk in the world already," or words to that effect.—PAUL THOMPSON.

"Olgar's Boatman"

(Universal-Blue Bird Comedy—One Reel)

(Reviewed by Paul Thompson)

EDGAR L. KENNEDY directed this picture in which our old friends—old in service but not years—Neely Edwards and Jane Reid are starred. Inasmuch as the plot deals with real estate, surely no better place for filming it could be found than Hollywood, if we except that deadly rival to California, the sand dunes of Florida. A "prospect" commits the almost fatal mistake of telephoning to a number of real estate offices that the first representative to arrive will close the deal. Among others Neely Edwards, being in the business, starts out. But he seems pursued by hard luck, for he is always being thrown from a trolley car, an automobile, etc. But—and it is an eloquent but—he is picked up by a fair widow. There the law of compensation works out because, while he does not land the contract, he does land the widow and the property. So you feel there is some justice in the world after all. To the legion of followers of Neel and the fair Jane, the piece will bring joy and money to Universal.

Dunham and Gallagher Finish Production on Three

Three Cameos comedies featuring the comedy team of Phil Dunham and "Toy" Gallagher are listed among the first offerings of Educational's 1826-27 program. The comedies are "The Radio Bug," "Kiss Me Again" and "Plum Goofy." Clem Beauchamp directed the first mentioned comedy while Stephen Roberts handled "The Radio Bug."

Paradise

Too Much Plot and Hokum Here

(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

EVEN as sincere a player as Milton Sills cannot lift up this picture and make it anything but just an obvious tale of hokum—which is stretched nearly to the breaking point with extraneous scenes and incident. There are far too many characters—and far too many subtitles. Again there is a vein of comedy relief—which very surely does not belong—or if humor was needed it should have been used with restraint. With an English background—the employment of obvious comic characters who must burlesque their attire as well as their action is not in keeping with the plot.

And what is this plot? Simply the cutting off of a spendthrift youth by his father—the youth to inherit an isle in the South Seas where he must work out his own salvation before there can be any reconciliation. In leading up to the theme—the story beats all around the bush—revealing an aeroplane chase, a jail episode, three or four fights and a society function or two.

The story should have been told with a few well-chosen strokes, the action revolving around the principal characters. Instead money has been expended in shooting scenes which have little in common with the plot. Milton Sills tries his best to make something out of it. Betty Bronson makes her moments appealing.

The Cast: Milton Sills, Betty Bronson, Noah Beery, Lloyd Whitlock, Kate Price, Charlie Murray, Claude King, Charles Brooke, Ashley Cooper. Director, Irvin Willat.

THEME: Romantic drama of idle youth, who, disinherited by father, is given an island in South Seas in which to find himself. Takes young wife along and makes good—thus effecting reconciliation.

PRODUCTION HIGHLIGHTS: The settings and atmosphere. The acting by Milton Sills and Betty Bronson.

EXPLOITATION ANGLES: Title lends possibilities for exploitation. Play up star and Miss Bronson.

DRAWING POWER: Title will draw them—also popularity of star. Suitable for average houses everywhere.

Produced and distributed by First National. Length, 7,090 feet. Released September, 1926.

All the elements of melodrama are found in generous measure in these scenes of the Fox Films offering, "The Blue Eagle"

The Blue Eagle

"Strike Up the Band—Here Come Two Sailors"

(Reviewed by Paul Thompson)

THIS thriller comes from the Fox organization that boasts, justly, of John Ford as one of its ace directors. George O'Brien is featured in this, the last story by Gerald Beaumont, which largely concerns itself with the sea but also shifts in the latter parts to the land. There are all the elements necessary for a good old-fashioned melodrama and full advantage has been taken of that fact by the director and the cameraman. The scenes on the battleship in the days of our participation in the World War are great.

Possibly trying your credulity a bit more are the episodes and action in the latter part of the picture. Yet here again there is an unquestioned feeling of reality in the unfolding of the conflict between two men for the hand of a girl in an east-side or dock-front setting. Seldom if ever have I seen a more convincing fight than that staged in the parish house between the two rivals with the priest acting as referee as the only spectator. Other good shots are the motorboat patrol and submarine scenes. As I said above, it is melodrama but darned good melodrama and bound to hold the interest of picture fans. The featured player, versatile George O'Brien, has to share the acting honors with several others.

The Cast: George O'Brien (featured), Janet Gaynor, Robert Edson, William Russell, David Butler, Phillip Ford, Ralph Sipperly, Margaret Livingston, Harry Tenbrook, Lew Short and Jerry. Directed by John Ford. L. G. Rigby wrote the screen story from the Beaumont original.

THEME: Two men's eternal battle for the same girl, with the navy and east side as settings.

PRODUCTION HIGHLIGHTS: Effective U. S. Fleet scenes and prize fight sequence.

EXPLOITATION HIGHLIGHTS: Play up hard the navy tag.

DRAWING POWER: Should be great.

Produced and distributed by the Fox Film Corporation. Length, 6,200 feet. Released September 12, 1926.

First National's latest Colleen Moore starring vehicle, "It Must Be Love," to be released soon

Diplomacy

O. K. for the Average Picturegoer
(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

MARSHALL NEILAN has turned to an old stage play to fashion an exciting hour of celluloid—and it can be said that he has accomplished results. While it is a little too far-fetched to be true, still it manages to keep one thoroughly interested, partly because of the rapid-fire action and partly because of the mystery element, which is emphasized for all it is worth. There is an atmosphere about it suggestive of "The Bat." The characters seem to move cautiously and their creepy ways place the spectator right on edge.

Mr. Neilan, however, doesn't take himself too seriously. He even indulges in a bit of horse-play here and there. The Secret Service comes in for expression. So do the spies and a stolen treaty. It is all very much to the intrigue. It is especially intriguing when a British Foreign Office representative enters his apartment after his brother's wedding to find the servants in various degrees of agony.

The picture is calculated to please the average picturegoer everywhere. Need more be said? Yes, it is well acted by real troupers with Blanche Sweet at the head of the procession.

The Cast: Blanche Sweet, Neil Hamilton, Arlette Marchal, Matt Moore, Gustav von Seyffertitz, Earle Williams, Arthur Edmund Carew. Director, Marshall Neilan.

THEME: Mystery drama revolving around stolen treaty and much intrigue concerning the diplomatic service.

PRODUCTION HIGHLIGHTS: The very fine acting by entire cast. Moment when Englishman finds the servants helpless. The intrigue and mystery. The suspense. The sly humor contributed by Matt Moore.

EXPLOITATION ANGLES: Play up title and tease it by drawing attention to diplomacy in the home spells happiness, etc. Play up cast. Feature as film version of Sarah Bernhardt's old play. Emphasize mystery and suspense.

DRAWING POWER: Suitable for everyday audiences. Names of cast well advertised should pull them in. Best suited for downtown houses.

*Produced and distributed by Famous Players.
Length, six reels. Released, September, 1926.*

Shots depicting the physical combat and love making to be found in "Paradise," a First National offering

It Must Be Love

Made to Order for Colleen Moore
(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

HERE is a story that might have been written with Colleen Moore in mind so well does it suit her personality. It makes quite a lot of capital out of the pathos of finding love under parental objection—the simple kind of homespun love so characteristic of the themes of this particular star's pictures. Originally it was known as "Delicatessen," a Satevepost yarn—though unlike its first title it is not crammed with varied properties. In reality it is a simple little tale of a German family—of a hard-boiled "Pop" who can't be reconciled to his daughter's independent ideas. So she runs away, gets a job in a department store—meets the boy friend (the youth who precipitated the family quarrel), has her romance and becomes united to the old folks when she marries him.

It is easy to spot it and there is too much footage for the simplicity of the plot. To carry it out the action relies upon considerable incident pertaining to the humdrum life of the parents—and the heroine's adventures away from home. However, it is a "homey" little picture—and directed with good appreciation and feeling. It never strays from its character—in its revelation of types and situations. Moreover it is competently acted by the star, Jean Hersholt, Arthur Stone and Malcolm McGregor. The titles are O. K. when the writer of them refrains from wise-cracks.

The Cast: Colleen Moore, Jean Hersholt, Malcolm McGregor, Arthur Stone, Bodil Rosing, Dorothy Seastrom, Cleve Moore, Mary O'Brien, Ray Haller. Director, Alfred E. Green

THEME: Revolves around girl of middle class family who precipitates quarrel when she would choose her own husband. Romantic drama.

PRODUCTION HIGHLIGHTS: The carnival detail. the atmosphere of home.

EXPLOITATION ANGLES:

Feature the title and play it up for all it is worth. It means that a youth or girl will go through anything for the sake of love. Play up vehicle as ideal for star.

DRAWING POWER: Should appeal with fans who follow the star. Title has magnetic quality.

*Produced and distributed by First National.
Length, 6,848 feet. Released September, 1926.*

All the elements of melodrama are found in generous measure in these scenes of the Fox Films offering, "The Blue Eagle"

Regional News from Correspondents

MEYER FINE and Abe Kramer, who, it was announced last week, sold out their interests in the Ohio Amusement Company, have started business for themselves under their own names. They have taken space in 216 Film Exchange Building. They plan to continue in the exhibition field and by buying and building, will soon be operating an independent circuit. Messrs. Fine and Kramer have been in the movie business together since 1910, when they operated two picture theatres in Meadville, Pa. In 1915 they came to Cleveland and, in association with D. L. Schumann, acquired the Dennison Square. Their activities gradually expanded until they finally controlled eleven theatres in Cleveland. The circuit was known as the Ohio Amusement Company. Schumann is still with the old company as general manager, but Fine and Kramer are out for themselves now.

Ace Berry, managing director of the Circle Theatre, Indianapolis, was Cleveland's most distinguished exhibitor guest last week.

James R. Grainger, Fox general sales manager; M. J. Schwartz, of the home office; George A. Roberts, assistant short subject sales manager, and W. C. Bachmeyer, central division manager, all attended the opening of the Fox exchange in its new building last Monday.

It is stated in local real estate reports that the new Universal Theatre now in course of construction at East Ninth Street and Walnut Avenue has been leased by Dr. Brody, general manager of the Universal-Brody Theatres Company, for ten years and calls for $26,500 a year for five years and $30,000 for the second five.

Mrs. Georgia Moffett, secretary of the Film Board of Trade of Cleveland, was a guest of the secretary of the Film Board of Trade of Pittsburgh last week.

Al Mertz, former local Universal exchange manager, is now with the Detroit F. B. O. outfit, so we've been told.

H. E. Armstrong, of the local Universal sales force, has been transferred to the Des Moines office of the company. J. Smallwood, a student salesman, succeeds him in the Ohio territory.

L. J. Tietjen, local assistant Universal manager, has returned from a vacation which, he says, was a flop. Rain almost every day.

Max Lefkowitz, owner of one of the largest local circuits, has returned from a summer trip abroad. Henry Greenberger, associate and brother-in-law, went to New York to meet him and his family and to escort him home with due decorum.

John C. Flynn, P. D. C. general manager, and H. O. Duke, assistant secretary, on a tour of 35 exchanges in 31 days, is scheduled to be in Cleveland about the middle of September for a 24-hour intensive sales campaign in behalf of Morgan Month.

H. F. Grove, Jr., representing Topics of the Day and Æsop's Fables, was around here last week doing some intensive work among local exhibitors.

Max Federhar, who operates the Regent and Rialto theatres, Akron, has the honor of being the first out-of-town exhibitor to visit the new Fox exchange.

Charles Brill, prominent Akron exhibitor, has just returned from a summer's travel in Italy and France. During his absence the Miles Royal has been operated by his son.

Harry Charnas and Jesse Fishman, president and vice-president of the Standard Film Service Company, have taken over the Priscilla Theatre, Toledo, from John Kumler. Charnas and Fishman are interested in a lot of picture theatres in the territory.

Silverman Brothers, operating the Windamer Theatre, Cleveland, have purchased both the Majestic and Opera House, Mansfield, from Bill Partella. It is understood that Partella will manage the houses under the new ownership.

A change of name and a change of ownership has been effected toward the Love Theatre at Dresden, Ohio. N. M. Jones has purchased the house from L. E. Love, and now calls it the Dresden Theatre.

Ross McVoy is commuting between Geneva, N.Y., and Findlay, Ohio, in his endeavor to keep supervision of his Temple Theatre, Geneva, and his newly acquired Marvin Theatre, Findlay. The Marvin opened last week, all dressed up in new paint and trimmings.

Paul Gusdanovic, former president of the Cleveland Motion Picture Exhibitors Association, went out shopping last week and purchased the Miles Theatre. This makes Paul's fifth house. The others are the Orpheum, a downtown house, and the Regent, Norwell and Norval, neighborhood houses. The Miles previously belonged to Charles Broz. Broz, however, has been in poor health and is disposing of his local holdings in order to move out west.

United Artists will have an exchange building of its own in Cleveland. Plans have been made and a general contract let to the Austen Company, local builders. The new exchange will be on East 21st Street, just north of Payne Avenue, in close proximity to the Film Exchange Building and to the new Fox Exchange Building.

Loew's Ohio Theatres is staging a golf tournament for all of its employees. The date is set for September 17th, but the place has not yet been definitely determined. Fred Clary, Stillman Theatre manager, Tom Carvon, artist, and Harland Fend, of the publicity department, constitute a committee on arrangements. Prizes will be awarded. This is the first affair of its kind ever staged in Cleveland by a local circuit.

Bob Suits, who has been house manager of the Allen, under general manager George Langan, has left Cleveland to become general manager of one of the Loew presentation houses in New London, Connecticut.

Robert Cotton, P.D.C. division manager, is confined to his home with a bad attack of quinsy.

Nat Barach, Warner Brothers Central Division manager, went to Chicago last week to attend the Vitaphone opening at the McVickers Theatre on September 15th.

Mark Goldman—remember him? He was among the last of the local Selznick Exchange managers. Well, he's back in town after two years' wandering, as manager of the Cleveland Tiffany Exchange. He stepped into the post last Monday, following the resignations of M. H. Greenwald as district manager and Abe Gerson as local exchange manager.

Meyer Fine and Abe Kramer, who have just started anew collecting theatres following their withdrawal from the Ohio Amusement Company, have purchased the Princess Theatre, Euclid Ave., from Victor Wolcott. Messrs. Fine and Kramer state that they have other theatre deals under way.

Julius Fisher, Universal short subject manager, was in town last week-end. He was on the way to Hot Springs, Arkansas.

Carl Hohage, for three years associated with the Standard Film Service Company in the home office, has resigned.

C. H. Parker, assistant Pathe Exchange manager, is vacationing in Washington, D.C.

Ward Scott, manager of the local Fox Exchange, was host to over a hundred guests last Wednesday at a housewarming luncheon to celebrate the opening of the new Fox Exchange Building just completed. After the luncheon, which was served in the inspection room, the guests were piloted on a tour of inspection, through the building, and Scott was congratulated upon having the finest exchange west of New York.

Jules Schwartz, exhibitor, and associate of Dr. B. I. Brody of the Universal-Brody Theatres, has a new name. They call him "Mr. McFarlan" now, in honor of his new car of the same name.

Lemotto Smith, head of the Smith Amusement Company, owning and operating picture houses in Alliance and Warren, made one of his all too rare visits to the local film exchanges last week. Time was when Smith was a regular caller, but his success in the picture business has led to extensive outside interests which occupy the major portion of his time.

F. A. Kelly, of the Lincoln Theatre, Massillon, paid the local exchanges a visit one day last week.

A. H. Abrams is back from his summer in Michigan, where he supports a summer home, and is again looking after the bookings of his Mozart and Odeon theatres in Canton.

E. C. Shaffer, manager of the Columbia local exchange, is out of the city at present visiting Bozeman and Livingston and the smaller adjacent towns.

New salesmen added to the Fox Corporation are W. A. Calkins, who will work the Montana district, and J. L. Tidwell, who is to cover Southern Utah. Mr. Calkins was for a short time connected with the Butte Pathe and later with Preferred Pictures in the Utah section. Bob Bloomer, who was in the Montana territory, resigned to accept a position on the Coast.

Frank Murphy, booker-manager for Famous Players-Lasky local office, is out of the city in the interest of the annual sales drive for the company.

The Margaret and the Orpheum theatres, conducted by Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Scott of Anaconda, are opened again and the theatre fans once more enjoying their splendid programs.

The American Theatre, which opened its doors last Friday, is enjoying a capacity house run at every evening performance.

Billy Burke, exploiteer, is back at the old stand for these houses and the advertising stunts he puts over are always enjoyed.

The Harrison Theatre, operated by Joe Warne, reopened Sunday, September 5. The new organ installed this summer was a big attraction and the house was filled to capacity. During the shut down the entire theatre was thoroughly renovated and a new heating system was installed. It is now one of the very attractive playhouses of Butte. It is located in suburban Butte but has a splendid following, due to the unusually good programs always to be found there.

Associated Exhibitors, in Butte, has a new head, Joe Solomon, who is one of the well-known film men of the Northwest territory and comes to the Butte office from Salt Lake City, where he was formerly associated with the F.B.O. Exchange. He resigned there to accept the management of the local exchange here. He enjoys the respect and confidence of the exhibitors of this State, and Montana is delighted to know that he has decided to remain in our midst and that the pleasant business relations of the past will continue in the future.

York office, passed through this city recently en route to San Francisco.

J. A. Epperson, local manager of the Pathe office, is working the Central and Southern Utah territory with his salesman, George Jensen.

Fritz Hummel, of Toortellotte and Hummel Architects, of Boise, Idaho, is in this city to meet with Carsten Dahnken, one of the owners of the American Theatre, to complete the detail plans of the Egyptian Theatre, in Boise, Ida., which The F. C. Dahnken Company is building there. They expect to open this house the latter part of 1926.

L. N. Strike, of the Kinema Theatre, of this city, is back from a business trip into Montana.

The local Associated First National office has been moved into the new building this week. Vete Stewart is now making the Idaho country and Claude Hawkes is working Southern Utah out of this exchange.

Clyde H. Messinger is back at his managerial duties at the Educational Exchange of this city, from a trip into the Idaho country.

Branch Manager H. Bradley Fish, of the local Fox office, left a few days ago for a swing into the Montana territory.

Steve Deal is lining up new business along Film Row here this week for his Star Theatre, at Springville, Utah.

Frank White, former owner of the Real Art Theatre, at American Fork, Utah, is in Salt Lake City, paying a visit to the different exchanges. White has just returned with his family from a three months' trip in the Northwest and Los Angeles. His theatre was sold some time ago to J. H. Miller, who changed the name from the Real Art to the Cameo. White expects to become located in the show business again before long.

James R. Keitz, local manager for the Columbia Pictures Corporation, is covering the entire State of Idaho.

John Ruger, of the American and Orpheum theatres, and also one of the owners of the new Egyptian Theatre, which is now under construction in Park City, is an exhibitor visitor here.

Al O'Keefe has returned to his managerial desk at the Producers Distributing Corporation Exchange, after a two weeks' trip throughout Montana.

Bob Epperson, formerly connected with the Pathe Exchange, here, in the capacity of sales representative, has joined the local Producers sales force and will cover the Idaho and Wyoming branches.

E. L. Walton, formerly covering the Idaho country out of the local P.D.C. office, is now connected with Producers in Seattle, according to report received here.

Nick Salvurakis, owner of the Lyric Theatre at Price, Utah, is visiting this city in the interest of his house.

S. B. Steck, operating the Lyceum Theatre at Ogden, Utah, was seen among exhibitor visitors here this week.

Fred Lind, who has charge of the F.B.O. office of this city, is spending a few days in the Montana territory. R. L. Harris is in town after a trip into Idaho and Wyoming, out of this exchange. W. T. Withers has been in Montana for the past few weeks.

Dave Farquhar, manager of the Warner Brothers Exchange here, has just returned with special representative A. F. Hickox from Butte, Montana, where they have secured a location for an office which Warner Brothers are to open there about October 1st. They have engaged the services of Miss Dorias, who is very well known throughout the State of Montana on account of having acted in the capacity of booker in the film business there for a number of years.

Edward C. Mix is covering the Southern Utah territory this week and M. F. Keller is still making the State of Montana out of the local Warner Brothers Exchange

St. Louis

SKOURAS BROTHERS ENTERPRISES has negotiated a ten-year lease of the three-story and basement brick building at 2317-19 Morgan Street, St. Louis, Mo., fronting 60 feet on Morgan Street, by a depth of 147 feet and containing 35,280 square feet of floor space.

The new building will provide quarters for three important departments of Skouras Brothers Enterprises and associated houses, including the St. Louis Amusement Company group.

F. E. Grider, manager of the Criterion Theatre, in Poplar Bluff, Mo., was burned seriously the night of September 3, when ten reels of film caught fire.

Grider was in the projection room at the time.

The damage to the theatre building and equipment was placed at $3,000.

"Nicky" Goldhammer, manager of the St. Louis office for Warner Brothers, went to Chicago, September 14, to attend the showing of "Don Juan," the Vitaphone special, at the McVickers Theatre on September 15.

The Southampton Theatre, St. Louis, Mo., reopened Saturday, September 11, under the management of Charles Daniels, who also operates the Marshall Theatre in Maplewood. The house will operate on the double feature basis.

Mr. and Mrs. John Karzan have announced the arrival of a seven-pound boy at the Karzan home in University City on Sunday, August 29. John has wired Jimmy Londos that he now has another rival for the world's wrestling championship. John, the daddy of all of the St. Louis exhibitors, operates the Olympia, Lincoln, and Casino theatres in St. Louis.

C. T. Charack, Universal exploiter, after a two months' vacation spent in Hollywood visiting the studios, has returned to handle exploitation and publicity in the St. Louis district, which now covers Des Moines, Omaha and St. Louis. His headquarters will be in St. Louis.

Charles Byrnes, manager of the Lyric Theatre, East St. Louis, Ill., was honored with a testimonial week, patrons of the house, managers of the various film exchanges and city officials uniting in paying their respects to the popular manager of the big house.

Many of the film men operating out of St. Louis were marooned by the flood waters that swept Eastern Missouri and Western Illinois last week. In some places main highways were eight and ten feet under water, which indicates how difficult it was for the flivvers to flit about as usual.

Ross Denny has given up his house at Jerseyville, Ill., and will concentrate his efforts on the Bijou at Carrollton, Ill.

S. E. Pertle, of Jerseyville, Ill., is sporting a new Auburn Beauty 8 sedan.

Ben Weinberger has taken over the management of the Bridge Theatre on Natural Bridge Avenue, near Euclid Avenue. He has changed the name to The New Bridge Theatre.

J. Kramer is the new owner of the Bond Theatre in East St. Louis, Ill.

Chris Nortez is operating the Lang Family Theatre in Italian Heights, St. Louis. Prior to the World War this section was known as Dago Hill, but in deference to our Allies the name was changed. It is famous for its wine, women and hospitality.

The deal involving the transfer of the Rivoli Theatre, Sixth Street, near Olive Street, to Charley Goldman and Jules Leventhal, is due to take effect on September 15, according to unofficial advices. Goldman and Leventhal also operate the Astor, Senate, and Rainbow theatres.

Chris Haldeman is the new owner-manager of the Globe Theatre, Wayland, Mo.

Joe Litvag, the popular St. Louis exhibitor, is back from a trip to Chicago.

General Manager Kent, of Paramount, was a caller on Saturday, September 11. He stopped off en route to New York.

Harry Strickland has joined the sales staff of the local Warner Brothers' office. He has his old territory in Southern Illinois.

Visitors of the week included: Johnny Pratt, Fulton; Mrs. I. W. Rodgers, Cairo, Ill.; S. E. Pertle, Jerseyville, Ill.; Tom Hall, Moberly.

DEVELOPING AND PRINTING MOTION PICTURE FILM

Albany

NO leniency is being shown in Watertown, N.Y., to the individual who is inclined to raise a disturbance at a motion picture show. City Judge Joseph McConnell last week gave an offender a choice of $25 or twenty-five days in jail.

Alec Herman will become local manager for the Producers Distributing Corporation Exchange on September 22, succeeding Ralph Bishop, who has been transferred to the Cleveland branch. Mr. Herman is spending this week at Rockaway. Before leaving the First National Exchange he was given a handsome traveling bag, fitted out in ebony. The presentation was made by Ed. Lewin, on behalf of the employees of the exchange. John Bulwinkle arrived in town during the week, from New Haven, Conn., and has taken over the management of the First National Exchange.

The Arbitration Board met in Albany on Monday of this week, for the first time in several weeks. There were a dozen or more cases threshed out.

Andy Smith, sales manager of the Eastern District for First National, was in town during the week.

George Roberts, from the home office of Fox, and who is assistant general sales manager for short subjects, stopped over in Albany on his way to St. Louis.

Harry Rose is painting the interior of the King Theatre in Troy, and is proving himself a handy man with the brush.

The Eagle, which will be operated by George Roberts in the old Catholic Union Building, is rapidly nearing completion, and will probably be in shape to open by the last of the month. The seats are being installed and the new organ is in place.

Every time that Jake Rosenthal, owner of the Rose Theatre in Troy, goes out of town, his associates repaint his private office. The last time it was a blue color, which apparently didn't please Mr. Rosenthal, who remarked that the room resembled either a kitchen or a bedroom. When he returned home this week from a trip, he found his office a light yellow.

Harry Lux, of the Alhambra in Utica, is back home from a vacation spent in the woods and is once more at his desk.

Jack Krause is sporting a new wrist watch, the gift of the Albany Film Board of Trade in appreciation of Mr. Krause's efforts in connection with the outing of the Board held several weeks ago.

Fred Mausert has started operations on a new office building in Glens Falls, which will be erected in front of his present theatre, which stands a considerable distance from the street.

Mrs. Lew Fischer, of Fort Edward, wife of the well known exhibitor in that village, is still obliged to use a wheel chair in getting about following the fracture of her ankle a number of weeks ago, at the Film Board of Trade outing.

Art Goldsmith, a formerly well known salesman in this city and now of Pittsburgh, paid a flying visit to Albany last week.

Mrs. Ben Stern, wife of the manager of the Lincoln in Troy, is spending her vacation in Atlantic City, where her parents reside.

Lew Fischer, of Fort Edward, showed motion pictures at the Chatham Fair four nights last week. Mr. Fischer is spending considerable money on his houses in Fort Edward and Hoosick Falls and reports business as being good.

There was a Labor Day "outing," consisting of indoor sports in this city, last week, at which Leon Herman, Julius Berinstein and Isador Schmertz, carried off all the honors or winnings. Among those taking part were Ben Berinstein, of Elmira; Julius Berinstein, of this city, Harry Seed, Mr. Schmertz and Mr. Herman.

Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Mallory, of Corinth, paid their first visit to the new Exchange Building last week, and were shown through each exchange. Mrs. Mallory is a sister of Frances Starr, the actress.

John Christie is now operating the Third Avenue Theatre in Watervliet seven days to the week, while the Waterford Casino, which has been closed for the past two months, reopened during the week.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Bissell, of the Universal Exchange, spent Labor Day in New York as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Anderson. Mr. Anderson is sales manager for the International News.

Harry A. Seed announces that he has a new salesman in the person of R. Sulley, formerly of New Haven, and more recently connected with the Tiffany offices in New York City.

Sam Morris, general manager for Warner Brothers, was a visitor in Albany last week.

L. Shapiro, of Manchester Depot, Vt., was one of the exhibitors from out of town who did a bit of shopping in Albany last week. It was the first visit Mr. Shapiro made here in some time. In addition to running the motion picture theatre in the Vermont town, he is also postmaster.

George Seed is now head shinner at the Warner Brothers Exchange in this city.

All parts for the new organ being installed at the American, in Troy, arrived during the past week and it is expected that the instrument will be dedicated early in October.

A new theatre is being built in Chatham, and will have a seating capacity of about 800. It will be opened some time in November. It is understood that the house is a community project.

Central Penn

LABOR DAY marked the re-opening of the Pioneer Theatre, at Robesonia, which was recently acquired by the East Coast Theatres Company, in which Oscar Neufeld and Samuel Stiefel, of Philadelphia, are the controlling figures. The house was bought from W. J. Noll, and had been closed to undergo repairs.

The Rex Theatre, Reading, has been acquired by the Franklin Theatre Company, controlled by Ben Amsterdam and Lou Korson, making the eleventh theatre operated by these interests in the city of Reading.

The Mount Penn Hotel, overlooking Reading, which had been closed for two years, has been re-opened under the management of Frank D. Hill, who for some years was manager of the Lyric and later of the Hippodrome theatres in that city.

Work of razing Franklin Hall, Mechanicsburg, the first building in which motion picture shows were held in that town, was begun on September 2. A bank building is to be erected on the site.

Mr. and Mrs. George M. Krupa, of Lancaster, who retire from the theatre business with the sale of the Hamilton and the leasing of the Capitol theatres to the Stanley Company of America, are among the pioneer picture exhibitors in that city. Mr. Krupa entered the business when the movies were in their infancy. Mrs. Krupa, a talented musician, took charge of the musical programs of the theatres and evolved many features that were received with enthusiasm by theatre-goers.

A costly Turkish rug has been placed in the lobby of the Capitol Theatre, York, controlled by the Nathan Appell Amusement Enterprises.

Announcement has been made that the new Eddie Plank memorial gymnasium at Gettysburg College, Gettysburg, will be equipped for theatricals and motion picture shows and will have a stage and a seating capacity of 1,200.

A new $15,000 organ is being installed in the Bijou Theatre, Milton, by the proprietors, the Pappas Brothers.

Clayton D. Busse, prominent Easton picture exhibitor, has returned to Easton after a trip to Florida, where he was looking after his theatrical interests there and real estate.

The Alto Theatre, Clark Summit, which seats 250, has been acquired from Ellis Jones by the Comerford Amusement Company of Scranton.

David Brodsky has announced he received contracts for decorative work in the Colonial, Savoy and Royal theatres in Reading.

Florida

CHARLES SAPPAL, Tracy Barnham and B. H. Trumbull, of the S.-B.-T. Properties, Inc., all left for Atlanta this week to arrange bookings for their circuit. This company now has nine theatres in seven South Florida cities and are planning to open new ones as fast as they can obtain satisfactory locations.

John B. Carroll, General Manager of the Public houses in Tampa and St. Petersburg, is in the latter city for the opening of their beautiful new theatre there, the Florida.

Next month the new Tampa Theatre will open and there will be a general change around of the managers of the Consolidated houses. James M. Wiest, now manager of the Victory, will take charge of the new Tampa Theatre. George B. Peck will leave the Strand and take charge of the Victory and O. G. Finley will leave the Grand and move over to the Strand. J. H. McLaughlin will continue at the Franklin, he having asked to be left at that house. Just who will be the new manager of the Grand has not been announced by General Manager John B. Carroll yet.

The old Royal Theatre, in West Tampa, is being wrecked and will be all re-built. Leon Cazin has leased this house, together with the Main Street Drug Store next door, from M. Diaz and is going to combine the two into one large theatre. The location is fine, as it is on the best corner of that city. Leon is an old timer at the show business and is planning an up-to-date house, which will be called the Cazin Theatre.

A new theatre is to be erected in Gainesville. The owners of one of the best sites in the city has had plans drawn for the house and is organizing a stock company to erect the building and operate the house.

The Victory, Tampa, will have the Keith vaudeville for the first three nights of each week, starting Monday, September 20th. The acts will then go to the Plaza in St. Petersburg for the last half of the week. The regular feature picture programs will be shown the other days.

New York and New Jersey

WHEN Elias Mayer and Louis Schneider opened the doors of their new Commodore Theatre, Second Avenue, corner Sixth Street, Manhattan, on Thursday evening, September 2, there were probably 20,000 customers on hand and ready to pack themselves into the 3,500 seats afforded by the house. Without question it was one of the greatest motion picture theatre openings ever witnessed on the East Side of New York and Messrs. Mayer & Schneider are to be congratulated for giving to the people of that section one of the finest theatres in the city.

The usual ceremonies attendant to a theatre's premiere were observed; guests of the evening were graciously taken care of by Mr. Schneider and Mr. Mayer, assisted by Louis Goldberg and Manager Simon. Lon. Haskell introduced the several stars who contributed to the opening program.

Among those present well known in local film circles were: Philip Cohen, David Sakowitz, Jack Bradkin, S. Bradkin, Judge Levine, Matty Radin, Amy and Jean Aimer, Sidney Smith, Harold Rodner, Julius Schwartz, Ben Schwartz, Harry Buxbaum, Sam Lesselbaum, H. Sonnenshine, Irving Wormser, Phillip Sternberg, Phillip Singer, Paul Luck, Boone Mancall, Nat Cohen, Sam Epstein, Abe Blumstein, David Gross, Bernard Sholtz, Sam Goldfarb, H. Frank, Max Cohen, Nat Beier, Jack Bellman, Joe Lee, Harry Fogarty, H. Gluckman, Messrs. Libman and Spanjer, Mrs. J. J. Iris and Commissioner Doorman.

Not only is Matty Chrystmos, of Chrisedge Theatres, a busy man these days, opening up new theatres, but other matters of import have of late demanded his attention. For instance, on Labor Day Mrs. Chrystmos presented Matty with a brand new ten-and-one-half-pound baby boy. Matty is also the father of two charming young daughters.

One of the finest and most sincere testimonials ever tendered a popular theatre executive took place recently when the managers of the Fabian Theatre Circuit of New Jersey gathered together at a dinner held at the Alexander Hamilton Hotel in honor of Charles Dooley, managing director of the Fabian houses.

In addition to the attendance of Congressmen, Senators, New York exchange managers and practically every prominent exhibitor in the State, telegrams were received from New Jersey's governor and several other high officials, congratulating the Fabian organization and Charles Dooley on the occasion of their twelfth anniversary; we group the two together, for it was Charles Dooley who managed the first motion picture theatre under the Fabian banner.

As a token of appreciation of one of the best liked theatre directors in this zone, Motor Vehicle Commissioner Dill, in behalf of the several Fabian managers, presented Mr. Dooley with a handsome watch. The New York Salesmen's Association also tendered an appropriate gift.

According to his facial expression, Arthur Greenblatt, New York exchange manager for Educational, seems pretty well satisfied with the advance showing of his Christie Comedy Drive

Maurice Ross, one of the pioneers of the exhibitor field and now operating the Palace Theatre of Lakewood, N.J., paid the local exchanges a visit this week. Prior to his association with the Lakewood house, Mr. Ross spent nine years in Pittsfield, Mass., where he operated the Strand and Union Square theatres.

Now that a chill is creeping into the autumn breezes along the Jersey Coast, a couple of our well-known film men and exhibitors are seeking their winter quarters. S. H. Fabian, after a successful season at vacationing and golf, has returned to his winter home at Paterson, while Eddie Carroll, Associated Exhibitors' Jersey representative, will hibernate at Montclair; however, as to hibernating—not in the sense of the word, for Mr. Carroll is a very active young man. He not only sells miles and miles of celluloid pictures, but right at the present time is building a ten-room house in the city of Montclair.

Another well-known Jersey exhibitor came over this week in search of something choice for his exacting Englewood audience—Sam Perry—and this time Mr. Perry is sporting one of "The Greatest Buicks Ever Built." It's a new slate-colored sedan and a New Jersey Buick Company is now the owner of Sam's Dodge. The new car, under Sam's guiding hands, has already traversed several thousand miles of Adirondack roads.

Following their recent marriage ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Fabian sailed last Saturday on the S. S. Olympic for Europe. It is their honeymoon and they expect to return to the U.S.A. in about six weeks.

Pete Adams of Newark was also over, calling on the local exchange men this week. His Newark Theatre, Newark, has reopened for the fall season; likewise, the U.S. at Paterson, the latter house having recently undergone repairs made necessary by a fire of a few weeks ago.

Sol Brill, who, it is said, has recently become interested in the Strand Theatre, Lakewood, N.J., is spending approximately $30,000 for repairs, etc., on that house. According to report, the Strand's policy will probably stress the vaudeville end of the program, although pictures will, of course, form a part of the bill.

Over in the Big U Exchange a number of shifts have recently taken place. Since August 15, Joseph Friedman, who has been with Universal for ten years, has been made general manager of the exchange. Dave Brill, also well known in and around this zone, will handle all sales in Greater New York and New York State. L. J. Kutinsky, replaced by S. S. Liggett, will take care of all New Jersey accounts. A new policy, which will be followed through by all salesmen, is that the men will now handle one hundred per cent. of the Universal product instead of specializing on either features or short subjects, as in the past.

Although reported by several film trade papers as having been taken over by the Fabian-Stanley Circuit, the Lyric Theatre, Hackensack, N.J., operated by Manager Otis, is still under control of the latter, according to a statement made this week by Mr. Otis. There are three theatres in Hackensack at the present time; two under control of the Fabian-Stanley organization and the Otis house makes up the third.

Charles Stombaugh, Pathe New Jersey manager, is back at his desk again after having attended the "Educational Convention" at the Ritz, New York City.

Ben Antler has reopened the Warren Square Theatre at Newark. Plans are under way to increase the seating capacity from 400 to 600 seats.

Aaron Schusterman has taken over and is now operating the Opera House at New Brunswick. The house seats about 1,200 and will probably operate on a vaudeville and picture policy.

Pelham Lynton, of the New York Pathe Exchange, spent last Saturday and Sunday as the guest of S. H. Fabian at Bradley Beach, N.J.

Miss Goodman, who made Albany her home before her association at the Pathe Exchange as Charles Stombaugh's secretary, has resigned her position and returned to the Capitol city.

Another resignation from the Pathe sales ranks has to do with Irving Rothenberg, two-reel comedy man. A further connection has not been announced.

John Dacey, assistant manager to William Raynor at Pathe, has returned from a vacation spent down on Long Island.

The Fabian-Stanley Corporation has recently opened its New Jersey offices in the Federal Trust Building, at 972 Broad Street, Newark. Both S. H. Fabian and Louis Stern, the latter an executive of the Joseph Stern Enterprises, recently acquired by the Fabian-Stanley Corp., will make these offices their headquarters, where buying for the circuit will be handled.

The usual autumn crop of theatre openings is well under way, having secured a remarkably good start during the last two weeks in August.

The Halsey and DeKalb Avenue theatres in Brooklyn, part of the Small & Straussberg circuit, opened Labor Day with a number of new accessories furnished by Joe Hornstein.

On September 24 the New United Theatre, a house said to have cost $1,000,000 and located at Myrtle Avenue and Hudson Street, will get under way. Henry Grossman is the owner and Edward S. Canter will be in charge. Canter formerly managed the Crescent Theatre, Bronx. Stage presentations and feature pictures, augmented by a 15-piece orchestra, will form the house policy.

Other openings include the Stanford Theatre, Springfield Avenue, Newark; Chrisedge Theatres, Rosedale, Bronx; the Franklyn, Nutley, and the Washington Theatre, Brooklyn Heights.

Joseph Friedman, recently appointed general manager of the Big U exchange, New York City

Milwaukee

SAXE AMUSEMENT ENTERPRISES announces that within a month construction of the latest Saxe house will be begun. The newest theatre is the "Up Town" and will be located at 49th and Lisbon. Plans indicate that it will be one of the outstanding outlying theatres.

Miss Anne Boire has resigned her position as secretary to the manager at the Fox office. She is succeeded by Mrs. Evans.

Warners moved into new quarters, at 129 Seventh Street, on the 13th. The new offices are beautifully furnished, and as a contrast to the previous crowded quarters, are luxuriously commodious. The offices are completely and modernly equipped and include a projection room.

C. W. Perry has been added to the Fox sales force. He was formerly doing special work out of Fox's Chicago office. L. Guhl has been transferred from the State, to cover the city for Fox.

Badger Theatres Offices are now sharing quarters with Celebrated. Max Wiesner is manager of Badger Theatres.

F. G. Felzman, booker at Fox, has resigned his position and announced that he is taking an extended vacation before making other connections.

Miss Celia Shafrin, cashier at Warners, is in New York on her vacation. She will be gone approximately two months.

Frank Cook expects to open his new theatre, the Strand, at Platteville, on the 25th of September.

P. W. Palmer, manager of the Rialto, Edgerton, was in Milwaukee on business Wednesday.

Charles Koehler, of Progress Pictures offices, is enjoying a week-end vacation from the office.

Miss Lillian Collins has again taken over the Butterfly Theatre at Kenosha, which was formerly controlled by the Goetz Brothers. Miss Collins managed the theatre before the Goetz Brothers' regime.

A. B. Huff, of Port Washington, spent a few hours at Milwaukee exchanges. He expects to open his new theatre, as yet unnamed, by Thanksgiving.

Edward Michaelson, manager of the Palace Orpheum at Madison, and of the Opera House at Evansville, was a recent Film Row visitor.

The Rialto, of Racine, is being taken over by Mr. Welch, formerly associated with the State-Lake, Chicago. The Rialto's former manager, Noney Blumberg, is now general manager of the Universal houses in Milwaukee.

New England

EDWARD M. FAY, who recently acquired several Providence theatres in addition to his former holdings in that city, was tendered a testimonial dinner at the Providence Biltmore Wednesday evening, Sept. 8, by more than a hundred exchange men, exhibitors and business friends from all parts of New England.

There were congratulatory addresses by many of the guests and he was presented with a beautiful bronze miniature of all of the Providence theatres which he now owns, beautifully carved to the minutest architectural detail.

The Emery Theatre, which was closed during the summer, has reopened at Providence with pictures and vaudeville. The Modern Theatre, also one of the Fay chain, has reopened with stock.

R. C. Cropper, branch manager, and Gerald Swade, Educational salesman, both of Pathe Exchange, Boston, were in New York four days last week attending the Educational convention of the home office.

The G. B. Theatre, Inc., Springfield, one of the Goldstein enterprises, has started demolishing the old church at State and Dwight streets, to make way the site for a new playhouse there.

The Royal Film Exchange, Boston, will put a full complement of salesmen on the road covering New England within the next fortnight.

Miss Caroline C. Jones, booker at First National, Boston, is spending a two weeks' vacation on a motor trip through New England and New York.

Martin Hogan, traveling auditor for First National, is spending the week at the Boston exchange on a business trip.

Miss Beth Donnelly, biller for Warner Brothers, has resigned.

Harold Weinstein, poster clerk for Warner Brothers, Boston, has resigned.

Frank King, aged 55 years, for several years second violinist of the orchestra at the Scollay Square Olympia Theatre, Boston, dropped dead just before the performance at the theatre, Sept. 9, en route to the orchestra pit.

Ben Miggins, of the Fox cameramen, is making a tour of Maine as a guest of the Maine Publicity Bureau and is filming many of the Maine industries.

Charles H. Wilson, manager of the Hamilton Theatre, Dorchester District of Boston, fought off successfully an armed robber who attempted to hold him up when he entered his automobile after the closing of the theatre, Sept. 7.

Thieves bound the watchman of Island Park, Portsmouth, R.I., Sept. 7, but were unable to open the safe in the amusement park office. The watchman, Dennis E. Shea, was locked in another office, but broke the window and notified the police. The thieves escaped.

Harry F. Campbell, branch manager of Fox Exchange, Boston, is in New York on a business trip to the home office.

Southwest

A NUMBER of new theatres are opening in Oklahoma at this time. September 1st Charles Blaine opened his big, new Blaine Theatre at Henryetta. Sept. 8th saw the opening of two more, The Ritz, at Dunkin, built by R. F. Wilbern and his associates, and the Aggie Theatre, at Stillwater, by the Griffith Brothers and Claude Leachmann. The Barton Theatre, at Stroud, opened the 10th and the 13th is the date set for the re-opening of the Glory-B Theatre at Miami, which has been thoroughly gone over and refurbished since spring. The H. & S. Theatre at Chandler is expected to open September 16th. Hoover and Stettmund, who have the Odeon Theatre there, are the owners.

Tal Richards, who has the agency for Nu-Air Cooling Systems in this territory, attended the first Nu-Air convention at Des Moines this week.

John C. Flinn, vice-president and general manager of Producers Distributing Corp., spent Labor Day in Oklahoma City on his five-week trip of visiting the thirty-one P.D.C. exchanges. He was accompanied by R. A. Morrow, former district manager in this territory, who is now assistant sales manager, and H. O. Duke, secretary of the company. Frank Stuart, district manager, and J. McHenry, special representative, were up from Dallas for the occasion.

The Griffith Brothers Amusement Company of Oklahoma City, who now have two theatres in operation in the oil field of the Texas Panhandle, have another theatre in construction at Pampa, Tex., and another contemplated for Stinnett, Tex. The Stinnett house will seat 800 and will be on the plan of the Borger and Panhandle theatres.

According to recent reports G. W. Spears is now owner of the Ouanah Theatre at Comanche, Okla.

Edward Kadane, who has been operating the Gem Theatre at Frederick for the last few months has recently purchased the Criterion Theatre of that city, from W. H. Jones. The Criterion is closed temporarily for repairs.

Art Lewis, of Purcell, who has been looking for a theatre location for some time, has at last settled upon Wynnewood, Okla. Mr. Lewis purchased the Deal Theatre from Frank Deal. Mr. Deal, we understand, will not go back into the theatre business.

F. B. Pickrel and his associates who own the Majestic, Murray and Mission theatres at Ponca City, have just purchased the Constantine Theatre at Pawhuska, from the bankruptcy court. This sale releases Albert Jackson, who was appointed receiver by the court a few weeks ago. Pickrel will have charge of the Constantine Theatre in addition to the three Ponca City ones.

Social Contact Promotes Theatre's Good Will

For That Reason "Pop" Linton Provides a Room as Meeting Place in His Olympic Theatre

By C. L. GRANT

A SOCIAL contact room is a new wrinkle among motion picture theatres in New York State, as well as throughout the country generally. When that veteran exhibitor, W. H. Linton, of Utica, N. Y., better known as "Pop," started in to build a theatre that would replace the one destroyed eleven days after it had been opened, and which represented his life's work, he knew full well that the good will of the public plays a most important part in the success of a motion picture theatre located in what might be termed a smaller city, for Utica has a population of approximately 100,000. It is the sort of a city where the men call each other by their first names. And as a result, the idea of a social contact room was tried out by Mr. Linton and is a remarkable success.

Draws On Varied Experience

Mr. Linton's experience as an exhibitor runs back for many years. For ten years he ran a theatre in Little Falls. He was also interested in the old Hippodrome in Utica, which was finally condemned by the city as being unsafe and eventually razed.

Three years or so ago, Mr. Linton built a beautiful theatre in Utica, with a seating capacity of about 1,100 and costing in the neighborhood of $50,000. He was 59 years old at that time. His face was flushed with pride and on the night the theatre was opened, as he heard complimentary remarks on all sides and with many a congratulation from his friends and associates.

Eleven days later a fire broke out in a restaurant close by. Despite the efforts of the firemen, the blaze worked itself into the theatre and an hour later Mr. Linton saw but a smouldering ruin of what but a short time before had been his pride; the theatre he had desired as a business into which his son might step and which would serve as a monument, perhaps, to his years in the business.

Faced Many Discouragements

Many a younger man would have been dismayed at the catastrophe which had come to Mr. Linton. But not so with the veteran "Pop." Almost penniless, he worked for weeks and months in securing financial assistance which enabled him to erect a larger and far more beautiful theatre, one that seats 1,400 persons and which represents an investment of $150,000. The theatre was opened last spring and from its very start it has been a success.

And now something about the social contact room. This room is most attractive and contains among other things a dozen card tables for use at bridge parties, which are given in the theatre at frequent intervals during the fall, winter and spring months. This room is free to patrons of the theatre, except on Saturdays and Sundays and nothing further is necessary towards securing the use of the room for a bridge, or as a meeting place, except the

Worthwhile

By P. M. ABBOTT

THE following dispatch was among the news items we received this week:

"While hundreds of patrons sat wondering what had happened, and were mildly chiding the projection machine operator because of the sudden interruption of the screen program at the State Theatre, Harrisburg, Pa., on the night of Labor Day, September 6th, Lawrence Katz, projectionist, of Pembroke, was risking his life to extinguish flames in the booth after a film had exploded.

"Katz, alone in the booth, was confronted with two alternatives. Either he could call for help and risk sending the theatre patrons into panic, or he could attempt to extinguish the flames alone, at the risk of his life. Katz chose the heroic course and with bare hands seized the burning film and succeeded in extinguishing the fire after a five-minute battle.

"He was taken to the Harrisburg Hospital for treatment and another projectionist finished the show."

Need more be said of the sense of duty, so well portrayed by this projectionist, which imbues those whose business it is to entertain their public? Regardless of misunderstandings that may arise between factions in the trade itself, when it comes to upholding the traditions of the show business, those of protecting the audience and continuing the show at any cost, every one may be counted upon to do his duty.

It is especially gratifying to be able to add our praise of the courage displayed by this projectionist. His actions are a credit to the profession which he represents.

regular price of admission to the theatre itself, which is from twenty-five to forty cents.

Mr. Linton's own idea in installing this social contact room was for the purpose of becoming better acquainted with his patrons. Either Mr. Linton or some of his associates in the theatre drop in at the room every few minutes for a social chat, and as a result, Mr. Linton's organization is like one big family to the general public. The room also serves the purpose of becoming a waiting room between shows. It accommodates with ease 100 persons or more and press books of pictures to be shown later on at the theatre are scattered about and better acquaint the patrons with what they may later see. Magazines and periodicals are also included in the room's equipment.

Mr. Linton also believes in having good music to accompany his pictures. His orchestra of ten pieces has been carefully selected and the musical programs are being broadcast once a week and listened to by thousands of persons in New York State.

One thing more, Mr. Linton does not believe in cutting his news reels. He views these reels as a person does an ordinary newspaper. No matter what his musical program may be, the news reel is a permanent fixture and this fact has become known throughout the entire city and contributes its part toward the success of the theatre.

Reopening of Hippodrome Directed by Shea

Jeremiah Shea, for 27 years the manager of Shea theatres in Toronto, Ontario, now completely recovered from a recent serious illness, took personal charge of the opening of the Hippodrome Theatre as the home of Shea presentations in Toronto on Labor Day. Announcement was made that Fred Culley, formerly for nine years the musical director of Shea's Theatre, Toronto, had returned to the city after a couple of years with a phonograph-recording orchestra.

An entirely new feature of Shea's Hippodrome, which provides both Keith vaudeville and short film subjects, is the intermission arrangement at both afternoon and evening shows. During these intermissions Roland Todd presides at the Wurlitzer organ.

Double Features at Troy Palace

The Palace in Troy, N.Y., has reopened and is now using double features each day. The Hudson, in Albany, operated by Julius Berinstein, observed its anniversary last week with special programs.

Eastman Theatre Completes Its Fourth and Most Successful Year

THE Eastman Theatre, Rochester, celebrated its fourth anniversary last week with Gloria Swanson and a festive surrounding bill as the attraction. According to General Manager Eric Clarke, the fourth year has been the most successful since the theatre opened its doors on September 4, 1922, more than 2,000,000 people attending the motion picture presentations during the past twelve months.

The Eastman Theatre is not operated like the ordinary commercial house. It was the gift of George Eastman, kodak manufacturer, to the community through the University of Rochester, which holds title. It devotes six days to pictures and one day to concert events. The deed of gift provides that if a surplus ever accrues from its operation it cannot be taken out but must remain for the development of musical interest generally, in the city of Rochester. There is no private profit for anybody.

The theatre carries a tremendous overhead with its orchestra of seventy members, picked for their qualifications as symphony players, for during the season they become a part of the Rochester Philharmonic Orchestra, which gives a series of concerts under the direction of Eugene Goossens, guest conductor with the New York, Boston and Los Angeles Orchestras last season.

The Eastman produces practically all of its own stage acts, having available many principals of the Rochester Opera Company, a new operatic organization organized to promote the presentation of grand opera in the English tongue, and also much fine talent being trained at the Eastman School of Music, which adjoins.

Harold Lloyd's two pictures, "The Freshman" and "For Heaven's Sake" led all others in popularity last year. The ten best box-office pictures at the Eastman were as follows: "The Freshman," "For Heaven's Sake"; "The Merry Widow," "Don Q"; "Ten Commandments" (second presentation in town); "The Gold Rush"; "Stella Dallas"; "The Iron Horse"; "Little Annie Rooney" and "Sparrows."

Exploits House as "Theatre Without a Name"

Henry Morton, managing director of the Morton Theatre Circuit, Winnipeg, Manitoba, has been operating the former Rialto Theatre at 363 Portage Avenue, Winnipeg, as "The Theatre Without a Name," this title being used in newspaper and other advertising because of a peculiar situation. In the meantime, Mr. Morton has invited film fans of Winnipeg to submit suggested names for the house and has offered a prize of $50 to the one who offers the name that is selected by the judges.

The reason for this development is explained in this way: Mr. Morton operated the Monarch Theatre in Winnipeg for the past 13 years and when he took over the Rialto he decided to transfer the old name to the new house, as it was understood that the original theatre was to be converted into stores. The old Monarch has been leased again as a theatre, however, and the new proprietor has requested that he be allowed to continue with the name "Monarch." Mr. Morton agreed, but this left the former "Rialto" without a title.

Loew's State, Boston, Cuts Admission Prices

Following his promise that he would reduce prices at the State and Orpheum theatres, Boston, Marcus Loew has caused the following new scale of prices to become effective at once: State Theatre—matinees, entire house 30 cents; boxes, 40 cents; evenings, balcony, 40 cents; orchestra, 50 cents; boxes, 60 cents; Saturday evenings, Sundays and holidays, balcony, 50 cents; orchestra, 60 cents; boxes, 75 cents. At the morning performances at the Orpheum the entire house is 25 cents; matinees, 35 cents; evening, Saturday evening, Sunday and holiday prices are the same as at the State.

The Fenway Theatre, a Paramount house, dropped its prices a week previously to 25 and 35 cents for matinees and 40 and 50 cents for evenings, except Saturday, Sunday and holidays.

Vaudeville at Schine Houses

The Schine Brothers are planning to inaugurate a new policy among the theatres just taken over in Ogdensburg, Malone and Massena, N.Y. Vaudeville will be introduced during the winter months, together with the regular picture program.

A. J. VANNI, for some years booking agent for the S. Z. Poli enterprises, succeeds James D. Powers as manager of the Bijou Theatre, New Haven, Conn.

L. STRUBLE is now manager of the Highway Theatre in Portland, Ore., operated by North American Theatres, Inc.

J. H. COCHRANE, formerly general manager of the Woodward Theatre Co., operating a string of houses in and about Detroit, has been appointed manager of the Strand Theatre, Pontiac, Mich.

THE Albany Theatre, in Schenectady, has been reopened with Edward Walsh again in charge. There will be no change in policy, in spite of the report of a few weeks ago that vaudeville would be combined with the regular picture program.

JAMES RYAN has been made manager of the Muscatine, Ia., Palace and Grand theatres, owned by the Capitol Theatre Enterprises. P. A. Delehanty, former manager, has gone to Missouri.

HARRY A. JONES is new manager at the Parkway Theatre in Madison, Wis., owned by Fischer-Paramount.

J. G. WEIGAND, former manager of the Strand Theatre, Chillicothe, Mo., has succeeded Earl Hayes as manager of the Marshall and Wareham theatres, Manhattan, Kas., the latter having resigned. The theatres are a part of the Glenn W. Dickinson Circuit.

Brooklyn Strand Celebrates Birthday

Happiness Boys a Feature of Gala Program for Week

THE Brooklyn Mark Strand Theatre this week is celebrating its seventh anniversary, an especially elaborate bill being presented on the screen and stage of the house in commemoration of the occasion. Added significance is contributed by the fact that the event takes place in the midst of Greater Movie Season. The recent combination of the Moe Mark interests, founders and operators of the institution, with the Stanley Company of America, is a third factor entering the celebration.

Managing Director Edward L. Hyman planned his birthday program along the most pretentious lines. Harry Langdon in "The Strong Man" is one of the chief cinema incidents, and the Happiness Boys (Billy Jones and Ernest Hare) provide one of the most popular of the stage numbers. A souvenir printed program designed by Jay Weaver carries messages from Moe Mark, Jules Mastbaum and Mr. Hyman, and printed cuts of a dozen favorite artists of the theatre, and the house staff. This booklet is a finely engraved and expertly printed work of art, prized by patrons as a memento.

Edward L. Hyman, the managing director, has been at the helm of this theatre practically since it opened, seven years ago. All programs have been devised, staged and lighted under the personal direction of Mr. Hyman, who in the course of his reign has staged no less than three thousand separate and distinct incidents.

Moe Mark, now vice-president and a director of the Stanley-Mark Strand Corporation, is one of the acknowledged founders of the present day form of entertainment in high class motion picture theatres. With the late Mitchell Mark he built and opened the first high class movie in this country, The Strand, at Broadway and 47th Street, in New York City. This form of entertainment caught on immediately and spread to all parts of the country. The Brooklyn Mark Strand is one of the finest in this extensive chain, which with the new consolidation now number some two hundred theatres.

Contrast Marks Program at Pittsburgh Grand

With "Variety" as the screen attraction and a new act called "Down On the Farm" presented by Art Landry and his orchestra as the stage offering, the Grand Theatre, Pittsburgh, last week offered a bill in which contrast was a notable feature. The lively and frolicking tone of the stage presentation struck a note far removed from the highly dramatic mood of the screen play and affected a balance which had its pleasing phases for Pittsburgh theatregoers. The bill was rounded out with a short comedy, "Open House," a news reel, overture by the symphony orchestra and an organ solo.

Attractive Bill With "Fine Manners" at Stanley

An attractive program of music and dancing was offered in support of "Fine Manners" at the Stanley Theatre, Philadelphia, last week. The dance attraction featured Elizabeth Brown and Sedano, whose specialty is an acrobatic form of classic dancing. Madeleine MacGuigan, violiniste, recently returned from a tour in Europe, was the other star of the surrounding bill, the orchestra under the direction of Graham Harris was Tschaiakowski's Symphony No. 4.

Grierson Guest Organist at Shea's Buffalo

Tom Grierson opened his month's engagement as guest organist at Shea's Buffalo Theatre, Buffalo, last week. The screen feature of the program for the week was "Fine Manners," with "Milady's Shawl," the John Murray Anderson Publix presentation as the stage attraction. The Four Aristocrats, vocal and instrumental syncopators, furnished the usual "special added attraction" offered each week at the Buffalo.

Bill of "Specials" Offered at Des Moines Theatre

The Des Moines Theatre, one of the two downtown houses operated in Des Moines by Publix, last week offered an elaborate program. Each item was presented as a "Special" and the bill proved a highly attractive one. The screen feature was "Tin Gods." A local screen offering called "Des Moines' Own 'Our Gang,'" comedy, starring youngsters selected by the editor of the schools department of the "Tribune," was another feature of the film bill.

Ethel Veatch Schmidt and a company of assisting dancers and Ray Harrison, soloist, were featured in the elaborate stage presentation.

Popular Programs at Royal and Newman, Kansas City

The Newman and the Royal headed the list of Kansas City houses which last week celebrated a "Paramount Week" campaign. The programs at both houses struck a popular note. At the Newman, Thomas Meighan in "Tin Gods," was the screen attraction, with a Frank Cambria production for Publix, "Love's Enchantment," as the leading item of the surrounding program. The Royal offered "Diplomacy" on the screen, with Harry Langdon in "Horace Greely, Jr.," as another feature of the film entertainment.

Warner's Charlotte House to Play Keith Vaudeville

C. C. Ezell, District Manager of Warner Brothers, of Dallas, Texas, who is in Charlotte at the present time, announces that the Warner Broadway will be retained by his company. Keith Vaudeville and pictures will be the policy this winter.

The rumor was current several weeks ago that the Broadway was to change hands and that one of the negotiators was F. A. Abbott, at one time manager of the Craver Broadway.

Ben Bernie Orchestra Star of State Stage Bill

Ben Bernie's Hotel Roosevelt Orchestra, one of the star stage attractions now playing the Loew presentation houses, is the featured offering of the program surrounding "Battling Butler," the screen attraction, at Loew's State Theatre, St. Louis, this week.

Skouras' Ambassador Has Gala Premiere

New St. Louis Picture Palace Praised by Thousands Who Attended Opening

SKOURAS BROTHERS' $5,500,000 Ambassador Theatre at Seventh and Locust streets, St. Louis, Mo., is open and functioning.

It threw open its doors amid a blaze of glory on Wednesday evening, August 25, when some 3,300 invited guests of the management viewed the initial performance.

At 11 A.M. on Thursday the general public was permitted to attend the first public performance. The house will be operated on a strictly one-price standard, no seats being reserved. However, special prices of 35 cents and 50 cents prevail for matinees. The night and holiday rate is 65 cents.

On the night of the formal opening flowers everywhere in the theatre were proof of the tribute paid to the three brothers by the public of St. Louis.

The opening itself was a work of art—handled with machine like precision, again demonstrating that Skouras Brothers and their organization know how to handle theatres of any size. One could not realize how smoothly the crowds were handled unless in attendance.

The crowds formed early and soon a double file of invited guests had formed in Locust Street, westward to Eighth Street and north toward St. Charles, but once the doors were opened the invitations were taken up quickly, and in a comparatively short time the big house was filled. No fuss, no confusion. It was orderliness personified.

Promptly at 8:30 P.M. the show got under way amid the strains of "The Star-Spangled Banner," played by the symphony orchestra directed by Charles Previn.

Former Mayor Henry W. Kiel acted as the master of ceremonies. He was given a two-minute ovation that made the big house ring—it was a notice to political students that Henry can be Mayor of St. Louis again if he so desires.

Mayor Kiel then introduced in turn the other speakers: Acting Mayor Walter J. G. Nenn, Carl F. G. Meyer, president of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, and Robert Lieber, president of First National Picture Corporation. All lauded Skouras Brothers for their accomplishments.

With customary modesty none of the Skouras Brothers appeared on the stage, but a trailer flashed upon the screen spoke for them. It gave full credit to the people of St. Louis for the wonderful show house, and promised that ever would the Ambassador endeavor to properly uphold the place it has in the civic structure of St. Louis, being dedicated to the advancement of the community.

Out-of-town visitors who attended the opening in addition to Robert Lieber were Sam Katz, head of Publix; Eugene Zukor, vice-president of Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, and E. O. Hunter and P. C. Rubush, architects who are engaged in building a theatre for Lieber in Indianapolis.

Floral offerings that filled the lobby and overflowed into the mezzanine and main auditorium were sent by a host of St. Louis business men.

Started With $1.500

The Ambassador is considered by architects as among the country's most beautiful picture palaces. It climaxes the remarkable career of the Skouras Brothers, Spyres P., Charles and George P., who began their movie careers in 1914 with a $1,500 investment, in the Olympia Theatre at Sixteenth and Market streets, St. Louis. Since, their holdings have been gradually extended until they hold the Grand Central, Missouri, West End Lyric and Capitol first-runs, and also control the St. Louis Amusement Company, which has some twenty-two neighborhood theatres, the cream of the outlying motion picture houses of St. Louis and its suburban communities.

The Ambassador Theatre occupies the first six floors of the Ambassador Building. The theatre section alone is figured to cost approximately $3,750,000.

Workmen began clearing the site in May, 1925. Excavation started on July 15, that year, and the theatre is now opening about two months prior to the date originally contemplated. A remarkable achievement.

The lower floors of the exterior of the building are finished in marble and ornamental terra-cotta, graduating into a buff brick that is surmounted at the seventeenth floor by an elaborate cornice.

The theatre seats 3,000 persons on the first floor and balcony. It will be operated as a large presentation house, offering a combination first-run pictures and elaborate stage presentations. It will be a one-price house, the seats in the balcony being as desirable as those on the first floor.

The ticket office divides the main entrance to the theatre at Seventh and Locust streets. A canopy extends over the sidewalk to protect patrons from inclement weather while two large Ambassador signs extend upwards the full height of the building, one being on Seventh Street and the other on Locust Street. The ticket lobby is finished in marble with a golden ceiling and opens into the grand lobby running parallel to Seventh Street and rising to a height of forty feet.

Buff, Red and Gold Colors

From the floor of Travertine marble rise large piers to support the curved ceiling. These piers are beautifully modeled in plaster relief and decorated in buff, a light green gold and a striking shade of red, a color scheme that is ornately carried out in the ceiling.

At the far end of the lobby rises the grand staircase flanked on each side by rails of beaten bronze and finished in marble. It carries the visitor to the second floor level of the lobby, around which lies the grand promenade. Luxurious furniture and richly colored draperies and tapestries provide a restful atmosphere here.

Two huge chandeliers suspended from the ceiling of the lobby dominate this portion of the theatre and overshadow in beauty the ornamental fixtures outside the auditorium. They are essentially in the Spanish Renaissance, the spirit of design, expressing in their rich black and gold finish the Moorish influence in Spanish art.

This grand promenade opens directly into the mezzanine loge. Ramps also provide an easy entrance to the balcony. The entrance to the main floor is via the grand foyer, especially decorated, carpeted with a hand-tufted rug imported from Europe. It is furnished with comfortable chairs.

The auditorium decorations express the baroque and dazzling spirit of Spanish Renaissance. The architects, however, did not confine themselves to any particular style of Spanish construction art, but endeavored to symbolize in the unusual coloring and design the spirit of a Spanish festival such

The Maximum Emotional Effect

THE GENERAL USE of Panchromatic Negative in motion picture production means much in the way of improvement in the art.

USED WITHOUT A FILTER it helps the picture— with a filter, the color corrections are positively sensational. As one user has put it: “The use of ‘Pan’ gives the maximum emotional effect on the screen.”

EASTMAN PANCHROMATIC NEGATIVE is now the same price as ordinary negative. It keeps as well as ordinary negative and, except for the lighting in the darkroom, is developed in the same manner as ordinary negative.

Yet Eastman Panchromatic is an extraordinary product.

Is There Any Finer Projection Room Than Broadway's, Portland?

THE projection room of the new Broadway Theatre, Portland, Ore., shown on this page, is one of the finest ever constructed and a credit to any city in the country. It would be interesting to know just what the comeback would be if it were said that the great City of New York has nothing to equal it. If anyone thinks that this is not so and has something to show that can beat this installation, it would be interesting to receive photographs and full particulars. It is evident that the owners of the Broadway Theatre take considerable interest in screen presentation, for here are the three elements necessary for good projection, viz., good men, good working conditions and good equipment.

The photographs of the Broadway projection were received with rather limited information and failed to mention the names of the owners, projectionists, seating capacity of the house, length of throw, size of screen, and so on. B. F. Shearer, Inc., who made this splendid installation, deserves full credit and the widest publicity. While the owner, the architect and probably the projectionists have much to say about the designing and equipping of projection rooms in the better theatres, it is evident that in many instances the supply dealer is responsible for the proper carrying out of their ideas. Mr. Shearer supplies us with the following details, which are inadequate in this instance:

The equipment consists of three Peerless equipped Simplex projectors, one Brenkert effect projector, two 100 ampere spot lights, four control systems for our stage lights and auditorium lights and special construction rewind cabinet twelve feet long. Each machine has film footage meters, speed indicators and tilting devices.

One of the features of the booth is a large speaker connected to a microphone on the stage that amplifies any sound on the stage so as to be heard distinctly in the projection room.

Another feature is that they have a compressed air line blowing cold air over the aperture, which keeps it clean, also cools the front plate. One view shows the control station.

Kallett Active in Upper New York State

M. J. Kallett is now replacing the "ELCO" Theatre in Oneida, N.Y., with a new theatre to seat about 1,000. The building will contain four stores, two on either side of the theatre lobby, and above these stores will be rooms for offices. As yet no name has been chosen for the new theatre. Mr. Kallett also has purchased properties surrounding the "Star Theatre" in Rome, N.Y., on which he intends to break ground immediately for the construction of a new theatre to seat 1,500 and will be ready for opening the coming spring. It is the policy that the old "Star" Theatre will be operated until the entire new building is constructed, then replace the Star Theatre with a lobby entrance to the new theatre.

Mr. Kallett also operates the "Strand Theatre" in Rome, the "Madison Theatre" in Oneida and the "Community Theatre" in Sherrill, N.Y.

Allentown House Nears $100,000 Overhaul

Work was begun late in August in remodeling, at a cost of $100,000, the Orpheum Theatre, Allentown, Pa., which will be reopened, probably before the end of September, as a thoroughly modern picture house, by the Wilmer & Vincent Theatre Company. Work is going ahead at top speed, day and night, the Chase Construction Company having sent its men into the building almost as soon as the audience departed following the close of the final performance in the old Orpheum.

This was the first theatre Wilmer & Vincent owned in Allentown. It was originally a vaudeville house and later played stock and vaudeville, but several years ago it was made into a picture theatre, a policy which it has ever since pursued, under the house management of Walter J. Hurley, formerly publicity representative for Wilmer & Vincent in Harrisburg, Pa.

Ground Broken for Two New K. C. Theatres

Actual construction on two new Kansas City theatres began last week. Lou E. Holland, president of the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce, dug the first shovel of dirt and a dozen other city officials scratched the ground in the ceremony in connection with the starting of work at the $4,000,000 Midland Theatre, the third largest in the United States, to be operated by Marcus Loew. At Fiftieth and Prospect Avenue work on a suburban house, which is unnamed thus far, began. The theatre will seat about 850 and will be among the most modern in the city. It will be owned by Dr. T. A. Kynner.

Hub Electric Co. Establishes Eastern Office

Hub Electric Company, of Chicago, announce the appointment of J. H. Rohs, formerly with the Mutual Electric & Machine Company, of Detroit, as Eastern representative of the company, with offices at New York City. The establishing of the Eastern office was necessitated by an increased demand for the Hub products. Among the latest contracts secured by them in the East is the complete lighting and control equipment for the mammoth Roxy Theatre, on which they will furnish one of the largest stage switchboards yet constructed.

May Build Large Theatre at Allentown, Pa.

It is reported that a theatre to seat 3,000 persons will be erected on a plot, with a 74-foot frontage, on North Ninth Street, Allentown, Pa., near the present Strand Theatre. The plot consists of a lot fronting 54 feet, just purchased by Chanock and Senderwitz, which immediately adjoins a 20-foot lot they already controlled.

Ambassador Cost $1,216 Per Seat, Say Experts

EXPERTS have figured that the Ambassador Theatre which opened on August 25 is the most expensive theatre in the world per seat. The theatre section of the building cost Skouras Brothers $3,650,000 and on the basis of 3,000 seats averaged in cost $1,216 per seat.

This is 20 per cent in excess of the new Metropolitan Opera House which will cost $5,000,000 or $1,000 per seat, and also exceeds the cost per seat of the Uptown Theatre in Chicago, which until the Ambassador was completed was considered the most beautiful theatre. The Uptown Theatre seats 4,000 persons and cost $4,000,000.

Stanley-Mark Strand Open Two New Massachusetts Theatres

THE Stanley-Mark Strand interests have opened two new theatres in Massachusetts, the Quincy-Strand at Quincy and the Mark-Capitol at Everett. The former seats about 1,800 and the latter 2,300, thus adding 4,100 seats to the Stanley-Mark interests within a week.

The Quincy-Strand was erected by ex-Mayor William A. Bradford and leased for a long term of years to the Quincy-Mark Strand Co., of which Fred B. Murphy, who is active manager of the house, is president; Joseph B. Levenson is treasurer and Morris Sharaf, vice-president. The theatre is located at Hancock and Chestnut streets, Quincy Square. The American Seating Co. did the seating, a Wurlitzer organ is installed, Simplex projection machines are used and Ray Stewartson's Broadcasting orchestra supplies the musical numbers. The house is of first-class construction throughout, seating 1,000 on the floor and 800 in the single balcony.

There was no formal opening of the new theatre and a ten-year-old boy, Edward Pearlman, of Quincy, who stood in line six hours and went without his supper, had the honor of getting the first ticket. There were no speeches and the management's announcements were made on the screen. The policy is straight pictures, continuous performance from 1.30 to 10.30 p.m. daily.

Opening of the Mark-Capitol, Everett, was more elaborate, with remarks by Mayor Lester B. Chisholm and officials and by officers of the corporation. Moe Mark personally supervised the finishing touches to the completion of the theatre.

As in the case of the Quincy house, the Everett playhouse is simply but richly furnished. The orchestra seats 1,600 and the single balcony 700 more. The projection room is beneath the front centre of the balcony and on a level with the screen and is equipped with Simplex projectors, spots, stereopticon, etc.

The playhouse is a combination of Egyptian and Roman architecture and the corridors, lobby, etc., are of ample capacity to handle capacity audiences. Both theatres are heavily carpeted. The seats are by the American Seating Co. and an Austin organ is used. A ten-piece orchestra is also used. The policy is straight pictures, with changes of program Mondays and Fridays. The theatre is on Broadway at the upper end of Everett Square, with streets on both sides and parking space is provided for 200 autos in charge of a theatre attendant and without charge to the patrons.

Erection of the playhouse was under the supervision of Moe Silva, personal representative of Moe Mark in New England, and Allen B. Newhall. Roy Fraser, who was an assistant to Mr. Newhall at Lynn, Mass., is house manager. The ushers were uniformed in tuxedo effects and were carefully trained for their work. The theatre represents a cost of about $300,000.

One of the most unusual features of the policy is the scale of prices, all seats being 20 cents for matinees and 25 and 30 cents for the evening shows.

The personnel of the theatre is: President, Moe Mark; treasurer, Joseph M. Levenson; assistant treasurer, Moe Silva; directors, the officers and Max L. Levenson, Nathan Sallinger, Samuel Waxman, Morris Sharaf and Allen B. Newhall. Messrs. Newhall and Silva will have personal supervision of the theatre.

Both theatres are equipped with ample stages so that full stage productions or vaudeville may be presented at any time. Both houses have eleven exits and both are of first class construction.

Break Ground on Lazarus-Kingston Project

Harry Lazarus, president of the Kingston Theatre Corporation, now operating the Auditorium Theatre, will begin operations within the next two weeks for the construction of the new Broadway Theatre.

The layout and design of the exterior and interior of the building assures Kingston of one of the most modern amusement houses of its size to be found anywhere in the State, with a seating capacity of about 1,750, costing approximately $400,000.

The policy of the new Broadway will be presentations, prologues, tying up with the best feature pictures and also a combination of vaudeville and pictures at popular prices.

Reports Brisk Demand for Ticket Registers

Returning from a trip through Pennsylvania territory, Harry Simeral, sales executive of the Automatic Ticket Register Corporation, reports that prospects for a heavy fall business among exhibitors in that section is excellent. Not only have a number of the new theatres placed orders for Gold Seal Ticket Register systems but many of the older houses are adopting up-to-the-minute equipment.

Mr. Simeral, prior to this trip through Pennsylvania, recently returned from the Coast.

New Marquee and Sign for Carolina Theatre

The Auditorium, Winston-Salem, N.C., owned by the Piedmont Amusement Company, is installing a new $5,000 Marquee with 5,000 lights. The length of the marquee is about 14 feet. They are also installing a new electric sign, 18 x 18 feet on the side of the theatre building. It is claimed this sign can be read for two miles. They are redecorating the interior of the theatre and putting in velvet draperies.

Wakarusa, Tenn., Gets New House

L. S. Schultz, of Memphis, Tenn., is remodeling a building at Wakarusa, Tenn., where he will conduct a motion picture theatre. There is no theatre in Wakarusa at the present time.

How the Michigan Theatre Building, built by the Kunsky-Balaban & Katz interests, looks in the day-time as was held in the early fifteenth century. Accordingly the walls have been ornamented with brilliant and bizarre tones that convey the Spanish atmosphere. Throughout the auditorium statues have been placed in niches and figures have been raised in bold relief to express the gaiety of a carnival procession.

But the most distinctive of the decorative features of this truly wonderful picture place is the hanging ceiling, which makes it appear that the roof has been suspended in the air. This novelty was achieved by cutting a series of eleven domes in the roof.

Above the stage is the first of this series—a group of three domes finished in silver leaf and so lighted as to resemble a brilliant sunburst. In the center is the second unit, a massive dome also done in silver leaf but lighted in deep blue and colored to give the effect of fleecy clouds fleeing o'er the heavens.

Seven more domes also done in silver leaf and lighted with the rays of numerous concealed blue lamps complete the effect of the open sky atop the mezzanine in the rear of the theatre. The ornamental lighting fixtures of the auditorium are in Oriental design. There are also various colorful decorations on the ceiling and walls.

To the right of the stage opening is concealed the Wurlitzer organ especially built from plans prepared by Stuart Barrie organist of the theatre. It has more than 1,000 pipes ranging from the size of a man's thumb to a pipe six feet in diameter. It can produce the tonal quality of a 140 piece orchestra and a choir of 60 voices. Barrie will play the organ from a console finished in gold leaf that is placed in the orchestra pit and that can be raised to the stage level.

The orchestra will also be on an elevator that can be raised or lowered at the will of the director, Charles Previn, who will lead the orchestra of 30 pieces.

The proscenium opening of the stage will be 50 feet wide and 45 feet high and will be the largest in the city and will permit the staging of any type of production. The stage equipment will be the last word. The curtains will be of rich velvet, silk and velour. The stage will also be equipped with the largest electric switchboard in the West and is capable of producing a multitude of effects.

Backstage there has been provided modern dressing rooms for the stage artists and musicians, all equipped with modern furniture, draperies and private bath. An elevator will take the performers to their dressing rooms, where by private telephone they can be called for their acts. There is also a reception room where artists may meet their guests. Space is also provided in the basement for animals.

The architects and engineers did not overlook the convenience and comfort of the patrons in designing the cooling system for the house. It refrigerates the air and removes all gas, germs and dust before the cooled air is permitted to enter the auditorium. A series of rest rooms are also provided for men and women.

Each group for women will have a smoking room and a cosmetic room. One is a reproduction of Madame Pompadour's salon at the Chateau Fontainebleau.

The Ambassador Theatre is owned by the Central Properties, Inc., controlled by Skouras Brothers Enterprises. The theatre was designed by Rapp & Rapp, architects of Chicago, while Boaz & Kiel of St. Louis, Mo., were the general contractors.

Will Remodel Liberty at Susanville

The Liberty Theatre, Susanville, Cal., one of the T. & D. Circuit's holdings, will be remodeled and resealed throughout according to a recent announcement. The car load of new chairs has already arrived and Manager Adams has been actively engaged in the details of the many new improvements.

New Schenectady House Under Way

Ground was broken last week for Morris Silverman's new theatre in Schenectady, which will be known as "The Rivoli." It will be a twenty-five cent house and will open on Thanksgiving Day.

Announce Waterloo Playhouse

Waterloo, Iowa, is to have a new theatre. The Orpheum Building Corporation have announced their plan to build a half million block in Waterloo and to include a theatre building which will be the second largest in the State.

Newspaper Opinions on New Pictures

"3 Bad Men"—Fox, Monroe, Chicago

Tribune: "3 Bad Men" will stand out for a long time in the memory of the fans who saw, loved and laughed at it. A splendid 'western' with the Dakota frontier as a setting and a story written around the days of the Dakota land rush in 1877. The big punch of the picture was the three bad men of the title as represented by J. Farrell MacDonald, Thomas Santschi, and Frank Campeau. And the greatest of the three was Mr. MacDonald. Golly, was he funny. John Ford, who directed 'The Iron Horse,' handled this production and made a fine job of it."

Herald and Examiner: "It seems to me that 'Three Bad Men' is a movie rich in humor, in excitement, in romance, in human tenderness and in the glamour of pioneer adventure. With it, I think, John Ford demonstrates, as he did with 'The Iron Horse,' that he is among the elect of Hollywood. . . . And the Fox cameramen are hereby decorated with the best medals this department has in stock. . . . They can say what they like about the movies, but the stage has never been able to get the character and life into pioneer adventures as poor, rich, abused Hollywood has. This frontier town with its good and bad men, its good and bad women, its dust and its clatter, its murders and its kindness is a gem. . . . The husband-hunting episode is one of the high lights in 'Three Bad Men.' It is, I think, authentically western. Mark Twain might have written it. Ford has directed it beautifully with fine help from J. Farrell MacDonald and Frank Campeau."

American: "'Three Bad Men,' in the opinion of John Ford, its director, is the finest thing he has ever done. All Ford's own predictions and his company's concerning the greatness of the film are lived up to. The picture is produced on as lavish a scale as 'The Iron Horse' and as far as direction goes, it seems to me to be superior. . . . Prepare to see a great picture, for 'Three Bad Men' certainly is. Ford makes most of the other directors in the industry, who try to handle historical themes seem like pigmies. This young Irishman of Boston, can put humanness into historical events in a way that brings to life even the dullest imagination. . . . The cast is so good that it is hard to know where to begin mentioning its members. If there is any one who deserves more credit than any other, however, it is Tom Santschi. . . . George O'Brien is the real hero in this new Ford production. 'The Iron Horse' made George and gave him great opportunities. There are not as many for him in this but he acquits himself nobly in whatever there is—which is to prove himself one of the most fascinating of the younger actors of the screen. By all means see 'Three Bad Men.' It has a rugged power that will enthrall you, comedy that will amuse you, pathos that will prove infinitely touching —all the elements, in fact, of a great offering and one that will thrill you to the heart's core."

Daily Journal: "'Three Bad Men' . . . is a splendid, thrilling film. The theme is vital and the action sweeping. You are shown the opening of the Indian lands in the Dakotas. Hordes of eager fortune seekers are rushing pell mell into them. Good and bad, rich and poor, pour into this promised El Dorado. In the throng are three bad men, Mike, Bull and Spade, and they are stunningly played by Tom Santschi, J. Farrell MacDonald and Frank Campeau. . . . Olive Borden is the girl. She plays prettily and sincerely. . . . Lou Tellegen is the villain, and gets right into the sinister, stalwart role as though he were made for it. Watch his eyes in this picture. Seldom has any actor managed to convey sheer, cruel greed of power and passion for destruction as does Mr. Tellegen with his eyes. . . . There is fighting galore, racing and thrill of prolonged effort in 'Three Bad Men.' It is impossible not to like it. It is more than a 'western'—it is an epic."

Evening Post: "There is a curious combination of humor, tragedy and beauty in 'Three Bad Men.' . . . It marches along with a gay, happy-go-lucky swing and hardships, even death, are touched with humor. The wicked trio of the title are three musketeers of the plains . . . excellent players in gorgeously picturesque roles . . . they in themselves would 'make' the picture. . . . The land rush forms the exciting climax of the film, and this has been excellently pictured. As a spectacle it rivals the chariot race in 'Ben Hur.' And if you think an auto crash is breath taking, see what happens when a wagon strikes a stump and goes to pieces! There are scenes of exquisite beauty. . . . The picture is one above the ordinary in every way, one worth marking down on your list of those which must be seen."

"Don Juan"—Warner Bros. Egyptian, Los Angeles

Los Angeles Times: "A fascinating film accomplishment. One can find in 'Don Juan' plenty of food for artistic delight. Characters are splendidly drawn and the production has been cast with a rare degree of perfection. Outside of the star, who has never looked more romantically successful than he does in the blond wig he wears, there are three other roles played with remarkable dramatic force—the Lucretia Borgia of Estelle Taylor, the Donati of Montague Love and the Cesare Borgia of Warner Oland. Alan Crosland and Bess Meredyth as scenarioists, merit undoubted applause . . . the photography, too, is splendid."

Examiner: "To say that Barrymore is a good actor is akin to mentioning Barrie's ability as a writer, a superfluous compliment. But to say he is superb as the youthful Spaniard bent on love, more love and still more love, is giving him only his just reward. I like Barrymore's comedy. He's subtle, engaging and suave. He has never been more pictorially attractive nor has he ever looked as well as he does in his seventeenth century costume. No small measure of credit for the direction of this many sided drama goes to Alan Crosland, who handled the varied situations with a finesse that is born of experience. In my opinion, the duel scene between Barrymore and Montague Love is one of the most thrilling fights that I have ever seen on the screen and needless to say, I have seen many of them. Crosland deserves a medal for this scene alone."

"Warner Bros. have a production in 'Don Juan' to which they can point with honest pride. That it will be popular no one can doubt. In fact, I expect a trail will be worn to the Egyptian Theatre during the next few weeks not only to see the picture but the prologue and the music, directed by Josiah Zuro, imported from New York for this particular event."

Evening Herald: "Seldom do we have the privilege of seeing on the screen a photoplay so dazzling and possessing so many of the essentials that make for a spectacle of unusual beauty. The most ambitious effort yet undertaken by the Warner Bros. They have achieved a really wonderful work of the motion picture art. The sets are massive and lavishly dressed; so much so that the eye is often bewildered; the costuming, rich and exquisitely beautiful, as a narrative of this kind makes necessary, is more than adequate, and I doubt whether you would find, if you searched the length and breadth of Hollywood, a picture more pictorially or photographically perfect."

"I would say that Mr. Barrymore is a revelation in the role of the world's most torrid love-maker."

Daily News: "'Don Juan' is a revelation from a standpoint of romance. When the House of Barrymore sent its illustrious son, John, to represent it in the pantomime world, it knew that the crest and coat-of-arms would not be sullied. Film fans admit that he outbarrymored himself, as well as out Valentinoed Rudolph in affairs with scores of beautiful women."

Record: "'Don Juan' is a picture of romantic richness . . . it has all the red blood, the amorous high lights and the verve and spirit that 'Don Juan' should have. Barrymore's interpretation of the role is but another of the many splendid characterizations with which he and other members of his famous family have emblazoned their names upon the tablets of fame."

"The Great Deception"—First National, Karlton, Phila.

Evening Bulletin: "An interesting romance replete with thrilling situations and bits of remarkable photography forms the main attraction at the Karlton Theatre this week. Hair-raising escapes in an airplane under the cover of night and breath-taking suspense, created by the presence of a code which is ever in danger of falling into the hands of the enemy, form a thread which keeps the audience a-tingle at all times. The picture is a pleasant relief after one has seen so many of the so-called 'drawing room' films adorned by the usual collection of flappers and sheiks."

Philadelphia Record: "It has some striking situations in which the spectator is held breathless with suspense."

Inquirer: "There are thrills enough to raise the short hair on the neck of a bronze dog."

Public Ledger: "The feature this week is a rapid romance with the full World War flavor."

Evening Ledger: "The film rapidly gathers momentum and proves thrilling entertainment."

"The Bells"—Chadwick, Detroit

Detroit Evening Times: "Lionel Barrymore, member of the famous stage family, has a unique role in 'The Bells.' This time he has assumed a role made famous upon the stage by the late Sir Henry Irving, in which he has practically everything to himself. 'The Bells' provides Barrymore with a good character role, and he certainly explores every opportunity the role presents. A capable cast appears in support of the star."

Detroit Free Press: "That Lionel Barrymore has the genius of his forebears is borne witness in his current performance at the Broadway Strand Theatre in a film made from the late Sir Henry Irving's dramatic masterpiece, 'The Bells.' In the role of Mathias, Barrymore dominates the picture, and gives a clearcut, fine characterization in both the light comedy and heavy dramatic scenes of the play. Weird and fantastic lighting effects were employed in adding to the effectiveness of certain scenes, and thrills abound as the story unfolds."

Detroit News: "The motion picture public, young in years, has probably no recollection of 'The Bells,' whose screen version is serving Lionel Barrymore at the Broadway Strand Theatre this week, but for that public's information this was a mighty fine play in its day, one of the bright things of the theatre, with which the name of Sir Henry Irving is associated forevermore. It comes to the screen but slightly altered. Inevitably, it is a great opportunity for this fine actor. It is an immensely sincere and capable performance, unaccompanied by obvious devices, either histrionic or mechanical. A very unusual exhibition of acting. Also a singular beauty has been achieved in the matter of photography and settings. If one seeks art in the movies, it may be found, and to spare, in 'The Bells.'"

A better method of rectification

The Liberty Syncrovertor

Made by Liberty Electric Corporation
Stamford, Conn.

The Liberty Syncrovertor consists of a transformer, a motor, a commutator, a switchboard control panel, all assembled in one unit, or a booth control panel.

The transformer will carry an overload of 200 per cent for five minutes and a continuous overload of 100 per cent.

The motor is a new type of synchronous motor of patented principle and design provided with means of both starting and operating on single phase. It may be used on either single or three-phase circuits.

The commutator is non-sparking at any load. The speed of the motor is 900 R.P.M. which is approximately one-half the speed of the ordinary convertor.

The actual rectification is done at the commutator, not within the motor. The —that means great savings on current bills

THE Liberty Syncrovertor for the first time makes possible the full application of the principles of rectification by commutation. Its advantages over the motor generator are so great that it can truly be said to represent a revolutionary step in current conversion methods.

The type 25 Liberty Syncrovertor was developed especially to meet the demand for a multiple convertor having a capacity of 25 amperes and so designed that it can handle two arcs in multiple without affecting the first arc when the second is struck.

GENERAL DESCRIPTION

SOME POTENT FACTS

It operates at unity power factor. Watt input is twenty-five per cent less for equal amperage at the lamp than on any motor generator. This means a saving of at least twenty-five per cent in the power costs, plus a savings due to unity power factor.

The efficiency is practically the same on any load, i.e., under any amperage. It operates on single-phase alternating current, giving much greater adaptability, since it can be used either on a single-phase circuit or on any one phase of a two or three-phase circuit.

There are no windings to burn out causing shut-downs; a known fault of some equipment. It is compact and occupies less space than any other like equipment. The arc lamps are run in multiple; no special switches required at the lamps. Second arc is struck before switch-over, without in any way affecting the light of the first, thus giving a perfect fade-in or change-over. The transformer of the Syncrovertor, with the motor idle, acts as a Compensarc, thus providing a built-in emergency unit.

The Syncrovertor is safe, reliable, easy to operate, highly efficient and economical. It is made in five sizes from 25 to 150 amperes. See the Liberty Syncrovertor demonstrated at any Simplex distributor.

brushes are of sufficient capacity to carry any current load to which the machine would be subjected.

The entire machine is electrically and mechanically perfect in design and construction; extremely simple in operation and more efficient than any other known machine or apparatus for the conversion of electric current from A.C. to D.C.

The Type 25 Liberty Syncrovertor has a rating of twenty-five amperes and can be built for any standard alternating current line voltage.

Where the throw calls for less than twenty-five amperes, any amperage may be obtained by means of amperage control switch on the control panel, which is in five steps, from fifteen to twenty-five.

Showmanship and Common Sense

Study the successful Exhibitor and there is one thing that will impress you—a talent for showmanship. After all, what is showmanship but common sense applied to the showman's problems?

The Feature Picture and the additional attractions on the program, are of utmost importance, but the successful Exhibitor knows that the right type of Musical Accompaniment is absolutely indispensable, therefore, his chief concern is not so much the first cost, but what the organ investment contributes to his show as a whole, and what it brings him in profits.

The Robert Morton Unit Organ is specifically designed to meet the demands of the modern motion picture theatre. It is the most powerful single factor any Exhibitor can employ to provide a Complete Picture Presentation Program.

AIR

Cooled, Washed and Dehumidified in Summer — Warmed, Washed and Humidified in Winter

A vital Conditioning shown in this illustration theatre from out of doors is washed and purified and the humidity is automatically fixed at the maximum comfort for the season and the crowd. During the summer the air is cooled by Carrier Centrifugal Refrigeration. The air is cooled and its excess moisture condensed. The water within the spray chamber is maintained so that moisture is added to the air to produce a comfortable and healthful condition of humidity. Automatically controlled heaters located in the air ducts leading to the theatre heat the air when necessary. The sluggish, direct heating system of the theatre is eliminated.

element in the Carrier System of Theatre Cooling and Air Conditioning is the spray chamber with its contingent parts as shown in this illustration. All of the air which is drawn into the system must pass through this chamber. Here the air is washed and its humidity and temperature are automatically fixed at the point required according to the weather. In hot, humid seasons, the spray water is used. In contact with this spray the air is cooled and dehumidified. During the Winter, the air is heated at a higher temperature.

The Carrier System is an assembly of equipment guaranteed to maintain uniform conditions of Temperature, Humidity and Air Purity in the theatre every day in the year. It is the development of more than twenty years of specialized Air Conditioning experience.—A recent development provides the same complete system for the fine, small theatres.—Describe your theatres.—Ask for the book, "Theatre Cooling."

Air Courier Brings Vivid Tale of Terror and First Pictures

Bringing to New York the first pictures and the first eyewitness story of the Miami hurricane, Philip London, Miami business man, arrived yesterday by airplane, still shaken and unnerved, with a gripping tale of the storm's terror.

His remarkable pictures were for International Newsreel Corporation, which spirited him and his films to New York by train and airplane through the thick of the devastations. Both the manner in which London "shot" his pictures and his rapid transport to New York—to arrive with the first pictures and story of the holocaust—are big news stories in themselves.

Braving the hurricane's fury with Roy Pack, Miami cameraman, London went out in the height of the cyclone and shot film after film. All day he and his cameraman worked, and the night of the storm they were still "shooting" with flashlights, lighting up the pitch darkness.

Sleepless, hungry, worn to the last ounce of strength, London and Pack ploughed through debris and water last Sunday morning to reach Miami Beach. Then they forged on to Fort Londerdale, Dania and Hollywood, wrecked by the storm, shooting scene upon scene.

Plane Rushed South

International Newsreel Corporation got in touch with them through the one telegraph line open. They sped to West Palm Beach by automobile, and London caught the noon train for New York. International Newsreel started the fastest airplane obtainable from Washington, D. C., with J. C. Brown, manager of its Washington bureau.

I compliment you on your pictures of the New York to Paris airplane disaster. Its great value lies in the fact that the camera continuously covers the plane from the start until the fatal crash, and shows the entire mishap in detail. This is most extraordinary, and has proven very thrilling to our audiences.

Congratulations to you!

Earle was a true Pathe News man, for he was on the spot in Miami when it happened. Severely injured, bleeding, he stayed on the job, getting his pictures right in the thick of the hurricane. He managed to get to Jacksonville where the Pathe News had an airplane awaiting him. At Atlanta, so weak was he from his wounds, he had to be carried from one plane to another. At Charlotte he caught a train for Washington. For the third time he was met by a Pathe News airplane, in which he flew to Jersey City, arriving Tuesday noon. After that it was simple. The incomparable Pathe News organization, waiting, ready for hours, got the prints out in record time, to the whole country.

The Best is the Cheapest—In

If you are a golfer the last thing you would do would be to pick up a lot of junk clubs at a dollar a throw.

You know it would be a reasonable certainty that those clubs would cost you a dozen strokes to a round. You play golf for pleasure. It wouldn't be good sense to spoil your pleasure for the sake of saving a ten dollar bill.

Your real fisherman doesn't go to a department store and buy a "nice fly rod for $4.89." He knows mighty well that there's no such thing and he doesn't propose to go a couple of hundred miles up country and have his fishing spoiled by a rod with no life, no backbone and no casting power.

In every kind of merchandise you get just what you pay for. There is no cutting corners. You cannot get the best for the price of the worst.

he End

You know that applies to everything you buy, whether for sport or business.

Why expect pictures to be an exception?

They aren't.

Mack Sennett puts into his Ben Turpin, Alice Day, Mack Sennett and The Smith Series comedies the experience of fifteen years, the best direction that money will buy, the best stories, the best title writers, the best casts he can get.

Quality costs more but it speaks for itself.

There is more than a little difference.

Your audiences realize it. Why not give them the best, and by paying a little more get a lot more?

Managing Director

September 1st, 1926.

Mr. Joseph M. Schenck,
729 Seventh Avenue,
New York City.

My dear Joe:-

You ask my frank and honest opinion of Constance Talmadge in "THE DUCHESS OF BUFFALO", both its merits as a picture, and its box office appeal.

It is easy for me to respond:

First: because its genuine merit was attested by the fact that the audiences throughout the engagement were in a constant gale of laughter;

Second: In spite of the very hot weather, the week's receipts came very close to the house record, thereby justifying a second week's showing.

And on the second week the receipts were nearly as great as the first,
which is almost without precedent!

I am very happy to be able to write so glowingly, but certainly a picture which can bring these results, deserves the gratitude of the exhibitor.

Sincerely yours,

Edward Bowes

No. 14

Pictures and Vaudeville

THE apparent new vogue of pictures and vaudeville, or as the vaudeville people might call it, vaudeville with pictures, is bringing a wrinkled brow to many a sales executive and also to a lot of picture house managers.

In view of this it might prove interesting to know just how far vaudeville has entered the picture house and to attempt analysis of how much of an invasion it might make.

To do this we need some figures. According to MOTION PICTURE NEWS records recently compiled from a survey of all theatres, houses in towns of less than 2,500 population do not and can not play vaudeville.

In the group of theatres located in towns of this population up to fifty thousand, we present the following table, arranged from the material obtained from the survey mentioned above.

We let these figures speak for themselves:

1,409 towns ranging in population from 2,500 to 5,000 containing 1,512 theatres 87% or 1,180 theatres do not play vaudeville; 4 1-6% or 60 play vaudeville regularly; 2% or 20 play vaudeville part time; 8% or 120 play vaudeville occasionally.

698 towns ranging in population from 5,000 to 10,000 containing 1,440 theatres: 81 1-2% or 1,180 theatres do not play vaudeville; 4% or 60 play vaudeville regularly; 3% or 40 play vaudeville part time; 11 1-4% play vaudeville occasionally.

492 towns ranging in population from 10,-

000 to 25,000 containing 1,754 theatres: 77 1-2% or 1,348 theatres play no vaudeville; 10 1-2% play vaudeville regularly; 4 7-8% play vaudeville part time; 7 1-2% play vaudeville occasionally.

147 cities ranging in population from 25,000 to 50,000 containing 950 theatres; 74% or 703 theatres play no vaudeville; 16 1-5% or 154 theatres play vaudeville regularly; 2 4-5% or 26 play vaudeville part time; 6 9-10% or 65 play vaudeville occasionally.

Compiling figures for the cities above fifty thousand presented difficulties. Roughly speaking, one theatre in ten plays vaudeville or presents something equivalent so far as audiences are concerned.

Compiling the figures for all groups of theatres that do not play vaudeville we have 8,050. Add to this approximately 6,000 theatres in towns of less than 2,500 population and we still have the bulk of the houses where they belong and we see no cause for the fears that straight pictures are losing their grip.

The moral of all this is simply that we sometimes take too seriously what is happening in certain cities or section territories and forget to base our conclusions on the whole country, a mighty big territory when you get it all together. In other words the world doesn't end on the west shore of the Hudson.

Speaking Editorially

THE conviction of three Western exhibitors of bicycling charges in Federal Court is the first step in a nation-wide campaign to stamp out this evil, which has been prevalent in the industry for many years. Other actions will be brought, it is understood, under the Federal Copyright Law, which prior to the Montana cases had not been previously invoked.

In an industry which has made great strides forward in every department, including the important one of better ethical standards, there is, of course, no excuse whatever for bicycling. It is a form of robbery, with the distributor as the victim, in which one rental price is made surreptitiously to do the work of two. The financial loss to exchanges under this species of brigandage is said to reach a considerable figure in the course of a year.

It ought, by all means, to be ended. And honest exhibitors, who are in the big majority, will be glad to see it eradicated.

* * *

ANNOUNCEMENT by R. F. Woodhull of the sale of his theatre this week occasioned wide comment in the industry, where "Pete" is universally popular. No exhibitor occasion of large import in recent years has been complete without him, and his gift of wit and eloquence have brought him a real reputation as an after-dinner speaker.

His services to the industry in public service work have been extensive. It has always been his belief—and he put it into active practice—that the theatre should be a genuine community institution and the exhibitor a leading citizen in his town.

Not only in New Jersey, but in a number of other states, Mr. Woodhull has addressed civic organizations of many descriptions, carrying a constructive message which brought added good-will to the industry. And the Baker Theatre, in Dover, N. J., under his direction, was aligned with every constructive movement in the community. Mr. Woodhull himself often took the lead in promoting the welfare of his city.

We have no way of knowing what Mr. Woodhull plans to do in the future, but a man of such unusual ability for creating public good-will, should not be lost to this industry.

* * *

GILBERT K. CHESTERTON, distinguished English writer, recently in a debate on motion pictures disagreed with his own side when the question asked if movies should be tolerated.

"In the circumstances," he said, "it is impossible to attack the films even if I desired. I do not believe that little boys are led on to crime by films. In my own childhood, before the existence of films, my personal depravity was always equal to any demands upon it."

AN EDITOR ON BROADWAY

The Week in Review By William A. Johnston

Hal Roach

HAL ROACH is more than ever convinced of the soundness of his idea of star names in comedies; and there is and always has been a lot of soundness to Mr. Roach's ideas as a showman.

He contends that if a comedy is to be a feature in a bill—as it often is and still more often can be—then the feature comedy must have feature advertising. And one sure way of feature advertising is to have a feature name sufficiently strong with the public to get into electric lights on the theatre. That's sound!

THEDA BARA was a success in the Roach comedy and Mabel Normand is going strong. "People asked me," says Mr. Roach, "why I tried to make Theda Bara a comedienne. The answer is: I didn't. I surrounded her with a comedy and her name appeared in electric lights."

"It stands to reason that two stars pull better than one—almost always, at least. It is possible that the comedy star will pull better than the featured name in the dramatic feature. One reason for the policy of showing two dramatic features is because one, however good as a picture, lacks a well-known name."

"It is my ambition to provide the exhibitor with a double feature bill, one of which will be a comedy."

OF course the question of price arises. Stars' names and featured players in general raise the production cost. And with all the pressure for prices in dramatic features, comedies and short subjects have had a tough road to the exhibitor's door and have never had fair treatment.

To this Mr. Roach replies: "I want to make it clear to the exhibitors that I ask a just price not only because production cost compels it, but because this price makes more money for him."

One of the big chains of theatres tells me that a comedy on the bill is responsible for a regular and considerable percentage of the gross receipts. They reckon its value on this basis and are willing to pay accordingly.

Which, again, is sound showmanship.

IN the year that has elapsed since the first Pathe "all comedy circus" programs began to appear in scattered points about the country, this novel form of presentation has made great advances in popularity. Under the stimulus of an energetic and intelligent campaign conducted by the Pathe organization, the "all comedy circus" program, made up entirely of short length comedies and cartoons, succeeded in getting try outs at several theatres—the majority of which, with the aid of selling campaigns which made competent use of sound showmanship ideas and the excellent accessories prepared by Pathe, reported more than satisfactory box office returns. Indeed, the idea worked so well that many of these exhibitors have given the "all comedy circus" program a regular place on their schedule of theatre events.

A WEALTH of experience in the proper methods of exploiting such programs has been collected during this period, and now this valuable information has been organized into a practical work sheet by the Pathe Exploitation Department under the direction of S. Barrett McCormick. The data, compiled and edited for the use of practical showmen, is presented in book form. The work—profusely illustrated and printed in colors—covers the exploitation, advertising and publicity methods which actual experience has proved most successful in the presentation of these programs. A complete list of the ideas presented would about cover the entire range of exploitation devices developed during years of specialization in theatre showmanship. A limited edition published in the interests of Pathe exhibitors and designed to further the development of the all short subject program as a definite box office attraction has been undertaken by Pathe. The enterprise—of the highest merit in principle and execution—well deserves the success which it seems certain to attain.

BUSINESS continued good up and down the Rialto this week, with an unusual number of hits and the opening of school exerting only a slight effect on matinee business. While it is not likely, as this is written, that any records will be broken, some excellent figures for the week will be recorded by Saturday, if nothing happens in the meantime.

THE Capitol continued to stand them up this week, following two remarkable weeks on "Mare Nostrum," with an excellent one on "The Waning Sex." The comedy angle of this picture seemed to score with audiences heavily, and the supporting bill is one of the best that this house has had in months. The radio broadcast of this has probably helped to boost business during the week. Picture not as heavy as some, but the Shearer vehicles seem to do well at this house.

THE Colony is rounding out the third and last week of the "One Minute to Play" engagement in nice style. Business on the three weeks is likely to hit around $85,000—a remarkable figure for this house, in view of past performances, and everyone at Film Booking Offices is extremely jubilant.

FOLLOWING the amazing run of "Variety," "Tin Gods" came into the Rialto this week, and, aided by a Saturday midnight premiere, got off to a smashing start, and will top the recent weeks of "Variety."

The twelve weeks' run of the German photoplay piled up a total not much short of $350,000—a figure that will stand for some time.

BEBE DANIELS in "The Campus Flirt," at the Rivoli, was doing the best business which any Daniels picture has scored, the title and comedy slant apparently pulling heavily.

LESS strong was "Sparrows" at the Mark Strand. Business is by no means light, and the picture is staying for a second week, but there has been no jam in evidence. "Sparrows" does not seem to be the sort of vehicle in which they want to see Pickford, and the opening of school has lightened matinees.

THE long-run films are all doing well. "Beau Geste," at the Criterion, continues the hit of the town, with all the standing room the law will allow—about fifty per performance.

"Big Parade," at the Astor, fluctuates only with the amount of standing room sold. "Scarlet Letter," at the Central, is doing capacity; free list suspended. "Ben Hur," at the Embassy, going along steadily in its 40th week.

PICTURES AND PEOPLE

T. N. B. R. RELENTS

THE National Board of Review, which found no films worthy of special mention last week, relented this week and looked with kindly eyes upon "Across the Pacific," the Warner Bros. historical drama of the days following the Spanish-American war, when the soldiers were recalled to fight the Philippine insurrection. The picture is recommended for the family audience, including young people.

Duane Thompson, recently seen in Chadwick's "Some Pui'kins," gets a new hair-cut prior to starting work in "April Fool" for the same corporation

ON AT THE FIGHT

ON Thursday evening of this week, when Gene Tunney, a prominent young film star, faces Jack Dempsey, a former cinema performer, in a little drama which will be over when this appears in print, the engagement will be witnessed by a considerable film contingent.

Among those expecting to attend are Richard A. Rowland and Samuel Spring of First National, accompanied by A. W. Smith, Jr., Ned Depinet, Ned Marin and W. C. Boothby; Jules Mastbaum with a party including Robert Lieber, head of First National; Johnny Hines and a party of friends; Fred Thomson, F. B. O. star; Monte Blue, Warner star; John McCormick, West Coast general manager of production for F. N.; and probably most of the male element in the Eastern film colony.

William Collier, Jr., about to take a swing at Dorothy Mackaill—but it's only for a publicity still on "The Charleston Kid" (First National-Al Rockett)

Agnes Christine Johnston (Mrs. Frank Dazey) Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer scenarist, with her children, Martin and Ruth; she is now doing "Tillie the Toiler"

T. JUNIOR STARS AGAIN

THE sixteen graduates of the Paramount Pictures' School, who appeared in "Fascinating Youth," will be reassembled in Hollywood around the first of the year to make another picture, to be produced by Hector Turnbull, it was announced this week by Jesse L. Lasky. This should set at rest the various

A charming study of a dimpled young lady appearing in Christie comedies for Educational release; meet Miss Caryl Lincoln herself rumors which have been flying around concerning the future of these starlets. Gossip had it for some time that most of the Junior Stars would be released at the expiration of the next option period, but apparently the success of "Fascinating Youth" has convinced Famous executives that another picture would be profitable. Most of the students have had some little practical experience in the meantime, and the next picture should be much better.

Nothing is said of another school, and the probabilities seem to be against it, for the present at least. It has been discovered that it is one thing to graduate a class of promising youngsters and another thing to find something for them to do. Several Famous directors have shown a discouraging and not altogether commendable unwillingness to use the Junior Stars or to give them any opportunity—and what the director says just about goes.

WARNER BROS.' portable radio broadcasting station, 6XBR, was much in demand last week and participated in a number of ceremonies following the ovation welcome given it on arrival and its welcome by Mayor "Jimmy" Walker.

The welcome to the station at Brooklyn was just as enthusiastic on Thursday. President Finley of the Board of Aldermen of the borough extended the greeting in the absence of late Borough President Guider.

From the Brooklyn function the 6XBR proceeded directly to Coney Island to be present for the Mardi Gras celebration on invitation from Charles Feltman, chairman of the carnival association. The station immediately followed the band in the great parade in the position of honor.

FORD ENTHUSIASTIC

JOHAN FORD, the husky Maine Irishman picked by William Fox and Winfield R. Sheehan to direct "The Story of Mother Machree," is not only enthusiastic over the assignment but has some highly interesting plans which he proposes to carry out in connection with it. Ford, who always thinks broadly and sweepingly of his screen themes, sees in "Mother Machree" not alone the simple, poignant story of Ellen McHugh, but an epic of Irish emigrant motherhood.

"Here," he says, "is a story simple yet laden with drama. A vehicle on which can be borne, I am sure, the symbol of sacrifice countless Irish mothers have made for their young, whether it has been wrenching themselves from their 'tumble-down shacks' or fine homes, or staying behind in Ireland while their children went away. And I may go further and say that 'Mother Machree' is the story of all emigrant mothers from all lands in its symbolism."

HAWKS VACATIONING

AFTER six months of 18-hour working days as production supervisor at the F. B. O. studios on the West Coast, J. G. Hawks is on his way East via the steamship Mongolia for a vacation. He will spend two weeks in New York and return on the President Polk. Everyone in the F. B. O. studios, from Vice-President Edwin King down, has been working more than double time because of the rush of production.

DANTCHENKO HERE

AN event with possibilities of far-reaching results in the world of motion picture production is the arrival in New York of Vladimir Nemirovitch-Dantchenko, an outstanding figure in legitimate theatre production, co-founder of the Moscow Art Theatre and director of the Moscow Musical Studio, to take up work under his one-year contract with Joseph M. Schenck as producer-at-large.

At his first interview this week he replied to questions concerning what he plans to do in pictures by responding that he first had a great many questions to ask concerning motion pictures before attempting anything.

"Perhaps," he said, "I shall find that I have nothing to give to motion pictures, and shall go back without doing anything here." He admitted, however, that he has some interesting ideas in view concerning the application to pictures of the qualities which have made the Moscow Art Theatre and the Musical Studio the foremost repertory companies in the theatrical world today.

Particularly characteristic of these two organizations is the "ensemble" playing. There is no star system—no glorifying of one actor or one role at the expense of another—and Dantchenko hopes to be able to bring something of this to pictures. He does not believe in the star system, and does not believe that it is necessary in pictures, given proper stories.

He believes, too, that our stories are more complicated than is necessary. He believes in the simple story, developed in detail, rather than the complicated melodrama.

"In five years' time," he says, "all the catastrophes since the beginning of history will have been filmed—thrills will be exhausted—but the human heart offers a source of stories that can never be exhausted."

No definite plans have been announced for Dantchenko's work at the Schenck studios, but they will probably be announced shortly. The Russian director left for Hollywood on Tuesday, accompanied by Sergei Bertensson, his assistant.

WHAT? NO COOTIES?

IT has remained for James R. Grainger, general manager of Fox Films, to cap all that has been said about the realism of "What Price Glory."

Mr. Grainger was talking to an exhibitor about the merits of the war picture. "It has love interest, comedy, tragedy, sex, scenery . . ." he was saying, when the exhibitor broke in with:

"Has it realism?"

"Realism!" exclaimed Mr. Grainger. "Why, it has everything but casualties and cooties!"

WITH FURTHER FOREIGN INVASION

WITH the continued influx of European artists threatening our studio executives with the necessity of learning German, French, Russian and other tongues (not excluding the Scandinavian), the move is spreading to film advertising offices. The other afternoon we watched (or rather heard) Charles Einfeld at First National giving instructions to an artist engaged in preparing special drawings—and compelled to use German to do it. Who said the movies weren't international?

June Mathis, producer, and Balboni, director, wear a satisfied smile as the last scene is finished for "The Masked Woman," the first picture to be made at the new First National studios at Burbank

UNIQUE "GORILLA" PLAN

THE producing firm of Asher, Small and Rogers, which includes among its production activities the management of the Corinne Griffith features, plans a new departure in motion picture production.

Coincidentally with an announcement that this company is to film the famous comedy mystery play, "The Gorilla," in collaboration with its author, Ralph Spence, also comes the information that the producers have so much faith in the picture possibilities of the play that they will film the picture without any definite distribution plans in mind.

Considering that the screen rights to "The Gorilla" have been considered in production quarters as one of the most valuable pieces of film material that the stage has offered in years, and that several of the larger distributing organizations have made attractive overtures to Asher, Small and Rogers for the distribution of the picture, the producers will make the picture first and then arrange for its circulation when completed.

This procedure of production is a most unusual one and rarely does a producer begin filming his picture until distribution is assured. In the case of "The Gorilla," however, the members of the firm of Asher, Small and Rogers believe that, considering its popularity in play form and the record price paid for its film rights, that they have one of the prize comedies of the year.

MEMBERS CHINESE COMPLICATIONS

MEMBERS of the cast of the film version of "Going Crooked," produced for Fox Films under the direction of George Melford, had an exciting hour while filming scenes in Los Angeles' Chinatown.

To get realism Melford took his actors to Ferguson Alley in Los Angeles, the center of Chinatown. He had with him several Chinese dressed in the picturesque costumes worn before the Chinese revolution.

Everything was "set" and Melford had taken the long shots of a taxi driving to the door of a Chinese shop when he noticed a crowd assembling at the entrance of the alley. He paid little attention, thinking they were gathered to watch the picture being made.

The crowd suddenly began to close in around the camera. The younger Chinese began hooting and yelling at the actors in Chinese, blocking the camera, and holding up the action. Requests to clear the scene availed nothing, and finally when shots began to fly, Melford sent in a hurry call for the police.

It took two extra squads to quell the near riot that followed. Bessie Love and Oscar Shaw, who play the leading roles, escaped in a taxi driven by Hank Mann. They returned after a tour of the surrounding vicinity to complete the interrupted "shot."

T MARY AND DOUG CANCEL PLANS

TELEGRAPHIC advices received from the Pacific Coast at the New York offices of United Artists this week indicated that Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks, who arrived in America two weeks ago and journeyed immediately after the Rudolph Valentino funeral to Hollywood, have canceled plans for their proposed trip to the Orient.

Mary and Doug had announced that they would remain but two weeks in California and then go to the Orient, but plans which the famous stars are making for their next productions preclude the possibility at present.

H VIVE LA MANHATTAN!

HOLLYWOOD is not necessarily the land of screen opportunity which it is reputed to be, in the opinion of Una Wheeler, who spent five years as an extra on the Coast without achieving her goal, recently came East and was assigned immediately to the task of doubling for Esther Ralston in "The Quarterback," after which she was given a special bit in the New Orleans cafe scene of "God Gave Me Twenty Cents." (Los Angeles papers please copy.)

T WARNER WINNIPEG GUEST

THE guest of honor at last week's meeting of the Screen Club of Winnipeg was H. M. Warner, who was received enthusiastically. He spoke briefly on future plans of the company, not overlooking, of course, the Vitaphone.

W A. M. P. A. OFFICERS START

WITH an attendance of more than a hundred members and their guests the first meeting of the new administration of the Associated Motion Picture Advertisers, Inc., got off to a highly successful start in what was described as "an atmosphere of beauty, brains and brawn" at the Mid-Town Hofbrau Haus on Broadway last Thursday, September 16.

Ten of the national beauty contest winners from Atlantic City were among the attractions. Mathew and Frank King, eccentric vaudeville dancers, put on an act that went over big. And honor guests and speakers at the turnout were Frank Wells, son of H. G. Wells, distinguished English author, who has brought to this country a picture produced from a story written by his father and who is now engaged on a series of two-reelers, and Hugh Brooke, also an Englishman, who is directing the Wells stories.

Grace M. Findley, assistant editor of The Film News, was also presented at the gathering.

The meeting was the first at which the new A. M. P. A. officers, elected the preceding week, participated. They were Walter Eberhardt, president, who presided; S. Charles Einfeld, vice-president; Mel Shauer, treasurer, and Ed Finney, secretary.

In a notice to members Walter Eberhardt, the new A. M. P. A. chief, paid a nice compliment to his predecessor, Mr. Allvine, and set forth a program for the coming year. He said:

"The present year could start under no happier auspices than the knowledge of the continued active interest of its retiring president. In fact, believing that no organization can ever be greater than the men who created it, it is one of the first aims of the present administration to retain the interest and good-will of the organization's long-time members. Hesitatingly, because the term has been abused so often, we add another ambition: to propagate even further the spirit of boosting for our own members."

A SCOUT SEND-OFF

ALL picture stars leaving Los Angeles for the East are given some sort of farewell demonstration at the railroad station. There are friends, books, candy, kisses, handshakes and what-not. It is like a European leave-taking.

Those who were present at the Santa Fe station last Sunday, however, saw an unusual bon voyage send-off. It was to Fred Thomson, who stars in Western pictures, and who had just finished a big special called "A Regular Scout," which deals with the Boy Scouts of America. Fred is a former Scout executive.

Three troops of scouts in uniform, with full field equipment marched to the station in Fred's honor. They had worked with him in the making of the picture, and had climbed with him to the upper reaches of Mt. Whitney, the highest peak in the United States.

"Silver King," Thomson's famous white horse and the handsomest equine in the movies, was also brought down to the station, riding luxuriously in his own motor truck, from which he alighted in a dignified way and went forward and "shook hands" with his master. As the train pulled out, the scouts stood at attention and then waved their flags in farewell, while Silver nodded his white head and pawed with his right fore foot.

Thomson is going to New York on a vacation, and incidentally will witness the Dempsey-Tunney boxing championship in Philadelphia. He is an athlete himself and a winner of several prizes in the Olympic games.

OVER THE WATER

AN item of interest in the week's news from across the water is the announcement that Piccadilly Pictures, of England, will do Noel Coward's play, "Easy Virtue," played here by Jane Cowl, with the author personally supervising. Graham Cutts will direct.

Another interesting bulletin from the same concern is the announcement that Flora Le Breton, who visited these shores for three years, appearing with success on both stage and screen, has been signed to appear in a Piccadilly production.

PLAYHOUSE TO SHOW FILMS

MICHAEL MINDLIN, Broadway producer, has assumed management of the Fifth Avenue Playhouse, at 66 Fifth Avenue, between Twelfth and Thirteenth streets, New York City, and will open the house early in October as a motion picture theatre.

The policy of the theatre will be devoted to the presentation of European and American pictures of artistic interest and distinction. There will be revivals of past productions that merit reviewing, with interesting short subjects that do not ordinarily find place in the usual motion picture programs. Several novelties are being planned as special features of the Playhouse programs. One of these will be the weekly showing of news reels of considerably greater length than those shown at other picture houses.

LEW AND MABEL WED

MIDNIGHT last Thursday brought the climax to Lew Cody's courtship of Mabel Normand in the small office of Judge Thomas H. Neilandt, Ventura County Recorder. Escorted by two Beverly Hills motorcycle policemen and accompanied by Margaret Namara and Minert Lord, the couple made a hurried automobile trip from Cody's home in Hollywood to Ventura for this unexpected ceremony.

Following a long but carefully guarded courtship, Cody proposed to Miss Normand early Thursday evening and was accepted. An hour later he kept an engagement to speak over the radio, and shortly afterwards was speeding to Ventura.

Little Mary Ann Jackson, tiny comedienne in Mack Sennett's Pathe comedies, wanted to raise egg plants in her garden, so she planted eggs, much to the dismay of Ruth Hiatt and Raymond McKee, who had other plans for the garden—and the eggs

Ten Firms 1925 Earnings $24,115,089

"Wall Street News" Terms Industry a $1,500,000,000 Enterprise; Banking Affiliations Prove Stability of Business

TEN film companies' combined net earnings for 1925 were $24,115,089, with only one firm showing a deficit for the year, according to "The Wall Street News," which also estimates the industry at a $1,500,000,000 enterprise. The importance of the banking houses identified with the financing of pictures proves the "esteem and confidence with which this industry is regarded," says the "News."

"Control of the industry is no longer in the hands of a few individuals as all the leading corporations have entered into the realm of Wall Street, giving the investing public an opportunity to aid in the expansion and share in the profits of this $1,500,000,000 industry," the article states. "About 60,000 shareholders in seven production companies listed on the New York Stock Exchange own more than 11,000,000 shares of stock."

"Over a period of years the larger companies have demonstrated a stability of earning power superior to many other industries. Their steadily increasing profits year after year has proved that even in times of general depression, the motion picture business has been slow to reflect unfavorable conditions and has been quick to participate in returning prosperity."

There are around 20,300 picture theatres in the United States, with a seating capacity of over 15,500,000, having an average weekly patronage of 130,000,000 persons, continues the article. It lists 811 features

Free Sunday Shows Given in Baltimore

MOTION pictures were shown on Sunday, September 12, at the public band concert, given free of charge at Federal Hill, Baltimore. Sunday motion pictures at the regular movie houses are not permitted. Commenting upon the matter, Robert Garland, in the Post, said: "A few of us wondered why, if Freddie Huber (municipal director of music) can give Sunday movies on Federal Hill, can't Guy Wonders—but, of course, the paid admission is the sinful thing. There's nothing more harmful than passing 60 cents through a box office window." Wonders manages the Rivoli.

planned for the 1926-27 season, compared with 696 last year, when $125,000,000 was spent in production.

Development of the foreign field is without limitation, it is declared, pointing out that the popularity of American pictures, which command up to 90 per cent of the showings, represents from 25 to 40 per cent of the industry's revenue.

The ten companies, whose combined net income totaled $24,115,089 are: Famous, First National, Fox Film, B. F. Keith, Loew's, Inc., M.-G.-M., Motion Picture Capital, Orpheum Circuit, Pathe Exchange and Universal Pictures. Warners finished the year with deficit of $1,337,826, due to a reorganization of the company, whose profits this year are expected to soar as a result of Vitaphone.

Combined assets of these firms total $109,189,002, as against liabilities of $33,598,785.

Below will be found two tables showing how the film dollar is spent, according to "The Wall Street News."

Publix to Operate Ft. Worth Theatre

House to Seat 2500 at Cost of $2,500,000; Loew-A. S. Friend Interests Form Company to Manage Two in Connecticut

CONTRACT for an eighteen-story hotel and theatre to be erected at Fort Worth by Jesse H. Jones, Houston capitalist, has been awarded to the Hewitt Construction Company of Houston, and announcement was made at the same time by Jones that Publix would operate the theatre, when completed.

The theatre when completed, according to the plans, will cost more than $2,500,000 and will be one of the largest in the South, having a seating capacity of more than 2,500.

As yet the house has not been named, while the hotel will be named "The Worth." Publix officials, including Sam Katz, who recently visited the city, announced that the interior appointments would be the most elegant to be found anywhere in the South.

A new operating company, the Haven-London Operating Co., said to be a subsidiary of the Loew-A. S. Friend interests, has been organized in Connecticut to operate the Roger Sherman Theatre in New Haven and the new Garde Theatre in New London, with headquarters in Hartford.

With the organization of this company announcement is made that motion picture and vaudeville programs will be inaugurated at the Roger Sherman, New Haven's newest theatre, and at the Garde, newest and largest of New London's theatres, which is now completed. Both these houses have been operated by the A. S. Friend Companies of New York City.

Incorporators of the Haven-London Company are Robert A. McLean, Frank C. Taylor and Ferdinand H. Butehorn, all of Brooklyn, and Cornelius F. Ferris, of Staten Island, N.Y., all listed as connected with the Corporation Trust Co. of New York. Mr. Butehorn is listed as president of the company and a thousand shares of stock of no par value are authorized.

No information is forthcoming as to when the new company will assume control of the two houses.

Blackall, Clapp & Whittemore, Boston architects, have submitted sketches to Joseph M. Schenck for a theatre for Boston in the recently announced intention of the United Artists-Stanley Company group to construct a chain of theatres in the larger cities, the first of which is to be built in Philadelphia.

It is understood that the Boston playhouse will not be as large as that contemplated for Philadelphia but will have from 2,000 to 2,500 seats. So far as is known in Boston, no site has been chosen for the Boston theatre up to the present time.

The Isis and Madrid theatres, two of Kansas City's finest suburban theatres, have been purchased by Universal Chain Theatres Corp., although confirmation of the deal has not yet been announced. The deal is known to have been pending for a long period. Details of the deal have not been revealed.

Three Colorado Managers Come Up for Trial

Wednesday, September 22nd was the date set for the second trial of the three Colorado Springs theatre managers who were convicted in the Magistrate's Court for violating a "blue" ordinance which forbids Sunday amusements for pay. The managers of the America, Burns, and Rialto theatres of Colorado Springs, who a month ago were fined $200.00 and costs in Police Court because they opened their doors on Sunday and took up a collection, immediately appealed their cases and continued to run on Sunday but without receiving a contribution.

Heavy Damage to Theatres in Florida Hurricane

But Situation in Miami Not So Severe as Reported, Harold Franklin Wires to the Motion Picture News

By HAROLD B. FRANKLIN

Vice-President, Publix Theatres Corp.

(Special Telegram to Motion Picture News)

WEST PALM BEACH, FLORIDA, SEPT. 22.—The situation in Miami so far as theatres are concerned, is not half as severe as originally reported. No one in our organization has been hurt. Olympia Theatre and building were practically not touched, proving conclusively that sound construction can go through any storm untouched and in the long run proves the most economical and safest.

Our Fairfax Theatre will be ready to open within a few days. Fotoshow, a new theatre we are building, is not damaged at all. Theatre in Coral Gables will be reopened within seven days. Theatre at Miami Beach will be reopened within next ten days. Our theatre in Little River lost part of its roof which will be replaced within next few weeks. Paramount and Hippodrome theatres will require new roofs, which will be replaced within two weeks. We could run show to-night if electric company could give us juice. This will probably be forthcoming within few days.

Miami To Be Stronger

Miami will come out of this storm greater and stronger than before. It is amazing how all interests here are pulling together for a greater and bigger Miami, and if future builders will build as strong and solid as we did the Olympia, no storm need be feared at any time.

We have no reports on Fort Lauderdale, but think that the situation there is more severe than here, as this town is of mushroom growth and the buildings are rather flimsy. I have a crew investigating the situation.

Stages Midnight Shows to Evade Texas Blue Laws

ALL indications point to the unpopularity of the blue laws if the experiment tried out by a Texan exhibitor can be said to hold water. Colonel H. A. Cole, head of the Texas unit, presented midnight shows at his Lyric in Jefferson with gratifying results. The Lyric seats three hundred but on its midnight performance $90 was taken in at the box office. This, it is said, demonstrates the feelings of the town folk with regard to the blue law situation which is proving so vexing to Texas theatre owners.

ATLANTA, GA., SEPT. 22.—The West Indian hurricane which swept Florida throughout Saturday and Sunday, leaving death and destruction in its wake, wrought the greatest disaster in the history of the State. Theatres in twenty-one Florida towns are known to be out of commission, some utterly destroyed and all too seriously damaged to resume operation.

The Atlanta Film Board of Trade compiled data today showing that houses in the following towns have discontinued film service: Miami, Sarasota, Fort Myers, Venice, Moore Haven, Perrine, Homestead, Hollywood, Dania, La Belle, Boynton, Buena Vista, Salerno, Okeechobee, Little River, Hialeah, Allapatah, Coral Gables, Coconut Grove, Ojus and Lemon City.

The beautiful Olympia Theatre, new Publix house in Miami, is standing two feet in water. Universal's Capitol Theatre in Miami is badly damaged. The Dream Theatre, nearing completion in Coral Gables, is utterly destroyed, according to the report of its owner, Edward Crane.

While the work of restoration has already started at some points, progress will be retarded by general confusion and the necessity of emergency work incident to housing, feeding and clothing sufferers. In many towns, where physical damage is not so serious, lack of electric current precludes operating theatres. No definite report has come from Mobile and Pensacola, but much damage was done to property and some to life.

Word has just been received from Dan Michalove, Universal theatre supervisor in the South, that service will soon be resumed in the two Universal theatres in Fort Myers—the Omar and Arcade. Universal's new Edwards Theatre in Sarasota, whose roof was lifted bodily by the storm, expects to resume shortly. Charles G. Branham is manager of the Edwards.

The storm did not reach Montgomery, Ala., but high winds from the hurricane area fanned a flame Tuesday that broke out on Dexter avenue, completely destroying the Plaza Theatre, a Class C Publix house, according to Hoxie Farley, Publix city manager for Montgomery. Farley says restoration will begin at once.

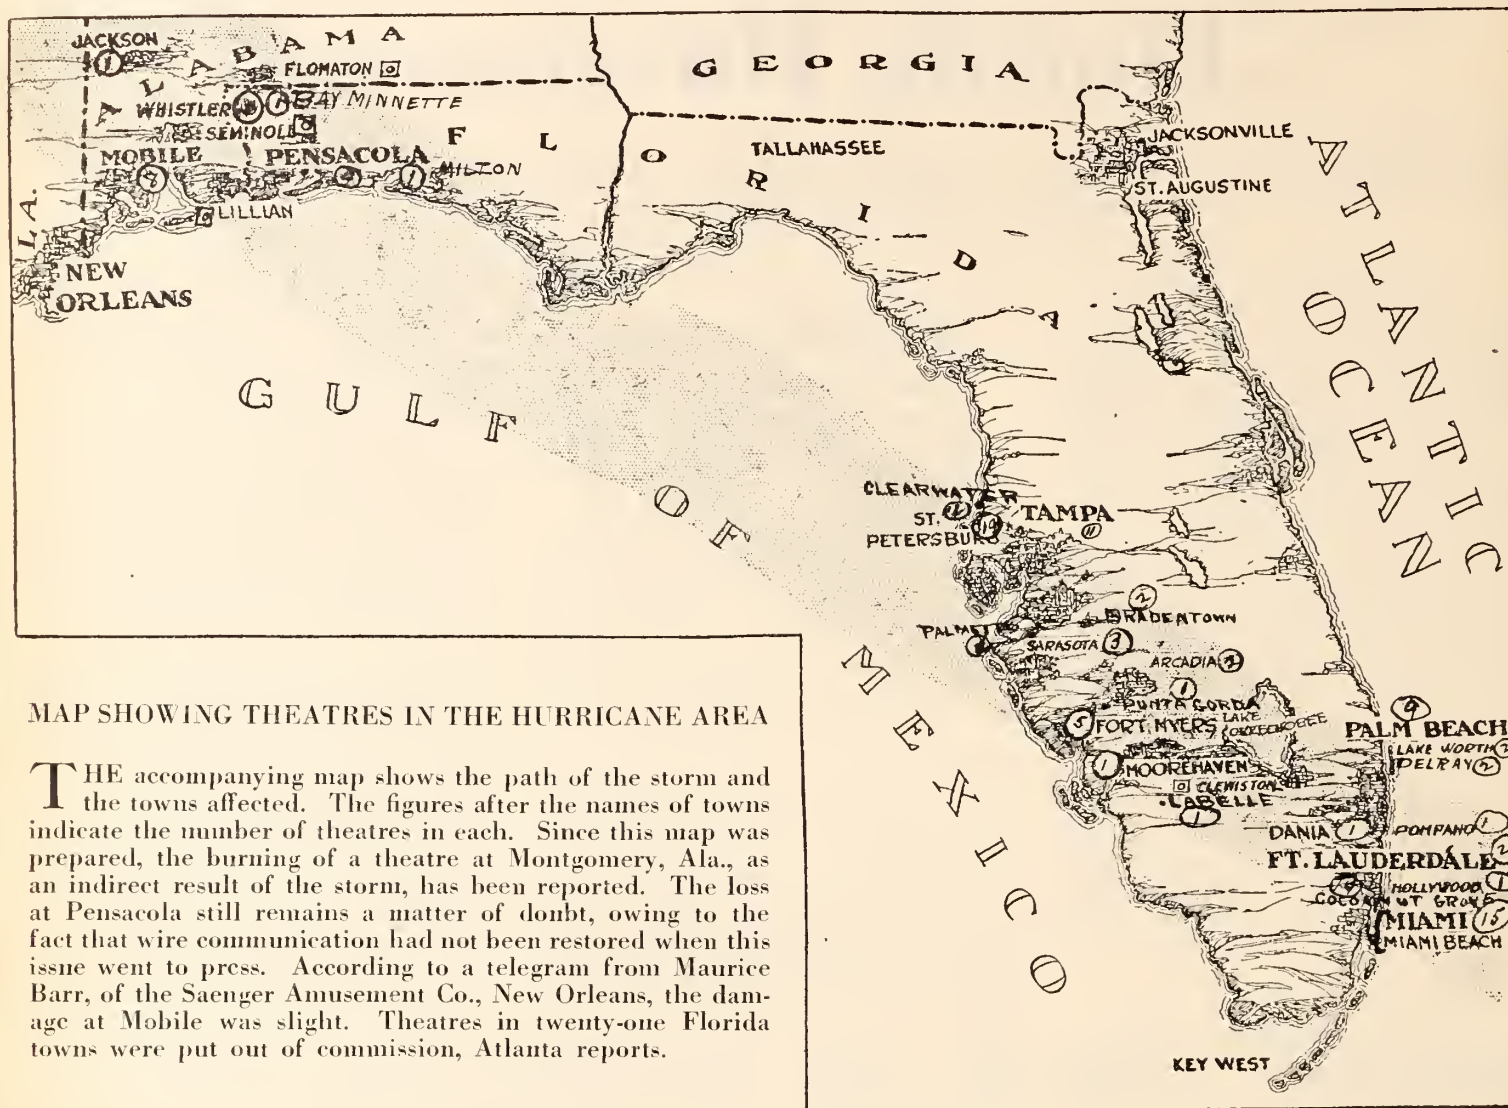

All Publix Class A houses in this territory will give benefit performances for the Florida storm sufferers, most of the performances being set for midnight Friday and Saturday and Sunday afternoons. Musicians, stage hands and all employees are giving services without charge, the entire proceeds going to relief fund. The city of Atlanta has sent $50,000 to the sufferers, with more to follow.

MAP SHOWING THEATRES IN THE HURRICANE AREA

THE accompanying map shows the path of the storm and the towns affected. The figures after the names of towns indicate the number of theatres in each. Since this map was prepared, the burning of a theatre at Montgomery, Ala., as an indirect result of the storm, has been reported. The loss at Pensacola still remains a matter of doubt, owing to the fact that wire communication had not been restored when this issue went to press. According to a telegram from Maurice Barr, of the Saenger Amusement Co., New Orleans, the damage at Mobile was slight. Theatres in twenty-one Florida towns were put out of commission, Atlanta reports.

WHEN reports of the hurricane began to reach New York and the Publix offices, the seriousness of the situation at once became apparent to Mr. Franklin and his associates. Mr. Franklin then prepared to go at once to the stricken zone and plans were set in motion for the organization of construction engineers. Mr. Franklin left New York at four o'clock Monday morning, with R. E. Hall, of the Hall Engineering Company.

At Jacksonville, the Franklin party was joined by Arthur J. Amm, Florida district manager for Publix, and others, Tuesday night, and they left within a few hours for Southern Florida. It was hoped that they could get as far as West Palm Beach by rail, where they expected they would have to complete the remaining seventy miles by motor. At St. Augustine, Mr. Franklin sent a dispatch direct to Motion Picture News. It is printed in another column.

The region south of Palm Beach lay directly in the path of the storm, and it was here that the heaviest damage to theatres occurred. The Publix houses at Lake Worth, however, were unharmed and these, the Oakley and the Liberty, resumed operations. At West Palm Beach the Kettler, Stanley and Rialto were also undamaged.

The Publix theatres in Tampa were turned into relief stations and shelter for the homeless.

Dan Michaelove, general manager of Universal theatres in the South, reported to the home office in New York that three of the company's theatres were damaged in the hurricane. These were the Edwards, Sarasota, Airdome and Arcade, Fort Myers. The damage to the other Universal theatres was reported slight.

The Edwards was partially muroofed by the gale; the electric sign and marquee were blown down and the pipe organ and scenery wrecked. The elevated projection booth on the Airdome, together with all the equipment, was blown away. The Arcade Theatre in Fort Myers was flooded.

Earle, of Pathe, Films Miami Storm

News Photographer, in Hospital After Arriving in New York
With First Pictures of Disaster, Tells of Horrors

By PAUL THOMPSON

RALPH EARLE is as anxious to see Mr. Thompson as Mr. Thompson can possibly be to see him." This was the re-assuring telephone message relayed to me in his office by Emanuel Cohen, editor of Pathe News. It was through him I was trying to make an appointment at the hospital with the camera man who had photographed the Miami disaster and then by train and plane come north to deliver in person his news-reels. This cordiality on the part of the man who had done a really exceptional bit of work to receive me in the guise of an interviewer was flatteringly based on his acquaintanceship with my own many years' work as one of the country's news photographers. His being in the hospital was due to what he had gone through during the period of taking for his company the photographs of the Florida hurricane and its work of devastation, and the mad dash north with the results.

Curiously, my apprenticeship for interviewing plucky Earle was served just prior to the interview by witnessing for review purposes a Pathe comedy. This was based on the idea of a copy boy in a newspaper office with ambitions to become a first-string reporter and the realization of these self-same ambitions. What better way to learn the reportorial art?

"Can't Put Excuses on Screen"

"You can't put excuses on the screen to explain the absence of news-reel pictures; so whatever else you do, keep that camera dry." In that statement made to his garage-employee helper in carrying the tripod and camera when the twain left the Miami garage to take scenes of the disaster is the summing up of the character of Ralph Earle, Pathe camera man.

Knowing that he was in Miami, Manager Cohen had no doubts about the quality of the pictures which his organization would get to send out. It was merely a question of what would be the earliest possible moment that they would reach Jersey City for copies to be made to rush to the theatres of the country supplied by his company. With the destruction of the Sikorsky plane which Fonek was to drive to Paris in the first non-stop flight, a news story which was carefully and painstakingly to be covered by Pathe, the news-reel department on Forty-fifth Street had cause enough for worry without devoting too much thought to Florida and Earle.

The faith was justified. The pictures came through hugged more or less closely to the chest of the man who had taken them, even though the camera man's next stop was a private hospital on Fortieth Street. Here he was to have bruises and abrasions cared for, his shoes and stockings cut off and the lower parts of his body bathed and tenderly swathed in bandages. Complete rest and sufficient and the right kind of food were also prescribed with a few incidental shots of anti-toxin to make certain there would be no disastrous after effects from his Florida experience. And twenty-four hours after his admission to the hospital the news-reel man was begging the doctor to re-assure the boss that he was sufficiently recovered and healthy to justify his going to Philadelphia on Thursday for the Dempsey-Tunney fight. Granted the boon, he promised to return to the hospital on Friday for a longer stay. Of such stuff are the right sort of news-camera men made, men with a reportorial sense and a knowledge of how and when to turn the crank and—most important—possessors of that inelegant but eloquent word called "guts."

There was, according to Earle, presence of the storm that was to come as early as Friday afternoon in Miami. Editors Leyshone and Irwin, of the Daily News, had published in that afternoon's last edition a notice to the effect that they would print extras that night of the progress of the storm when it arrived. It was in their office, where they were lingering long after their paper had gone to press, that Earle got his first advance dope on the coming cyclone or hurricane. The weather report, on the other hand, distinctly said "Pay no attention to any pessimistic prophecies of a storm; there is nothing to it. It is merely newspaper publicity," but failed to explain just wherein any newspaper could profit by such dire forebodings. Incidentally, the Daily News did get out their extras, even though as late as four P. M. on Sunday the floor of the city room, three flights up, was six inches deep in water.

What Happened in Miami

Things started happening late Friday night and early Saturday morning and continued with no cessation for a long time to follow. In the garage where Earle was quartered, windows and doors started blowing in. Taking charge of the camp, Earle got busy trying to barricade the doors with automobiles and planks as though an invading army of humans rather than the elements were attempting to storm the refuge. His assistants were unworthy of the name for the most part. One stood helpless with a plank to be used for propping a door. He didn't know whether to lay it down or merely continue holding it until Earle profanely grabbed it and put it in place.

Protected for the moment, the news instinct became operative. Under bed cover he loaded his camera and waited. He did not have long to wait. First one section of the roof, then a second fell in. A few seconds later a door gave way and Earle and Jerry, one of the garage men, were swept out into the street. His description suggests Harry Langdon in the hurricane scenes in "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp," but this was not comedy but dire reality. Jerry clung terror-stricken to Earle's legs. A stiff punch freed the operator temporarily. They worked their way back into the garage and with the approaching dawn Earle made his first picture. This was through a crack in the door of the garage. The second was through a broken window, the jagged edges showing in the news-reel positive on the screen. The third exposure was in the kitchen back of the firehouse, through a torn-out screen. The wind was blowing so hard (only about one hundred and twenty miles an hour) that setting up a tripod was out of the question. Leaving the garage after the first two pictures, Earle's helper fell into a hole. And then came a stream of profanity, according to the operator himself, directed toward his luckless helper that would have been worthy of a cattleman or longshoreman. Incidentally, the advice mentioned above about the inability of theatre screens to publish, with any success, excuses for news-reels which were not being unreeled.

But He Got the Pictures

So great was the force of the wind that Earle would focus his camera as he felt it should be approximately with his back to the wind and then turn holding the instrument and shoot into the face of the gale to get his desired pictures. Not a chance for the usual stability a tripod guarantees. Now venturing out into the open, everywhere the operator found wreckage, but people, mostly in bathing suits, trying to be cheerful. None of the important buildings, especially those of steel construction, were affected, but the wooden one-story buildings, booths, etc., were completely wrecked. Palm trees that have stood for generations were the great sufferers. The shipping of the port also suffered even more than the buildings on land. On the causeway were steamers and autos which were complete wrecks. There were at least fifty boats, oil burners and others, ranging from twenty to two hundred feet in length, which were blown from the bay two and three blocks from the water-front. At least one hundred motor house-boats were cast on land or completely wrecked. They were lined up around the band-stand, where Arthur Pryor's band held forth last year, as though in expectancy of a concert about to start to make them forget their battle with the elements.

Martial law having been declared, Earle saw one lone traffic policeman holding at bay on the causeway at least five hundred autoists anxious to cross to where their own property was located; not tramps, but the solid, conservative business men of Miami. And not a chance to defeat the efforts of that one representative of the law. All this time no gas, electricity, water or lights. Food of the canned variety, but that was all. Storekeepers generous in handing out food and not wishing to accept money for the same. Two nights of sleeping on floors, meals of near-beer, canned milk, some fruit and that was about all. And all the time whenever there was light, grinding, grinding, grinding with the moving picture camera for the rest of the world to see, and seeing, realize the extent of the catastrophe and then contribute to the cause of their fellow-beings in distress.

And always at his heels his faithful dog "Toots." Anxious, but unresponsive to caresses or occasional attentions during the storm and stress period, but once bound for the station seemingly with a realization that the first part of his master's work was completed, he jumped up with both forepaws to lick the face and hands of Earle as though in congratulation for "Well done, good and faithful servant."

Seemingly the worst part of the task was over. Forgotten were the boots and socks and clothes never removed during the two days and nights and the fatigue. But within fifty feet of the depot the second physical accident came. (The first had been from a missile projected by the wind which had caught Earle on the temple in the garage, and, inflicting a deep gash, had knocked him out temporarily). This second disaster was a truck smashing against his hip as the operator stood on the running board of his requisitioned car. He couldn't escape. Credit Miami with damage to Earle's hip and to the photographer wound stripe number two.

A Mad Dash North

Miami was fast disappearing in the distance as the train sped toward Jacksonville. In the latter city at 6 A. M. Monday, the next problem was a plane to Atlanta. Three hundred and fifty dollars demanded, two hundred and fifty of this cash in hand, was the modest price asked by an altruistic sportsman named Price for the use of one of his planes. To him of no interest whatsoever that the rest of the United States should see these pictures, and their hearts and purses being touched would contribute assistance to his fellow Floridians. Business is business. Even when the money had with the greatest difficulty been raised by Earle, then the beggar went back on his agreement.

He preferred to fly to Miami anyway rather than carry him and his pictures to Atlanta. Thus eight precious hours lost (and only a newspaper man or news-reel manager or operator knows how precious they can be) and the regular air mail plane shoving off at 2.30 Monday afternoon on the Florida Airways line was the only alternative. From Atlanta, Doug Davis in a Baby Ruth machine took off with Earle but had to come down at Greenville at five-thirty that afternoon on account of darkness. In the latter town the flying news-cameraman just missed the train for Washington, D. C., on which a section had been reserved for him. Ultimately Washington anyway. Again a plane with the terminal at Jersey City between three and four o'clock Tuesday afternoon. To the Pathe laboratories there and copies of the news reel were soon on their way to every part of the United States and abroad by steamer and Earle's work was done.

Casanave Making Headway With Ohio Assoc.

THE newly organized Associated Theatres of Ohio, established by Charles L. Casanave for Cleveland motion picture exhibitors and theatre owners, is making decided headway. Casanave's collective buying unit now totals twenty-two houses, the recent contractions being the Scoville Essick and Reiff circuit representing seven houses, Paul Gusdanovie's five theatres, Victor Wolcott's two theatres and other independent houses. The first aim of the organization is not to secure pictures at less money by collective, but to protect the investment of the theatre owner. As protection is gained through the power and prestige of combined theatre control, Casanave would like to have his organization described as "constructive, collective buying." The Associated Theatres of Ohio, besides buying pictures, will also establish an exploitation department and go in for collective equipment buying. Casanave remains as permanent head of the organization located at 401 Film Exchange Building, Cleveland, Ohio.

As Pepys would have put it in his diary, "And then to bed in a hospital in New York" and the story was told as far as the camera man is concerned. But not entirely.

The public will never know the rest. They will have seen the pictures on the screen and wonder mildly how they were gotten. But they will not know that the man who took them, forgetting everything else, hunger, cold, discomfort, physical pain, loss of sleep and all the incidental tragedies of working under such conditions, had just seen the loss of a year's work with a valuation of approximately thirty-thousand dollars worth of pictures. Gone never to be replaced and by the same hurricane that was to add to his stature and reputation as a daring operator. For almost one year Earle has been working in Miami on a series of pictures for the Chamber of Commerce of that city and for Pathe. Now he must start the work all over again. But in the hospital with the bulliest pluck in the world, he merely said, "Oh well; it's all part of the game; it might be worse."

That's all. Part of the tradition of the craft and why they make good. The Japanese earthquake did the same thing to his work of a year in the land of the Mikado, destroying one of the finest laboratories the Far East has ever seen, only a few days after it had been completed. By now, Earle's philosophy is not a temporal thing; it is part of his make-up. "It might be worse" as a slogan, might fittingly be borrowed by some of the rest of us.

Exhibitor Assoc. of Michigan Postpones Meet

The seventh annual convention of the exhibitor association of Michigan, scheduled for Battle Creek, has been postponed to October 19th and 20th. The negotiations in the recent labor dispute are said to have been the cause of the postponement.

Publix Midnight Matinees

Among the first answers to Florida's call for aid is the announcement issued by Publix Theatres Corporation to the effect that two hundred of its representative theatres, from coast to coast, will jointly stage midnight benefit performances next Saturday night, September 25th, with all proceeds going to the Florida Relief Fund. While it is impossible to predict the amount of money that will be secured, it will probably be the largest single donation ever raised for an emergency fund by any one organization as the theatres represented are among the largest and are located in America's largest cities.

They include the Rivoli and Rialto in New York City, the Metropolitan in Boston, the Buffalo in Buffalo, the Michigan in Detroit, the Balaban & Katz theatres in Chicago, the Missouri and Ambassador in St. Louis, the Newman and Royal in Kansas City, the Metropolitan and Million Dollar in Los Angeles, the Granada, California and St. Francis in San Francisco, the Howard in Atlanta, the Palace in Dallas, the Capitol in Des Moines, the Tivoli in Chattanooga, the Rialto in Denver and many others.

Instructions have been dispatched to all Publix theatres by Sam Katz, president, calling upon every local organization for full co-operation. The benefit performances are to include the full presentation of motion pictures and musical features. Local talent will be invited to participate and every effort will be made to make the event, collectively, the biggest civic demonstration ever achieved by a theatrical organization. Full returns are expected on Monday, Sept. 27th, at which time the accumulated receipts will be turned over to the Florida Relief Fund.

The Rivoli Theatre, New York, on Saturday will stage a big midnight benefit performance with all proceeds going to the Florida Relief Fund. This midnight performance will be one of 200 that will be simultaneously staged Saturday by Publix. The special performances at the Rivoli Saturday night will include the regular Rivoli program, consisting of the feature picture attraction, "You'd Be Surprised," starring Raymond Griffith, and the regular stage presentations.

Philly Managers and Unions Work Harmoniously Again

The theatrical stage managers of Philadelphia have patched up the differences existing between themselves and the stage hands and operators by granting increases of approximately $5.00 per week to the latter. Representatives from both organizations at the last conference agreed to these terms, although the final contracts between the organizations have not been signed. There remain now but the final details to be approved by the active members of the managers' association and the union. The musicians had their grievances amicably arranged some weeks ago with the granting of a new two years' contract which became effective on Labor Day.

Douglas Fairbanks' Niece in New Swanson Film

Florence Faire, daughter of John Fairbanks, brother and former manager of the United Artists' star, has arrived in New York to play in "Eyes of Youth," Gloria Swanson's first production for United Artists. Miss Faire's real name, Florence Belle Fairbanks, was dropped though Douglas Fairbanks offered to help her in any way and declared that he had no objection to her using the family name for screen purposes. But Miss Faire said that she wanted to make her own way and her new name was decided upon at a conference at the Cosmopolitan studio with her mother and Albert Parker, the director, who made a screen test of Miss Faire when she graduated from college last year. It was Parker who showed the test to Miss Swanson who immediately telegraphed Miss Faire to come East for a part in the film play.

Other new players in the Swanson picture are John Boles, musical comedy star; Andres de Segurola, impresario and opera singer and Hugh Miller, who has been starred in English and German productions.

Few New York Firms Seek Incorporation Charters

There was about the average number of motion picture companies incorporated in New York State during the past week. Records in the secretary of state's office show the following companies as having incorporated, the capitalization and the directors being given: Pond Amusement Co., Inc., $100,000, Marcus Franks, Sophie Furman, Morris Jablow, New York City; Bamman and Fielding, Inc., $25,000, Maurice L. Fielding, George Bamman, Eugene Donovan, New York; Chues, Incorporated, capitalization not specified, Francis P. Pace, Nathan Messinger, David J. Brown, New York City; Volga Photo Play Corporation, $10,000, Vladimir E. Leslie, Alexis M. Joukovsky, Gabril W. Sollovieff, New York City.

"Paying the Price" Supplants Columbia Working Title

The new Columbia film now in production, under the working title of "Paying the Price," has been given the release title of "Money Isn't Everything." Harry Cohn, vice-president and general production manager of Columbia Pictures, thought this move advisable in as much as the story is based on society and high finance. Ralph Ince, besides directing the picture, portrays the leading role with Dorothy Revier playing opposite him. In the supporting cast are Eugene Strong, Hazel Howell and Armand Kaliz. Dorothy Howell did the adaptation from a story by Harry Hoyt.

Famous Players Canadian Opens London Office

N. L. Nathanson, managing director of Famous Players Canadian Corp., Toronto, has made formal announcement that his company has opened a booking office in London, England, for the purpose of looking over British film production with a view to its purchase for Famous Players' chain of 100 theatres in Canada.

Increase in Motion Picture Exports During Month of July

MOTION picture exports during the month of July showed a decided increase over the preceding month, totaling 26,115,214 feet, valued at $831,942, as compared with 20,384,572 feet, valued at $618,993, according to the monthly report of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

All classes of film showed decided increases over June, both in footage and value. July exports included 6,129,297 feet of unexposed film, with a value of $109,990, as compared with 2,568,041 feet, with a value of $76,049, in June; negatives, 731,224 feet, valued at $159,619, as compared with 312,150 feet, valued at $53,446, and positives, 18,043,787 feet, worth $546,983, as compared with 15,713,391 feet, worth $464,319. Our exports to non-contiguous territories totaled 1,210,906 feet, valued at $18,350, as compared with 1,789,990 feet, valued at $25,179.

Argentina took the place formerly occupied by Australia as the largest importer of positive films, taking in July 1,966,314 feet, valued at $60,970, with Canada in second place with 1,628,337 feet, valued at $47,853. The United Kingdom, as usual, was our best market for negative film, taking 484,102 feet, valued at $121,835, but France was the largest importer of raw stock, taking 4,047,200 feet, valued at $46,568.

May Get Copyright Protection

Showing of Picture Simultaneously in Union and Non-Union Country Deemed Sufficient

THAT the publication (showing) of a picture in a country which is a member of the Copyright Union simultaneously with its release in a non-Union country guarantees full copyright protection for the film is the opinion of Fritz Ostertag, Director of the International Bureau of Artistic and Intellectual Property at Berne. This interpretation of the articles of the International Copyright Conference of Berlin of 1908 sounds the virtual death of the "piracy" practice, although the United States is not a member country.

This opinion was secured by the Department of Commerce through Bernard A. Kosicki, Division of Commercial Law. The Ostertag opinion may not be accepted as indisputable, Kosicki points out, because interpretation of the Convention rests with tribunals of the Union country before which the question may be raised. However, states Kosicki, the opinion makes protection for films under the stipulated conditions "reasonably certain."

The countries which form the Copyright Union and which are bound by the articles of the Convention of 1908 are as follows: Australia, Austria, Belgium, Bulgaria, Brazil, Canada, Czecho-Slovakia, Danzig, Denmark (including Faroe Islands), France (including the French colonies, Algeria, and the mandates Syria and Lebanon), Germany, Great Britain (including colonies, possessions, certain protectorates, and the mandate Palestine), Greece, Haiti, Hungary, Italy, Japan, Liberia, Luxembourg, Morocco (excepting Spanish zone), Monaco, Netherlands (including Dutch East Indies, Curacao and Surinam), New Zealand, Norway, Poland, Portugal, (including colonies), Spain (including colonies), Sweden, Switzerland, Tunis and the Union of South Africa.

Clark - McWilliams - McDonald Merges With M. Amuse.

Dispatches from El Dorado, Ark., announced the consolidation of the Maleo Amusement Company controlled by M. S. McCord, with the Clark-McWilliams-McDonald Company, of El Dorado. The new company will be known as the Arkansas Amusement Enterprises, Inc., and will have $500,000 capital of which $300,000 has been paid up.

The newly elected officers of the new company are M. A. Lightman, president; W. F. McWilliams, vice-president; E. J. Clark, secretary and treasurer, and M. S. McCord and M. J. Pruniski, directors.

The McCord houses taken over are Majestic, Princess and Plaza in El Dorado; Joy and Palace in Smackover; Rialto, Camden; Queen, Hope, Ark.; Princess and Strand, North Little Rock, and Plaza, Little Rock. The other houses included in the merger are the Rialto and Mission at El Dorado.

Albany Plans Better Film Salesman Methods

AN effort is to be made in the Albany district to bring about cleaner methods in selling among the film salesmen of that city, and to that end there will be a meeting and dinner at one of the Albany hotels on Monday night, September 20. All exchange managers and film salesmen in the city have been invited to attend and there will be a number of short talks on salesmanship. Alec Herman, who is the president of the Albany Film Board of Trade, will preside.

FIRE PREVENTION REEL MADE Visualization of M. P. P. D. A. Efforts

THROUGH the cooperation of the executives of the companies comprising the Hays organization, a one-reel picture dealing with the fire hazards to be avoided in film exchanges, is being directed by J. S. MacLeod, Manager of Exchange Maintenance for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. It will be titled "A Reel Exchange."

For three years the fire prevention committee of the Hays organization has labored in instructing exchange employees on the matter of housekeeping, and fire prevention and the reel will be a supplementary visualization of the teachings of the Committee.

It will be amusing as well as instructive and interesting, according to MacLeod who also prepared the script. At a later date each local Film Board of Trade will be given further details regarding the exhibition of the picture.

career as an exhibitor has been his gift as a public speaker, coupled with active and energetic public service work of a practical and constructive sort. He has always earnestly advocated that the exhibitor should take his place as one of the leading citizens of his community, which, as the industry learned early after Mr. Woodhull came into prominence, was exactly what he himself had done in his home town. During the last few years, also, he has made numerous addresses before women's clubs, merchants' associations, and other civic organizations in many cities, and has presided or spoken at important dinners of the industry on many occasions.

License Granted for Theatre in Residential Minneapolis

A special dispensation was seen this week in the granting of a license for a motion picture theatre in a residential section of Minneapolis. The license was given William L. Lydick over the protest of residents of the district when it appeared that the alderman of the ward, C. H. Rudsil, favored the grant. The matter was carried to the council floor where the vote was 24 to 2. It is said the action will lead to rehearing of other applications that have been turned down.

Exhibitor Leader Also Resigning as Official of M.P.T.O.A.—Future Plans Not Announced

R. F. WOODHULL, one of the best known exhibitor leaders in the country and former President of the M.P.T.O.A., announced this week that he had sold his theatre, the Baker, at Dover, N.J., to the Stanley-Fabian Corporation. Mr. Woodhull's partner, Henry Baker, also disposed of his interest and Stanley-Fabian took over the operation of the house on September 13. The new manager of the Baker is Ray J. Duserne, formerly manager of the Fox Terminal Theatre, Newark. The personnel otherwise remains unchanged.

At the same time, Mr. Woodhull announced that he was forwarding his resignation as national director and member of the finance committee to national headquarters of the M.P.T.O.A. He is also resigning from the Jersey M.P.T.O.

No announcement of his future plans was made by Mr. Woodhull, but when the sale of his theatre became known the hope was expressed in many quarters that he would remain in the industry.

The Baker Theatre, under Mr. Woodhull's direction, became known as one of the best houses in any small city, and has established a reputation as a genuine community center, besides being a fine money-maker.

The rise of Mr. Woodhull to a commanding position in exhibitor circles is well known throughout the trade. He was for three years President of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of New Jersey, and quickly took an important part in the councils of the national organization. For several years he has been a member of the national board of directors; served for a year as its chairman; and, in Milwaukee last year, was chosen President of the national organization, being succeeded at the Los Angeles convention last June by Eli Whitney Collins, of Arkansas.

A conspicuous feature of Mr. Woodhull's

Theatre Men Interested in Fight of Sesqui-Centennial to Continue Sunday Show

MANAGERS and theatre owners of Pennsylvania are keenly interested in the fight being waged by the managers of the Sesqui-Centennial Exposition in Philadelphia to keep the exhibition open on Sundays as the managers feel that the result of this controversy will determine finally whether pictures and theatricals may legally be offered to the public on Sunday.

As it stands now Judge William H. Hargest, in the County Court in Harrisburg, has handed down an opinion that the Sesqui cannot be kept open on Sundays. This ruling is subject to appeal to the higher Courts and, owing to the fact that thirty days is allowed for the filing of such an appeal, the Exposition can continue to open on Sundays until the middle of October. If the right of appeal is obtained in the interim, the Sesqui can continue to operate Sundays at least until the question is finally disposed of by the Court.

Warner Bros. Take Over N.Y. Colony Oct. 7th

ON Saturday night, October 2nd, the Colony Theatre in New York will be taken over by the Warner Bros. for the installation of the Vitaphone, which opens there in conjunction with the premiere of "The Better 'Ole" on October 7th.

Besides accompanying the film the Vitaphone will display the talents of Al Jolson, George Jessel, Elsie Janis, Willie and Eugene Howard and Reinhold Werrenrath, celebrated baritone. Additional artists who will lend versatility to the program are The Four Aristocrats, who will give a musical act of popular qualities.

There is very little screening remaining to be done on the Vitaphone features, Jolson, Jessel and Miss Janis having completed their acts. Werrenrath will complete his with the singing of "The Long, Long Trail" and "Heart of a Rose." The four aristocrats will then be screened. Herman Heller will have charge of the special musical accompaniment to be synchronized with the film.

Joan Crawford Selected for Lead in "Taxi Dancer"

After going through a list of players to portray the role of Joselyn Poe in "The Taxi Dancer," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer executives have decided upon Joan Crawford to play the part of the heroine in Robert Terry Shannon's story of the night clubs of New York. Miss Crawford was chosen from twenty-one other girls, and originally was not considered available for the part. It is her biggest role to date and one that will test her ability to the full. A. P. Younger has just finished the film continuity and adaptation of the Shannon novel. Harry Millarde will direct the picture. Bernard Hyman, assistant to Irving Thalberg, will supervise the production.

Dorothy Sebastian Signs Contract With M-G-M

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has placed Dorothy Sebastian under a new contract whereby her services will be retained for exclusive use by that company. Miss Sebastian appeared in "Winds of Chance," "Sackcloth and Scarlet," "Bluebeard's Seven Wives" and other films. She has also recently appeared opposite Tom Mix and Raymond Griffith. Prior to her entrance into pictures Miss Sebastian was a prominent figure on the musical comedy stage and appeared in George White's Scandals and other productions.

Georgia Hale in "The Man of the Forest"

In Paramount's picturization of the Zane Grey story, "The Man of the Forest," Georgia Hale will be the feminine lead. Miss Hale has just finished a featured role in "The Great Gatsby," a Herbert Brenon production. In the Zane Grey story Miss Hale will play opposite Jack Holt. John Waters will direct the picture which is being adapted by Walter Woods and scenarized by George C. Hull.

F. N. Names Five for October

East and West Coast Units Busy With Six in Preparation and Four in Work

FIVE productions will be released in October by First National, namely: "Don Juan's Three Nights," "Mismates," "The Prince of Tempters," "Forever After" and "Midnight Lovers."

The six productions on which shooting is proceeding and which are expected to reach completion within the month are: John McCormick's "Orchids and Ermine," starring Colleen Moore; "The Lady in Ermine," starring Corinne Griffith; "The White Black Sheep," starring Richard Barthelmess; "Long Pants," starring Harry Langdon; "Not Herbert," made under the production management of Ray Rockett and featuring Ben Lyon in the male lead; and "The Blonde Saint" with Sven Gade directing for Sam Rork and Doris Kenyon and Lewis Stone in the leading roles.

The four productions which have just been completed and are now ready to leave the cutting room are "Synecopating Sue," starring Corinne Griffith; "Stepping Along," starring Johnny Hines; "The Flame of the Border," starring Ken Maynard and "Just Another Blonde," an Alfred A. Santell production for Al Rockett's unit featuring Dorothy Mackaill and Jack Mulhall.

Among the four productions on which shooting has just been started or will start within the next few days the most important is the new Robert Kane special. As yet no definite title has been set for this picture but Dorothy Mackaill will have the leading feminine role and Lothar Mendes will direct. The continuity was written by Willis Goldbeck.

The three remaining pictures are a Johnny Hines comedy not yet definitely christened; June Mathis' production of "Here Y'Are Brother," from the story by Dixie Wilson, which Balboni will direct; and "McFadden's Flats," with Charlie Murray and Chester Conklin playing important parts. Richard Wallace will direct "McFadden's Flats." The continuity was written by Wallace, Rex Taylor and Jack Wagner. The cast of "Here Y'Are Brother" includes Lewis Stone, Billie Dove and Lloyd Hughes.

Schedules Vitaphone Opening

Sam Warner Attends Chicago Premiere; Device Soon Installed in Egyptian

WITH theatres in four cities now running Warner Bros. "Don Juan," with Vitaphone accompaniment, indefinitely, the company is now preparing the installation of the synchronizing device in the Capitol Theatre, St. Louis, the next city chosen for the showing of the Barrymore starring vehicle.

The cities in which the picture and the newest device for synchronizing the film and the music are running, include New York, where the world premiere was held, in the Warner Theatre; Chicago, where it is playing at the McVickers Theatre; Atlantic City, at the Globe Theatre, and in Grauman's Egyptian in Hollywood.

Sam L. Warner attended the opening of the picture in Chicago last week. On his return to this city he expressed himself pleased with the manner in which the event was handled in the windy city. "The audience was really a brilliant one," said Warner. "It represented all the arts and sciences as well as society." Four weeks previous to the opening the city was well informed as to the opening date through a heavy advertising campaign.

Despite the fact that the Vitaphone has not as yet been installed at Grauman's Egyptian, the picture has succeeded in attracting patronage on its own merits says Warner.

Montana Exhibitors Fined on Bicycling Charges Under Copyright Law

IN the first criminal proceedings brought against alleged bicyclers of film, three exhibitors were convicted this week in Federal Court at Great Falls, Montana, and fined $300 for violation of the copyright laws. This is the first step in a nation-wide campaign sponsored by the Films Boards of Trade, in which the copyright law will be invoked against all alleged bicyclers.

The exhibitor defendants in Montana were Carl and Marius Anderson and R. D. McDaniels, of Kalispell.

Gabriel L. Heßs, general attorney for the Hays organization, estimates that distributors are robbed of $1,000,000 a year through bicycling of film. Conviction on the charge carries a penalty of a fine from $100 to $1,000 or a year's imprisonment or both.

Cases of alleged bicycling are also being brought before Arbitration Boards. In Philadelphia, Harry Perlman, owner of the West Alleghany and Lehigh theatres, was brought before the board on a bicycling charge and fined $246.

The charges were brought by Pathe, Educational and Electric Theatre Supply Co. Perlman admitted the charges and declared that he had been assured by film salesmen that there would be no objection to playing the pictures in both his theatres under one rental price.

London to Discuss Propaganda

Ottawa Kiwanis Club Informed Imperial Conference to Consider Influence of Film

THE Ottawa Kiwanis club at a recent meeting was informed by Raymond S. Peck, director of the Canadian Government motion picture studio at Ottawa, Ontario, that the subject of motion picture production would be brought up for discussion at the Imperial Conference of Premiers of the British Empire to be held in London, England, in October.

Peck declared that the film industry had grown to such size and its influence for propaganda and advertising had become so great that the future of the business was causing serious concern in many countries. American ideas and ideals were being generally circulated throughout the world because of the predominance of American films. So serious was the controlling influence of the United States in this field that the British Imperial Government had been seeking some means of encouraging home industry, he said.

Mr. Peck has long been an advocate of a proposal to encourage producers of the United States to make a certain percentage of their film features in Canada so that the production would meet the qualifications of British Empire-made pictures for circulation throughout the Empire and in foreign countries.

Columbia Exchanges Denver Last Link in Gotham Chain

Through Budd Rogers, vice-president of Lumas, and J. T. Sheffield of Denver for Columbia Exchanges of Denver, Colorado, and Salt Lake City, Utah, contracts were signed last week whereby the exchanges will distribute Gotham product in the states of Colorado, New Mexico, Utah and Wyoming. This completes the chain of distribution offices handling Gotham productions, and Sam Sax, president of Gotham and Lumas, has made known the fact that his efforts from now on will be concentrated on production.

Arlette Marchal in "Wings" as French Cabaret Girl

Arlette Marchal, a Paramount featured player, has been given the part of a French Cabaret girl in "Wings," the John Monk Saunderson story of the air service in the World War. This, it is said, is the best role given the French actress since her arrival in this country. The "Wings" company is now on location at San Antonio, where the filming is in progress on the air sequences which culminate in the battle of St. Mihiel. More than 300 planes will participate.
